In four years Rickard, now known throughout Alaska as "Tex," made $500,000, most of which he lost on barren gold claims. Tiring of Alaska, Tex returned to San Francisco, then to the Tonopah and Goldfield section of Nevada in 1903 with $60,000 all that was left of the half million, and started another "recreation hall" in Goldfield. Pride in the town and good business judgment led Tex to promote his first fight, the famous 41 round battle Sept. 9, 1906 in which Joe Gans won the lightweight title from Battling Nelson on a foul. Rickard wanted to bring outsiders to Goldfield and he did.

To prove his good faith and integrity, Tex stacked up the $30,000 he bid for that fight, an unheard of purse at that time on the bar of his saloon for all to look at whenever necessary. He had backers but never called upon them and when the match was over his profit was over $30,000.

In 1910, when several promoters strove to bring about a heavyweight title battle between Jack Johnson recognized as the titleholder, and Jim Jeffries, retired champion, Rickard became aroused by a cartoon in a San Francisco paper that pictured a jackass braying "Where's Rickard now?" He bid $101,000 for the match, another record breaking purse, and staged the battle in Reno, Nev., after California refused to permit the bout.

Rickard came east to take over the old Madison Square Garden in 1920, an arena then considered a "white elephant." Within a few years he lifted fight promotion to record levels, built the new Madison Square Garden, and made a big business in boxing.

His Greatest Successes

His greatest successes were Gene Tunney's heavyweight title battles with Jack Dempsey at Philadelphia and Chicago with gates running over $2,000,000. He promoted the battle in which Jack Dempsey won the title from Jess Willard at Toledo in 1918 and from that time on staged every heavyweight title match. Dempsey's title defense against Luis Firpo under Rickard's direction drew over $1,000,000 and the Dempsey-Carpentier fray over $1,500,000.

Through his boxing activities and other investments Rickard is believed to have amassed a fortune of several million dollars. He owned cattle ranches in South America.

Rickard's chief delight in his promotional ventures came through the attraction of society to the bouts he promoted. In 1921 he staged a lightweight title match between Ritchie Mitchell and Benny Leonard for charity with the aid of several society leaders and ever since had viewed with deep satisfaction the presence of the socially prominent at his major attractions.

Friend of Old Timers

There was a side of Rickard, the man who could whip into line the toughest fistic prospect that ever lived and keep him there, that the public rarely saw. His death will mean the loss of a friend and counsellor to hundreds of old timers in the fight racket and to many of the broken wrecks of fistiana he was a financial life saver.

Widows of former fighters always were able to call on him in time of need and the man whose Midas touch turned boxing into one of the bonanzas he sought in Alaskan and Nevada gold fields never refused to aid those in need. Scattered through New York are hundreds of veterans who owe their jobs to Tex. He always had time, even in the midst of promotion of his greatest extravaganzas, to turn aside for friends of his earlier days who needed help.

Usually, when he left Madison Square Garden in the late afternoon, a group of the needy were on hand to beg alms. He kept a roll of bills in his pocket for just such emergencies and refused no one. The youngsters in the street danced for him and there was always half dollars for them.

Rickard's success as a promoter was founded on a principle of "pay as you go" and —never fail to make good on a promise, financially or otherwise. Where boxing had been a game that demanded the closest scrutiny of box office receipts and sometimes the assistance of the sheriff in collecting the fighters' share of a purse, Rickard worked on a different plan.

He guaranteed purses that set one new record after another and in title matches presented the participants with certified checks the day before the bout. The greatest single sum he ever paid was $996,000 to Gene Tunney for defending the heavyweight title against Jack Dempsey in Chicago in 1927.

Great Showman

The master of the ballyhoo had an uncanny ability to interest the public in his ventures. His slow crawl, whimsical phrases, and ability to carry out plans sometimes considered impossible kept him constantly in print. He believed in "giving the public what they want, the way they want it, not the way you think best." He was the greatest showmn since the days of P. T. Barnum of circus fame.

Several years ago, Rickard became interested in property in Miami Beach, Fla., and spent his vacations there. He bought a home two years ago, a private yacht, and planned to live, golf and fish in the south after his retirement. He is survived by his second wife, the former Maxine Hodges, whom he married at Lewisburg, W. Va., Oct. 10, 1926, and one daughter, Maxine. His first wife died in 1925.

Question Mark On Sixth Day Of Flight

At the Refueling Yesterday Afternoon 170 Gallons of Gasoline Were Taken Aboard.

METROPOLITAN AIRPORT, Los Angeles, Jan. 6—(AP)—The Question Mark, army refueling endurance monoplane, had passed five and one half days in the air at 7.26.46 p. m. tonight, a total of 132 hours. The engines were droning steadily as the ship circled above San Fernandino valley. The plane had doubled the previous records for sustained flight for heavier than air craft.

The previous record for sustained flight by heavier than air craft, 65 hours and 25 minutes was doubled at 6.16.46 p. m. by the army monoplane Question Mark. The Fokker completed the 130th hour of sustained flying at 5.26.46 p. m.

The previous record that was doubled by the Question Mark was made six months ago by the German fliers, Johann Risticz and Wilheim Zimmerman.

As night closed in on the big Fokker, it swung in a narrow circle about the airport here, never out of sight of the thousands of spectators gathered to watch the maneuvering.

The clouds that overcast the sky early today were gone tonight and clear air was seen as a boon to the fliers.

For the first time since the monoplane took off here Tuesday morning, the motors began to show appreciable strain last night. Missing cylinders in the three motors with which the plane is powered, threatened to force the plane to earth, and at least once brought from Major Carl Spatz, commander of the flight, an order for all members of the crew to take their posts and prepare for the final glide to the airport.

For more than seven hours the ship has kept an elevation of 4,000 feet and within gliding distance of the field, prepared for a forced landing, but shortly after 1 p. m. the ailing engines apparently were readjusted, for the Question Mark too on a heavy load of gasoline in mid-air and began a more courageous flight which took in the entire San Fernando valley.

A notation in the log of the plane shortly after midnight last night showed that Captain Ira Eaker had cleaned the plugs by opening the throttle wide, and thereby had at least postponed a descent. Five refueling contacts were made during the night, averaging about 100 gallons each time. The small load was considered advisable, since the plane was experiencing difficulty in keeping its altitude. At the refueling early this afternoon, however, 170 gallons were taken on board and the plane seemed much sturdier.

A note dropped by Major Spatz asking that his wife be brought to the field was interpreted by her as a warning that the flight was near its end.

Cold struck the crew of the Question Mark doubly hard last night, once forcing the plane down from 6,000 feet to 4,000 feet elevation, because a window dropped out.

SAYS PROF. H. E. BARNES MADE HIMSELF RIDICULOUS

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 6—(AP)—Prof. Harry Elmer Barnes, of Smith college made himself ridiculous by resurrecting "doctrines that were buried 50 years ago at least," Dean Moore McGann declared in his sermon this morning at Christ church cathedral. Grand Duke Nicholas Of Russia Is Dead

Had Been Considered by Russian Royalists as Next in Line For the Throne—Won Fame as Soldier.

ANTIBES, France, Jan. 6—(AP)—Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia, regarded generally by royalists as claimant to the throne of that country, died at his villa here shortly after midnight last night, following an illness of several weeks.

Since the downfall and death of Czar Nicholas II of Russia, Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch had been considered by Russian royalists as next in line for the throne of the Russias if the bolshevist regime should fall and the Romanoffs return.

As commander-in-chief of the Russian armies during part of Russia's period of participation in the World war, Grand Duke Nicholas is reported to have had behind him, a greater popular support than that accorded the czar himself.

At one time during the early part of the war, after he had made a successful offensive against the Austrians, overrunning Galicia, pictures of him used to be carried in Russian religious processions.

After the rise of the bolshevists, he was elected successor to the throne of the late czar by the Supreme Council of Russian Monarchists, representing several million Russians living in exile.

Grand Duke Nicholas was essentially a soldier. During the Russo-Japanese war he was president of the Council of National Defense, and later was inspector-general of cavalry. The council of war decided to send him to Manchuria to take over the command from General Kuropatkin, following the battles of Mukden, which the Russians lost. Nicholas, however, declined to succeed Kuropatkin, though he consented to go to Manchuria. In 1905 he assumed command of the imperial guard.

He was commonly acknowledged to be the finest cavalry expert in Russia, and possibly in Europe. Everyone acclaimed him as a worthy son of his father, who had commanded the Russian forces against Turkey.

In the trying days which followed the war with Japan, when Russia became partly demoralized, the Grand Duke Nicholas was the mainstay of the forces of order. There was considerable agitation in favor of his being made dictator, and the czar was then said to have decided on the appointment. He held numerous reviews of his regiments until he was sent to Finland as commander of the forces there.

On the outbreak of the World war, Grand Duke Nicholas was appointed commander-in-chief of the Russian army. Under his leadership, Galicia was conuered, Hungary was threatened, and the attention of the German war lords was diverted from the drive toward Paris to a defense of their own lines in the east. The Germans found it necessary to move great masses of men from the western front in order to prevent the Russians from overrunning East Prussia.

At this time the grand duke was the idol of his army and of the Russian people. He was a stern disciplinarian, and took little account of cost in men or material in gaining a point; but he spared himself no more than his troops. His ideal was to unify all the Pan-Slavic elements under Russia.

Then came the collapse of the Russian army in the swamps of Masuren under the counter-offensive of the German reinforcements from the western front. It is said that at this time the czar wished to make a separate peace with Germany, and that the grand duke replied that to combat this intention he would start a revolution, with the army at his back.

The grand duke was then sent to Tiflis, to fight the Turks. With scanty equipment and poor morale, his army collapsed. A revolution sprung up, and could not be checked for lack of military forces.

When the revolution of 1917 broke out the grand duke issued a statement at Tiflis saying that a return to the old regime would be impossible and that he would never consent to such a step. He then retired as commander-in-chief of the Russian armies, abdicated and turned over his property to the state.

Owing to the rallying of the royalists around him he was arrested by the bolshevists. He was sent to the Crimea, where he became commander of the Cossack forces in southern Russia.

Leaving southern Russia, he arrived with other members of the Russian imperial family at Constantinople. He was invited by King Victor Emanuel, of Italy to live in that country. He went to Rome, where he lived for a considerable time in retirement.

The grand duke had married in 1907 the Princess Anastasia of Montenegro, and she shared his exile.

From Italy, Nicholas went to Paris, where he became the leader of the Russian monarchists. In an interview in 1924 he claimed that the end of the red regime in Russia was near. He said that 3,000,000 Russians living in exile were behind him. In 1925 he headed a gathering of Russian generals in Paris, consulting as to how to raise a military force to aid border states against the soviet.

Recently, however, it had been reported that Nicholas had given up his hopes of overthrowing bolshevism. This report arose after he had dismissed a small force of adherents who attended him since his departure from Russia.

Nicholas lived in the Chateau Dechoigny, near Paris, with his wife. In 1926 the grand duchess was injured in an automobile accident in Paris.

By dying a natural death the grand duke defeated the numerous attempts made on his life. Soon after his appointment as commander of the imperial guards, an attempt was made to shoot him during a military review of the guards. At another time a bomb was found on a railroad track over which his train was to pass. In 1907 a train in which he was riding was shot at. The next year a number of bombs were found in the vicinity of his palace. In the same year seven terrorists were hanged for an attempt on his life. Two years later a revolutionary plot against his life barely failed.

The grand duke was born Nov. 6, 1856.

Automobile fatalities in Massachusetts last week totalled 17, George A. Parker, registrar of motor vehicles, reported. Of this number, 11 were pedestrians.

HOOVER HAS ARRIVED AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

The President-Elect Has Arranged to Open Temporary Headquarters Today at the Mayflower Hotel—Will Make Personal Report to President Coolidge and Hold a Series of Conferences With Republican Leaders—Has Given No Intimation as to When He Will Call the New Congress to Washington.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—(AP)—President-elect Hoover returned to Washington late today from his Latin-American good will tour to find himself enveloped in a maelstrom of political discussion involving cabinet appointments, an extra session of congress, farm relief, tariff revision and a score of other matters that figured in his campaign.

Arriving at Old Point Comfort, Va., at 8 a. m. today on the battleship Utah from Rio De Janeiro, the last port of call in South America, the president-elect came to Washington on a special train and immediately arranged to open temporary headquarters tomorrow at the Mayflower hotel, where he will begin a series of conferences with republican party leaders.

While Mr. Hoover had only one specific engagement—that with Senator Burton of Ohio, he planned to make an early personal report to President Coolidge on his Latin-American trip. He also will hold a series of conferences on cabinet appointments, after which he will make selections although announcement of them probably will be withheld until just before inauguration.

The president-elect returned to Washington for a brief stay to find a division among congressional leaders who supported him in the election as to whether farm relief should not be enacted at this session and the extra session which has been promised by him for this legislation avoided until next fall, at least.

Mr. Hoover will spend much of tomorrow acquainting himself with the whole domestic situation as it has developed during his two months' absence from the country. However, his close associates have flatly declared that he will offer no suggestions concerning problems before this congress, as he holds it highly improper for a president-elect to undertake to interfere in any way with legislative matters pending during the administration of his predecessor in office. Congressional leaders generally concede that the pending McNary agricultural bill, which has the endorsement of the Coolidge administration, cannot be enacted at this short session without word from Mr. Hoover. Should this legislation fail, the president-elect will call an extra session of the 71st congress to carry through the program which he outlined during his campaign.

In advance of the adjournment of this congress, Mr. Hoover has given no intimation as to when he will call the new congress to Washington. He finds some of his staunchest supporters in his campaign demanding a session this spring for farm relief and tariff revision. In this group are Senators Borah of Idaho, Brookhart of Iowa, and Jones of Washington, and Representative Tilson of Connecticut, republican leader in the house.

Aligned against this group are Senators Watson of Indiana, prospective new republican leader in the senate; Speaker Longworth, Senator Moses of New Hampshire, and others high in party counsels, who want the farm marketing bill disposed of at this session and the extra session for consideration of tariff revision deferred until next fall or to take up the latter question at the regular session next December.

President-elect Hoover has kept his own counsels about his cabinet and he has derived no little amusement from the efforts of political wiseacres to pick it for him. Reports of their activities reached him during his homeward voyage on the Utah, largely through the medium of Washington dispatches printed in the ship's paper, "The Big U."

He will take the matter of appointments up within a day or two with those he will invite to his headquarters. After a week of conferences here he will move on to Miami, Fla., not to return to Washington until time for his inauguration. In the interim he contemplates a second good will mission, this one to the West Indies, but probably will be unable to visit Mexico before March 4.

Mr. Hoover returned to Washington in the best of physical condition and in a happy frame of mind after his contacts with the officials and peoples of ten Central and South American republics. He declined to make any statement for publication concerning either his mission or any other subject.

After a night of storm, the Utah picked her way into Hampton Roads soon after daybreak during a stiff southeast wind which was accompanied by a driving rain soon after the anchor was lowered. The president-elect and Mrs. Hoover remained aboard the ship until half an hour before the hour set for the departure of their special train. As they went over the side to the captain's gig the rain almost ceased.

The special train made only one stop from Old Point to Washington.

The last night of the Utah's voyage was a rough one after one of the calmest cruises the much-traveled president-elect has had. As she steamed past Cape Hatteras the big battleship encountered a southeast blow with a heavy rainfall. She rolled considerably during most of the night and because of the driving rainfall it was necessary to keep her whistle blowing at minute intervals, disturbing the sleep of most of the passengers.

Soon after midnight, while the storm was at its height, some excitement was created by the sounding of a general alarm. Officers and sailors, aroused from their slumber, went rushing to their appointed stations in the rain while most members of the Hoover party climbed quickly to the main deck ready for any emergency.

But there wasn't any emergency. A seaman on the bridge, in reaching in the dark to pull the lever to sound the fog whistle, at the usual minute interval, grabbed the emergency alarm switch instead and set gongs ringing all over the ship.

FREEZING WEATHER IN THE SOUTHERN STATES

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Swept by sharp winds, the south tonight was shivering in sub-freezing temperatures except along the Atlantic coast, with prospects for the lowest marks of the season by dawn tomorrow.

Even along the Atlantic seaboard, from Norfolk, Va., as far south as Charleston, S. C., freezing temperatures were expected tomorrow as strong winds whipped across from the west.

From northwest Arkansas to the Appalachians and from the Ohio rover to the Gulf of Mexico, sub-freezing marks were recorded today, with new low season records established at some points.

Winter's frigid grasp was to be of short duration, however, as the forecast along the Mississippi river tomorrow was for rising temperatures after another night of freezing but the crest of the wave was just reaching states on the eastern slopes of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

HOPE FOR VOTE ON KELLOGG TREATY IN SENATE THIS WEEK

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Hopes for a vote on the Kellogg anti-war treaty in the senate this week were hed out today by leaders as congress turned to a program for that period of heavy work in both the senate and house.

Three days of debate have cleared the atmosphere considerably on the much-discussed treaty pledging the nations of the world to renounce war. Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee in charge of the pact, is confident of an early and favorable vote on ratification.

EIGHT PERSONS INJURED WHEN BUS STRUCK POLE

NORWOOD, Mass., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Eight persons were injured and 20 others shaken up when a New York-to-Boston motor bus skidded into an electric light pole here today. The brakes locked on a down grade, causing the rear end of the bus to swerve. Harry Carlozzi, of New York, the driver, was uninjured.

The eight injured persons were taken to the Norwood hospital, where three were held for treatment and the others discharged.

STEAMER ASHORE ON THE SOUTH END OF GOULD ISLAND

NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 6.—(AP)—The steamer Herman Frasch, New York for Providence, went ashore on the south end of Gould Island in Narragansett bay, while in a fog today. Although she was reported as having 18 feet of water in her hold, it was believed that she was not badly damaged. The U. S. destroyer Fanning was standing by with a tug from the naval coaling base at Millville.

The steamer had a cargo of sulphur.

AIR MAIL PILOT KILLED IN FORCED LANDING AT UNION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Jan. 6. — Ned Carrington, of Stamford, Conn., a member of the United States air mail service was instantly killed Saturday evening in the little village of Union, 18 miles north of Putnam. When making a forced landing his plane became entangled in tree tops on the Justin Burrill farm and crashed to the ground, crushing him beneath it.

Carrington was flying a United States mail plane from Boston to New York. He left the East Boston airport shortly before dusk and was due at Brainard field, Hartford, at 8.15 p. m. Officials from the Hartford flying field who rushed to Union said that Carrington had been experiencing engine trouble from the time he left Boston until he reached the Webster airport at Webster, where he made a landing, refuelled his plane and adjusted the engine which had been functioning poorly. From Webster he sighted the Hartford beacon and took off in the direction of it. According to information obtained last night from the Union farmer, the plane circled about his home several times. Mr. Burrill said he sensed the fact that the pilot was in difficulty and ran out into the farm yard waving a huge flashlight. Carrington dropped a flare and one of the Burrill children ran out on the field, grasped it and set it up in an open lot. The flyer circled about the lighted area and began to head his plane towards the flare. Mr. Burrill told newspaper men who gathered there after the accident that the plane swooped down into tree tops on the outskirts of the field and at once burst into flames.

As the plane crashed to earth in pieces, the Burrills went to the aid of the pilot, but found him crushed under the fore part of the plane, burned beyond all possible recognition. Word was dispatched to the Brainard flying field at Hartford, informing them of the fatality and a number of them came to the scene of the burning mass and took charge of the salvaging of what was left of the plane.

SURVEY FOR PREVENTION OF PAYROLL ROBBERIES

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP)—A survey aimed at prevention of payroll robberies will be undertaken by a special committee of the national crime commission, Newton D. Baker, chairman of the commission, announced today.

The committee, consisting of 17 prominent members of the nation's banking and industrial circles, will consider this class of robberies from the viewpoint of the employer who must use warrants or checks or transport cash to pay his help, and from the viewpoint of the employee, who, Mr. Baker said, often has difficulty in converting his check.

FRESH AND RELAXED AT THE JOURNEY'S END

ONE of the fine things about driving the new Ford is the way it takes you over the miles without fuss or fatigue.

Mentally you are at ease because you are sure of the mechanical performance of the car. No matter how long the trip, or rough or devious the roadway, you know it will bring you safely, quickly to the journey's end.

Through thickest traffic, up steepest hills, along the open road, you will drive with security and confidence because the new Ford is so alert and capable and so easy to operate and control.

Ease of control adds to comfort of driving

The steering wheel answers to the touch of a finger. Gears shift smoothly and silently. Brakes take hold quickly and firmly even on slippery pavements.

Unusual acceleration, speed and power are especially appreciated in emergencies. A space little longer than the car itself is all you need for parking.

These features simplify the mechanics of driving and, together with reliability, add a great deal to the mental comfort of motoring.

Physically, too, you will feel fresh and relaxed in the new Ford because it is such a roomy, easy-riding car.

The restfully tilted seats are made generously wide and are deeply cushioned, with coil springs of straight and hour-glass type. The backs are carefully designed to conform to the curves of the body.

Perhaps the most outstanding feature of the new Ford is found in its riding comfort. Somehow it seems to just glide along, as if every road were a good road. The rough spots are there, just as they have always been, but you do not feel them. It is almost as if a giant hand had smoothed the way before you. Even bad stretches may be taken at a reasonably fast pace without hard jolts or bumps or the exaggerated bouncing which is the cause of most motoring fatigue.

One reason, of course, is the use of four Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers—two in the front and two in the rear.

Of even greater importance, however, are the low center of gravity, the carefully planned balance of the car, and the many advantages of the transverse or crosswise springs.

Special Ford springs soften force of road impacts

These springs rest on their flexible ends with the heavy center part uppermost. Thus the very weight of the springs receives the benefit of spring action instead of hanging below as dead weight and increasing the hammer-like blows of road impacts.

Another element in decreasing unsprung weight (the weight carried below the flexible ends of the springs) is the construction of the front axle and rear axle housing. Through the use of fine steel and electric welding, they are made of exceptional strength, yet kept comparatively light in weight.

All of these factors combine to reduce or absorb the force of every unevenness in the road before it reaches the frame, chassis and body of the car. This means more comfort for you personally and also contributes to better performance and longer life for every mechanical part.

The Fordor Sedan is a particularly good family car not only because of its comfort, safety and beauty, but also because of its low first cost and low cost of operation and up-keep. Finished in a choice of colors—an unusual feature in a low-price car.

Another feature of the new Ford is the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield. This is so made that the glass will not shatter or fly under the hardest impact. It is an important safety factor in these days of heavy traffic.

MAZZOLA HELD AS MATERIAL WITNESS IN MURDER CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 6—Week end developments in the murder of Mrs. Rosaria Lorella, 57, from strangulation at the home of her son-in-law, Thomas Mazzola, 27 Arnold's Lane, Thursday morning, led to the holding of Mazzola after a three-hour questioning by County Detective William E. Jackson and Police Officer Arthur M. Hurley Saturday night. Mazzola was held in the local police station on orders of Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson who desired his detention as a material witness.

While the investigators were reticent about making a definite statement to that effect, it is understood that Mazzola is held as an actual suspect in the case. Mazzola denied any knowledge of the alleged murder during the questioning but his statements as to the time he went to work as a section hand on the North Windham section of the New Haven railroad failed to check-up with information secured as to his activities Thursday morning, the morning of the death of Mrs. Lorella. Mazzola claimed that he left his house at 6:30 o'clock that morning. He said that he reported for work about 7:30 but the section gang had left the yard and he joined the outfit about half an hour later.

Foreman John Sullivan of 96 South street, who has charge of the work, stated, however, that the gang did not leave the tool house near the Milk street crossing until shortly after 8 o'clock, about one hour later than customary, because several tools had to be sharpened that morning. Mazzola had not reported for work at that hour. Meanwhile the gang went to work on the line about half a mile east of the North Windham station and Foreman Sullivan sent in an order to the railroad office at Franklin, Mass., deducting a day's pay from Mazzola's wages. The order read: "Willimantic, Jan. 3rd, 1929. D. Maconi, track supervisor, Franklin, Mass., deduct one day off Thomas Mazzola's time. John Sullivan."

Mazzola, whose work was that of track walker, put in appearance about 9 o'clock. Foreman Sullivan stated that he did not receive any answer when he asked Mazzola why he was late. He then told Mazzola that his pay for the day had been stopped adding that Mazzola was to work the remainder of the day, but not to report for work until 3 p. m. Friday, thus making up on that afternoon the time he had lost Thursday morning. Owing to the death of his mother-in-law, Mazzola did not work Friday or Saturday. The payroll for the gang is made up Wednesday night and sent in Thursday morning, the wages being paid from Friday to Friday.

While this apparent discrepancy in the working hours is being noted by the authorities as a preliminary link in the chain of evidence being built up, the most dominating factor in the investigation at the present time rests in the forthcoming report on the study of fingerprints taken from the articles about the house including a hand-basin which contained water used to wash blood from Mrs. Lorella's face and hands.

It was stated today that Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson would probably hold his inquest into the case within 48 hours. Several material witnesses will be summoned for the inquest including a witness who alleges to have seen Mazzola at a point not distant from his home after 7:15 o'clock on the morning of the murder.

The apprehension of Mazzola during the wake being held for Mrs. Lorella at the Arnold's Lane house where the murder was committed created a stir among the number of relatives and friends who were present. Mazzola was taken into custody about 3 o'clock Saturday night and throughout the evening several people called at police headquarters in an attempt to learn of his whereabouts.

Miss Mary Mazzola, 19, daughter of Thomas Mazzola and granddaughter of the dead woman was also questioned Saturday night but was later released.

Throwing guilt from his own shoulders and refusing to fix suspicion on others, Mazzola admitted, however, that his mother-in-law has figured in considerable trouble with relatives and others in Westerly, R. I., where she resided up to about one year ago. He said that the woman's stepdaughters and other relatives had visited Mrs. Lorella here on three or four occasions during the year, but the visits had been friendly. He said that he had wanted his mother-in-law to come here to be out of harm's way. The woman had refused, however, to reside with his family and occupied a small tenement at 9 Arnold's Lane, two houses from the three tenement house which he owns at No. 27. Mazzola said that the woman got her meals at his house and insofar as he knew he and his family supported her. His wife paid for about half a dozen insurance policies, amounting in all to about $1,000, carried by Mrs. Lorella.

Mrs. Lorella is believed to have accumulated several thousand dollars through frugal living and from her share of the estate of her late husband Pietro M. Lorella who was killed on the railroad a few years ago, leaving several thousand in cash and property, one-third of which went to his widow. Mazzola said that he had not had any trouble with his mother-in-law but added that she was "peculiar." When anyone came to visit her, even her own daughter, she would hurriedly lock up a large trunk that she kept in the place and put away other articles that she kept secreted.

A report that Mazzola had retained Attorney Samuel B. Harvey as counsel was denied by him to the authorities and further denied by Attorney Harvey today. Attorney Harvey was special state's attorney in the prosecution of Roland G. Lalone and Albert J. Raymond, Worcester, Mass., "ice-box" bandits now serving time in state's prison for the shooting of State Policeman Irving H. Nelson at Pomfret, April 6.

Thomas Mazzola, who gives his age as 33 years, came to this city from Italy nearly 20 years ago. He has been a railroad worker for some 15 years.

A proposed change of the 124 telephone subscribers in the Willington district from the local to the Stafford Springs exchange will not be made at this time, it was decided by officials of the Southern New England Telephone company who met with many of the subscribers and representatives of the Willimantic Merchant's bureau of the chamber of commerce at Willington Hill Friday night. The proposed change aroused a strong opposition of subscribers in both the Willington and local districts which have close contact through business and social relations. Representing the Merchant's bureau at the meeting were: Chairman James H. Hurley, Joseph B. Riordan, John F. Ahern, James B. Fullerton, Carl E. Rice and Executive Secretary Earl J. Arnold. Telephone officials present were: District Manager Emor Smith of Hartford, Mr. Beach of New Haven, John C. Frazier of the local exchange, R. L. McBee of South Willington was chairman of the meeting.

At the session of police court Saturday morning John Haggerty of this city was fined $100 and costs on a charge of keeping liquor with intent to sell. He filed an appeal to the next criminal term of the Windham county superior court and furnished bonds of $300 for his appearance. Attorney A. T. Kelley had waived the reading of the complaint and entered a demurrer which was overruled.

Two 16 year old boys, Arthur Bergeron and Alvin Gallagher were charged with breach of the peace and placed on probation for three months. The boys had removed electric light bulbs from the community Christmas trees, having since paid up the damage to the Merchant's bureau. A juvenile arraigned in connection with this case was also placed on probation for three months.

Prosecuting Attorney H. S. Gaucher announced that a charge of reckless driving would not be preferred against Mrs. H. S. Utley of Hartford whose car recently collided with a bicycle injuring the cyclist, Walter Taylor, aged 9, of Park street. The injuries were not serious. The investigation by Officer Roderick Lariviere disclosed that the boy was partially responsible for the accident.

FUNERALS

Mrs. Anna Drudy

The funeral of Mrs. Anna Drudy Casey was held Saturday morning with a solemn high mass of requiem in St. Joseph's church at 10 o'clock. Rev. Francis Duch was celebrant; Rev. Charles M. Kelly, deacon and Rev. Henry S. Quinn, sub-deacon. Rt. Rev. Monsigneur Thomas F. McNally of the Cathedral at Philadelphia and Rev. John J. Campbell of the Immaculate Conception church at Philadelphia were seated within the sanctuary rails. John Graham, of the chancellor's office, also in Philadelphia, attended the service. The choir, with Mrs. E. R. Portelance at the organ, rendered special singing. Quartet renditions were by Mrs. Henry Mathieu, Miss E. Martin, Arthur J. Roy and William A. Costello. Members of the quartet were also heard in impressive solos. Burial was in the Casey plot of St. Joseph's cemetery where a committal service was conducted by Monsigneur McNally, assisted by Rev. Fathers Campbell and Quinn. The bearers were John F. Carr, Edward H. Ottenheimer, Jeremiah E. Sullivan, John Reilly, Joseph P. Cotter, James F. Twomey. Relatives and friends attending the services came from Philadelphia, Boston and Lowell, Mass., Pawtucket, R. I., Middletown, Baltic and this city.

Mrs. Hattie P. Larkin

The body of Mrs. Hattie Potter Larkin who died in Winter Park, Fla., last Wednesday, arrived here Saturday morning on the 10 o'clock train. Funeral services were held at noon in the Windham Center Congregational church with Rev. Edward Smiley officiating. Burial was in the Windham cemetery. Arrangements were in charge of the J. C. Lincoln company.

Mrs. Martha L. Palmer

The funeral of Mrs. Martha L. Palmer, 92, widow of the late Herbert I. Palmer, who died at a Somerville, Mass., hospital Thursday was held Saturday morning the remains arriving here on the 11:15 o'clock train, from Boston. Burial was in the Willimantic cemetery where Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock of the Congregational church conducted a committal service. The deceased was a native of Hartwich and had resided here several years ago. The J. C. Lincoln company had charge of the arrangements.

Henry D. Smith

The funeral of Henry D. Smith, 85, who died in Providence, R. I., Tuesday was held in that city Friday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Edwin L. Matthewson. The deceased was born in Scotland, the son of David and Caroline Smith.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Frank P. Brown

Mrs. Mary Brown, widow of Frank P. Brown, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Albert V. Caufield, of 214 Jackson street about 7 o'clock this morning. She was born in England, January 30, 1849, a daughter of John Berry. Surviving are four sons: Frank P. and Harry Brown of Providence, Fred A. Brown of Newport and Herbert Brown of Boston, Mass., three daughters, Mrs. Mary Heap of Fall River, Mrs. C. E. Mattice of Portland, Ore., and Mrs. Caufield of this city. Death followed a prolonged illness.

Mrs. Francis Stewart

Mrs. Cyra Stewart, wife of Francis Stewart, died suddenly in New York city Thursday. She was a former resident of Scotland and was the daughter of George Cyrus and Belle Waldo Thomas. Burial was in the Scotland cemetery today. Local arrangements were in charge of Avery and Van Zandt.

Peter Vecelloni of 145 Oakley street, New Haven, was arrested by Captain Frank McLean here Saturday afternoon on charges of evasion of responsibility, reckless driving and driving an improperly registered car. Vecelloni has been wanted by the police since the night of January 1 when his car tore down a section of a fence in front of the George Stiles home in South Windham and then crashed into and smashed the silent "cop" at the junction of Main and North street. The man was arrested when he stopped at Leonard Bros. Garage.

Natchaug lodge No. 22, Knight of Pythias, elected the following officers at the annual meeting held Friday evening: Chancellor commander, Philip Bachert; vice-chancellor, Ralph B. Gates; prelate, Herman Meyehardt; master of works, Charles A. Gates; keeper of records and seals, Jerry L. Lennihan; master of finance, Edmund J. Peckham; master of exchequer, John A. Bowman; master of arms, Ernest Higgins; inner guard, George H. Gurley; outer guard, Owen D. Leach; trustee for three years, George H. Gurley. The officers will be installed by D. D. G. C. Myron Peckham and staff of Memorial lodge No. 38, of Manchester on the evening of January 14.

Favored by the open winter weather, Superintendent Edwin O. Sumner of the street department is pushing the work of building new streets and making necessary repairs in this way keeping a large number of men at steady employment. Much work has been done on Birch street from Valley to Prospect streets. The street is about 1,000 feet long and 20 feet wide and is being made fit for traffic from a rough and difficult path. Three layers of crushed stone have been used in building up for surface and concrete sidewalks and gutters have been laid on both sides. A new surface of crushed stone is also being applied to 300 feet of Mansfield avenue from Prospect to Quarry streets.

The "Legislative Special" of the New Haven railroad will be placed in operation on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, during the sesion of the coming legislature starting January 15. The train will be made up in Putnam, leaving there at 9:15 and due here at 9:45. On the return trip the train is due here at 5:15. Stops will be made at Abington, Elliott and Hampton by flag signal. The train does not carry baggage.

John Buck, son of First Selectman and Mrs. William A. Buck left Saturday to be week end guest of Lieutenant and Mrs. Edward Eilsberg, in Westfield, N. J., prior to resuming his studies at Marietta college, Ohio.

Miss Mary V. Szall, student at Windham high school, spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Szall in Eastford and attended the wedding of Miss Anna Bilta in West Ashford Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Edgarton, enroute to San Diego, Calif., where they will make their future home, write from Bisbee, Ariz., that they are enjoying their trip which they are making by automobile.

Mrs. L. H. Little left Saturday to spend the week end in New York from where she will leave to spend the winter in Winter Haven, Fla.

Notice of the suspension of the operator's license of Harvey Ricard of 907 Main street has been received by Police Chief Thomas F. Grady.

The orthodox Christmas which falls on Monday, January 7, according to the Greek calendar is being observed at the Russian Orthodox Holy Trinity church on Valley street. A Christmas eve service was held this evening and Monday morning at 10 o'clock a high mass will be celebrated by the pastor, Rev. V. Lushko.

The Misses Paulita Clark and Geraldine McGaughan of the Windham high school faculty were visitors in Hartford Saturday.

Mrs. Napoleon Frechette of Moosup is a patient at St. Joseph's hospital under observation.

Prayer Service

A prayer service for Mrs. Mary Brown was conducted at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Albert Caufield of 214 Jackson street at 2 o'clock this afternoon with Rev. David Winslow Lovett of the Baptist church officiating. A quartet consisting of Percy Wilmot, Russell A. Andrews, Albert Caufield and Joseph Atkinson rendered The Old Rugged Cross. Mrs. Martin Greenwood was heard in I Came to Jesus As I Was. Miss Inez Paton was accompanist.

DANIELSON

ONE ARRESTED FOR KEEPING GAMBLING PLACE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 6—State officers of the local barracks staged a raid Saturday night at a new building on Dyer street, just below Franklin street, and as a result of it Joseph Fraser will appear in the town court Wednesday morning to answer to a charge of keeping a gaming place. Meanwhile, he is at liberty under bonds of $50.

Sixteen frequenters were in the place when the officers entered, these frequentrs were in the place when the officers entered, these frequenters being in a room at the rear. Officers taking part in the raid assert that a poker game was broken up by their sudden appearance. None of the frequenters were arrested, but Aldi Coutu, of 5 Dyer street, who came in while the raid was in progress was arrested after he became too assertive, and was locked up at the police station today. On Monday he will be presented before the town court to answer to charges of intoxication and breach of the peace. The front part of the building raided is used as a store, for legitimate business purposes. This raid was the first on a gaming place in Danielson in a long time.

This first Sunday of the new year may be written into the records as dripping wet and as the date producing the first thunderstorm of 1929. A downpour that eclipsed anything for months past got underway during the early hours of this morning and continued with more or less abandon throughout the greater part of the day.

The flashing of lightning and the rumble of thunder over Danielson came just before the noon hour. There wasn't much of it, but enough for all practical purposes. Those whose memories are good assert that thunderstorms in January are not unknown to this section, but very infrequent.

While the rain came down in torrents, especially during the early hours of this morning the temperature climbed steadily until it was up into the 60's. From some places within a few miles of Danielson temperatures of 3 degrees below zero were reported early Saturday morning, making a change of about 65 degrees in the neighborhood of 30 hours.

The severity of today's storm, bringing nearly two inches of rain, cut traffic to a minimum and kept the town's people close within doors, though hundreds ventured out for the church services.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Miralda Lasnier

Mrs. Miralda Lasnier, 61, wife of Joseph Lasnier, died Saturday morning at the home on Dyer street, after having been in failing health for more than a year. She was a native of Canada, but came here as a little girl and had lived in Danielson for 56 years. Mrs. Lasnier leaves her husband and nine children—Arthur, Leodore, Adelard, Oliver, Edgar, Misses Yvonne and Rose Lasnier and Mrs. Exina Brunell of Danielson and Mrs. Edmond Gladue of Wauregan.

Reilley Fined $100

Edward Reilley of Putnam came into the town court Saturday and pleaded guilty to a charge that he was under the influence of an intoxicant when he was taken into custody by a state officer last July while operating a motor vehicle. Reilley was represented by Judge Sabin S. Russell as counsel. The court Judge W. Fenner Woodward presiding, imposed a fine of $100 and costs. The case had been continued from time to time for about six months. Meanwhile Reilley was again arrested for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of an intoxicant, was presented in the local court, given six months in jail, and appealed to the superior court, where, at Putnam the past week, he was fined $100 and costs, escaping prosecution as a second offender on a technicality.

Representatives Arthur W. Williams and William S. Hunter, Goodyear, reelected in November to represent Killingly in the 1929 session of the general assembly, will go to Hartford Tuesday to be present for the caucuses to be held on the evening of that day and preceding the opening of the legislature on Wednesday. The prospect is that several others from Danielson will be in Hartford for the opening of the session. This year a majority of the legislative members from towns hereabouts will travel between Hartford and their home towns in motor vehicles, either in their own cars or in the motor coaches that now serve on the route to the capital city.

Many Danielson people, especially those who live at no great distance from the railroad tracks, would welcome some railroad official in authority telling some of the engineers who pilot locomotives through this town to be more sparing in the use of the locomotive whistles while running through the borough. Some of these drivers set people's nerves on edge by holding a whistle open while the train tears along through the borough. Appreciative of the fact that these engineers are giving warning of the approach of these trains, it is regarded as wholly unnecessary that such an ear-splitting and long drawn shrieking should be indulged in. It so happens that this matter has been the subject of protest in Putnam recently, so the trouble is not altogether common to Danielson.

Ice at some bodies of water where it is harvested each year in the town of Killingly had attained a thickness of 5 inches by Saturday afternoon, when a southerly wind set in followed by heavy rain and a rapidly rising temperature. The fine prospect of starting cutting within a week has been ruined by the storm, for the ice that had formed was badly cut down.

In his printed message to the congregation at the Westfield Congregational church today Rev. Harding W. Gaylord praised the work being done by the Girls' choir. The membership of the choir has been increasing of late, and some of the younger girls of the church have been coming in. The choir is being trained by Mrs. Harold B. Attwood, and her excellent work is mentioned by Rev. Mr. Gaylord as one of the reasons why they are singing so well.

There is the possibility, it was said today, that the state highway department may be requested to make the entrance to the new route out of Danielson to Providence a little wider and the turn less abrupt on the southerly side. This, it is held can be easily done by removing a pole and using a bit of land that belongs to the state for the purpose. The turn now is too short and too sharp many drivers say, and already there have been some narrow escapes from accidents at this point. The entrance on the north side has a more gracefully and easy sweep.

With the new year still in its first week, members of the Ladies' Benevolent society of the Westfield Congregational church are taking time by the forelock and preparing for Easter, which comes unusually early this year, on Mar. 31.

The several hundred children attending St. James' school and representative of Danielson and the West Side, in the town of Brooklyn, will resume their studies Monday morning, after the vacation that has extended since before Christmas.

Following the January meeting of the chamber of commerce Tuesday evening the members are to adjourn to the Orpheum theater to supervise the distribution of awards that were made a feature of the drive for trade here during the holiday season.

This stormy day was a bonanza one for the public service car boys, who were kept on the jump about all of the time.

The Church School council of the Danielson Federation of Churches is to meet at the Baptist church Friday evening.

Treasurer Clifford H. Starkweather of the Danielson Trust company is recovering at his home in Brooklyn from a severe cold that has kept him away from business for a time.

Officers, committees and organizations of the Westfield Congregational church will make their reports covering the year 1928 at the church family night and annual meeting next Thursday, Rev. Harding W. Gaylord, the pastor, also will make his report for the year.

Saturday afternoon at the home of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Marcotte in East Killingly, funeral services for their infant son, Mark, were conducted by Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Danielson Baptist church. Burial was in Putnam Heights cemetery. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Scores of those who enjoy skating were out on ponds about Danielson Saturday, many of them at the J. W. Gallup farm on the Providence highway.

Many a car stalled in the mud on dirt highways in this town today after the heavy rain and high temperature had taken out much of the accumulation of frost.

About February 1, Mrs. Luella Wheatley plans to leave to spend the remainder of the winter in Florida, as has been her custom for years.

Over the week end an increase in the number of cases of illness was reported, and physicians are being kept unusually busy. Very few of the cases appear of serious nature.

Members of the W. C. T. U. are to meet Tuesday afternoon at the Westfield Congregational church.

The interval between the New Year season and the beginning of Lent is brief this year. Ash Wednesday will be February 13.

STONINGTON

ENGINE COMPANY ELECTS M. C. GRAHAM FOREMAN

When Stonington Steam Fire Engine Co., No. 1 met in their rooms the other evening the members chose the following officers: Foreman, Mathew C. Graham; first assistant, Austin S. Smith; second assistant, Benjamin Burdick; secretary, Jesse M. Pont; treasurer, Elmont Browning; steward, Edward Edgar; pipemen, William Rosen, Joseph Prenty, Joseph M. Pont, Frank Premitel; suction hosemen, Carl Rosen, Herbert E. Adams, Clifford D'Amico, Manuel Traverse, Delphin Lynch, Ellery Burdick; hydrant men, Edward W. Northrup, John D'Amico, J. Benjamin Adams, Harry W. Northrup.

The pupils of Room No. 15 in charge of Miss Mary Cogan, presented during the week a three-act play at the assembly of the Stonington high school entitled "Not to the Swift." The following had parts: Misses Kathleen Greene, Lydia Brunke, Joseph Hoxie, Alexander Smith, Maurice Kent, Edward Johnson, Edward Day. Two solos, "There's a Rainbow Round My Shoulder," and "Little Mother" were sung by Miss Emily Cowling. Miss Gertrude Celia was accompanist.

Judge John E. Pryor of Moosup was a caller ni Stonington recently.

The meeting of Stonington council No. 5, Jr. O. U. A. M., was held in their hall on Friday evening when the officers were installed by District Deputy Lloyd Brown of Noank council. Four candidates were initiated. On Tuesday members from here will attend the installation of the officers of Washington council of Noank.

Mrs. E. S. Stanton has returned from Hoboken, N. J.

The first double wedding of its kind was celebrated at Allentown, Pa., when four deaf mutes were married. The officiating clergyman was assisted by Edward F. Karcher, a senior at the Lutheran seminary at Mt. Airy, who on his graduation and ordination next year will become the first deaf and dumb Lutheran pastor in the United States. All questions and responses at the wedding were in the sign language.

PUTNAM

HAINES BARN AT POMFRET BURNED TO GROUND

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 6—A large one and one half story barn of modern construction situated on the Frank K. Haines farm in Marcy Hollow, Pomfret, was destroyed by fire late this afternoon with a loss of about $10,000.

The blaze was discovered by one of the members of the Haines family in the rear of the structure in a room containing the electrical plant used to light the barn and house. Before any help could be summoned the hayloft containing a winter's supply of hay and grain caught fire and soon the entire structure was enveloped in flames.

Help was asked from the Putnam fire department, but before the apparatus reached the farm ten miles distant the barn had been reduced to ashes and was nothing but a smouldering mass of one of the most beautiful cattle shelters in Pomfret. All livestock and two cars owned by Haines were saved. Although no definite cause of the fire could be learned tonight it was said that an overheated electric motor had exploded and the flames gained headway before they were discovered.

A favorable northwest wind prevailed and carried the flying embers into an open lot saving the Haines homes which doubtlessly would have been destroyed had not the elements been in favor of the small band of firefighters.

FUNERAL OF VICTIMS OF AUTO CRASH HELD

A most pathetic scene was witnessed Saturday morning when Mrs. Cleophus Laflamme and Mrs. Adelard Laflamme, her daughter-in-law, victims of the double fatality of Wednesday were laid to rest in St. Joseph's cemetery in North Grosvenordale.

The funeral, one of the largest ever conducted in the little mill village, was held at 9 o'clock from St. Joseph's church, where a solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. J. C. Mathieu, pastor of the church, Rev. Leo Lavalle, deacon and Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's church of this city, sub deacon. Music from Dion's funeral mass was rendered by the choir of the church. The funeral mass was attended by hundreds of friends and relatives of the two women.

Mrs. Cleophus Laflamme was born in Canada and came to the United States when a young girl, taking up her residence in the village of North Grosvenordale. She is survived by her husband and seven children, Mrs. Charles Lafountaine, Mrs. Philip Croteau, Adelard Laflamme, Octave, Albert, Margaret and Arthur, all of whom were with her when her life was snuffed out in the automobile crash. She also leaves her mother, Mrs. Alma Caderette and a sister Rose, and a brother George, all of North Grosvenordale.

The bearers for Mrs. Cleophus Laflamme were Henry Dery, A. J. Dery, Eugene Dery, Olie Dery, Amie Dery and Armand Lafountaine. Bearers for Mrs. Adelard Laflamme were Albert, Wilfred and Alex Laurion, Armand Larrauade, Alexander Dupont and Arthur S. Slesaia.

The latest form of mischief, the police are having to contend with, is the breaking of electric lights in the subway on Main street by youths, who delight in striking the unguarded bulbs with sticks and stones. This form of amusement has happened before in the city and the culprits were caught and brought before city court, found guilty and were forced to pay stiff fines for their doings.

The faculty of St. Mary's school have expressed themselves as being in favor of the parents of children endorsing the toxin-anti toxin bill for the inoculation of all children for the prevention of diphtheria, which will be placed before the parents for their sanction tomorrow (Monday). Several weeks ago Supt. of Schools Leon M. Farrin in a bulletin to the local press endorsed the plan and announced that the serum would be afforded all children whose parents had given their consent, free of charge. The announcement by the school department has been attributed to the recent controversy which has arisen among a group in Putnam known as the anti-vaccinationists. Circulars pointing out vaccination as the cause of the ever increasing death rate among school children have been distributed throughout the city today, in an effort to induce parents to take the stand with them in their try to have compulsory vaccination abolished. The group was successful in their first fight, last year when they presented their case before the town school committee and had vaccination rules changed to optional, as far as the authority of the local officials extend.

Mayor Charles A. Richard and the members of the common council will convene for their first session of the new year on Tuesday evening. One problem carried from the old year to the new, will be the solution of the parking situation. The body has spent several meetings of the past year discussing this subject, but as yet have arrived at no suitable solution. During the past month, Mayor Richard has been cooperating with the members of the police, fire and ordinance committees, in an effort to work out a better and more efficient parking code in the city. It was expressed by many interested today, that the council men would be ready to take up this matter in a better light on Tuesday evening and perhaps reach a point that will prove satisfactory to all concerned. The January meeting will also be devoted to the reading of the annual reports of the officers of the various city departments.

John Lely of Dayville, was arrested by State Policeman Royal V. Scranton of Danielson barracks Saturday evening at 6 o'clock, after he (Lely) had crashed into the highway embankment on Cemetery curve on Grove street, while under the influence of liquor. Lely was operating a Chevrolet touring car. Indications were that he was traveling at a rather high speed and was not aware of the curve. Officer Scranton appeared upon the scene shortly after the crash and placed the man under arrest. He was released this morning on bonds of $100, for his appearance in police court Monday morning.

According to a statement from J. Dyer Potter, chairman of the Anselm Mayotte post, American Veterans hospital committee given at a meeting Friday evening, Mantup farm, laying midway between Putnam and Pomfret has been adjudged as the most favorable site yet visited by the committee of General Hines, for the million dollar veterans hospital to be erected somewhere in southern New England. This, however, is not definite that the national committee on veterans hospitals has accepted the Putnam site, yet it is considered a good omen. The meeting was held in the lobby of the Putnam Savings bank and was presided over by Post Commander G. Stanley Shaw. Reports of the district conference held recently in Danielson were given by the local delegates. Past Commander Martin B. Robertson was appointed chairman of the committee on the sale of Memorial day poppies.

A meeting of the American Legion auxiliary was held in the Community rooms, adjoining the lobby of the bank.

William J. Hart of Brooklyn, N. Y., who was injured in an automobile collision in Mechanicsville on Thursday, was reported as being considerably improved today, by the officials of the Day Kimball hospital and hope for his recovery is increased. The hospital officials located the residence of the injured man in Brooklyn, N. Y., and informed his wife of the misfortune he encountered last week. Mrs. Hart arrived in Putnam Saturday and has been constantly at the bedside of her husband.

The Putnam Parent-Teacher association will hold its monthly meeting Monday evening at the Putnam high school auditorium. Chairman of the town school committee, Eric H. Johnson, Supt. of Schools Leon Farrin and Principal E. L. Robinson of Putnam high school have arranged a question box, which will prove of especial interest to the members of the association. Also on the programme will be a musicale by Professor Frederick Very of Providence.

City Engineer George W. Perry, who during the past six months has been cooperating with engineers of the state health department in their attempt to measure the sewage flow of the city, said today that the crib at the city sewage outlet has recorded a huge increase in the flow during the past month. The crib was erected in the summer as a forerunner of filtration beds to be erected for the disposal of sewage, now entering the Quinebaug River. The daily recordings on the gauges at the outlet will be used to determine the size of the beds, which according to state laws will have to be constructed.

Mrs. Paul Boshan, formerly of this city and now of Pawtucket, has been visiting with friends in North Grosvenordale.

Webster police who brought about the arrest of Donald Jackson, fraudulent check passer, active for the past two weeks in this section, said today that he will not be brought back to Webster to stand trial until the police of Boston have disposed of charges against him for his work in that city, in connection with the passing of worthless checks.

Toxin anti-toxin, diphtheria preventive will be given to the school children in the Israel Putnam school this Monday morning, providing the students have their parents consent to take the treatment. No charge will be made for the inoculations, Supt. Farrin announced.

Only one blaze, a chimney fire in a dwelling house on Walnut street this morning necessitated the attention of the members of the hook and ladder company over the week end. The blaze was confined to the chimney and was extinguished without fire loss to the property.

The members of the Putnam Rotary club have recently erected on the outskirts of the city road signs of a new design. The new indicators are of a gold background with black letters, informing one of the Rotary meeting hours on Wednesday. The roadway boards is the insignia of the organization.

LISBON

The Ladies' Aid society met at the Community hall Wednesday afternoon. Several hours were spent in sewing before a business session was held, during which Miss Lucy Baldwin and Mrs. W. J. Reynolds were appointed to make plans for the get-together supper to be served Saturday evening, Jan. 12 in connection with the meeting of the church. It was decided to hold the regular meetings of the society the last Wednesday of each month. Light refreshments were served by the table committee.

The program committee for the meeting of the Community club to be held Wednesday evening, Jan. 9 will be Richard Krauss and Gustave Kaempffe.

Schools in town opened Wednesday after the holiday vacation.

Mrs. C. A. Mell was the guest of friends in North Windham a few days last week.

Mrs. Stella Schmeider and little daughter of Brooklyn, N. Y., spent several days last week with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Buttan.

SERVICE WE DO NOT GET.

Waterbury has been having its troubles getting new automobile markers, and Waterbury has a branch office of the motor vehicle department to facilitate such service The situation was such that the superintendent of police in that city decided to give auto owners a day of grace, meaning that there would be no prosecutions for those who failed to have new markers on the first day of the year. This was due as the Waterbury American expresses it because of "the hopeless confusion surrounding the distribution of new markers by the motor vehicle department every year." Furthermore the American adds, "No doubt there were many who were simply indolent in their failure to meet the license requirement but there were certainly some who were unable to get markers after they had applied." and the first car that the state police found with a 1928 marker where a 1929 marker should have been was a car belonging to the Waterbury police department, which had been bought too late to secure new markers by mail and was carrying 1928 markers, "because the police have something more important to do than stand in line all morning.

Even though Waterbury has a branch office its business is greatly swelled by the fact that residents of surrounding towns and cities are expected to get their markers there as well as the residents of Waterbury. This makes for confusion as it does in every branch office of the state. It is more business than they ought to handle, especially when it has been repeatedly shown that it all comes at the end of the year.

If the Waterbury police department objects to standing in line all the morning is there any wonder that other residents and residents of the other cities object to doing the same thing at such offices, and then possibly not be served and be required to do the same thing the next day?

There is need for relief from this situation in the cities where branch offices exist and the remedy that ought to be applied is to establish branch offices in every city of the state. While there is need for relief there is also need for extending greater convenience to residents of all cities. We are paying for this service and ought to get it.

THE ARBITRATION PACT.

That the representatives of the nations in the Pan-American conference have come to a prompt and satisfactory understanding concerning arbitration and conciliation in the adjustment of disputes is not only gratifying, but it is the very outcome that was to be expected as the result of the Washington gathering.

If there had been any doubt in the minds of any of the representatives sent to that session as to the advisability of such action it must have been eliminated by the situation which developed between Bolivia and Paraguay and the results obtained in putting out the embers of war which had been kindled because of their border troubles.

Further than that it was impossible to overlook the progress that has been made in dealing with that long standing dispute between Chile and Peru which, we have been told since the conference opened, bids fair to be adjusted within a short time Better relations already exist between the countries and it is apparently just a matter of coming to an understanding as to what the terms of settlement will be.

The conference has set forth very definitely what issues must be submitted to arbitration and what method must be followed in such instances. According to the treaty questions of a judicial character will include the interpretation of a treaty, any question of international law, the existence of any fact which, if established, would constitute a breach of an international obligation, and the nature and extent of the reparation to be made for the breach of an international obligation.

The treaty provisions have been carefully drawn. They have taken into consideration all contingencies that may arise in connection with the arbitration court and the method of procedure and create the impression that most serious thought has been devoted to this effort with the expectation that there will be accomplished all that is sought. Those who have served at the conference appear to have done an excellent job.

THE ROBERTS REAPPOINTMENT.

The reappointment of Owen J. Roberts as government counsel in the oil cases was not because of the expiration of any term of office, but for the purpose of meeting a technical situation. It was necessary to get around a legal difficulty.

Mr. Roberts was selected by the government because of his ability, and the wisdom of his choice, along with Mr. Pomerene, has been fully recognized. When the point was raised that because of a provision of the law it was impossible for him to represent, while in that work, any private clients in other causes before an executive department, that contention was upheld by the attorney general. While that would have in no way interfered with the special work that Mr. Roberts was doing in connection with the oil cases, it was regarded as covering his case and the result was that he put in his resignation.

Because of his connection with the oil cases it would have been a serious handicap for the government to lose his services. The result was that congress was asked to grant a special exemption in his case. It was shown by the president that through the special counsel the government recovered all the lands illegally leased and $47,000,000 additional in money and other property. In recognition of such services and the importance of having them retained until the cases are closed, congress took the needed action and the reappointment by President Coolidge came as a natural result.

It is to be hoped that the oil cases will soon be completed and that bad mess with all its ramifications ended, but the importance of having the government retain the services of one who has made himself invaluable through his study and connection with the cases could not be overlooked Mr. Roberts was selected for his ability to handle such matters in the first place. His work proved that no mistake had been made in picking him and now the developments indicates that he will see a good job through. By the action taken there has been prevented the necessity of changing good horses while crossing the stream.

MR. HOOVER'S RETURN.

Mr. Hoover's return should bring to an end some of the speculation that has been going on regarding his plans. It may be an unusual procedure for a president-elect to go to Washington before inauguration, but it is to be remembered that he stands in close relation to the present administration, is in sympathy with its policies and has been a member of it. His visit to Washington now will in no way embarrass President Coolidge It may facilitate matters regarding the closing of the present session and clarify the situation relative to a special session of congress.

Mr. Hoover has completed a swing around the western hemisphere which holds much promise for improved relations with the countries visited during his administration He has gotten first hand information which could not have been obtained otherwise, and he has given to them an expression of views on certain questions which cannot fail to make a good impression. Everywhere he has been accorded a wonderful reception, evidencing the desire to spread good will was mutual. Mr. Hoover has long since been known to do things well and differently than others. This he has certainly accomplished in regard to the trip through the Americas.

While a curtailment of his complete trip was found necessary, it is not improbable that he will yet find the time before the fourth of March to visit Mexico, the canal and possibly countries in northern South America. Such would complete a programme that was tentatively mapped out when the start was made.

That our next president has completed his epoch making trip without accident or unforward incident is cause for much satisfaction.

NO PLACE FOR TOLERANCE.

When concern is manifested in Rhode Island because there was an increase in the number of arrests for drunken driving last year, it is only the logical reaction. The gain for 1928 wasn't large but it showed that the highway conditions were growing worse, and it is the safety of the traveling public that arouses concern.

In 1926 Rhode Island made 349 arrests of auto drivers who were intoxicated In 1927 the number jumped to 531. That prompted new legislation to meet such an increase but while it may be claimed that it served to prevent a very large increase it certainly did not accomplish any reduction, for 1928's total was 566.

The arrests do not always give an accurate idea of the number of drunken drivers, for they do not provide a record of those who manage to escape detection. But it is one of the serious features of motoring these days that there is such a willingness on the part of many to take a chance at the wheel of a car while under the influence of liquor. It is the menace to others which stamps it a real danger. It is not surprising that there should be a demand in Rhode Island for a decrease in such driving.

It is possible that increased vigilance on the part of the authorities may account for the increase in the arrests, but even that only too clearly reveals the seriousness of the situation. If drunken driving is to be stopped by legislation it isn't going to be done through lenient treatment of those whose acts, while unintentional, may mean injury, death or damage for someone else. The menace from the drunken driver certainly eliminates any tolerance in his behalf

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Soak new sash cords in boiled linseed oil and dry well before pouting them up and they will last longer.

Soft collars look like new when ironed on a folded Turkish towel.

Unbleached muslin window shades will help lighten a dark kitchen.

Wash wicker chairs and apply a coat of light oak enamel and they will look like new.

China and glass are not as likely to be chipped when washing them if a Turkish towel is placed in the bottom of the dishpan.

Serve honey dressing on an orange and banana salad.

A pie will cool quickly if placed on a high metal rack.

Add a little butter and salt to peanut butter for use in sandwiches.

Cheese added to the yolks of devilled eggs gives them a pleasing flavor.

Pieces of old velveteen make good polishing cloths.

When baking cake do not open the oven door for the first five minutes or it will be apt to fall.

Tea brewed in an earthen pot is superior to that made in a metal one.

After mending broken china with cement hold the pieces in place with adhesive plaster until the liquid hardens.

When using sealing wax for decorating articles dissolve it in alcohol and apply with a brush, as you would paint.

A few drops of lemon juice added to the water in which glassware is rinsed will give luster to it.

To remove grease from a sink sprinkle generously with a cleansing powder, then wipe off with a newspaper or soft paper. Gease will not then be washed down the drainpipe.

Instead of warming roast beef over in gravy try putting it on a small tin pie-plate and placing it in a steamer over boiling water. In about half an hour you have a fresh, juicy roast.

WASH THE BREAD BOX.

Bread crumbs are all right in their place, but the bread box is no place for them. An invisible crumb which has been left there too long may be the cause of mouldy bread and an unpleasant odor. To keep the bread box always clean and sweet smelling, it should be washed at least once a week. Apply hot soapsuds inside and outside, then rinse in clear, warm water and dry thoroughly before replacing the supply of bread.

GATHERS THE DUST.

Place a bit of cotton soaked with kerosene in the bottom of the case of your clock Remove in a couple of days and you will be surprised how much dust it has collected.

KEROSENE.

Keep a small bottle of kerosene oil in the bathroom closet, where it is handy for polishing the porcelain bathtub and wash bowel.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Tender feet can be toughened somewhat by giving a hot ammonia bath every night, rubbing afterwards with vaseline and in the mornings washing with cold water.

If you have time for nothing else, says Los Angeles Times, keep the room of the invalid spotlessly clean and in perfect order. There is nothing so depressing to the sick person as an untidy room. After all, that room is the only view he or she gets, so keep it in god condition.

Xylose, or wood sugar, obtained by chemists from peanut shells and cottonseed bran, both waste products, may prove a new food for diabetes sufferers, according to Dr. Warren E. Emley, of the United States Bureau of Standards, in a statement of progress in federal research made public by the American Chemical society.

KEEPING RAINCOATS GAY.

Since the vogue for gay raincoats, ominous clouds have lost much of their power to inspire gloom. But sometimes these same colorful coats, which started out so bravely, get splashed with the mud of a passing vehicle, or dropped on a dusty floor while still damp, or in the natural course of a long life in a dirty city they just become grimy looking.

Soap and water will restore the dirtiest of slickers to its original state. Spread the garment on a flat surface and with a cloth that has been dipped in warm water and soapsuds go over the soiled surface. Follow by a rinse with a damp cloth wrung out of clear and hang up to dry. This cleaning will not only keep the garment looking better, but will prolong its life, as it is the dust and dirt which dry on the fabric that ruin the surface and cause breaks and cracks.

WALLS IN PLAYROOM.

The walls in the playroom or nursery should be painted to be thoroughly praticeal. Then little fingerprints can be washed off easily and the room will always look clean If you do not care for the plain appearance of painted walls, have a design stenciled around the top as a border, using designs appropriate to children.

SQUEAKY CASTORS.

To avoid those squeaky, sticky casters, before inserting them, dip the shanks into vaseline and then slip them into the legs of the furniture. You will be surprised how easily and quietly you can move the heavy pieces about.

DOOR MAT.

In these days of houses with doors opening right into the living room, a door mat of some sort is an absolute necessity. The rough cocoa mats are perhaps the best dirt removers and can be bought with attractive bordered designs. They last forever, too.

TURNS TO BUTTER.

Thick cream if not sufficiently chilled will quickly turn to butter when whipped. Thin cream will stand more beating. When properly whipped cream should double in bulk.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

Fans of rich fabrics or ostrich. Fragile evening bags of pearls or crystal beads, or shirred velvet.

A black velvet gown has a rounding decolletage. At the center front three glowing red velvet carnations add their color.

A change from colored handkerchief as a gift is a white linen one with a golf bag embroidered in the corner and the owner's initials embroidered upon it.

A luxurious quilt for bed or chaiselounge is an old rose one quilted in the same color, but having a monogram in the center done in two shades of blue.

Dipping skirts on evening gowns show a preference for greatest length on one side, usually the left. The other side dips also, but the left side may reach beyond the floor, providing a smart little train.

Many of the separate skirts are designed with a slenderizing yoke, fullness inserted via the flare or pleats. Velveteen, satin and crepe are sponsored at this period in the season.

A new rain-day ensemble is of rubberized crepe in soft wisteria shade. The coat is slightly molded, has cape sleeves and a cute Postillion collar. The hat is fine felt, with along back to shed the rain.

Possibly more agreeable to the flesh than all wool is a new sports sock of silk and Australian wool. This is knit in wod beige, yellow beige or gray, with a wide, vividly contrasting cuff in solid color.

Not all blouses have sleeves nor do they all seek the pastels in the color range. Bright reds, corals, greens and black and white are numbered along with the metals for dressy wear. Chiffon, metalized, is very beautiful.

FROCK WITH PRINT SCARF.

A welcome relief from the dark dress is one made of Canton crepe with a V neck and long sleeves. The long blouse is wrinkled around the hips to form a snug line, and the skirt has the fullness on the left side. A very new note is the long scarf around the neck made of gay printed silk and edged with bands of the dress material.

DECORATIVE COLORED LINENS.

Tinted linens for the bed still hold the interest in their delightful pastel hues. But the fine linen or percale sheets and pillow cases, once neatly hemmed or hemstitched, now are more festive with monograms and designs in embroidery. This work is not massive or elaborate, little running patterns of polka dots or similar designs being favored as well as drawn work.

FOR THE CARD TABLE.

Inexpensive and pretty are small packages of potpourri tied up in pastel colored tulle. They have small cards bearing the number of the card table and the couple number

SUEDE SLIPPERS.

Rubbing lightly steel wool will brighten and clean suede slippers beautifully and save you the expense of having them cleaned. Use the 00 grade of steel wool, which is very fine.

SEWING HINTS.

When mending bath towels, use white darning cotton rather than ordinary thread. The mended place will not show so much and the darn will last longer.

With any article that must be made on absolutely straight lines, such as curtains, towels, etc., whenever possible, pull a thread before cutting into the material, and then follow that line. Then you are certain that your seam will be straight.

Keep a clothes hanger right in the sewing room when making a new frock. Then the half-finished dress may be placed on it when not working on it. There is no sense in budling it up in a knot and causing wrinkles when this small step will prevent them.

HEMMING TABLE LINEN.

If you are giving a tablecloth or napkin as a gift, it will be so much nicer to hem them and not leave this task for the recipient.

If they are of damask make the overcast hem. If rightly done this is simple and easy. Make the first turning as tiny as you possibly can and the second one as narrow as the first one allows. Then just crease back the damask from edge of the hem and overcast the seam thus formed. Take small stitches—just catch the threads of theh fabric and hem so as to hold them together. If this is neatly done the stitches will hardly show after you flatten out the hem.

If the cloth or napkins are of plain linen or crepe just baste a hem the desired width and take it to a shop where you can get it hemstitched for a few cents a yard It will look the same as the hemstitched articles you buy in the shops.

BROKEN NEEDLES.

Broken needles and used safety-razor blades should never be thrown away promiscuously. One woman keeps a tin coffee can in her bathroom closet for this purpose, and when it is full the entire can is thrown away with the lid pressed down securely. Then there is no danger of harm coming to people going through the trash.

FINISH FOR WALLS.

To produce a mottled finish to the walls of a house, apply wall paint over a ground color of another shade, and while it is still wet touch the surface lightly with crinkled wrapping paper loosely held.

CHOPPED VEGETABLES.

Use raw chopped vegetables, such as lettuce, cabbage or carrots, in sandwiches for the little child.

WINDOW SHADES.

To renew window shades, lay them on a flat surface and paint with flat paint whatever colors are desired. One side may be a light yellow and the other green.

CHICKEN.

Always allow chicken to thoroughly cool before covering it with a lid. This is most important. Harmful toxins develop if chicken is covered while hot.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

The privy council the highest tribunal in the British empire will pass on the question of the eligibility of women for membership in Canada's senate.

No single woman under twenty-five years of age is permitted to leave Spain unless she is accompanied by her parents or guardians.

Miss Mary Gibson, secretary for a Vancouver, B. C. realty concern completed a real estate deal recently which netted her a profit of well over $100,000.

As salesman for the Westinghouse Electric Co., Miss Madeline L. Johanning handles an annual sale of more than 3,000,000 incandescent lights.

The countess of Carnwath of London has taken over the business of a firm noted for its beautiful ornamental glass, and she intends to forsake society for business.

Miss Margaret A. Parke, recently made vice president of the Bank of Philadelphia and Trust Co., is the first of her sex to become a bank vice president in Philadelphia.

A COLOR SCHEME AID

The vinegar left from pickled beets is sometimes used in salad dressing instead of regular vinegar. It gives the dressing a pretty color.

HAVE ROOF EXAMINED

If about to embark on an extended trip have the eaves and roof of your house examined before you leave Then there will be no nasty leaks causing ruined walls and furnishings while you are away.

RECIPES.

Celery-Oyster Scallops: Cut white, tender celery in half-inch pieces, making one pint, and cook until tender. Butter thickly a glass baking dish, cover bottom with crumbs, add a layer of celery, and then a layer of oysters, using a pint of oysters in all. Sprinkle the oysters with salt, pepper and a dash of mace, and dot liberally with butter. Repeat until the dish is full, having the crumbs and butter as a top layer. Dip tiny oyster crackers in milk, let them swell a minute, and with them make a wreath around the edge and a smaller one in the middle. Add half a cup of hot milk or cream. Bake in a hot oven until brown.

Spanish Cake—½ cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 egg yolks, ½ cup milk, 1¾ cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-3 cup chopped walnut meats, 2 egg whites.

Cream the butter and sugar and add the yolks of the eggs beaten with the milk. Sift the flour, baking powder and cinnamon and mix with the walnuts. Add to the first mixture, fold in the beaten whites of the eggs 1 at of all and bake in layers in a moderate oven. Spread with the following:

Mocha Icing: Mix three tablespoons of hot black coffee with one nd a half tablespoons of butter. Add three tablespoons of cocoa and boil three minutes. Cool. Add one teaspoon of vanilla and enough confectioners' sugar to spread.

YOUR HEALTH

PREVENTION OF INFECTION IMPORTANT IN AVOIDANCE OF GOITRE.

(By Warren S. Cole, M. D., St. Louis)

For many years, physicians have been aware of the fact that the development of toxic goitre following acute infections such as tonsilitis, influenza, etc., has been too frequent to be merely a coincidence. Pathologic changes in the gross and microscopical picture of the thyroid gland without production of a toxic goitre occur much more frequently, however.

Recently, Cole and Womack of St. Louis demonstrated that such changes could be produced in the thyroid glands of animals by certain strains of bacteria. They observed that the hyperplasia of the thyroid cells, the loss of colloid and decrease of iodine content, in many instances, could not be differentiated from the changes observed in the thyroid glands of patients suffering from toxic goitre. The animals did not develop symptoms and signs of toxic goitre, however, except that there was a rise in the body metabolism, as is found in toxic goitre. They noted further that if these animals, with infections elsewhere in the body were fed iodine, the pathologic changes in the thyroid gland were usually not produced, even though the infection was lethal. These facts substantiate the idea that the thyroid gland plays a vital role in the resistance of the body to certain infections and toxemias. Although, in these experiments, the iodine protected the glands from damage by the infection elsewhere in the body, it does not necessarily follow that one should resort to iodine therapy during severe infections, since the severe damage may be produced, namely the conversion of a quiescent nodular goitre into a toxic goitre.

Of 156 cases of acute articular rheumatism observed in a series reported by Vincent, 86 had swelling and tenderness of the thyroid gland. According to his report, a few of these patients developed toxic goitre of the exophthalmic type immediately after their acute illness whereas a few others developed hypothyroidism. Billings has been impressed with the relation between toxic goitre and such infections as tonsilitis and abscesses of the teeth, and has reported many cases, which were cured of their toxic goitre by removal of the infected tonsils or abscessed teeth. It should be emphasized, however, that the removal of foci of infections is not sufficient in itself to cure the toxic goitre except in a small percentage of cases.

A few years ago it was believed that a deficiency of iodine in the water supply was the primary factor in the development of so-called endemic (simple) goitre, as found in Switzerland, India, the Great Lakes region and other areas. The observations of Marine of this country and McCarrison of England, have shown that water pollution is probably a greater factor than the iodine content of the water in the production of this type of goitre. In fact, it is agreed by many authorities now that simple goitre is caused by a deficiency of iodide in the water or food supply and severe physiologic strains (such as puberty and pregnancy), including those inflicted by infections and toxemias.

How The World Is Governed

Cabinet is Real Executive in France

The Argentine's President Can't Succeed Self

This is the fourth of a series of 11 weekly articles dealing with the manner in which the principal nations of the world are governed and contrasting the powers of the heads of those nations with the authority which President-elect Hoover will assume upon his inauguration.

By BATES RANEY
(Associated Press Feature Editor)

Herbert Hoover may well look forward to renomination for the presidency of the United States when his forthcoming term expires, but President Hipolito Yrigoyen of Argentina, whom he visited recently, can hold no such hopes for himself.

For the president of Argentina cannot remain in power for two consecutive terms, although he may hold term. President Yrigoyen, who was elected last spring, previously had served from 1916 to 1922. In the South American republic the presidential term is six years.

Another difference between the qualifications for president of Argentina and chief executive of the United States is that the former must be a Catholic, whereas the latter may be of any religious faith.

The Argentine executive, like the president of the United States, is elected by an electoral college. He appoints his own cabinet and otherwise has much the same powers, including that of vetoing congressional bills. In fact, the government of the Argentine is modeled on that of the United States, or the "representative, republican, federal" system.

Congress consists of a senate of 30 members, chosen by a special body of electors for six years, one-third retiring each two years, and a house of deputies, numbering 158, elected by direct vote for four years, one-half retiring every two years.

There are 14 provinces, having extensive home rule electing their own governors and legislatures, and 10 national territories, administered by governors appointed by the president Buenos Aires, the capital, like Washington, D. C., is situated in a federal district, the mayor of which is appointed by the president, with the approval of the senate, and is assisted by a deliberative council elected by taxpayers.

CHILD TRAINING

TEACHING HABITS OF COURTESY

Helen Gregg Green

"Hail ye small, sweet courtesies of life, for smooth do ye make the road of it."—Sterne.

Recently I overheard the story of a young lad applying for a position and getting it because of the "How do you do, sir?" with which he addressed an elderly official of a big corporation.

"You see," the man who engaged the courteous young chap explained, "so many young men are not properly attentive to those who are older. That young man's courtesy was genuine. It's true," he quoted, "that 'acorns of courtesy in business, usually, develop into oaks of financial return'."

Teachers and parents, alike, need to take time to think and teach courtesy if such habits are inculcated in boys and girls while they are still in the plastic, just-around-the-corner-from-babyhood age, they will, in all probability, carry these habits through life.

It is generally agreed that courtesy is indeed a most desirable quality to develop in children, but parents and teachers who expect their children to be thoughtful of others must remember that courtesy begets courtesy. They must set an example of courtesy. Is it not true that we often save our most courteous, gracious selves for our friends and acquaintances outside the home? Husbands and wives often speak to each other and to their children in a way they would not think of speaking to a stranger. How foolish! Must we not continually "sell ourselves" to each other as a salesman sells his wares to win orders? How does he do it? Partly by being friendly and courteous. Can we expect to hold the love and respect of our own little family circle in the fullest measure unless we use similar methods?

Courtesy wins the love of our families and our friends. Let us teach our children that not many become great or famous, but all can be courteous and thoughtful of others—a practical application of the Golden Rule.

In our town there is a big, jovial policeman who stands guard at a street corner where many children pass on their way to school. Expectantly, he waits for them in the morning, at noon and in the evening. He is their idol, always ready to look at their report cards and eager to hear their little tales of happiness or woe.

One day I happened to be passing when I saw three little girls wave a cheerry "Good morning, Mr. Reynolds" to the smiling man.

I nodded to him and said, "Really, Mr. Reynolds, I believe you're one of the happiest men in the world."

And quickly he replied, "I am! I would trade places with anyone for a much larger salary. You see, my children are all so polite and thoughtful."

"You have helped to make them so," I told him.

"Perhaps," he admitted. "I've found that courtesy and good-will often win where gruffness fails."

Stories That Recall Others

Talent for Description

Harold has an original method of expressing himself, for a three year old, and in telling about a horse he said: "The horse has a long chin, with a mouth right on the end of the chin, and it was so long it came down in the grass."

When the robins appeared in his yard he said: "There are pigeons in our yard, mamma, with red 'tummies'."

Mental Processes

A mother was cajoling her little daughter into taking some medicine that evidently was of rather unpleasant taste, saying:

"I don't like to take medicine any better than you do, but I just make up my mind to do it, and then I do."

"Yes, mother, and I just make up my mind that I won't take it and I don't." The little girl won her point.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—By a happy circumstance, Captain A. L. Drinkwater, who does the coast guard and other necessary telegraphing at the remote little town of Manteo on the North Carolina coast, loosened up his sending arm and put through the Associated Press stories on the Wright brothers' memorial services at Kitty Hawk.

It was the same Captain Drinkwater a quarter century ago who sent the despatches giving the first news to the world that man's dream of flight had been realized at last over those lonely, wind-seared Carolina hills.

The world do move, but not very fast down in that part of North Carolina. It was a long, toilsome way from Kitty Hawk to the wire at Manteo 25 years ago. It is just as far and as toilsome today, the giant strides of aviation and all other transportation modes in the meantime notwithstanding. It's a wagon, boat and finally a foot slogging trip through loose sand for a mile or so.

That's the way the first, history making story of man in flight reached Drinkwater for telegraphic relay. And that was just the way the stories of the celebration of that event with great bird-men of the world assembled to honor the memory and achievements of the Wright brothers reached him 25 years later.

Extemporized closer communication means fell down completely for one reason and another, but the reliable if rusty "sending" nerve in the cap'n's good right arm bridged the gap.

Mixed Greetings

From a former staff colleague, Ben Lamb, now long perched among the great ones of commercial life in the "H" street palace of the chamber of commerce of the United States, the Bystander gets his Christmas story of the 1928 season. Ben has a six year old hopeful—Ben, junior, of course—who has a neighborhood buddy of the same non-reading, but imitative age. The buddy got mixed up with pre-Christmas festivities of the feminine amalfry of the neighborhood and decided to construct an Xmas card for Ben, Jr., in his own hand. Knowing that secrecy, somehow, was part of the Christmas game, the tot raided his mothers' desk for a suitable card to copy. The product, nicely wraped in red tissue and tied with tinsel string, was duely delivered at the Lamb door and Ben Junior was greatly edified. He showed it proudly to Ben Senior, who saw, scrawled in gawky, childish lettering, made with much labor of licking the pencil point, this legend:

"A joyous Easter to my dear daughter."

"Dry" Dialogue.

Place, the senate; time, now; subject prohibition:

McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, (very dry): "Is it not true that in the last election many of the very best people in the country voted the republican ticket . . ."

Caraway, democrat, (not so dry): "No. Possibly good people did that."

McKellar: "I think some very excellent people voted the republican ticket . . ."

Caraway (interrupting): "I accept that."

McKellar: (proceeding): ". . . because they thought they were voting the country dry."

Caraway: "Yes."

WHERE WOMEN WEAR TROUSERS

By JAMES A. MILLS
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

MOSTAR, Bosnia, (AP)—Buried between Austria, Yugo-Slavia and Albania, with the Adriatic sea to the west, is the little mountainous province of Bosnia, formerly a vassal of Austria, but now a part of the Kingdom of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes.

Bosnia is noted chiefly for its sleepy Oriental capital city, Sarajevo, where the assassins of the Austrian Archduke Ferdinand lit the torch that set Europe on fire and left half the continent in ashes. But Bosnia is also remarkable for the fact that most of its women, who are of the Moslem faith, wear trousers, dye their hair and fingernails with henna and wear black shrouds over their heads that make them resemble witches.

When Turkey was a mighty power Bosnia was one of its outposts, and it taught the women to live in harems, to dress in "balloon" trousers, to wear death-like veils and generally to make themselves unattractive to men. These customs have survived through the centuries.

Flirtations with women, as Americans know the term, do not exist. Romance, courtship, love are almost unknown. When a man or youth wants to marry, he simply goes to the market and buys a wife for so many dollars or so many bushels of wheat.

Among the women in this country, skirts, silk stockings, corsets, picture hats, lipsticks, bobbed hair and "styles" are unknown. Even little girls wear "pants." They also henna their hair and fingernails and wear necklaces of huge blue beads to keep off the "evil-eye."

Although the women are mostly of pure Serbian origin, the Koran which they have adopted teaches them that they must never expose their face to any man except their father, husband or brother. They must also wear white gloves, leaving no part of their body uncovered. They spend most of their lives within the dark, cloistered walls of their homes. For them the outside world does not exist. According to government statistics, 89.68 per cent of them are illiterate.

Most of the people of Bosnia are engaged in agriculture. The majority are extremely poor and primitive. They live in one-story ramshackle houses with low ceilings and no windows. The natives sleep and work in their clothes, wearing the same garments for a whole season without a change. They have no beds, eight or ten sleep huddled together on the bare dirt floor, depending on the heat of their bodies for warmth.

Vermin flourishes among the people, whose religion teaches them not to destroy life in any form. Bathtubs are unknown. Instead of exterminating the creature, the Bosnian simply removes it from his body and drops it on the floor. Thus typhus often is widespread throughout the country, especially in winter.

Bosnian mothers bind their babies to a board with long cotton bands, in Indian fashion, preventing the slightest movement of hands or feet. When an American doctor protested the mothers insisted without it the infants would surely catch their death of cold.

Although the Koran allows Moslem men to have as many as four wives, economic stress forces them to confine themselves to one. Polygamy now hardly exists in Bosnia and Herzegovina. The last census showed only one man with four wives, 36 with three, 1,185 with two and the rest with one or none.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Mrs. Peter Has Her Turn.

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Who waits and watchful patience chooses,
Will find he very seldom loses.
—Mrs. Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit does foolish things. All of us do foolish things at times. Now that he was back in the dear Old Briar-patch after his feast up in Farmer Brown's barn, he would have remained there if he had listened to common sense. But he didn't remain there. He went over to the Green Forest. Yes, sir, he did just that thing. He went over to the Green Forest and he went in broad daylight. He had caught a glimpse of Reddy Fox disappearing up in the Old Pasture. He could see all over the Green Meadows and the way was clear. So away he had gone, lippety-lippety-lip. He wanted to tell his big cousin, Jumper the Hare, about the good things in Farmer Brown's barn and how he had found a way to get at them. He planned to go back to Farmer Brown's barn that very night.

Timid little Mrs. Peter was quite disconsolate. She thought wistfully of all those good things that Peter had had to eat, while she had only bark and tender twigs.

"I don't care," said she to herself, "my life is more important than a full stomach. I am safe here in the dear Old Briar-patch and I can get along after a fashion. I don't believe in taking unnecessary chances and that is just what Peter does every time he leaves the Old Briar-patch."

So little Mrs. Peter gnawed a little bark from one young tree and chewed some young twigs from some bushes and then sampled the bark from another young tree. It didn't taste very good—any of it. But it did give her stomach something to do and it did take the edge off that almost constant hunger. By and by she settled herself for a nap and presently was dreaming of all the good things Peter had described.

She was awakened by a noise. She awoke with a start. Her heart went pit-a-pat, pit-a-pat with fright There was some one on the other side of the dear Old Briar-patch, Very cautiously, little Mrs. Peter hopped to where she could peep out. She saw right away that it was Farmer Brown's Boy and that took away a little of her fright. You see, she had come to know that Farmer Brown's Boy was a friend. Just what he was doing, she couldn't quite see. He seemed to be working. He was busy for quite a few minutes. Then, whistling, he started back toward home. He was dragging a sled. Mrs. Peter sat and watched him until he had turned in at the Long Lane. Then she hurried over to see what he had been doing in the dear Old Briar-patch. It didn't take her long to find out. In a place that was somewhat sheltered by brambles and young trees, he had cleared away the snow and on this cleared place he had spread a feast. To begin with, there was a bundle of sweet clover hay. There was enough of it to last some time. Then there was some cabbage leaves. There were several small turnips and some carrots. Also, there were some apples. And, last, but not least, there was a little pile of oats.

How the eyes of little Mrs. Peter did sparkle! She sat herself right down to enjoy such a feast as she had not had that winter. She ate a little of this and nibbled a little of that. She couldn't have told you which tasted best. No, sir, she couldn't have told you which tasted best. She just sat there and ate and ate. The best of it all was she didn't ever have to stop and look and listen for a possible enemy. She was in the dear Old Briar-patch and safe. Not until she couldn't eat another mouthful did she think of Peter Rabbit. Then she chuckled.

"I wonder what Peter will say now," said she, "when he finds that I have had all these good things without the danger of going after them. I guess he'll wish he'd stayed at home."

Old Folks Say Doctor Caldwell was Right

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will last a family several months, and all can use it it is good for the baby because pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. In proper dose, given in the directions, it is equally effective at all ages. Elderly people will find it especially ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

Do give it a trial, to prove how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours.

Conn. Mother Has Right Idea

For over fifty years, physicians have recommended it and mothers all over the world have recognized this fine old medicine as the standard remedy for those ills of childhood, such as biliousness, sallow, "broken-out" skin, constipation, nervousness, indigestion, feverishness, no appetite or energy, etc. Children love the rich, fruity taste of California Fig Syrup and their whole system benefits from its gentle influence. It quickly purges the child's system of all waste; it regulates the bowels and stomach, and gives these organs tone and strength so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

A Connecticut mother, Mrs. C. W. Blaney, 83 Capitol Ave., Hartford, says: "My little son, Philip, had a lot of trouble with his stomach and bowels. They seemed to be weak and were very hard to regulate. Then we started him on California Fig Syrup. It regulated him quick, gave him a splendid appetite, made him sleep right." His color improved and he hasn't had a bit of his old trouble since. He's a strong, healthy boy now, smart, active and full of life."

Always ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name to protect yourself from imitations. All drug stores have it. Four million bottles used a year shows its popularity.

TAFTVILLE

Officers elected by the members of Court Wequonnoc, No. 58, Foresters of America, to serve for the year 1929, are as follows: Chief ranger, William Smith; sub-chief ranger, Patrick J. Fogarty; financial secretary, Ernest Jerris; recording secretary, Toedel Snow; treasurer, George Taylor; senior beadle, David Lambert; junior beadle, David Boxie; junior woodward, Thomas Lambert; trustee for three years, William Brown. SKIDDED INTO FENCE NEAR COOLEY'S HILL

A Buick sedan owned by Dr. John C. Hinrichs of No. 5 Harland road was considerably damaged Sunday evening when it skidded on the highway near Cooley's Hill, in the town of Franklin and struck a state highway fence. Dr. Hinrichs turned out suddenly to avoid a collision with a Dodge machine owned by Harold Dorr of Franklin and the doctor's machine skidded. One of the fence rails went through the door of his machine, narrowly missing two children on the rear seat. In addition one wheel was smashed and a mudguard damaged. Mr. Dorr's machine had no damage. It is said that Mr. Dorr, in turning into the highway, did not see Dr. Hinrich's machine quickly enough and Dr. Hinrich swung sharply to avoid a collision. Both cars were headed in the same direction.

CHESTER COUPLE CAME HERE TO CELEBRATE THEIR SILVER WEDDING

The 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Spicer of Chester was celebrated at the Waureganhotel Sunday afternoon with a delicious dinner served by the hotel. A feature of the delightful celebration was the observance of the birthdays of Jacob Gallup of Norwich and George W. Spicer. Mr. Gallup was born on Jan. 1, 1859, and Mr. Spicer Dec. 31, 1858, only a few hours separating the birth of the two men. At dinner Mrs. Spicer was presented a beautiful bouquet of roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Spicer were married in Groton on Jan. 7, 1904, and practically all their married life has been spent in Chester and Deep River. Mr. Spicer was president of the Connecticut Valley Orchard Co., located at Deep River for many years, but latterly has been in the orchard and fruit business at Chester.

There were 14 present at the dinner, including Mrs. Cecelia W. Lester, a sister of Mr. Spicer; Mr. and Mrs. J. William Spicer, Mrs. Susan Crooks, Joseph W. Spicer, Frank Spicer, Mrs. James I. Hewitt, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Gallup and Miss Ella Lester, all of Norwich, and Dr. and Mrs. Edmund Spicer of Waterbury.

OVER-NIGHT GUARD IS KEPT IN BROADWAY THEATRE

Broadway theatre was under guard Sunday night as a result of what is understood to be a struggle between two rival factions to get physical possession of the building.

Under orders from Manager Levinson of the Palace theatre, Constable Meyer Blumenthal was on guard at the theatre Sunday evening from 8:30 until the picture performances were over, and when the house was closed for the night the constable left two men on guard in the house until morning.

Mr. Levinson declined to make any statement Sunday night of what is the trouble at the theatre, other than to admit that two factions were clashing and he declared that whatever he had done on Sunday in having anybody ejected from the theatre had been on legal advice.

The struggle for possession of the house was precipitated Saturday afternoon, it is understood, when a man named Smith, who claims to be one of the large stockholders, arrived here from Boston, discharged the ticket seller at the theatre and collected the box office receipts for the night.

After the Saturday night show closed, Mr. Smith and a man with him remained in the box office, which they kept locked to prevent the entrance of anyone else.

Along about 4 o'clock Sunday morning, Sergt. John T. Casey received a telephone call that someone was breaking into the Broadway theatre and he was asked to send help. He at once assembled a squad of four men whom he dispatched to the theatre and upon arrival there it was found that Manager Levinson, who has an interest in the ownership, was in the lobby with several men to assist him in getting the two men out of the box office. The police were appealed to, to assist in the ejection, but they kept hands off and withdrew.

Later, it is understood, Mr. Smith claimed he had been assaulted by Mr. Levinson, but the police department was unable to see any evidences of assault and advised the two disputants to bring their case before the city attorney.

Mr. Levinson remained in possession of the house Sunday.

MRS. RUTSKI'S ARREST IS THE FOURTH FOR HER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 6—Another North Bank street raid was successful Saturday night when the police arrested Mrs. Matrona Rutski, an old offender, charged with violation of the liquor law. Mrs. Rutski was released upon furnishing a surety on her bond of $1,000 and will be in court tomorrow. The arrest was the result of Patrolman Dennis Murphy observing a man enter the Rutski store and after the man had been there a minute or two the officer entered in time to observe the patron about to drink a glass of "gin." The officer seized the glass and was able to save a small amount of its contents. The patron was arrested also, being held as a witness against the woman. Mrs. Rutski's arrest Saturday was her fourth for violation of the liquor law. The first time she was arrested a fine of $200 and costs was imposed and on the other two dates fines of $400 were imposed.

Tony Cristina, a youth residing at 25 Shaw street, was arrested Saturday night by Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin charged with driving without having a license and with reckless driving, the latter complaint being made by Dr. C. P. Knight, U. S. Coast Guard. Christina was released today upon a bond of $50 being furnished by Frank Piscatella. Christina will be presented in the police court Monday.

Several cases of intoxication will also be tried. One of them is a barbershop proprietor, who was found making a nuisance of himself on the veranda of a home other than his own this evening. He has been arrested several times for the same offense.

Patrolman John Sullivan is confined to his home by illness. There are now six members of the department ill.

DR. FERRIN SUES FOR DIVORCE IN RENO

Dr. Carlisle F. Ferrin, a well-known New London physician, has brought suit in Reno, Nev., for divorce from Blanche E. Ferrin of New London. The marriage of the couple took place in Stonington, May 24, 1897, and the suit is brought on the grounds of extreme cruelty. Attorney Charles A. Gallup is counsel for Mrs. Ferrin and Philip Z. Hankey is the New London representative of the doctor, who makes the claim in the divorce suit complaint that he now is and has been for more than three months last past a bona fide resident of county of Washoe, state of Nevada, and during all that time has been actually and physically present in the said county and state.

The complaint in the case contains a long list of acts alleged to constitute extreme cruelty.

NEPHEW CHIEF BENEFICIARY UNDER MRS. KIES' WILL

Mrs. Julia A. Kies, late of this city, left the bulk of her estate to a nephew, Frank P. Kies of Thompson, Conn., according to her will filed with Judge Nelson J. Ayling of the local probate court. Mr. Kies is named as executor of the will which is dated August 9 1928. Flora B. Rice and Lottie Camp, both of Los Angeles, Cal., are each left $500.

CHARGED WITH SMASHING WINDOW IN AUTOMOBILE

Irving Huntley, 21, was arrested Sunday evening on charges of intoxication and damaging private property. It is alleged that he broke a window in an automobile on the East Side owned by Harold McGuire of No 54 High street, Mystic. Officer Elmer Allen made the arrest.

More Influenza Cases

The number of influenza cases in Norwich is now rated at about a dozen. Six new cases were reported Saturday to Dr. E. J. Brophy, city health officer.

CONTESTS EXPECTED IN BOTH PARTY CAUCUSES

Legislators of both political parties will find contests confronting them for settlement next Tuesday night when they meet at the state capitol at Hartford for the pre-session caucuses. At this time, the republicans face a contest for the senate clerkship, although leaders express the hope that this can be ironed out before Tuesday, while the democrats, unless a successful peace parley is staged, will have contests on the minority leadership posts in both houses.

The republican contest hinges on the conflict between those members of the senate who desire Clerk J. Frederick Baker of New Haven to continue for another session and those who wish to make operative again the unwritten law of succession in the legislative clerkships, which would mean that House Clerk Daniel F. B. Hickey of Stamford would become clerk of the senate. The preservation of the status of the 1927 session with Baker as senate clerk, would make Hickey house clerk, Albert S. Bill of Hartford assistant clerk of the house, and Stanley Trasecki of New Britain assistant clerk of the senate. The formal rotation would make Bill clerk of the house with Trasecki as his assistant and a new assistant clerk of the senate to be appointed by the clerk of that body.

Senator-elect Thomas J. Conroy of Hartford, in the minds of many party leaders, is in the lead for the minority leadership of the senate, with Senator-elect Frank Bergin of New Haven running second and David Goldstein of Bridgeport third. Conroy has been affiliated with the organization wing of the party, under the leadership of National Committeeman Thomas J. Spellacy, Chairman Walsh, and former Mayor David E. Fitzgerald of New Haven. Bergin has been aligned with the leaders of the various insurgent moves in the party in recent years. As yet, however, factional lines have not been drawn among the minority legislators.

In the house minority, the only avowed candidate for the minority leadership is Representative-elect John F. Tobin of Waterbury. There is, however, considerable opposition to Tobin among members of the party, although it has not yet crystallized into support of any other candidate.

Eleven of the 13 democratic senators attended a recent conference with Charles G. Morris, gubernatorial candidate in November, and Prof. Nicholas Moseley, chairman of the subcommittee which drafted the tentative platform, for discussion of the content of the program to which the party convention pledged itself. While no formal poll of the senators was taken, Professor Moseley said, the legislators present appeared to view the program with favor.

Proponents of the democratic platform believe the party legislators can secure the aid of enough republican members to carry out some of the recommendations. This feeling is supported, democrats point out, by the fact that their platform calls for more state parks, particularly on the shore front, a recommendation which is made by the state park and forest commission; that their pledge for a commission to study taxation conditions and make recommendations has been made also by Tax Commissioner Blodgett; and that their support of redistribution of state aid for schools is consistent with the scheme proposed by the commission on codification of the school laws. Another democratic plank indorses jury service for women, which is sought by the League of Women Voters.

The platform pledges the party to a reorganization of the state government along the lines of that in New York under Governor Smith. The program, as laid down in the platform, would add three new commissions to the state government, that on revision of the tax laws, one to study conditions in the rural sections of the state and consider such remedies as rural credits, intensive truck farming, dairy farming and cattle raising, reforestation, improvement of country roads and promotion of the state as a summer resort, and a third commission which would have as its duty a survey of the water-power resources of the state which have not been granted to private corporations for development.

Other platform pledges are for adequate support for disabled veterans and their families, without red tape; more constructive and preventative work in the field of public health; rapid completion of the trunk line highway system, better maintenance of improved roads, and further state aid and technical supervision for highways in the rural towns.

The remainder of the platform includes a condemnation of republican rule which it would be extremely difficult to interpret into law; a voluntary pledge to make annual reports of party expenses, interpreted as binding without statutory mandate, and indorsement of Governor Smith's prohibition law modification stand, on which it is believed the legislature is limited to memorializing congress for action which would bring about the proposed changes.

Chairman Walsh has instructed Secretary A. S. Lynch to issue the call for the caucus, which will be held in the old senate chamber at the state capitol next Tuesday night following adjournment of the Hartford county republican caucus.

Republican members-elect of the house traditionally hold their caucus in the hall of the house, while the majority party senators-elect hold their caucus in the senate chamber. These caucuses in the past have been held at 8 o'clock, following county caucuses which have been called for 7:30. The meeting places of the republican county delegations have been arranged tentatively as follows:

Hartford old senate chamber; New Haven, room 21, second floor, east; New London county, room 73, fourth floor, west; Fairfield county, room 62, fourth floor, east; Windham county, room 65, fourth floor, east; Litchfield county, room 72, fourth floor, west; Middlesex county, room 74, fourth floor, west; Tolland county, room 76, fourth floor, east.

NEED MORE PENALTY FOR FRAUD IN BANK LAWS

Sharper teeth for the state fraud statutes covering dealings in financial fields, clarification of laws defining banks and trust companies and a broader field of investment for savings banks are features of new legislation which may be presented before the coming session of the general assembly.

Laws designed to effect these purposes will receive the support of State Bank Commissioner Lester E. Shippee and in some instances may find their origin in his office.

The recent grand jury investigation in Hartford county into the investment trust situation in the state, considerable litigation concerning the status of one financial corporation in the western part of the state and the general awakening of public interest in financial matters have served to attract attention to existing laws concerning all branches of activity in the banking and financial fields.

Protection of the investor is and has been the chief interest of the bank commissioner in his investigation of investment trust practices. The subject is a "real live subject and one deserving of much study," Commissioner Shippee said recently. However, it presents situations which cannot be solved in a moment's time nor does it lend itself to immediate clarification.

"Today all manner of financial organizations are parading under the guise of investment trusts," Commissioner Shippee said. The field has not become standardized and it is a grave question of just how to isolate various organizations into different groups.

"I fail to see the efficacy of blue-sky laws governing investment trusts since they naturally would impose their restrictive influences upon all manner of security issues. There is no reason that I can see why investment trusts should be subjected to special legislation having no restrictive force over financial organizations which also issue stock.

"Enactment of blue-sky laws would necessitate organization of a department twice the size of the banking department today. It would clutter up financial dealings with much red tape. The state would be forced to pass upon thousands of security issues. Approval would double the saleability of an issue that might be just 'on the line,' while disapproval on purely technical grounds might work a hardship on otherwise excellent securities.

"This would result in injury to brokerage business in many instances and would, I am convinced from study of conditions elsewhere, fail to accomplish its purpose.

"The largest single factor operating against blue-sky law control of investment trusts and security dealings is the lack of federal legislation. We might subject every broker in the state to licensing, require stringent examinations of investment trusts and other financial institutions and pass upon every security certificate in the world, but to what purpose?

"The high pressure security salesman, the organizer of shady investment trusts would step across the border into other territories. From there he could continue his business by telephone, telegraph and the mails, since at present there is nothing in the interstate commerce commission's regulations preventing him from doing so.

"It is my opinion," Commissioner Shippee continued, "that the first step should be clarification of fraud statutes and more stringent punishment of all violators, so that duly constituted officers of the state may proceed to prosecute with speed. Co-operation with the proper authorities by chambers of commerce, better business bureaus and all similar organizations, on the part of banks and brokers in reporting shady practices will aid greatly in straightening out the situation. Education of the man in the street to the fact that responsible bankers and brokers can and will gladly give expert advice will also aid. Laws may safeguard and aid somewhat the investor but not the speculator, the man who desires to 'get in on the ground floor.' You cannot stop speculation."

Commissioner Shippee said that in all probability many bills will be presented before the general assembly designed to place control of investment trusts under the bank commissioner, and to completely define by law what investment trust activities may include. These bills will be argued out and what the result will be no one can say, he added.

"But I fail to see what good would be accomplished by placing investment trusts under the supervision of the bank commission. That would elevate all manner of trust to the dignified position now held by banks. It follows that to place investment trusts under the banking commissioner's supervision all other organizations engaged in financial matters of all sorts should be placed under his supervision also. Such a course, I believe, would not aid the present situation but might serve to complicate it further.

In general, the banking code of the state is a good one, Commissioner Shippee feels. It needs clarification in some respects and minor revisions. In the trust company field a more definite definition by law of just what is meant by a bank and a trust company is needed. The bank commissioner has held that banks and trust companies are one and the same, that they have the same trust powers and may enter into the same fields. This should be clearly defined in the laws, Commissioner Shippee said. This and other changes in existing laws will unquestionably come before the general assembly, he added.

In the savings bank field existing laws are good and effective. However, bills will be presented to widen the scope of investment legal for savings banks. In all probability, it will be made possible for savings banks to invest in more public utility companies, especially in more of the gas company securities.

Another bill certain to be brought before the general assembly will be one designed to put back on the legal list of investments for savings banks, stocks of banks which have been stricken from the list by virtue of common stock ownership and single management of affiliated security companies.

Other legislation covering specific matters and dealing with financial matters in general will be introduced before the general assembly, Commissioner Shippee said.

EDMONDE O'BRIEN WRITES FROM BYRD'S EXPEDITION

Patrick O'Brien of 1129 East 180th street, New York city, a former resident here, has sent to The Bulletin a copy of a letter written by his son Edmonde, who is first assistant engineer on the Byrd Antarctic expedition. The letter was written from New Zealand on Nov. 25, 1928, and is as follows:

On board The American Barque "City of New York",
Flagship of Commander Byrd's Antarctic Expedition,
Rattray Street Wharf, Dunedin, N. Z.
November 26th, 1928.

My Dear Dad:

Ninety days out from New York and enjoyed every minute of it. So far the trip has been one wonderful experience.

We experienced very fine weather and remarkably smooth seas most all the way and that is going some for a voyage half way around the world, a little over twelve thousand miles.

Off the Kermadec Islands we experienced a little blow with pitching and roll. The most remarkable thing about this old packet was that not one drop of water was shipped and I will say this for the packet that she is the finest sea boat I have ever shipped on.

No doubt you have received my letter from Papeete, Tahiti, Society Islands by this time. We had one wonderful time in Papeete, made many friends and received right into the cream of Tahitian society. Among the friends made must include the casual acquaintance of the American beach-combers. I assure you that Papeete abounds with beach-combers of all nationalities and all shades of color. The beach-combers all came aboard to look the packet over and naturally we expected to have many stowaways when we would leave. But after we saw the life the beach-comber has ashore in Tahiti,—the ease and comfort of it we knew that we would have no stowaways. Well, a rather amusing incident took place as we were leaving the harbor, enroute to Dunedin, N. Z. The chief officer passed word to search ship for stowaways.

As you know stowaways fought one another for the same hole and the privilege of stowingaway on this ballyho (such events took place in Hoboken, N. J., and Panama). Well when word was passed to search ship for stowaways everyone on board laughed, to think that any beachcomber was foolish enough to leave an earthly Paradise, leaving real refreshments of great variety and of the best quality and where one has only to shake a cocoanut tree for breakfast, to stow away on this ballyho. Needless to say no stowaways were found aboard.

We had very pleasant weather from Papeete and with the exception of a small blow off the Kermadac Islands the sea was smooth as a mill pond. We crossed the International date line 180 degrees west longitude and 20 minutes south latitude on Monday, November 26th and lost a day. The boys turned into their bunk Monday night November 26th and got up Wednesday morning November 22nd.

A day lost is forever lost. I have sailed around the world three times, each time westward and lost a day each time.

Now for the trip to the Pole, the Bay of Whales and the Ross sea. Well, the entire expedition is now assembled here in Dunedin. At the expense of going into details somewhat I will mention to some extent the contents of each man's kit-bag.

Each man packed a quilt, pillows, blankets and sheets, and a full range of polar clothing. For head protection light and heavy weight woolen watch caps, a Norwegian ski cap and a muskrat fur cap. The aviators were given flying helmets with fur hoods covering their faces except part of the nose. Three pairs of heavy weight and two pairs of light weight woolen underwear, the last made of very heavy blanket material. Fur parkers (pull-overs) and wind-proof parkers with hoods. The hoods of the parkers are made of wolverine fur, the only fur on which moisture from the breath will not freeze. This fur is very rare and expensive and the entire world was gone over in order to get it.

Reinder parkers were also issued. A pair of dog fur gloves, leather mittens and fur lined mittens for the leather gloves.

Reindeer breeches and blanket trousers with reindeer and seal mutlocks which are waterproof hide boots reaching to the knees.

Heavy ice-shoes with spikes on the heel and specially made ski boots, the boots are sizes 10, 11 and 12 to take felt boots inside of them. As a preventitive for cold feet the boys were given four pair of heavy knee length wool socks, four pair of red top socks, four pair of light weight white wool socks, four pair of cashmere socks and two pair of wind-proof wool socks and two pair of half inch felt soles.

Four handkerchiefs, two pair of pajamas and moccasins made by Canadian Indians. In the line of hardware the boys were given razor outfits, mirrors, water proof match boxes, both sheath and pocket knives, ice hand axes, and steel encased silver watches.

A good sailor knows how to shoulder his old kit bag but oh boys that bag was some lift. Each fellow had a regular little department store on his back there for awhile.

The last of the stores are aboard including the 90 dogs and we will have some music all the way to the Ross Sea when the old ballyho gets into a seaway. They howl all night as it is.

It was simply wonderful to see the business-like way the planes and provisions were loaded on board, the perfect team work eighty men working as a unit. Rank on this expedition does not mean so much as it matters not if you happen to be the chief medical officer, coal passer, aviator, curator or scientist, everybody works and we sure are not on a joy ride. This expedition is not an air stunt, simply a dash to the pole, but a scientific one, all phases of science to be covered and to extend over a period of two years. We are much concerned over our supply of coal and if winds are favorable will sail most of the way and save all the coal we can.

Most of the boys of the crew saw service in the World war, the oldest man is sixty and the youngest 19 years. The average age of the men is about 32 years. The people of Dunedin told us that our expedition is the largest and best equipped expedition that has ever left their port for the Antarctic. Well, Dad, I will write you again from the pole and have the commander fly your letter over the south pole.

Be sure to keep in touch with me by radio from Station KDKA, Westinghouse short wave length, as their short wave transmitter carries to the four corners of the earth and here in New Zealand reception is as clear as a bell. Let's have some news of the village and the marine division.

Sincerely, your son,
EDMONDE M. O'BRIEN,
1st Assistant Engineer,
Byrd Antarctic Expedition,
Dunedin, New Zealand.

MASSIE B. MILLER FINISHES SIXTH IN MIAMI OPEN GOLF TOURNEY

That Massie B. Miller, the 22-year-old pro of the Norwich Golf club is playing brilliant golf on the courses of Florida is evidenced in the fact that in the Miami open tournament which closed Saturday, Miller was tied for sixth place with Charlie Mayo, of Flushing, L. I., with a card of 306 for the 72 holes. Sarazen won the tournament with 294 and had it not been for a high wind that bothered him on the last eighteen Miller would have been well up among the leaders. On the last 18 he was forced to take an 81 after he had turned in a 74 for the morning round but at that he finished one stroke ahead of Farrell. The New York Herald Tribune speaks of Miller as follows:

Massie Miller, a new luminary from the metropolitan district, kept pace with the leaders by turning in a fine 74 in the morning, but his light weight proved a handicap in the wind and he closed out the day's play with an 81. His cards:

On last Monday Miller teamed with Eddie Lund finished second in a best ball tourney at the municipal links at Miami turning in a best ball of 67 against 66 for Eddie Williams and Jim Brophy. Miller was second in individual honors with a card of 71 against Eddie Williams 69. The Miami Herald gives the following account of the match:

Eddie Williams of Cleveland, Ohio, and Jim Brophy of Cincinnati, Ohio, won the best-ball medal tournament from 48 leading professional golfers with a 66 at the municipal links yesterday afternoon.

Williams also captured low individual honors with a 69, two strokes better than the cards of Massie Miller of Norwich, Conn.; Mike Brady of Mamaroneck, N. Y., and John Collins of Dayton Ohio.

Three teams tied for secohod honors in the best-ball affair. They were Brady and Harry Crim manager of the club; Miller and Eddie Lund, and Eddie Lund and Collins and Jack Sable of West Chester Hills, N. Y.

Williams received half of $110, first prize for the best ball team, and $25 for the other best scores.

"I'VE LOST THE BEST PAL I EVER HAD"—DEMPSEY

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 6—(AP)—"I've lost the best pal I ever had."

That was the comment tonight of Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, on the death today of Tex Rickard.

It was not Dempsey, mauler of men, who spoke, but a highly nervous, unstrung man, grieved and bewildered at the abrupt loss of the hand that had guided him through difficulties and over the rough spots of his career.

Dempsey was more nervous today than he was at any time last night, when he was braced by confidence that medical skill could save the life of his friend. He paced the floor of the living room of the Rickard home, and several times hurried to the second floor to inquire as to Mrs. Rickard's condition.

"Tex has been my best pal for 12 years," the former champion said. "He was a great man and the most loyal friend a man could have. His word was better than a gold bond. He never went back on it.

"His mind was one of the most active I've ever known. He could think clearly on many important matters and at the same time carry on an interesting conversation. He said what he meant and meant what he said.

"The world has lost a fair and square man, one who thought things and accomplished them. He has left his affairs in such order that Walter Field and I can carry on where he left off. We will run the Stribling-Sharkey fight as Tex planned and we will do just the things he would want us to do."

Dempsey said he had talked with Mrs. Dempsey over the telephone to California last night and again this morning.

"She cried, and I cried, for both of us loved Tex," he said, excusing himself.

PUTNAM HIGH QUINTET EASILY BEATS PLAINFIELD

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 6—(AP)—The Noyes coached basketball five of Putnam high school on the local court scored a smashing victory over the fast Plainfield high quintet of Plainfield Friday evening. Piling up an early lead in the first stages of the encounter Capt. Walt Cody and his buddies finished up with the score reading 35-13 in their favor.

The second string men furnished plenty of trouble for the black and orange men when they advanced the theory of five man defense plan, and crushed the Plainfield defense and led their rivals by a score of 18-7, at the close of the half. Capt. Cody and his cohorts returned to their posts during the final twenty minutes of play and romped through the Plainfield team as did their inferior players, tossing the "orange" through the hoop for the 35th point of the evening.

McLARNIN RETURNS TO N. Y. RING THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—(AP)—Jimmy McLarnin, he of the baby face and the crushing right hand, returns to New York rings this week.

Stopped by Ray Miller, Chicago's left-hook artist, in his last start, Jimmy meets Joe Glick, Williamsburgh pants presser, in a ten round bout at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

The Pacific coast slugger definitely has quit the lightweight ranks and will campaign in the future as a welterweight. Friday night's battle is at 138 pounds and McLarnin may have some difficulty getting down to that figure. Glick is a genuine lightweight and right now an outstanding contender for Sammy Mandell's crown.

McLarnin hopes to have more luck in his bid for the welterweight title tha nhe did for the 135-pound championship. Jimmy was bowling them over right and left until he stacked up against Mandell in a championship match here last summer. Sammy cut the youngster to pieces and won as he pleased. Nothing daunted, Jimmy set out to regain lost prestige. He knocked out Phil McGraw and stopped Stanislaus Loayza only to lose to Miller on a technical knockout.

FINISHERS AND C. F. C. PLAY TUESDAY NIGHT

Tuesday evening at Parish hall, Taftville, the Peerless Finishers of the United States Finishing Co., meet the C. F. C. in a return game. The C. F. C. won Saturday night by a rather sizable margin but a different story is expected by the Finishers tomorrow evening.

The Finishers will be strengthened by the addition of Charlie Lamory. In Saturday night's game, the Peerless team was handcapped by the absence of a capable center. They did not get the jump once during the game and hence were at a big disadvantage. However, on the morrow a big improvement is expected at that position, the management desiring to keep the player's name secret until game time.

The C. F. C. will present their regular lineup of Lambert and Leffingwell at the forwards, Ludlow at center and Brown and Pingree at guards. Dancing will follow this game and a fast preliminary between the Taftville Whirlwinds and Norwich All Stars is slated for 8 o'clock. The main game will be played under amateur rules.

LEO DIEGEL WINS FIRST IN CHULA VISTA TOURNEY

CHULA VISTA, Cal., Jan. 6—(AP)—Through chilling blasts of rain and wind sweeping over the rollig Chula Vista course, Leo Diegel, professional of the Agua Caliente Country club, Mexico, strokes his way today to a close and thrilling victory in the $2,500 San Diego open golf tournament.

Diegel, national professional golf champion, had an aggregate of 282 for the 72 holes. His card was six strokes under par for that distance. On every round the black haired professional subdued par, his card reading 71-69-71-71. Par for the course is 72. Victory meant first place money of $750.

Horton Smith, 21 year old professional from Missouri, followed Diegel by the narrow margin of one stroke.

Henry Cuici, slight Italian from Bridgeport, Conn., was a like distance behind the Missourian.

Smith made the four trips over the tricky course in 71-66-72-74—283, and Cuici traversed it in 70-68-73-73—284.

PHILA. COLORED GIANTS AT PLAINFIELD WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Another banner attraction has been scheduled for the Plainfield Community house when on Wednesday evening the Philadelphia Colored Giants will clash with the Plainfield Pros. The Giants are one of the fastest colored teams in America, rivaling the Renaissance Five of Brooklyn. As an added attraction the Giants carry with them a real blackface comedian in Long-Bill Bethard who entertains the fans between the halves. As a preliminary game the Plainfield Buddies clash with the B. and W. Collegians of Woodstock in a S. N. E. league game.

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

Harold Van Hausen, former Hillhouse High star infielder and recently signed by the New Haven Profs, is the first native of the Elm City to get a "shot" with the Weissmen since the days of Frank McGowan, now with the Browns.

Scholastic basketball swings into high this week, with all the schools opened after the holiday recess. The opening of the season of the new five team Eastern Conn. Western Rhode Island circuit means plenty of news this winter.

Eddie Michaels, former Warren Harding High pitcher, is one of those on the reserve list of the Bridgeport Eastern league club, recently acquired by the Giants. Eddie ought to get some place with this club what with McGraw looking things over in the Park City.

Wilby High in Waterbury has shown an improvement in the last week or so and Brass City fans are now hoping they will have a real strong team in the Lee-men before the season ends.

Warren Harding got started on its 1929 campaign New Years beating the Alumni quintet. Harding promises to be one of the best, if not the champ of Connecticut this season.

C. F. C. QUINTET HAS EASY TIME FINISHING OFF PEERLES FINISHERS

The C. F. C. annexed their third straight victory of the season Saturday night at the Y gym, easily defeating the Peerless Finishers of the United States Finishing Co. 54 to 25. The winners took the lead very early in the fray and held it throughout, having a margin of 27 to 11 at halftime and widening it in the last two quarters.

Howard Ludlow, at center, and Brown and Pingree, guards, led the Baptists in scoring with Leffingwell just a slight distance behind. Archibald played a good game for the losers.

The C. F. C. to date are undefeated, holding victories over Battery E of Westerly, Hartford Central Baptist five and the Peerless team.

In the preliminary game the Y Emps ran roughshod over the Taftville Whirlwinds to the tune of 43 to 9. The Whirlwinds, used to professional rules, were all at sea with the amateur code and the Emps had little trouble in running up an imposing total. Tommy Lynch led the winners with 21 points, followed by Chet Berghinzo with 14 tallies. George Adams and George Durr scored the whole nine points for the losers.

TOMMY DONOHUE NOT TO RESIGN AS COMMISSIONER

A sweeping denial that he will not resign as state athletic commissioner comes from Thomas E. Donahue of New London, who in a New London dispatch was reported as having accepted a position as superintendent of the town farm. Mr. Donahue in his denial says that his acceptance of the superintendency is only temporary and that he has no idea of resigning as athletic commissioner. He labels the report that he is to resign as "false and malicious."

This is indeed good news as Mr. Donahue has proved a very able commissioner and has done more than any one man in the state to bring boxing to the high level that it now enjoys.

No Soccer Game

The soccer game between Plainfield and Goodyear slated for Sunday was called off because of the rain which turned the playing field into a quagmire.

SPORT WORLD SADDENED BY DEATH OF TEX RICKARD, PREMIER PROMOTER

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—(AP)—A genuine wave of sadness and regret from friend and foe alike swept over the New York sports world today at the news of the death in Miami Beach, Fla., of Tex Rickard.

Boxers, managers, rival promoters, officials ad co-workers in the management of Madison Square Garden joined in expressions of tribute to a man generally respected for his exceptional ability and love by those who knew him well.

In a statement signe by John S. Hammon, vice president and assistant to Rickard in the management of Madison Square Garden, the corporation controlling the promoter's sport palace expressed its profound regret at his passing and extended deepest sympathy to his family.

UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD, N. Y.

TEX RICKARD

"Mr. Rickard has been the president of this corporation since its inception, and its phenominal expansion during recent years was largely attributed to his guiding hand," the statement said. "It was due to his efforts as the premier promoter of boxing contests in the world that these contests have achieved the status of importance and interest which they now enjoy.

"His activities had extended to practically all other fields of sports. His name will go down in the history of athletics as one of its sincerest befrienders and his achievements in this field will remain outstanding ones."

William F. Carey, treasurer of the garden corporation, declared that the passing of Rickard "removes from the stage the most interesting, spectacular figure the world of sport and particularly boxing has ever known. His colorful life rivaled in its romantic appeal those of many of the great characters of fiction.

"His passing will be felt as a great personal loss to all who knew him; to them and to the world he will continue to live in the greatness of the structure that is Madison Square garden and its highly efficient organization which stands today as a monument to his genius."

William C. Muldoon, 83 year old "solid man" of the New York state athletic commission, had a premonition of Rickard's death.

"I know of no one who is qualified to succeed him at the present time. It is a severe shock to me. I was awake most of the night and every time I awoke Tex was on my mind. When the telephone rang I feared that it was bad news of him. Again, all I can say is that it is a very severe shock," he said.

Mayor James Walker said Rickard "was an outstanding figure in the promotion of big sports events, in fact, he excelled in this line of endeavor.

"He was the premier where heavyweight boxing contests were concerned," the mayor added, "in common with all lovers of sports, I mourn his death."

Humbert J. Fugazy, boxing promoter and Rickard's leading rival here, sent the following telegram to Mrs. Rickard:

"Very sorry indeed to learn of Mr. Rickard's death. There is no question but that he is responsible for the high plane on which boxing is run today. He proved himself to be the world's premier promoter."

"He was a great figure in and a credit to the sporting world. His place will be hard to fill," Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankee ball club said.

George M. Cohan and Sam H. Harris, the latter at one time manager of Terry McGovern, led the expressions of regret from the theatrical field, wherein Rickard numbered many friends. Grover A. Whalen, New York police commissioner and a thorough fight fan, praised the promoter as "a pioneer whose memory will always be revered for his great achievements and good sportsmanship."

Will Gibson and Charley Harvey, managers respectively of Gene Tunney and Tom Heeney in the heavyweight championship battle Rickard promoted, spoke for the rank and file of boxing.

"We've lost the greatest asset the game had," Gibson said, while Harvey, almost overcome by emotion, said: "No one in the world can take his place. It's a bad thing for Madison Square Garden but a terrible thing for boxing."

Lower California Rises From the Sea.

Lower California, the long, narrow peninsula of western Mexico, which stretches southward from the United States-Mexican border, is reported to be slowly rising from the sea. Surveys show the land area to be growing wider, while the elongated Gulf of California, between the peninsula and the mainland of Mexico, is steadily becoming narrower and shallowerr.

"The rising of a considerable area of land is not some strange portent of a world catclysm," says a Lulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society. "It is a perfectly orderly process of nature that, together with the sinking of other areas, has been going on for hundreds of millions of years.

"Poets may talk of the 'everlasting hills' and 'terra firma,' but science must take these terms in a most Pickwickian sense. The 'everlasting hills' are washed away rather promptly; and the 'firm' earth, if one considers it over periods of geologic time, rises and falls as though riding on some cosmic seesaw.

"It is fortunate for man an dhis development that the solid earth has not been a static, unmoving thing. Had it not rested to the grinding of the waves and the ice sheets, and to the burdens these forces placed upon it, it is highly probable that there would not be a square foot of dry land today; but that instead an ocean, two miles deep would cover the whole globe.

"The latest geological thought sees in the continents masses of relatively light solid matter which float on hot, glassy, material some 40 or more miles below, much as icebergs float in water. The ocean basins are looked upon as underlaid by heavier solid matter which does not float as high as the light land. There is a balanced condition; but various forces are constantly tending to disturb this balance. To regain its balance the land must ret adjust itself; warping up here and down there; rising a bit vertically at one pleace and sinking somewhat at another; or perhaps shifting a little horizontally.

"Several forces, operating usually over very long periods, make these readjustments necessary. The slow contraction of the earth, because of cooling, causes squeezings at certain points. The very slight slowing down of the earth's speed of rotation undoubtedly causes other changes in pressure, even though the loss may amount to only a few seconds in millions of years. One of the most potent of the forces, however, is more easily observed at work, and operates over shorter periods of time. This is erosion. Heavy burdens of rock are washed away from one place and deposited at another, thus throwing the balance out. The region which has its load reduced tends to rise; the area which receives an additional burden, tends to sink. Later this situation is changed, for when the lower portion of the sinking material is forced into the hot, plastic material far down, it melts, and owing to expansion and the generation of gases, it rises somewhat as bread dough rises when it is cooked. This is one of the factors in mountain building.

"With all the evidence of past risings and sinkings (or uplifts and subsidences, to put it technically) before us, it is only to be expected that places can be found in the world where the processes can be observed at work over a series of years. Sometimes the earth's ups and downs occur very suddenly in connection with earthquakes. A part of the coast of Alaska rose 47 feet over night in 1899 as the result of a severe earthquake. After the Messina earthquake of 1908 a considerable area of the 'toe' of Italy and the eastern coast of Sicily was found to have sunk several inches. The Japanese earthquake of 1923 changed depths in Sagami bay, south of Tokyo and Yokohama, by hundreds of feet, and some sections of the shore were raised six feet.

"In some parts of the world slow movements have been in progress for long periods without, apparently, being accompanied by serious earthquakes. Portions of the upper Baltic region are rising at the rate of about one foot each 30 years; and at the same time sections of southern Denmark are sinking at the rate of one inch in 25 years. One of the world's best examples of slow uplift in the past is found in the region of the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. Geologists explain the tremendous depth of the erosion in this great gash by the gradual rise of the region while the river cut its way. It is somewhat as if one pressed a block of wood upward against a saw moving at a fixed level."

BANK EMPLOYES CLAIM RECORD FOR AUDITING

NEW YORK—(AP)—Employes of one of New York's big bank are staking claim to a speed record for auditing securities.

In one week they checked more than half the $1,000,000,000 contents of the bank's custody vault against customers' descriptions as to par value, maturity dates, coupon rates and other details and had several thousand statements in the mails by the following afternoon.

The audit, in which it was said more dollars' worth of par value were counted in a shorter space of time than ever before, was made by 50 auditors, 35 employes of the custody department and 15 vault representatives. A dozen typists, auditors, counters and officers helped with the statements. Work was begun on Monday morning and ended the following Saturday night.

WALL STREET MARKS PASSING OF CENTURY

NEW YORK—(AP)—Presentation by employes to Whitehouse & Company, one of the oldest members of the New York stock exchange, of a plaque commemorating the 100th anniversary of the firm's organization, has startled Wall Street counting its grey hairs.

Each passing year brings to light some such link with the past and the custom of marking the milestones with permanent records is growing in popularity.

The firm was established in 1828 by Edward Whitehouse and his brother-in-law, Oswald Camman, J. Norman Whitehouse, grandson of the founder, and Gulil S. Whitehouse, a great grandson, now are partners in the firm. Membership on the stock exchange dates back to December 31, 1872.

Peanut Use Extensive

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Peanuts are increasing in industrial importance, the Department of Commerce reports, citing consumption of around 100,000 tons yearly in American candy Manufacture alone. Although 12 states yearly produce 800,000 tons worth more than $32,000,000, nearly 20,000 tons are imported yearly, chiefly from China. The department adds that the peanut accounts for 65 per cent of nut consumption in this country.

"Staggered" Openings

NEW YORK—(AP)—Wool manufacturers contemplate adopting a plan for "staggered" openings of the fall, 1929, lines.

BODY OF MAN FOUND BESIDE RAILROAD TRACKS

NEWINGTON, Conn., Jan. 6.—(AP)—The body of an unidentified man, apparently struck by a train, was found beside the railroad tracks here this morning. The only means of identification were a Polish prayer book and a card case marked "Meriden." He was described as being of medium height and weight and between 45 and 50 years old. The body was turned over to a New Britain undertaker.

FIVE PERSONS ASPHYXIATED BY GAS FROM HEATING STOVE

FRESNO, Cal., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. William Brooks, their two small children and Marvin Westover, a brother of Mrs. Brooks, were found dead in the Brooks' home here today, where they died some time last night, evidently victims of seaping gas from a heating stove.

Railroads Seek Increase

VIENNA—(AP)—Austria State Railways are asking the National Assembly to sanction an increase of 14 1-4 per cent in passanger rates and 10 per cent in freight rates to provide for a sinking and investment fund. An increase of 25 to 50 per cent in commuter rates also will be sought, but it is planned to issue transferable blocks of tickets which will be to a degree offset the fare raise.

MYSTIC

CASH PRIZES OFFERED TO DILIGENT PUPILS

It has been announced that cash prizes are to be awarded next June at the Broadway school to the pupils who excel in the several branches of study. Through the generosity of a number of Mystic citizens this plan, which was inaugurated in Stonington two years ago, now includes the schools on the east side of the river. Those who have subscribed so far are Mrs. Sarah B. Hinckley, Miss Agnes Gallup, L. E. Kinney, Rev. F. G. Chutter, Stephen E. Jennings and Henry B. Noyes.

Miss Madeline Welmer and Miss Eva Edwards have returned after visiting friends in Pawtucket, R. I.

Miss Dorris Bindloss was in Westerly Saturday.

When Richard Williams Morgan post No. 55, American Legion met during the week they and their guests from Noank, Groton and Stonington posts, had a clam chowder supper. Thursday next the auxiliary is to meet in K. of P. hall and will have a Christmas tree.

The Ladies' Aid society of St. Patrick's church held a whist in Columbus hall, Thursday evening, at which seven tables were in play. The prizes were won by Mrs. Kieburg and Timothy Comeau, Mrs. Fred Godfrey and Thomas Mullaney. Cake and coffee were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Feliz Hulser and young son returned Friday, after two weeks visit with relatives in Ogdenburg, N. Y.

Amos Park has been confined to his home by illness.

Miss Alice McDonald is a surgical patient at Home Memorial hospital.

Poquonoc Principal Ill

Mrs. Laura Chappens, of the Poquonoc grammar school, is ill at her home in Old Mystic. Mrs. Ruth A. Williams is substituting for her at the school.

The Monday club meets today with Mrs. James Lathrop. The subject for the paper for the afternoon will be, The Nile, and will be given by Miss Emmeline Fish.

Mrs. Amelia Jennen who was cruelly beaten and robbed of some of her hard earned savings, about two weeks ago, was dismissed from the Lawrence-Memorial hospital, Friday.

When Mystic Rod and Gun club met Friday evening in G. A. R. hall, a good number was present to discuss the several items of interest.

A large number of the members of Phoebe Packer Rathbun Tent, attended the meeting of Ann Rogers Lyon Tent of New London, Friday evening.

Miss Alice Taber has resumed her duties at the Climax Tube company after being confined

MAJOR INDUSTRIES STARTING NEW YEAR WITH AN ABUNDANCE OF ORDERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—(AP)—Business came into the New Year last week with the credit situation about the only cloud on the horizon. Inventory and overhauling shutdowns were kept to a minimum, and major industries were preparing for an unusually active first quarter, with abundant orders in most cases.

Some uneasiness was caused by a new high total of stock exchange member borrowings which on December 31, stood at the record figure of $6,440,000,000, representing an increase of about 45 per cent. during 1928. The bankers acceptance rates were raised on the initiative of the New York federal reserve bank, and there were further rumors of a possible increase in its rediscount rate.

The heavy year end credit requirements were met with somewhat less than the expected strain, and bankers were inclined to the opinion that funds would be adequate for commercial requirements at the current rates for the next few months. Some concern was expressed, however, that business may eventually be hampered if the stock market continues to offer keen competition for credit, unless some unforseen source of funds, such as might be provided by a return flow of gold to this country, appears.

The steel companies, after having made a new annual record for ingot production, entered the New Year with good backlogs of orders, operations were at about 85 per cent. of capacity, with a marked tendency toward acceleration. Railroads ordered equipment on a large scale, machine tool makers were unusually busy and automotive manufacturers were preparing to take up 1929 production programs in earnest. The Ford Motor company went to a six day week and employed 30,000 additional workers.

Copper prices were advanced for the third time within two weeks, with both foreign and domestic demand at a high level. It was disclosed that the New York Central is considering electrification of its line to Buffalo, which would result in large orders for the already busy electrical equipment industry. Lead prices were also advanced. Pennsylvania Crude Oil went up 25 cents a barrel, but increases in crude production, at the time of low gasoline consumption, caused some concern in the petroleum industry.

Retail trade, aided by annual clearance sales, was active, despite mild weather in some sections and an influenza epidemic. Freight car loadings in December made some of the best showings of 1928, surpassing the corresponding weeks of the two previous years by substantial margins. Textile buying generally experienced a marked post-holiday lull, although prices held notably steady.

Good snowfall in the winter wheat areas late in the week allayed fears of frost damage. The export movement of both wheat and corn broadened considerably surpassing the like week of last year by heavy margins.

Numerous large merger projects were under way during the week, and the long expected announcement of the plan of unification of Radio Corporation of America and Victor Talking Machine company, appeared.

Although the first week of the year normally brings a considerable rise in commercial failures, R. G. Dun and company reported a total of but 473 for the five day week, which is 36 less than the same five day week of last year.

The Society for the Saving of Time, a newly founded French efficiency organization, is for the shortening of names. The group would like to see parliament pass a law limiting family names to five letters and Christian names to two. They figure that in the business world millions of dollars could be saved annually in salaries of typists and wear on machines if names were held down. They suggest that Jo, Ed, Al, Lu and Jk are just as high sounding as Joseph, Edward, Albert, Lucien and Jack.

JEWETT CITY

BAPTIST CHOIR'S IMMERSION PART OF STORM'S SURPRISE

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 6—The big rain gauge at Stone Hill registered one and three quarters inches reckoning from the time the storm started at a little after midnight Saturday, until 1 p. m. Sunday.

At the Baptist church a new fireproof roof is in process of being laid. The workmen had guarded against any ordinary storm by leaving overlapped protections from rain. Along during the morning service, the traditions of the Baptist creed were fully substantiated. As the anthem progressed the basso received the first anointing with a small stream direct from the ceiling 29 feet overhead, that landed squarely on his dome. The aria progressed as usual but the basso shifted over to the soprano's quarters. During the sermon the very pulpit itself came in for a share of the precipitation and without permitting interruption of procedure, the minister stepped aside, closed the bible and placed it in a nearby dry spot.

During the late afternoon a man returning from a drive into the outlying districts reported pasture brooks over their banks, with low meadow lands partly under water.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Frederick N. Cottrell

The following obituary, from Saturday's Providence Journal is of local interest. Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Clarke were residents of the borough for 25 years during the time Mr. Clarke was associated with R. W. Dearnley in the firm of Dearnley and Clarke. The two daughters Matha and Alice Cottrell married the Clarke brothers, Archie and George. Miss Alice was a frequent visitor here and for a long while George was employed here with the firm.

Mrs. Ellen Tucker Cottrell, lifelong resident of Jamestown died yesterday morning in her 82nd year at her home on Brook street, Jamestown.

Mrs. Cottrell was born Dec. 28, 1847, on what was known as the Hutchinson farm on North Main road, daughter of Pardon and Sarah B. Tucker. Educated in the Jamestown public schools she later spent two years at Wheaton college and in February, 1866 married Frederick Northrup Cottrell. Prior to Mr. Cottrell's death in 1884, they lived on the Cottrell farm on the east shore of Mackerel cove following which Mrs. Cottrell built a house on Brook street where she lived up to the time of her death.

For many years Mrs. Cottrell had been an invalid, but previous to that time she was a member of the state board of charities and correction for 10 years, a member of the Jamestown school committee for several years, an active member of the Central Baptist church of Jamestown and the Current Topics club of Newport.

She is survived by four children, Charles T. and Benjamin S. Cottrell of Boston, and Mrs. A. M. Clarke and Mrs. George M. Clarke of Jamestown, as well as a brother, Irving W. Tucker of San Francisco, six grandchildren and one great grandchild.

CONGREGATIONAL ROLL CALL AND ANNUAL MEETING

The annual New Year's roll call and meeting of the Congregational church was held in the vestry Saturday evening, nearly seventy persons being present. A supper was served at half past six, under the direction of Mrs. Andrew McNicol and the executive board of the Ladies' society. The tables were laid in the form of a hollow square, in the center of which was a table on which stood ferns, cyclamen and candelabra holding lighted rose colored candles. The tables were laid with a border of hemlock and decorated with cyclamen, azaleas and other roses. The menu included cold corned beef, macaroni salad, jelly, biscuits and cakes. Tea was served by Mrs. McNicol, Mrs. S. H. Waters, Mrs. E. A. Faust, Mrs. Walter Marshall, Mrs. L. G. Buckingham and Mrs. F. E. Robinson. They were assisted by Misses Christine Marshall, Loretta Alley, Ellen Faust, Isabel Marshall, Bessie and Sadie Thompson.

The business meeting was preceded by the roll-call, Andrew McNicol acting as clerk in the absence of Alex McNicol. Rev. G. F. Goodenough presided at the meeting and gave his report as pastor. The treasurer's report was given by F. E. Robinson. Andrew McNicol reported for the trustees, Mrs. C. D. Wolf read the report for the women's missionary society, Mrs. Andrew McNicol for the Ladies' society, E. L. French and F. E. Robinson, for the Sunday school.

The officers elected were F. E. Robinson, trustee for three years, Alex McNicol, clerk, F. E. Robinson, treasurer, Mrs. L. G. Buckingham, Mrs. F. E. Robinson and Mrs. C. D. Wolf, members of the standing committee; Bessie Thompson, auditor of offerings, Charles Perkins, assistant treasurer; Alex McNicol, auditor; Walter Marshall, deacon for three years; Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, deaconess for two years. The ushers are to be in charge of the pastor.

LIGHT OF TRUTH TORCH DELIVERED FROM PLAINFIELD

The golden torch known as The Light of Truth which has been carried by boy runners over four hundred miles in the state, arrived in Jewett City Friday evening. It was brought from Plainfield here, and was accompanied by about twenty boys and J. Edwin Hill of Danielson, county secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in New London and Windham counties. The reception service took place in the Baptist vestry. The chairs were arranged in a triangle, a white covered table holding an open Bible and candles. A stand was placed nearby to hold the torch which has been carried by runners all the miles and has never touched the ground. It contains a message from the governor of the state, which was read, after the torch had been received by Earl Robinson. William Brewster read a timely poem and Oliver Carter played for the torch hymn, which was sung by the boys. William McNicol gave the challenge to the runners, who will carry in the torch to Norwich Friday next, leaving the Baptist church at five o'clock. Rev. J. W. Carter offered the closing prayer. The boys who carry the torch sign their names on a scroll.

Early passersby on Main street Sunday morning, in front of the Finn block were ready to make oath that the before daylight downpour had been accompanied by hail. Saturday, one of the commission grocerymen spilled several quarts of beans from a bag. The half-a-gale that brought along the storm, scattered the beans over a large area of the state road, then the rain swelled them to twice normal size, giving the impression that a long stretch of road was dotted with hail stones.

Miss Alice Papinski entertained friends at a birthday party at her home on North Main street. Those present were Misses Adeline Jaskiewicz, Julia Januszko, Mary Parzych, Anna Januszko, Anna Brodacks, Olga Zegeer, Helen Glowacki, Jennie Papinski and Arlene Symington. Refreshments were served. The hostess received many gifts.

Dorcas circle of The King's Daughter's is to meet Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Mabel Wilcox.

Names to be added to the Red Cross roll call are Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Starkweather, William Watson, Frank Palmer, Mary Wilkinson, Sam Polinski, Mrs. George Whipple, Mrs. B. W. Albertine, Adam Rojeske.

WILD STORM DRIVES STEAMERS TO NEW LONDON HARBOR FOR SAFETY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 6—The storm of last night and this morning was one of the worst to interfere with marine traffic in a long time. As a result of the rain, which was accompanied by a 40-mile gale, several sound steamers were compelled to put into port and ride out the disturbance. These steamers were the sound liners Richard Peck, Tennessee, Concord and Woonsocket and the freighter Mohawk. All the liners cleared this afternoon for their destinations. After a continuous downpour throughout the night, early this forenoon the storm was made all the more fierce by thunder and lightning.

The police signal box, corner of Manwaring and Williams street, is out of order. Repairs will be made tomorrow.

The New London police have been requested by the police of Stratford to be on the lookout for a Reo sedan, that was stolen from the latter city Saturday night. It is of 1924 model and carries Connecticut registration F-1767.

Installation ceremonies of Friendship lodge, Independent Order of Odd Ladies, Manchester unit, took place at the last meeting held in Eagles hall. Officers installed were Noble grand, Mrs. Anna Baum; vice grand, Mrs. Johann Wood; elective secretary, Agnes Wood; chaplain, Mrs. Marion Baum; warden, Alice O'Brien; guard, Mrs. Mary Price; past noble grand, Mrs. Louise Gallup. After business was completed refreshments were served.

DESPONDENT FROM ILL HEALTH MRS. KOPP TAKES POISON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 6—Mrs. Minnie Kopp, 50, wife of Augustus Kopp, died Saturday morning at her home, 8 Connecticut avenue. Mrs. Kopp had been an invalid for many months. Besides her husband, She is survived by her mother, Mrs Emily Kannenburg; four sisters, Mrs. Fred Schwaner, Mrs. John Sexton, Mrs. Annie Carroll and Mrs. Charles Hamblin, the last named of Norwich and by a brother, Hezekiah Kannenburg, a resident of the west.

Death was the result of an act of her own hand, for during the absence of her husband she drained the contents of a bottle of lysol and another bottle of allonal and luminol. She was found unconscious when her husband returned home and although a physician was summoned Mrs. Kopp was beyond medical aid, dying a short time afterwards.

McCASKEY HEARING TODAY—ACCUSED ALLEGES FRAME-UP

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 6—The hearing before City Manager William A. Holt of charges against Patrolman George McCaskey will take place in the office of the city manager Monday morning at 9 o'clock. City Manager Holt, having received a report of the investigation into the alleged conduct of Patrolman McCaskey by Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith and Desk Sergeant William Babcock of the allegations of Beatrice Perlatti, 17, of 133 Cedar street, Norwich, Saturday notified Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney of the assignment of hearing and the last named official informed the defending officer, Patrolman McCaskey denies forcibly any act of wrong doing and has retained Attorney Morris Lubchansky to defend him. The officer declares that he will fight the case to the end and that witnesses, including other members of the department, will be called upon to give testimony, although those officers have not had charges preferred against them. McCaskey also declares the charges a frame-up to black-mail him. The officer states that he is the victim of circumstance and false allegations and that when testimony has been introduced it will reveal that there is no foundation for the charges which the Norwich girl has preferred against him. The witnesses now known, who will be subject to examination are McCaskey, the accusing girl and her mother, Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith and Desk Sergeant William Babcock, who investigated the charges and Police Captain Pinney. If the accused officer carries out his promise, two other officers will be called upon to give testimony.

The police last night discovered the front entrance to the warehouse of Swift and company, John street, unlocked. It was the third time within a month that this discovery has been made.

Sergeant McGrath, New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad police, informed the New London police at 3:30 o'clock this morning that there was a Hudson coach parked on railroad property at Fort Neck and requested that the car be taken away. Patrolmen Elwood Bailey and Cornelius Moriarty had the auto, which carries Connecticut registration N-1565, driven to the police garage to await being claimed by the owner.

A joint installation of officers of Murphy Rathburn post, Veterans of Foreign Wars and the auxiliary of the post is to be held tomorrow night at the post rooms, 130 State street. The ceremony will be in charge of Miss Helen Shanahan, of Waterbury, state department president, and her staff. Last night a whist and social was held in the post rooms.

Members of Lucretia Shaw chapter, D. A. R., will listen to an address by Frederick W. Edgerton on A New Idea in Education, tomorrow afternoon, in the Methodist church. A program of music has been prepared.

The slack period which has existed at the plant of the Nelseco unit of the Electric Boat company for quite some time, bids fair to end soon. It is understood that the company has a contract which will keep the plant going at full capacity for a long time.

Orders have been issued to the police department to arrest all junk dealers who have failed to take out a license for the current year. Many dealers have renewed their licenses but it is known that the majority have failed to do so.

The annual installation of officers of Ann Rogers Lyon tent, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, took place in Union locke rooms. Mrs. Edith Keeney, a past department president was in charge of the affair assisted by Josephine Beckwith, Mrs. Lena Edgerton and Mrs. Blanche Marsdale. The officers installed were: President, Mrs. Ella Tew; senior vice president, Mrs. Harriet Anderson; junior vice president, Mrs Elsie Dennison; chaplain, Mrs. Grace Harris; treasurer, Mrs. Nellie D. Orchard; council, Mrs. Rose Minault, Mrs. Elvina Bowker and Mrs. Nellie S. May. After business of the evening was transacted refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel Saturday ordered the return of the driver's license of Daniel H. Caffrey, Walden avenue.

A Studebaker automobile that has been parked on Konomoc street, near Vauxhall street, several days, was reported at police headquarters Saturday by Patrolman John Foley. The identity of the owner of the car was not established.

Appointment Only Temporary

Thomas E. Donohue has made it known that his appointment as superintendent of Hillside home, to succeed Martin Kane, is only temporary. Feb 1, Mr. Donohue takes the berth, but he will terminate his services as soon as a suitable superintendent is obtained. Mr. Donohue also said that he did not intend to resign as state boxing commissioner.

John Moran, of 655 State street, Perth Amboy, N. J.; Leo Ruh, trawler Teal; Mrs. Walter Horton, 57 Montauk avenue; Mrs. Raymond Green and infant daughter, 17 Chappell street; Arthur Jackson, Groton; Walter Persinger, United States Coast Guard destroyer Cummings, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital were discharged Saturday.

Patrick Connelly, an old offender in the police court was there again Saturday charged with begging and intoxication. He was sentenced to 30 days in jail. Connolly was arrested on North Bank street by Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

Flippant Alice White and handsome smiling Jack Mulhall lend their combined sparkle to a new picture, "Naughty Baby," which opened last night at the Breed theatre.

Miss White, the sensational slapper discovery of the past year in movieldom, made her starring debut in that very "hot" picture, "Show Girl," for First National Pictures. The producers then chose her to be featured with the popular master of comedy among male stars, Jack Mulhall. They prove to be one of the most interesting teams that has come to the screen for some time.

Miss White, the sensational flapper Ritzy Hotel, hence the name. She is one of the girls of flapper face and figure who have champagne ideas on a home brew income. Mulhall, as might be imagined, is the youthful heir to a fortune, and he provides the champagne possibilities. He is out-gliding along the Great White Way with a broad brush, and Alice helps him.

She doesn't stop at all at two-timing. She has three other boys on the string, an Irishman, a Jew and an Italian, very amusingly played by Andy Devine, Benny Rubin and Georgie Stone. What she doesn't promote from them for her conquest of Mulhall is nobody's business, for Andy works in a garage, and can get swell cars; Benny works in his uncle's pawn shop and can borrow jewels, and Stone is assistant to a modiste, and gets her to "loan" him her most gorgeous gowns."

The story is breezy and replete with laughs from beginning to end. Thelma Todd, Doris Dawson, Fred Kelsey, James Ford and half a dozen other well-known players combine to make a notable cast.

Palace Theatre

Sparkling Broadway could sparkle no more than Paramount's latest production "Manhattan Cocktail" sparkled last night at its opening performance at the Palace theatre. Manhattan Cocktail has all of the bright lights, the thrills and the mystery of Broadway itself, and, in addition, it has two exceptionally bright stars leading its cast, Nancy Carroll and Richard Arlen.

Manhattan Cocktail, the story of New York backstage life, is the vehicle chosen to co-star this young pair of Paramount's younger players and both the young players and the story do justice to the selection. The flashing personality of Nancy Carroll or the sympathetic figure of Richard Arlen alone would have added lustre to any picture. The combination of the two in this dashing piece produces an exceptionally fine picture and an enjoyable entertainment.

In the early sequences of the picture, which deals with the efforts of a young college girl to break into the stage racket, Marian Morgan's dancers perform beautifully in several allegorical scenes. Throughout the picture, the life behind the scenes on Broadway is revealed in all its reality. Manhattan Cocktail is, if anything, a realistic picture but it is also a moving, thrilling melodrama.

WESTERLY

NURSE BECOMES BRIDE OF W. VIRGINIA PHYSICIAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 6—Saturday at noon, at Christ Episcopal church, Miss Fannie Louise Sutcliffe, R. N., of Cleveland, O., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sutcliffe of 51 Palmer street, Pawcatuck, become the bride of Edward Norval Pell, M. D., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Norval Pell of Wheeling, W. Va. Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, rector, performed the ceremony. The bride entered the church as the Wedding March from Lohengrin was played by Mrs. Charles F. Larkin, the organist. She was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of old blue English crepe and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. The matron of honor, a cousin of the bride, Mrs. George D. Elmer of Fitchburg, Mass., wore a dress of old English pearl grey and her bouquet was of pink roses and sweet peas. The best man was George D. Eimer of Fitchburg. The church was decorated with carnations and evergreen. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 51 Palmer street, Pawcatuck. A luncheon was served. At 5 o'clock Dr. and Mrs. Pell left Westerly by motor on a wedding trip to New York and Washington, D. C. They are to make their home in Wheeling, W. Va. The bride's going away dress was of seal crepe de chine with hat to match and she wore a fur coat. Mrs. Pell is a graduate of Stonington high school, St. Luke's hospital, New York city and has been a nurse at the Margaret Edward Anderson hospital, Westerly and the Lakeside hospital, Cleveland, O. Dr. Pell, a practicing physician in Wheeling, W. Va., is a graduate of the University of West Virginia, Morgantown, and of Jefferson Medical school, Philadelphia.

FILLING STATION EQUIPPED N TO FILL ALL COMERS

WESTERLY, Jan. 6—Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell of Westerly, headed a raiding party Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock which visited the Sea View Filling station, adjoining dwelling and buildings, located on the Boston Post road about a mile and a third east of Charlestown. Twenty gallons of near-beer found brewing in the cellar were dumped out. A thorough search of the premises yielded 394 bottles of near-beer, one quart of High and Dry Gin and a bottle partly filled with whiskey. Numerous empty whiskey bottles and glasses to und on the premises indicated hat Whisey had been sold. The liquor and vessels were brought to the Westerly police station. William Gregnon and Thomas Bloomer, alleged proprietors, were summoned to the session of Third District court Friday next before Judge Oliver H. Williams.

Search warrants were taken out by Sheriff Mitchell from evidence obtained of liquor and reported previous sales. In the raiding party were Deputy Sheriff Fred W. Bull, county jailer of Kingston, Deputy Sheriff Elmer S. Edwards of Wickford and Constabue James Maxwell of Westerly. The filling station, well known to motorists on the Boston Post road to Wakefield and Narragansett Pier from Westerly, is located on the north side of the state highway.

Westerly was visited in the early hours of Sunday morning by a violent wind storm accompanied by downpours of rain which continued throughout the day. The strong wind wrenched trees, and large limbs and branches were hurled to the ground. On High street a large limb of a tree in Wilcox park was broken off. In White Rock an electric light pole was blown down and the circuit extending toward the Boom bridge road was broken. The sidewalk swing sign of Harold Merrill Post, No. 16, American Legion was blown to the Broad street walk. Coast guardsmen reported that the southerly wind caused rough water on the beaches and well up the bank at high tide, but little or no damage to shore property resulted.

The fire department was called out twice Saturday, first about noon in response to a telephone call for a chimney fire in the large frame three-family and basement store of the Crandall-Noyes Auto Co. at 27 Railroad avenue. Chief George E. Egger, Engineers Bonner and Pasetti with men responded with the Ahrens-Fox pumper. A line of booster hose was carried into an upstairs window and the fire which had been reported as smouldering since morning was put out. The building is owned by Stephen Farago. There was no damage.

The second call in the middle of the afternoon proved to be a false alarm from Box No. 75, Dayton and Pierce street. All three pieces of apparatus responded. A tar barrel was being heated on a fire and black smoke was blown from the barrel through the open windows of a house in process of construction. A passer-by seeing the smoke issuing from the windows, without stopping to investigate turned in the alarm.

FUNERAL

Orion L. Underwood

Funeral services for Orion L. Underwood, 70, a resident of Westerly for over fifty years, who died Wednesday at his home, 2 Tower street, were held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at 46 Granite street. Rev. Arnt. L. Schoning, pastor of Broad Street Christian church, conducted the services. Burial was at River Bend cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Schoning.

OFFICER CUT AND SCRATCHED TRYING TO MAKE ARREST

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Jan. 6—Salvatore Frank, residing at 23 Prospect street, Pawcatuck, is being sought on a warrant, on a charge of assaulting and resisting Patrolman Adin R. Sheldon of Pawcatuck. The altercation is reported to have occurred about noon Sunday when Officer Sheldon received a ragged gash on his head and scratches about his face, in a tussle which followed his being called to Prospect street to quell a family row. About 11:30 o'clock the officer received a telephone call asking him to come at once to the home of Salvatore Frank, 23 Prospect street. He was greeted by a young man who stood on the piazza. "Hurry up! Come on in!" he called. Patrolman Sheldon ran up the steps and was brought into the hallwya. The guide then pointed to a door and told the officer the man of the house was running riot. Mr. Sheldon banged on the wall and ordered those inside to open in the name of the law. Frank pulled the doro open and crashed a quart whiskey bottle down on the officer's head, cutting a deep gash. Patrolman Sheldon, although dazed for a second, pulled out his blackjack and let Frank have it on the head, opening a cut for him also. The men then came to grips and a free-for-all fight followed, with the contesting rolling on the floor and the blod spurting around the room. Several women who were there tried to pull the men apart, and the officer received many scratches about the face. The officer and his assailant were finally parted and the latter made a dash for the back door, gaing the open spaces before Mr. Sheldon could get out after him.

LOCAL GUESTS ATTEND CHAMPLIN GOLDEN WEDDING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Jan. 6—Many friends and relatives from Westerly and vicinity visited the Daisy Farm, Maple Breezes, on the Westerly-North Stonington road Saturday, to assist former State Representative and Mrs. Charles F. Champlin in the observance of their 50th wedding anniversary. A dinner attended by a few close friends was held earlier in the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Champlin have made their home on the North Stonington road, Pawcatuck, since their marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Champlin were married Jan. 5, 1879, at Groton, Conn., by Rev. Backus Bailey, a pastor of the Second Baptist church of North Stonington. At that time Mr. Champlin's occupation was that of farmer. He served six years as a republican selectman of Stonington, and has filled practically every town office with the exception of member of the board of relief.

In 1903 Mr. Champlin was elected to the Connecticut legislature as representative. He was re-elected in 1905, but declined a third term. In those four years at Hartford he served on the banking, temperance and school committees of the house.

In 1925 he was again sent to the state legislature by the Stonington republicans and was re-elected for his fourth term in 1925. He again served on the banking committee, also on the legislative railroad committee. In 1927 he retired from active politics and since has confined his activities to farming.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Ward Alger and daughter Betty, were in Providence for the week end.

The morning accommodation Train No. 40 on the New Haven railroad, east-bound Sunday came into the Westerly station with such speed as the result of wind and wet and slippery rails that it rolled far past the waiting station and had to back to receive and discharge passengers.

The warm weather late Saturday night and the heavy rain Sunday morning spoiled the skating.

Work of setting up steel shelves, lockers and drawers in the fire proof vault of Westerly town clerk's office was completed the past week end. Three walls of the room are now so lined.

Miss Julia Stahle has returned to Connecticut college afetr the vacation with her parents, Mr and Mrs. Henry A. Stahle, in Pawcatuck.

Mrs. Robert C. Saunders is recovering from illness at her home on Spruce street.

Thomas McKenzie and Arthur N. Nash were motor visitors in Hartford Saturday afternoon.

Patrolman Adin R. Sheldon began the past week a 15-day tour of day duty on the Stonington police force while Patrolman C. Wilson Brown returned to night duty.

Zoning Inspector Louis J. Rossi will sail from Genoa, Italy, Friday, Jan. 11th to return to his Westerly home, after visiting in Arcasati, Como Providence, Italy, where he was called by the illness and death of his father Christophere Rossi, a former resident of Westerly.

Tax Collector D. Everett Hoxie of Wequetequock is recovering at the private hospital from a recent operation performed there.

Dr. L. H. Hepworth underwent a successful operation at the Westerly hospital Saturday morning.

Alexander G. Thompson returned Sunday night to his duties in New York.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

An amazing picture, "Sunrise," opened at the Broadway theatre last night. It is tremendous in its power, so engrossing in its dramatic significance, that it stands alone as an example of the art of motion pictures.

"Sunrise" was directed by F. W. Murnau, the German genius who made "The Last Laugh" in the UFA studios in Berlin. Credit also goes to William Fox who brought Marnau to America and allowed him free reign with this production in Hollywood; to Carl Mayer, who wrote the scenario from an original story by Herman Sudermann; to Charles Rosher and Karl Struss, who are responsible for the photography, and to Rocnus Gliese the art-director.

The picture is sub-titled "A Song of Two Humans." A simple tale of a man, his wife, and the other woman—a situation that arises any place at any time.

The man, in the throes of an unreasoning infatuation for the other woman, agrees to her plan to drown the wife. He takes the wife out in a boat, but, as he is about to do away with her, his frenzy leaves him.

She, horror-stricken, runs away to the city. He follows and begs forgiveness. They pass a church where a wedding ceremony is being held, and enter. The mood passes and she forgives him. And like two happy children, they spend the rest of the day at a carnival.

On the way home a storm comes up. Their boat is overturned, and ironically, she is swept away. He, thinking she is drowned, is just about to kill the other woman, when the neighbors report that the wife has been found. Sunrise!

The picture is a study of moods. Sinister, menacing, joyous and above all, throbbingly human. Murnau has has put into it intense contrast and an elemental and mental struggle that captures and holds the imagination with uncanny fascination.

Janet Gaynor, as the wife, is exquisitely appealing, wit a sweetness that is poignant. George O'Brien, as the man, gives a remarkably fine performance, and Margaret Livingston is well cast as the woman from the city.

All the types are perfectly chosen. Ralph Sipperly, as a barber, Arthur Houseman as a masher, Jane Winton as a manicure girl, Eddie Boland as an obliging gentleman, who helps a lady with her shoulder straps, Farrell MacDonald as a photographer—each one contributes a small but, but a bit that is outstanding.

The camera shots employed by Murnau are arrestingly effective. Vivid shots of the city, traffic, jazz bands, and amusement park, trains, fields, fog—it is all like the cross-section of an ecstatically tortured dream.

"Sunrise" is superb.

In law courts of medieval London a group of ruffians might be sentenced to hang, not for any specific crime, but because they were notorious thieves.

THE PORTEOUS & MITCHELL CO.

January—

The Important Sale Month Of the Year

January is the most logical month of the year to hold a store-wide Clearance Sale. Through this medium we are enabled to clearaway, prior to our annual inventory which takes place February 1st, broken lines, stocks of incomplete sizes and surplus stocks of staple and seasonable merchandise that otherwise would be carried over to another season.

The January Clearance Sale is a Porteous & Mitchell Company institution, established more than 50 years ago and continued throughout our business career—because it is a sale that renders a genuine service to the public and to the store.

Continuing Another Week!

Our January Clearance Sale Of Quality Stocks

Every department, each a complete store in itself, offers unusual opportunities to purchase, at prices that are drastically reduced for quick clearance, merchandise that is desirable, up-to-the-minute in smartness and style and supreme in quality.

Special Purchases In This Sale

January is also the clearance month for the manufacturer and jobber. They, too, must clear their shelves of all surplus stocks in readiness for the coming season. To accomplish this, they, manufacturer and jobber, make drastic price concessions to us because we pay cash.

This Saving Passed to You

It has always been the policy of this store to share with the buying public all price concessions made to us. Watch for our daily announcements during this great January sale. To do so will pay you well in savings and satisfaction.

REV. E. J. NORRIS HAS ACCEPTED CALL OF ST. ANDREW'S PARISH

Rev. E. J. Norris of Springfield Center, N. Y., has accepted the call of St. Andrew's Episcopal church as rector, according to word received by William Banfield. The call was extended at a meeting held Christmas eve just prior to the midnight services. The church has been without a regular rector since the resignation several months ago of Rev. J. Rees Jones.

REQUIEM MASSES OFFERED AT ST. MARY'S MEMORIAL CHURCH

Requiem masses offered at St. Mary's Memorial church the past week were the following: Monday morning, at 7.30 o'clock, a memorial mass for John P. Sullivan, late of Holyoke, Mass., and Greeneville, offered by his son, Rev. John J. Walsh of Bridgeport. Musical program for the masses was in charge of Mrs. Michael J. Farrel, organist.

The cast of Some Little Fixer was entertained Friday evening following the performance by members of the Girls Friendly society in the Guild room of St. Andrew's Episcopal church. A dainty luncheon of assorted sandwiches, cake, cookies and coffee was served. Following the luncheon a social hour was enjoyed. The furniture used was loaned by Gilbert's Furniture Co.

Having spent the holiday recess visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Ringland, 246 Hickory street, William M. Ringland has returned to Alexandria, Va., where he is teaching chemistry and biology in George Mason high school.

Miss Mary Roberts has resumed her studies at the Willimantic State Normal school, after spending the holiday recess at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. George Roberts on Prospect street.

Frederick Cartier has returned to his home on Page street after spending the week end with relatives at Lowell, Mass.

The T. D. Sewing circles held their regular weekly meeting Thursday evening at the home of Miss Lillian Cote on Central avenue with a large attendance. The first period of the evening was devoted to sewing following which a social hour was enjoyed, with refreshments of assorted sandwiches, fancy cookies, cakes, wafers, ice cream and hot chocolate. The dining room was decorated in red and green.

Cadet William Mahoney has returned to West Point Academy after spending ten days at the home of his father, William Mahoney of Convent avenue. Cadet Mahoney has been 18 months at West Point and this was his first furlough.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Frank Leonard have changed their residence from East Main street and are now occupying an apartment with James Murphy on Prospect street.

THUNDER AND LIGHTNING WITH HEAVY JANUARY RAIN STORM

Norwich had the novel experience Sunday of a January rain storm, accompanied by thunder and lightning. From about 10 o'clock Saturday night till the early part of Sunday afternoon there was an almost continuous downpour of rain, at times coming down in dense sheets, and about 10 o'clock Sunday morning there were three flashes of lightning with heavy rolls of thunder.

A tremendous amount of water fell during the night and morning but there was comparatively little damage done on the city streets. Catch basins were clogged up on some streets and had to be cleared out, the most serious difficulty of this kind occurring on Talman street. This was remedied by the street department men.

The water department force was called out when a culvert on Town street, Norwich Town, burst and it was supposed that the flood came from one of the pipes of the city water system. However, it was quickly learned that there were no city pipes in that vicinity and the flood came from the great volume of surface water.

The cellar at the Central Baptist church, under the Bushnell chapel part of the building, became flooded Sunday afternoon about 5 o'clock to the depth of a foot and a half when a drain pipe was clogged up. The water drained down off the ledge back of the church and collected in the cellar, nearly putting out the fires. The fire department was called on for help and responded by sending Engine No. 1 to the church to pump out the water. The pumper was in use about an hour and succeeded in getting considerable water out, and when the drain pipe was cleared the water in the cellar subsided. As the large suction pipe requires at least two feet of water to function properly, it was impossible for the pumper to drain all the water from the cellar.

Water also found its way into the cellars of several Main street buildings and it is thought that other cellars will be found to have water in them when the buildings are opened for business this (Monday) morning.

A number of automobiles which stood out in the torrential rain were short-circuited and would not start until they were dried out. Some motor car owners who were driving in the storm reported that their cars went dead on the road, so heavy was the rain that penetrated under the hood, got into the distributors and soaked the wires.

Along the state highways in this section, there were many places where they were covered with dirt and stones washed from sidehills or from cross-roads and all the brooks were turned into plunging streams of white foaming water.

"MERCHANTS' NIGHT" TO HAVE NOVEL FEATURES

Final arrangements have been completed and indications point to one of the largest and most enthusiastic meetings the chamber of commerce has held in many months. "Merchants' Night" as the meeting is called will be held in the Wauregan ballroom at 6:15 this (Monday) evening.

This will be the first meeting at which the newly elected president, Joseph C. Worth, will preside. Mr. Worth has already taken hold of the reins in the chamber administration in a most energetic and capable manner and this fact has no doubt had some bearing on the large number of reservations made in advance. President Worth requested the Merchants' bureau to furnish the toastmaster for this occasion and a special committee secured the acceptance of C. Edward Smith.

In addition to the officers of the chamber, the list of those especially invited to places at the speakers' table includes Dr. D. A. Pitt, pastor of Central Baptist church; Past President Harold D. Larrabee and Past President James L. Case, also Abner Schwartz, chairman of the Merchants' bureau, and William G. Park, general chairman of the Norwich Inn committee.

A formal reception to recently elected new members of the chamber will have an important place on the program and it is also understood that Mr. Park will make a final report on the work of the Norwich Inn committee, of which he is general chairman.

Perhaps the most unique feature of the program will be the unveiling of the chart of facts about "Mercantile Norwich" by Max Hanover, chairman of the chamber publicity committee. The idea used is new in Norwich but has been used successfully in many other cities; it provides for the presentation of vital facts about the city with which all should be familiar in order to have a working knowledge of their town. It is generally conceded that the average citizen knows all too little about the big important and vital facts about his town and likewise harbors too much of its faults in constant review.

An industrial engineer recently visited Hartford and in conversation with one of the chamber's committees stated: "For new locations of factories my clients specify cities that are not lacking in civic pride and progressiveness; a city may have all of the natural advantages and good manufacturing facilities, but if its citizens are not supporting its progress and are notably of the sour milk type, we do not want to consider it."

In order that citizens of Norwich, a city of unlimited potential possibilities, may have a better knowledge of its assets, the publicity committee has arranged this program and at each meeting this year a new chart will be presented and a five-minute talk given by some member on the following subjects:

"Industrial Norwich." "Our Utilities." "Agriculture." "The Banks."

The principal event of the evening's program will be an address by William Pidgeon Jr., of Rochester, N. Y., on the subject, "Business and Its New Dawn." Mr. Pidgeon will arrive in Springfield early Monday morning from the west and will be met by Secretary Pilcher.

All members of the reception committee are to be on hand promptly at 6 p. m.

This meeting is an open one to ladies and gentlemen, regardless of chamber membership. This arrangement was made because of the many people who are anxious to hear Mr. Pidgeon because of his reputation as a church leader. He headed the "Sunday evening experiment" in Rochester for five years.

LIQUOR CASES CONTINUED AGAINST HUSBAND AND WIFE

The liquor law cases against Stanley and Nellie Walenda, husband and wife, of 556 North Main street, were called for trial in the city court Saturday morning but were continued until Jan. 8. It is understood that at that time Mrs. Walenda, will assume the responsibility in the case and will plead guilty to a charge of keeping liquor with intent to sell. The case against her husband will probably be nolled.

The couple were arrested New Year's eve in a raid at their home by the police who found 90 bottles of home brew and a half gallon of alleged hooch. Mr. Walenda was convicted on a similar charge March 8 last.

30 DAY JAIL SENTENCE IN LIQUOR LAW CASE

Found guilty of violation of the liquor law, George Lee, colored, of Forest street, was sent to jail for 30 days by Judge Arthur F. Libby in the city court Saturday morning. Lee was unable to meet a fine of $200 and costs and the 30 day sentence was given him instead of the $200 fine and a 10 day sentence. Lee was arrested Dec. 29 by the local police after a police aide had secured evidence of sale of liquor.

This (Monday) morning, Norwich Free Academy will open for the winterm term, many of the teachers and pupils having been out of town during the vacation of two weeks.

LIQUOR CHARGES NOLLED; WERE BASED ON SPITE

An absolute nolle was entered in the case of Victoria Bezdel when she was presented in the city court Saturday morning on a charge of violation of the liquor law. The nolle was ordered as evidence in the case tended to show that the woman's arrest was caused through spite on the part of her husband, Jacob Bezdel, because of her alleged attentions to John Zawieja, 48, of No. 33 St. Regis avenue. The case against Zawieja, arrested at the same time of the woman's arrest and on a similar charge, was also nolled. He was in the Bezdel house at No. 33 St. Regis avenue when the police conducted a raid there Dec. 31.

It is said that prior to the raid the police received information from Bezdel that his wife was making and selling liquor. Bezdel, it is said, also told the police that his wife had installed a 15-gallon still for the purpose of making moonshine liquor. He agreed to secure for the police evidence of an actual sale.

After he had secured a pint of liquor, alleged to have been sold to him by his wife, the police visited the house. The liquor seized was quite different than that generally sold by bootleggers. The case was presented in the city court the following day and was continued until Saturday. Since the raid Bezdel started a $5,000 damage suit against Zawieja, charging alienation of his wife's affections. This fact and alleged threats made by Bezdel against his wife, were taken into consideration by the court in ordering the charges nolled.

HOWARD PRESENTS ALIBI THAT NOLLES CHARGES

For lack of evidence, the theft case against Leslie A. Howard was nolled in the city court Saturday morning. Howard, alleged to have attempted to gain entrance to a room at the armory, Dec. 24, introduced evidence showing that he was at work at the plant of the Thermos Bottle Co. at the time.

Howard's foreman and several fellow employes at the Thermos plant testified that Howard was working at the plant on Dec. 24 and at no time left the plant during working hours that day.

The state in its testimony tried to show that Howard, a member of Battery B, 192nd Artillery, C. N. G., was seen at the armory at 1:30 o'clock on the afternoon of Dec. 24 by George Malcolm, the armory caretaker, and two others. An additional charge against Howard, having stolen property in his possession, was also nolled because of lack of evidence. Howard was charged with having in his possession an army revolver stolen from the armory in 1924.

NORWICH TOWN

WM. H. WHITEMAN PLAYED TURKEY IN THE STRAW AT TEST

William H. Whiteman of 232 West Town street entered for the Fiddlers' Contest Friday evening in Grange hall, Lebanon, when about 12 participated in the contest. The program of the evening, which also included several harmonious selections by a band, proved very entertaining. Mr. Whiteman, a veteran of the Civil war, who is in his 82nd year, played Turkey in the Straw and McDonald's Reel. He has several times contributed to the program, playing always by ear. At the gathering Friday evening several prizes were given. Every contestant is expected to play Turkey in the Straw, and then choose any other tune he wishes. Mr. Whiteman was accompanied to Lebanon by John W. Swahn of Norwich, leader of Tubbs' band.

At one location in Norwich Town during a period of 24 hours, there was a difference in temperature of 42 degrees, Saturday morning being that much colder than was the following morning at the same hour.

Having visited among relatives and friends in Norwich Town and Taftville for the past two weeks, Miss Beatrice Smith left Saturday afternoon to join her mother, Mrs. A. Maud Smith, both formerly of Norwich Town, at the home of Mrs. Smith's mother, Mrs. Edwin T. Libby, of Dry Mills, Me.

"The Leadership of Jesus" was Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey's sermon theme at the First Congregational church, Sunday morning. Following the regular worship, the January communion service took place.

The Congregational Young People's C. E. service Sunday evening had for its topic, "Forces That Are Making the World Better." Miss Dorothy Waterman was the assigned leader.

The G. O. A. L. class of the First Congregational Sunday school, Clyde M. Beebe teacher, is to hold a meeting this (Monday) evening at the home of the president, Crosby Peck, of Otrobando avenue.

The work department of the League of Service of the Congregational church, Mrs. Herbert L. Yerrington, chairman, has planned a meeting for Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John L. Browning, 237 West Town street. The time has been set for 2:30.

Conductor Ladd Improving

Friends in Norwich Town, where he is one of the popular conductors for the Connecticut Co., having a day run over this route, are encouraged to learn that Charles Ladd is convalescing, following a serious surgical operation in a Hartford hospital on his foot, just prior to Christmas. It is hoped the trouble which has given Conductor Ladd much concern for some time, has now been effectively remedied.

Sunday at M. E. Church

"And all these things spake Jesus unto the multitude in parables; and without a parable spake He not unto them," Matt. 13:34, was the text of the sermon given by Rev. George Warren Potter at the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning. The theme was "The Great Story Teller." The Junior choir, under direction of Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich, sang "He's a Precious Friend." Mrs. Helen Haviland Potter told the children a story.

The Junior Epworth league had an attendance of 26 when Virginia Ward led in the topic, "Is It Worthwhile to Have a Church in Our Town?" Doris Rose was pianist. William Prothero, boy soprano and soloist of Christ Episcopal church, Norwich, sang two solos in a most pleasing manner.

Effie Ladd, president of the C. E., led the evening meeting with the topic, "Forces That Are Making the World Better."

"Shoes that Wore 40 Years" was the subject of the evening sermon. The pastor took for his text, Deut. 29:5, and spoke of the manner in which God has shown His interest in man and the things that make for his comfort. A number of stereopticon hymns were shown and sung by the congregation. Virginia Ward sang with the stereopticon pictures, "Tell Me the Stories of Jesus." The machine was operated by Ralph Smith.

The meeting of the C. E. is to be held this (Monday) evening in the vestry.

Wolf Cub Pack of Scouts held a meeting Saturday morning at the Norwich Town Methodist parsonage. There was an attendance of 16 with two boys applying for membership. The meeting was in charge of the Cubmaster, Rev. George Warren Potter. Following the usual opening with the Wolf Cub bowl, laws, promise and flag salute, Assistant Scoutmaster Ralph Smith of the Boy Scout troop led the boys in a song period and a setting-up exercise. Cubmaster Potter announced that beginning with the meeting an efficiency contest would be held and a gold medal presented the Cub having the highest score at the end of six months. Points are awarded for attendance, neatness, attendance at church and Sunday school and for tests taken. The meeting closed with a demonstration of second sight, given by Assistant Scoutmaster Smith. Following the meeting, tests were passed by Cubs Frederick Ross, Ellis Bentley and John Gallagher.

Led in Contest

Patrol Leader Arthur Bennett again took the lead Friday in the efficiency contest in the Boy Scout troop connected with the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church. Scout Bennett's score at the meeting was 550 with Scout Clayton Rose a close second, with a score of 538. There was an attendance of 18, including one visitor. Following the regulation opening ceremony, Assistant Scoutmaster Ralph Smith led the troop in a song period and a period of the setting-up exercise. Scoutmaster Rev. George Warren Potter led the troop in an interpatrol contest of semaphore signalling and knot tying. A semaphore contest was won by the patrol in charge of Patrol Leader Donald Waterman and the knot tying was won by the patrol in charge of Leader Arthur Bennett. The Scouts voted to extend the time to Jan. 18 for final tenderfoot tests; any Scouts failing to pass their test by that date will be dropped from the troop. Edward Eccleston was elected Scout scribe. The meeting ended with a game period in charge of Scoutmaster Potter, assisted by Assistant Scoutmaster Smith and Herbert Burdick. Following the closing ceremony, Clayton Rose passed the semaphore test, Albert Phillips the compass test, Donald Olsen the test on the history of the flag, Robert Ringland passed his complete tenderfoot test.

Scouts Cooked Dinner

Saturday afternoon, Patrol Leader Waterman of Flying Eagle patrol and four Scouts from his patrol, Clayton Rose, Edward Gallagher, Harry Spicer and Edward Eccleston, took a 14-mile hike. They were accompanied by Scoutmaster Potter. They left the parsonage at 1 o'clock and hiked over seven miles on the road to Willimantic. Before starting on the return trip each Scout cooked two potatoes and a quarter of a pound of meat on an open fire, without the use of utensils. The hike is a first-class test and the cooking a second-class test. All were successful in passing both tests. They arrived home shortly after 6:30, greatly pleased with their outing.

Presentations at Rebekah Meeting

At the meeting of Hope Rebekah lodge, when officers were installed, District Deputy President Sadie E. Curley presented the incoming past noble grand, Caroline Howard, a past noble grand's jewel.

Mrs. Grace Willey, past president of the Rebekah state assembly, presented District Deputy Sadie E. Curley, with her gift.

WILL PROVIDES $1,000 TO BE PAID EXECUTORS

Only private bequests are contained in the will of William C. Weldon, former insurance agent, which was filed Saturday in the local probate court. The will is dated April 24 last, and Henry J. Weldon, Ann P. Palmer and Mary J. Kaiser are named as executors. If they qualify the sum of $1,000 is to be divided between them for their services.

The will directs that not more than $600 be spent for funeral expenses. The sum of $100 is left to St. Mary's Memorial church for masses to be said for the repose of his soul. The furniture, house furnishings, wearing apparel, watches and personal effects are to be divided between Mary J. Kaiser, Anna P. Palmer and John Payer, all of New London. The remainder of the estate is to be divided between the following cousins of their survivors:

Henry J. Weldon of New London; Mary J. Roden of 36 Paul's place, Brooklyn, N. Y., Ann Weldon of New York city, daughter of my uncle, John Weldon; John Payer of Waterford, son of Catherine Weldon Payer and Mander Payer; Mary J. Gallagher of Boston, Mass.; Mary J. Kaiser and Ann P. Palmer; Thomas Reilly of Norwich and William Gallagher, of Jersey City, N. J.

WILL GIVE LUNCHEON TO HONOR WOMEN LEGISLATORS

A luncheon in honor of the women members of the 1929 legislature to be given by the Connecticut League of Women Voters has been announced by Miss Mary Bulkley of Hartford, president of the league. It is to be held in Hartford at the Hotel Bond on Thursday, Jan. 24

There are twenty women who will serve in the 1929 legislature. Miss Mary Weaver of New Milford will be the only woman senator. The nineteen women in the house of representatives are:

Mrs. Corinne R. Alsop of Avon; Mrs. Maud L. Woodward, of Bolton; Mrs. May F. Wilford, of Cornwall; Miss Josephine E. Bryant of East Hartford; Miss Georgina B. Davids of Greenwich; Mrs. Marion G. Roberts, of Hartford; Mrs. Edith V. Miller, of Hartland; Mrs. Lena W. Greenbacker, of Middlefield; Mrs. Caroline T. Platt, of Milford; Mrs. Clarissa Nevius, of New Fairfield; Miss Annie H. Maher, of New Haven; Mrs. Hattie M. Buckingham, of Oxford; Miss Edith Sutliffe, of Plymouth; Mrs. Alice W. Russ of Shelton; Miss Marjory Cheney of South Manchester; Mrs. Julia M. Emery, of Stamford; Mrs. Helen E. Lewis, of Stratford; Mrs. Florence P. Maxwell of Vernon; Miss Alice L. Coe of Winchester.

The league is looking for a large attendance at the luncheon by women of the state who would like to do honor to the women legislators. Mrs. Harrison B. Freeman of Hartford is chairman of the Hartford committee on arrangements.

THE EVIL OF PROFANITY DEPLORED BY FR. GALVIN

The feast of the Epiphany, Mark 2, 1-2, commemorating the manifestation of Christ to the Gentiles through the visit of the Wise Men, the number of penitents receiving holy communion at the four masses in St. Patrick's church appeared to set a record for the first Sunday of the New Year, so numerous had been the confessions heard Saturday afternoon and evening by the three parish priests. The Children of Mary society members, Miss Anna Coleman, president, led the communicants who were given the eucharist at the 7.30 mass by the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May and his assistant. At 9, Rev. John J. Reilly required the aid of Rev. Myles P. Galvin in administering communion. A the previous Wednesday had been the feast of the Holy Name of Jesus. Father Galvin preached on the love, respect and veneration which Catholics should show for that name above all other names, Jesus.

Father Galvin deplored the evil habit of so many, in using this name lightly or profanely when in anger or excitement. Above all, he had revere condemnatalon for Catholic parents who, in the presence of their children give scandal by unclean or profane speech. The rough soldiers who, as narrated in the Passion scourged, reviled and spat upon Christ knew no better; but Catholics realize that Jesus is God—their Creator, their Redeemer, who spent 33 years on earth to teach men how to save their souls. They believe that it was He who established the sacrament of penance in order to enable them to cleanse their souls of sin, that He instituted the eucharist to strengthen their souls. Yet knowing all this, they frequently employ the name of their Saviour in a way in which no heathen would use it. Often infidels are shocked by the Catholics who use Our Lord's name so lightly. They believe Christ was a great and good man, the greatest of men, and they must wonder, when Catholics speak His name so slightingly if they really believe what they profess. Hence many Christians are setting a bad example through a habit formed through repeated, wilful, conscious acts. In case this revolting habit has been formed, the preacher suggested that a way to cure it is to impose a penance upon one's self, resolving to repeat some certain prayer whenever the tongue slips into cursing or swearing as the result of this vulgar habit, also suggested. Catholics should manifest their disapproval of profane or unclean speech on the part of others by standing with bowed head whenever the name of Christ is mentioned irreverently. The closing thought which he left with his many hearers was the declaration of Saint Peter, Acts 4, 8-12, impressing the power and majesty and far-reaching influence of the word which so many use thoughtlessly, that "there is no other name under heaven given to men, whereby we must be saved."

At this service the junior choir sang their hymns very pleasingly, directed by the organist, Henry J. LaFontaine.

The high mass at 10.30 was followed by Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

Joseph P. Connor Recovers

Joseph P. Connor of Lincoln avenue, president of the city gas and electric commission, is steadily regaining his health after a severe nervous breakdown which has required hospital treatment in New York. Mr. Connor, who returned home before Christmas, is gaining in weight, is able to be out and about and the specialists who have cared for his case are greatly encouraged by his improvement in recent weeks.

ASPIRIN

To break a cold harmlessly and in a hurry try a Bayer Aspirin tablet. And for headache. The action of Aspirin is very efficient, too, in cases of neuralgia, neuritis, even rheumatism and lumbago! And there's no after effect; doctors give Aspirin to children—often infants. Whenever there's pain, think of Aspirin. The genuine Bayer Aspirin has Bayer on the box and on every tablet. All druggists, with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Bayer Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

POETRY

The Shepherd Psalm

"The Lord is my Shepherd"
And so today is blest.
But will tomorrow hold
For me this perfect rest?

"I shall not want" because
"My times are in His hands,"
And all my days and nights
Are numbered in His plans.

"He maketh me lie down"
In pastures green and sweet,
Nor toil nor care are mine
While resting at His feet.

"He leadeth me" along
By streams that softly flow,
Filling my days with peace
And gladness as I go.

My soul He doth restore,
In Him is strength indeed;
No service now too hard
For Him who knows my need.

"He leadeth me in paths
Of righteousness," and yet,
Through valleys dark and deep,
Did all my fears be still.

I take from Him my all;
My all to Him I bring,
For now and evermore,
My Shepherd is my King.

—By Clara S. Adams, in Boston Transcript.

Mutability

The flower that smiles today
Tomorrow dies;
All that we wish to stay
Tempts and then flies.
What is this world's delight?
Lightning that mocks the night—
Brief even as bright.

Virtue, how frail it is!
Friendship how rare!
Love, how it sells poor bliss
For proud despair.
But we, though soon they fall,
Survive their joy, and all
Which ours we call.

Whilst skies are blue and bright,
Whilst flowers are gay,
Whilst eyes that change ere night
Make glad the day;
Whilst yet the calm hours creep,
Dream thou—and from thy sleep
Awake to weep.

—Shelley.

QUESTION MARK WAS ALOFT 150 HOURS, 40 MIN., 15 SEC.

Was Forced Down by Motor Trouble—Cirtled the Field and Glided to a Perfect Landing About 300 Yards From the Main Hangars—The Plane Had Broken All Aerial Records For Continuous Flight—Question Mark is a Fokker Monoplane With Three Wright Whirlwind 225 Horsepower Engines.

METROPOLITAN AIRPORT, LOS ANGELES, Cal. Jan. 7—(AP)— The army's endurance flight plane the Question Mark, glided to a perfect landing here at 2:07:01 o'clock this afternoon after a historic and record-smashing flight of 150 hours, 40 minutes and 15 seconds. The ship flew continuously for nearly seven days and nights following its take-off here on New Year's morning at 7:26:46 o'clock.

The end of one of the greatest flights in all aviation history came after a crew of five weary men had fought constantly against time and motors which piled trouble in a heap upon them an hour before the landing. Thirty hours before, their work seemed near and end when the motors balked, but the trouble cleared away and the flight went on. As though in protest to the great strain placed upon them, the motors finally stuttered, one went "dead," and with another rapidly failing, they forced the nose of the ship earthward. Previous motor trouble had been almost negligible.

As the great black-bodied tri-motored Fokker with its shining yellow wings touched earth almost upon the spot where it had left so many hours before, a cabin door swung open and from it stepped the crew. In the milling crowd of launching, cheering army officers, they were the calmest of all. Broad smiles spreading across their faces as they heard the acclaim to their efforts.

Not one of the five, though worn looking, faltered. Major Carl Spatz, commanding officer, Captain Ira C. Eaker, Lieutenants Harry A. Halverson and Elwood R. Quesada and Staff Sergeant Roy Hooe walked to a waiting car which carried them to a hangar and then to Cloverfield, Santa Monica, Cal., for an official physical examination.

Just what happened aboard the Question Mark was told by Lieutenant Quesda in simple words as he lounged in the automobile speeding to the medical base.

"Just as I left the controls at 1 o'clock this afternoon, Captain Eaker took the wheel and the left motor went dead. We sent Sergeant Hooe out on the catwalk, but his weight was too heavy in the unstable condition of the Question Mark.

"We knew then that the flight was over. We dropped the gas within two or three minutes after we had taken it.

"This was not the first trouble. Saturday night we thought it was all over. All three engines lost their power. That was fouled spark plugs. We were all ready to end the flight but finally we cleaned that up. It was not necessary for anyone to go out on the catwalks then. The first time during the flight that it was necessary to go out was at 1 o'clock today when Sergeant Hooe went out to the left motor.

"It was worse than spark plug trouble this time. It looked like valves. Shortly after 1 o'clock the right motor began to weaken. Then we knew the flight was about to end."

When the plane landed, the left motor was silent, the right motor was functioning, but a stream of oil spouted from it and the center motor was able to make but 1300 revolutions a minute.

EXCEEDED ALL RECORDS FOR CONTINUOUS FLIGHT

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—(AP)—The army monoplane Question Mark far exceeded all records for time in the air before it landed this afternoon just before completion of its 151st hour of continuous flight.

On the way to its new record it successively passed the records for airplane flight with and without refueling in the air, both of which were between 65 and 70 hours, and the lighter than air records of the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin, at approximately 112 hours, and the French dirigible Dixmude at 118.

The question mark is a Fokker monoplane with three Wright whirlwind 225 horsepower engines.

VISUALIZES NON-STOP FLIGHT AROUND WORLD

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—(AP)—Rear Admiral William A. Moffatt, chief of the bureau of aeronautics of the United States navy, commenting today on the 150 hour flight of the army plane "Question Mark" visualized the day when a non-stop flight around the world would be made.

"After this test, so ambitious an experiment as a non-stop flight around the globe is now brought well within the realms of possibility," he said in a statement made public here.

COURAGE AND SKILL OF THE FLYERS LANDED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(AP)—Elated over the safe landing of the army monoplane Question Mark at Los Angeles, government aviation officials tonight lauded the courage and skill of the flyers and described their flight breaking all endurance records as of far-reaching effect in the advancement of aviation.

The safe landing of the plane elicited joyous expressions from the officials who praised both performance of the aviators and the plane's mechanism in withstanding the severe test. The successful refueling of the Question Mark in the air by another plane also was described as a great step in the progress of flying.

"It spells a new and thrilling chapter in man's conquest of the air," said Assistant Secretary Davison in charge of war department aeronautics.

Major General Fechet, chief of the army air corps, predicted that "the accomplishment of the army flyers will have a far reaching effect in the advancement of aviation both military and civil."

Clarence M. Young, director of aeronautics in the commerce department, said that "both the personnel and the mechanism are entitled to every admiration for the splendid feat."

Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, who is president of the National Aeronautics association, said the performance of the Question Mark "brings to the Army Air corps and to American aeronautics new and well-earned laurels."

CREW OF QUESTION MARK IN EXCELLENT CONDITION

CLOVER FIELD, SANTA MONICA, Calif., Jan. 7—(AP)—The members of the crew of the Question Mark, were reported by a board of four army surgeons to have been found in "excellent" physical condition, following an examination made three hours after their grueling 150 hour endurance flight ended this afternoon. The only effects noted were fatigue which "was to be expected" the surgeons said, "and the loss of one to four pounds in weight by each of the five men."

MENTAL CAPACITY OF GEN. BOOTH UNIMPAIRED

LONDON, Jan. 7—(AP)—A veil of silence was drawn over both camps in the Salvation Army controversy today on the eve of the meeting of the high council which is to decide whether General Bramwell Booth is to continue as commander-in-chief of the organization. It was broken only by a bulletin issued by Dr. John Weir, physician to the Prince of Wales and Dr. Ernest Wardlaw Milne, regular advisor to the general. In it they said that the general's mental capacity has been unimpaired by his long illness and that he will be ready to resume his work in six months.

The medical pronouncement also stated that the commander was "well able to give decisions and advice on important matters." This was recognized by both sides as a strong weapon for the adherents of the general and one of the officials at international headquarters said tonight:

"I shall be the most surprised man in the army if General Booth is not adjudicated fit to continue his leadership."

The medical certificate revealed, nevertheless, that Bramwell Booth was too ill to attend the council meeting at Sunbury-on-Thames with safety.

Only 63 members of the high council will gather tomorrow. The absentee is Commissioner William E. Oliphant of London. He is in the south of France on sick leave.

BELGRADE UNMOVED BY POLITICAL UPHEAVAL

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, Jan. 7—(AP)—The people of Belgrade today celebrated the Christmas tide of the Greek Orthodox church calendar, seemingly unmoved by the political upheaval of yesterday, when King Alexander dissolved parliament and named a cabinet of his own choosing, headed by the commander of his body guard as prime minister. There were no reports of disorders from any part of the kingdom.

At Zagreb, which has been the headquarters of the Croat home rule movement, special editions of newspapers sold like hot cakes, and crowds paraded the streets shouting, "Long live the king!"

Advices received here stated that Vlado Matchek, leader of the Croat peasant party, said that he was perfectly satisfied with the change as the Croats believed that the old constitution had long been dead.

KING GEORGE PASSED A FAIR NIGHT AND QUIET DAY

LONDON, Jan. 7—(AP)—Two medical bulletins issued today reported that King George had passed a fair night and a quiet day, although there was no noteworthy change in his majesty's condition.

But far more significant of the physicians' confidence in continuation of progress, was the official announcement that provided there is no relapse, the one bulletin rule probably would be continued. In that case it would be given out in the evening.

OBITUARY

Dr. S. Eliza Talcott

DANBURY, Jan. 7—(AP)—Dr. S. Eliza Talcott is dead at her home here, at the age of eighty-four. She was native of Gilead, this state, and taking up the study of medicine when nearly fifty years old, graduated from the New York Homopathic Medical college in 1890, in the same class with her brother, the late Dr. William S. Talcott. They practiced medicine together in New York city several years. Dr. Talcott's body will be cremated and the ashes placed in the family burial plot in Gilead.

Senate Divided On The Kellogg Treaty

Solons Call For an Interpretation of America's Rights Under the Treaty.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(AP)—Early ratification of the Kellogg anti-war treaty appeared as a possibility tonight after a day of conferences had brought an agreement nearer on the sole dispute in the treaty discussion—whether an interpretation of America's rights under the pact is necessary.

The negotiations had reached such a stage late today that Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, the author of the interpretive resolution which has been opposed by President Coolidge announced in the senate that an understanding by tomorrow seemed likely.

The tentative agreement calls for a report by the foreign relations committee stating its interpretation of American rights under the treaty and the transmission of this report to the other powers.

Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, outstanding opponent of the pact, and others fighting for the interpretive resolution are ready to accept this proposition which would place before all the other signatory nations the views of the senate foreign affairs leaders on the treaty.

Chairman Borah of the committee who is leading the fight for the pact, insisted tonight that the proposed agreement is "by no means certain yet." The sentiment of other administration leaders is awaited before a definite decision on the undertaking can be announced.

There were definite indications from other treaty proponents, including some of the democratic spokesmen, that such a proposal would not be opposed by them. The democrats generally have sided with Chairman Borah in his fight for ratification of the treaty without reservation or an accompanying resolution.

Under the terms of the present understanding, the committee's interpretive report would be placed before the senate and referred to the state department with the request that it be sent to the other powers along with notification to them of American adherence to the pact.

The report would state that this country does not consider that the treaty infringes upon the right of America to defend herself or territories or embarrass in any way her rights under the Monroe Doctrine; nor that it involves this government in any obligation to enforce the treaty. All of these views have been expressed by Borah in the senate debate. The report would merely constitute a record of these pronouncements.

Should the agreement be finally entered into by Senator Borah and other treaty proponents an immediate vote on the treaty is believed possible.

DISCLOSURES MADE BY BIG RAIDS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Jan. 7—(AP)—The possible solution of three gang killings, the smashing of the biggest liquor, gambling and vice syndicate in Cook county and the expected disclosure of the "higher-ups" in the syndicate including several county officials, tonight were counted among the results of a wholesale cleanup of suburban Chicago Heights.

Federal, state and county officials expressed elation over the dispatch with which the raids were executed by picked squads of police and county and federal agents who even took over the city hall and police department yesterday when they swooped down on the suburb of 25,000 at dawn, ransacked all questionable places and departed within an hour with more than a score of prisoners, dozens of firearms, hundreds of rounds of ammunition and a quantity of liquor, leaving behind more than 400 slot machines to be smashed.

The most prized prisoner of the lot was Oliver J. Ellis, described by the police as a pay-off man for the gambling syndicate, at whose home the slot machines were found. Ellis, the authorities said, admitted taking in more than $30,000 a month, which he said was split five ways but refused to reveal the other parties to the split. Some of the raiders, however, intimated that at least two and possibly three county officials were involved.

Several of those seized conducted saloons or gambling resorts and through them the police hoped to solve three of the more than 60 slayings in the suburb in the past few years.

ELEVEN MEN INJURED BY EXPLOSION IN PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 7—(AP)—An explosion in the transformer section of the Allis Chalmers company plant here this afternoon injured eleven workmen, one seriously. Two tanks let go and the iron-clad building housing them was partly wrecked. Plant representatives placed the loss at $25,000.

The containers which exploded were described as a vacuum tank and an "impregnating" still. Both were of large capacity and the still was utilized in the manufacture of substance for insulating coils of transformers. It held chemicals.

STEAMER STILL AGROUND OFF GOULD ISLAND

NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 7—(AP)—The lumber steamer Herman Frasen, was still aground off Gould Island in Narragansett bay tonight with little prospect of being floated until late tomorrow. The vessel grounded during a fog yesterday. She was not leaking and was not considered in any immediate danger.

Cargo from the forward part of the vessel was removed today and this work was to continue during the night.

NOT A CANDIDATE FOR CLERK OF THE SENATE

STAMFORD, Jan. 7—(AP)—Daniel S. B. Hickey, of Stamford, clerk of the house of representatives in the Connecticut general assembly for the past two sessions and who has been mentioned as a candidate for clerk of senate of the 1929 legislature, announced tonight that he will not contest for either position. His action leaves the field clear for Fred Baker, of New Haven, clerk of the legislature for the past three sessions.

Man Burned To Death In Garage In Hartford

Electric Bulb Dropped and Broke on the Gasoline Saturated Floor.

H[illegible] Jan. 7—(AP)—Lawrence H. [illegible] 22, of 477 Burritt street, N[illegible], was burned to death and [illegible] brother, Lester Dickinson, of [illegible] street, this city, severely in[illegible] when a spectacular fire swept the [illegible] of R. T. Hess, Inc., 634 Wethersfield avenue, early this evening.

Damage estimated at $25,000 was done to the garage and to the premises of the Hartford Coach Works, which is located in the same building. The home of the owner of the property, Mrs. Madeline Massare, escaped damage although it is built directly against the structure in which the blaze occurred.

Employes of the Hess concern said that the fire started when an electric light bulb dropped and broke on the gasoline saturated floor of the garage. According to reports the younger Dickinson, who drives one of the Hess trucks, had brought his vehicle into the garage, and about 5:15 o'clock, was engaged in draining the gasoline from its tank.

He was lying under the machine while the liquid flowed into a pail, and he had pulled an extension light over to aid him.

According to other employes, Dickinson let the electric light bulb drop to the floor. The bulb, which was said to be without a metal guard, broke and the exposed hot wires immediately ignited the gasoline-soaked boards. In attempting to crawl out of the way of the sudden blaze, Dickinson knocked over the pail of gasoline.

The man was drenched with the flaming fluid when he staggered to his feet. His brother Lester, who was in the act of stooping to help him when the mishap occurred, rushed to his aid along with Leyland F. Preston, manager of the garage, and George Gleason, another employe.

Snatching up old clothes and tearing off their own garments the men tried frantically to wrap them around their companion and smother the flames. But before they could envelop his body, the garage was a roaring furnace and they were forced to save their own lives.

Once outside the building Lester Dickinson fought wildly to return and make another effort to rescue his brother but his companions restrained him and when one of them noticed that the older Dickinson's left forearm was badly burned, they took him at once to the Hartford hospital. He was released after treatment and returned to his home.

HEARINGS OPEN ON TARIFF READJUSTMENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(AP)—The opening of hearings today by the house ways and means committee on tariff readjustment, was signalized by a concentrated march of more than 30 witnesses to the committee room seeking protection for the chemical industry.

With all except one democratic member present and the huge committee room packed to the doors, many standing, witness after witness took the stand with mathematical deductions that stumped the layman and with technical names that frequently caused committee men to call for definitions.

The principal witness of the day, Salmon W. Wilder, of Boston, representing the Manufacturing Chemists' association, declared that while the present tariff law was aiding the chemical and other industries in general, certain rate changes were needed such as an increase of 15 per cent in the present ad valorem duty of 25 per cent on chemicals not now enjoying a specific import rate.

He said the higher rate was desired to protect chemicals not now produced at a profit in this country and to allow American manufacturers to risk starting production of new materials which constantly are being introduced from abroad.

TO KEEP WITCHCRAFT OUT OF BLYMYER TRIAL

YORK, Pa., Jan. 7—(AP)—Efforts of the prosecution to keep the witchcraft angle out of the trial of John H. Blymyer, 32 year old "pow-wow" doctor, accused of slaying another "Hexer," Nelson D. Rehmeyer, went for naught when one of the commonwealth witnesses spurted out:

"Blymyer told me he got the witch."

The injection of that came at the end of a day filled with the routine procedure of the selection of a jury, completed late this afternoon. District Attorney Amos W. Herrmann, conducting the prosecution, specifically eliminated any reference to witchcraft in his address to the jury.

He gave robbery as the motive for the murder in answer to a question of the court. Neither was there any mention of witchcraft, "pow-wowism" or "hexing" during the questioning of prospective jurors.

DEATH OF HENRY ARTHUR JUNES, DRAMATIC AUTHOR

LONDON, Jan. 7—(AP)—Henry Arthur Jones, famous dramatic author, died at his home in Hampstead tonight. He was 77.

Mr. Jones was a member of the Players club of New York and received the honorary degree of master of arts from Harvard university in 1907.

His first play, "A Clerical Error," was published in 1879 and he continued his active career until after the World war. Among his more famous works were "Saints and Sinners" 1884; "The Hypocrites," in 1906; "The Evangelist" in 1907; "The Lie" 1914 and "Cock o' the Walk," 1915. During the war he devoted his pen to patriotic subjects and social problems. His recreation was given in Who's Who as "hunting sedition".

SAFE-CRACKERS CONTINUE TO WORK IN NEW BRITAIN

NEW BRITAIN, Jan. 7—(AP)—Police redoubled their efforts to track down the safe cracker who has been working in this city when they learned today that a year broke open the safe at Rackliff's gasoline filling station on Franklin Square last night and store $900. Discovery of the job was made this morning when the station was opened for business.

Within a month the safes at the state normal school, the Hardware City Lumber company and the Asia Grotto rooms have been broken open.

HOOVER IN CONFERENCES WITH REPUBLICAN LEADERS

Wide Range of Subjects Were Covered in More Than a Dozen Conferences—President-Elect Has Entered Upon a Two or Three Days' Period of "Listening" to What His Callers Have to Say—Conjecture Rife Concerning Make-Up of the Hoover Cabinet and the Probability of an Extra Session of Congress.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7— (AP) — Herbert Hoover spent his first day in Washington since his election acquainting President Coolidge with the results of his Latin-American mission and receiving a barrage of reports and suggestions from friends and republican party leaders who called at his temporary headquarters at the Mayflower hotel in an almost steady stream.

The president-elect had nothing to say regarding either his white house visitors or the conferences he had during the forenoon and afternoon. It was stated on his behalf, however, that he had entered upon a two or three days' period of "listening" to what his callers had to say.

After spending the day at the Mayflower the president-elect returned to his "S" street home for a dinner conference with Senator Curtis of Kansas, republican leader of the senate and vice-president-elect. Senator Curtis will sit in on cabinet meetings during the Hoover administration at the invitation of the president-elect extended before the election.

A wide range of subjects were covered in the more than a dozen conferences which the next president had during the day and evening, running from cabinet and other appointments to the matter of the promised extra session of the 71st congress in the event that the present session fails to enact an adequate program of farm relief legislaion.

If the next president had any comment to make on these subjects his callers successfully kept the fact to themselves. Some of them frankly said they did not believe Mr. Hoover had decided regarding the selection of his official family while others believed that he had formulated at least a tentative slate.

Opinion appeared to be general that Andrew W. Mellon would remain as secretary of the treasury and that the attorney-generalship would be offered to William J. Donovan of New York.

There were several guesses as to secretary of state, but admittedly those who were doing the guessing had no concrete information. Several names were mentioned but no new ones were added, the supply seemingly becoming exhausted with the roll call of Senator Borah of Idaho, Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow to Mexico and Ambassador Henry Fletcher to Italy.

Senator Moses of New Hampshire, president pro tempore of the senate, who was among the callers, said he probably was responsible for bringing into the picture the name of Roland W. Boyden, of Boston, a close personal friend of Mr. Hoover who served as an American observer on the reparations commission at the request of the now president-elect.

Most of the congressional leaders who saw the president-elect are in favor of the passage at this session of the pending McNary farm relief measure which has the endorsement of the Coolidge administration and the postponement of an extra session to consider tariff revision until the late fall.

Mr. Hoover will get the other side of the picture tomorrow and during succeeding days when Senators Borah of Idaho, and Brookhart of Iowa, and other proponents of an early extra session call upon him. They hold that the present congress has insufficient time to enact a comprehensive farm program and that the whole subject should go over to the new congress.

Senator Moses, after a call at headquarters, declared that this congress would accomplish much toward the solution of the farm question if it would get down to work.

The longest conference the president-elect had during the day was with former Senator Irvine I. Lenroot of Wisconsin, one of his staunchest supporters in both the pre-convention and general election campaigns. The former senator said he did not discuss individuals for appointment, but expressed the view that Mr. Hoover would select men eminently fitted for the tasks that would be assigned to them.

Like some other of the visitors, Mr. Lenroot regards an extra session of the new congress as inevitable.

COMMENT IN ROME ON KING ALEXANDER'S COUP D'ETAT

ROME, Jan. 7—(AP)—The coupe d'etat of King Alexander of Jugoslavia affairs always has been a matter of interest. In fascist government circles it was pointed out that Italy always has desired to have good friendly interests with the kingdom across the Adriatic since both nations have much in common, not only politically but also commercially.

It was remarked in this connection that Italy's pact with Albania whereby each pledged itself to come to the defense of the other, never was meant as a threat toward Belgrade. Politicians here recalled that Italy had virtually occupied Albania in wartime but surrendered her protectorate.

The entire fascist press argued today that the Jugaslavian development was a fresh demonstration of the discredit into which parliamentary institutions have fallen.

HEARING OF THE SENATE INDIAN AFFAIRS COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(AP)—The case of Jackson Barnett, an aged and wealthy Creek Indian, which in years gone by has filled many pages of congressional testimony, bobbed up again at the capitol today at a hearing of the senate Indian affairs committee and immediately a flow of charges issued.

Charles H. Burke, commissioner of Indian affairs, one of the witnesses, declared that Senator Pine of Oklahoma was involved in a conspiracy to "destroy me and the Indian service." He said Pine, who is a member of the committee, sought to do so because Judge Hepburn, who Burke described as "a certain Oklahoma politician," had not been appointed superintendent of the five civilized tribes.

MAN FATALLY INJURED WHEN DITCH CAVED IN

GREENWICH, Jan. 7—(AP)—Arturo Banabo was fatally injured when a seven foot ditch in which he was working, caved in this afternoon. Paul Pangame, also at work in the ditch, was slightly injured. Both men worked for Lawrence Chiapetta, contractor who is building a sewer for the borough. Medical Examiner John A. Clarke is investigating. A coroner's inquest will be held.

DR. J. H. T. SWEET DIED SUDDENLY IN HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Jan. 7—(AP)—Dr. John H. T. Sweet, nationally known bone surgeon, died suddenly at his home, 150 Blue Hills avenue, at 8:30 o'clock tonight. He was 80 years old.

Death was caused by heart failure. Dr. Sweet was seated in a chair when the end came.

Dr. Sweet was born in Lebanon, Nov. 4, 1848. He had been in Hartford since 1874, limiting his practice to the reduction of fractures and dislocations.

He attended the public schools in Lebanon and studied at the Bolles school in Ellington and went to college in Poughkeepsie, N. Y. In Lebanon, following his graduation from college, he was associated with his father, Dr. Charles Sweet, and his brother, Dr. Charles Sweet, Jr., in the conduct of a sanatorium for bone and joint treatment.

Coming to Hartford, he opened an office on Main street and later was located on Trumbull street. He had lived at 150 Blue Hills avenue for 41 years.

Dr. Sweet leaves his widow, Sally J. (Boyd) Sweet, whom he married at North Garden, Va., her home, May 4, 1875; three daughters, Mrs. Karl F. Bishop of Lebanon, Mrs. Robert Tuttle and Miss Lucy Sweet, both at home; a son, Dr. John H. T. Sweet, Jr., of 29 Four Mile road, West Hartford; a brother, Dr. F. B. Sweet of Springfield; a sister, Mrs. Nathaniel Barker of Lebanon; eight grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

The funeral will be private, but the time has not been set.

YOUNG FARM HAND IS SUSPECTED OF MURDER

CANAL FULTON, Ohio, Jan. 7—(AP)—The search for a young farm hand was extended into Pennsylvania tonight as authorities sought to explain the slaying of John Oser, 30, prosperous dairyman, of Canal Fulton, and his wife, Bertha, 28.

The man, about 22 years old, and known only as Edward, has disappeared from the Oser home, where he was employed about a week. The Oser family automobile also is missing. Pennsylvania state police have been asked to watch for the machine and Stark county authorities today made a trip to Bloomfield, Pa., believed to be the farm hand's former home.

The body of Oser, with a bullet wound in the head, was found in his milking shed by his six year old son, yesterday morning, who aroused neighbors. A short time later the body of Mrs. Oser was found on a rock pile behind the garage. Her skull had been beaten in and she also had what appeared to be a bullet wound in her head.

ACTOR JOHN LARKIN FOUND DEAD IN SUBWAY STATION

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—(AP)—John Larkin, who once had a part in "from rags to riches" but whose life off the stage had been a drama of decline, was found dead in a subway station today with a single cent left in his pocket.

In the same pocket was a letter from the Actors' Fund of America recommending Larkin to the municipal lodging house, and it was believed that, all his resources gone but one paltry coin, he was on his way to cast himself on the city's charity when death saved him from the last humiliation. Death was attributed to natural causes.

At the Actors' Fund it was said that years ago Larkin appeared with Joseph Santley in "From Rags to Riches," with Julia Marlowe in Chicago and with a Milwaukee stock company. For the past two years he had worked during the summer in a Coney Island side show. A sister, Edna Larkin, lives in Chicago

CORONER RETURNS VERDICT OF MURDER IN LORELLA CASE

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 7—An inquest into the death by strangulation of Mrs. Rosaria Lorella, which occurred at the home of her son-in-law, Thomas Mazzola of 27 Arnold's Lane, Thursday forenoon, was held at police headquarters today by Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Mansfield. According to the finding of Medical Examiner Dr. Louis I. Mason death was due to homicide by suffocation and strangulation.

While witnesses, including Mazzola, who is being held as a suspect in the case were testifying before the coroner, the funeral of Mrs. Lorella was being held. The first witness was Mrs. Anna Vaillant of 19 Arnold's Lane, a neighbor of the Mazzola family, who stated that she saw Thomas Mazzola near the chicken coop in the rear of his home between 7 and 7:15 o'clock on the morning of the murder. In the event that the state's evidence, included a forthcoming report by a finger-print expert, continues to throw a web of guilt on Mazzola, Mrs. Vaillant will be one of the star witnesses.

John Sullivan of 90 South street, foreman of the New Haven railroad section "gang" of which Mazzola is a member, testified that Mazzola did not report for work until about 9 o'clock Thursday morning.

James Mazzola of this city, a nephew of Thomas and fellow employe on the railroad section gang testified that his uncle had arrived on the job about 8 o'clock, insofar as he could remember, as he had paid no particular attention to the incident.

Mrs. Angelina Mazzola, wife of Thomas and daughter of the dead woman and her daughter, Miss Mary Mazzola testified that Mazzola had left for his work before 7 o'clock. They left for their work at the Windham Silk mill shortly after that hour. They then told of the discovery of the body upon returning home at noon.

The inquest, which was attended by County Detective William E. Jackson and Police Officer Arthur M. Hurley, who are conducting the investigation, continued until late afternoon, Coroner Bill reserving his decision. Joseph Girsea acted as interpreter for Mazzola. Mazzola testified for about one hour before the coroner and it is understood that he changes his story materially as to his actions on the morning of the murder. At the close of the inquest Mazzola was returned to the cell room where he has been held under guard since Saturday night at which time he was quizzed by the investigators.

Exhibitors, including many from other cities who arrived at hotels here Sunday night went to the state armory early this morning to begin preparations for the fourth annual Willimantic Exposition of the Windham County Poultry, Pigeon and Small Stock association. Some of the work was delayed until Tuesday to allow the playing of a basketball game on the court this evening.

One of the most instructive as well as attractive displays this year will be an innovation in the nature of a modern four-room apartment suite in the Company C offices. Fine, modern furnishings and utilities will be used in this display by local exhibitors. The state trade school exhibit in the drill shed will be set up Tuesday. Students of the institution will be on hand to demonstrate their skill in brick-laying, wall plastering, painting and similar work. Headquarters for the exposition have been established at the armory by General Superintendent D. D. Cavanaugh and the booking of concessions and industrial sections is in charge of Executive Secretary Earl J. Arnold of the chamber of commerce.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Rosaria Lorella

The funeral services for Mrs. Rosaria Lorella were held this morning from 27 Arnold's Lane with a requiem high mass in St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Francis Duch was the celebrant. There was a large attendance of friends and relatives and a generous display of floral tributes. Burial was in the family plot of St. Joseph's cemetery where a committal service was conducted by Rev. Father Duch. The bearers were, Guyton Rightena, Charles Mazzola, Antonio DeAngie, Thomas Perone, Mariano Raymond and Joseph Gialucca. Arrangements were in charge of the Hurtegu-Bosse Corp.

At the police court session this morning Peter Vercelloni of 145 Oakley street, New Haven, was fined $5.00 and costs on an amended charge of driving a car equipped with defective brakes, to which he pleaded guilty. Late on the night of January 1, Vercelloni's car crashed into a fence on the Stiles property at South Windham and then continued to this city where the machine twice struck the silent policeman on Main street, at North. Officer John Lutton located the damaged car in a local garage and when the owner called for it he was arrested by Captain Frank McLean. Archie Tourigney of 38 Jackson street, was charged with non-support but the case was continued for one month when the accused stated that he was willing to support his wife and two minor children. The case of Robert H. Morey, Brown university student, charged with failure to have a registration and having 1928 Rhode Island markers on his car, was assigned for court Tuesday morning.

FUNERALS

Mrs. Mary Brown

The funeral for Mrs. Mary Brown was held today from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Albert Caufield, 214 Jackson street, where a prayer service had been conducted Sunday afternoon. Burial was in the Oak Grove cemetery, Fall River, Mass. Arrangements were in charge of Avery and VanZandt.

William D. Clark

Funeral services for William D. Clark were held at 62 North street at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Mrs. Lucy Booth of Providence, R. I., reader, officiated. Selections were rendered by a quartet. Burial was in the old Willimantic cemetery, the bearers being: Otto B. Robinson, Hollis H. Lyman, Irving M. Ford and E. F. Elsworth. The deceased was born in Columbia, November 4, 1863, a son of Edward and Maria Doubleday Clark. Arrangements for funeral were in charge of Avery and VanZandt.

WEDDING

Anthony-Higbee

Miss Ruby A. Higbee of Brooklyn and Andrew M. Anthony of Windham Center were married at St. James' United Presbyterian church, Brooklyn, N. Y., on Christmas morning according to word received here. They were unattended and the ceremony was in the nature of a surprise. Mrs. Anthony has been a public school teacher in Maspeth and Brooklyn for several years. She is a niece of S. C. Higbee of Windham Center and has spent her summers in this section. Mr. Anthony is engaged as a poultryman and carpenter in Windham Center.

The influenza epidemic apparently has not as yet reached this city. A statement made today by City Health Officer Dr. W. P. S. Keating was to the effect that none had been reported to him by local physicians. Many are reported to be suffering from hard colds, however, but none of these cases have developed into serious investigation. The number of absentees in the schools is a little above the average for this time of the year according to Superintendent of Schools Egbert A. Case, but is not alarming. A similar situation prevails in the shops and stores.

Mariano Generoso of 25 Temple street and Howard F. Goodwin of Westford Hill have been notified to appear in police court Tuesday morning on charges of reckless driving owing to their failure to settle for damages as the result of an accident on Main street. Generoso was turning into the Gulf Refining company station and claims he gave a hand signal. Goodwin's version is that he was following the Generoso car and as the latter gave a hand signal he turned the car to the right. Goodwin turned to the left to pass and Generoso then turned in front of him. Officer Roderick Lariviere investigated the accident.

Street department employes were busy today carting away debris washed down gutters by the heavy rainstorm of the week end. Reports of damage by the heavy windstorm that accompanied the rain filtered in today from rural districts. At Windham Center a large tree was felled into the highway near the Brown home. A show window of the Church-Reed Clothing company was split in the middle and a sign at the D. & R. Motor company show rooms was blown against a window, cracking the glass in two places. Several people reported blinds and other articles blown away.

Miss Imogene A. Fillmore has returned from St. Joseph's hospital to her home at 44 Spring street where she is improving from severe injuries sustained when she was run down by a hit-and-run driver on Valley street on the evening of December 26. Her injuries included a fractured skull and broken ribs. The identity of the driver of the car remains a mystery.

At a session of the Mansfield town court Friday evening, Raymond Barrows, 30, of Mansfield Center, was charged with violating the game laws by illegally setting snares. He was caught in the act of setting snares on his own property by Tolland County Game Warden Edward Wraight of Rockville. Barrows pleaded guilty and was fined $25 and costs, $10 of the fine being remitted. He paid a balance of $21.90.

RUSSIAN CHRISTMAS OBSERVED MONDAY

There was a large attendance at the services held in the Ukrainian church on Pleasant street, Monday morning, in observance of the Russian Christmas.

Was Member of Local Lodge

Local residents were saddened to hear of the death, Friday morning, of Albert B. Kenyon, 66, one of Lebanon's most widely known and respected citizens. Mr. Kenyon had gone to his neighbor's home to sign several papers and was stricken with a sudden attack of heart trouble shortly after arriving there. He was born in Rhode Island, May 24, 1862, a son of Johnathan and Phoebe Speer Kenyon. He is survived by his wife and two sons, Rowland Kenyon of Nantucket, Mass., and Ralph H. Kenyon of Colchester. He was a member of Wooster lodge, No. 10, A. F. and A. M., of Colchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos R. Case of East Berlin were callers at the James S. Case home Sunday afternoon.

Dr. E. M. Clifford of Hartford visited over Sunday with local relatives.

So far this winter, the town officials and the state highway department have been fortunate in not having to expend any money in this section for the removal of snow from the roads.

Mrs. Josephine Wallis and son, John, of New Haven were visiting friends here Sunday.

Mrs. Gussie Schwartz is making several weeks' visit with her sister in New York.

Town Clerk John Condren reports an unusual rush of applicants for fishing licenses during the past week.

Borough people admired the beautiful sunset, Sunday, which some of the weather prophets say precedes a spell of clear, cold weather.

YANTIC

LOCAL BOY OF 9 TAKES TRIP IN AN AIRPLANE

Millard Manning of Yale university has been spending the holidays in town with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Manning. While here he accompanied Ralph Gibbs and John H. Gibbs, Jr., to Brainard field, Hartford. Millard Manning and John Gibbs, Jr., circled over Hartford twice in a commercial airplane.

John Gibbs is just nine, a student in the fourth grade of the village school, hence the youngest Yantic boy to ride in the clouds.

Miss Golub who has been teaching in the Gilman school, Bozrahville during the past year has succeeded Miss Bessie Bruckner as teacher of the first and second grade of the village school.

While visiting here during the holidays, Mr. and Mrs. M. Posner and daughter Elsie, Mr. and Mrs. J. Poret and daughter Sylvia and Mr. and Mrs. Max Fishbone of New York, accompanied by Mrs. Harry Fishbone and daughter, Goldie, motored to Norwich state hospital and were taken through the various wards by the assistant superintendent, distributing candy, cake, fruit and cigarettes. They were greatly attracted by the lavish holiday decorations in all the wards, especially to know that the greater part of the decorating was done by the patients assisted by the attendants.

The work shop where the completed articles of the handicraft of the patients was on sale found them ready buyers and they came home greatly gratified by their trip.

Andrew Warner who is spending the winter in Yonkers, N. Y., was a New Year's caller on local friends.

Henry Hamilton, who has been ill for the past three weeks is able to get out of doors for a short time each day.

He isn't very much in love if he writes sensible letters to his best girl.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO FLU

Coughs from Flu May Weaken Your System and Lead to Serious Trouble

You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion may help you avoid flu, but is not sold as a flu remedy. If you have fever, or think you may have the flu, see your doctor immediately. (adv.)

CITY TO SHIVER IN ICY BLASTS; OFFICIAL FORECAST WARNS OF COMING COLD

To-morrow will find this locality in the grip of some really severe weather, official forecasts indicate. The mercury is expected to drop rapidly.

Medical men point out that the ordinarily robust have nothing to fear from cold weather if they are sensible, but all are warned to avoid exposure when insufficiently protected.

Those who own automobiles will do well to avoid also another sort of carelessness. Motors exposed without sufficient anti-freeze mixture in the coming cold spell are certain to suffer serious injury. Every sharp drop in the mercury thus far has left in its wake a trail of broken radiators, cracked cylinders and heavy repair bills. Automotive men say that even when repaired these motors are seldom as good as they were before and usually their turn in value is appreciably affected.

Denatured alcohol is the least expensive and the best protection against frozen motors. Car owners will do well to have a sufficient supply on hand.

Denatured alcohol, it is pointed out, is not only the most effective and the most economical means of protection, it is also the safest. A good many motorists have recently come to grief through using certain patented anti-freeze preparations, some failing to afford protection in severe weather and others harming the motor.

Cold weather safety demands denatured alcohol, say auto manufacturers

Technical experts on automobile subjects are virtually unanimous in recommending denatured alcohol for protection of motors during cold weather.

It is pointed out that car manufacturers without exception approve denatured alcohol as an anti-freeze, and many of them approve it exclusively.

Figures show the vast majority of motorists use denatured alcohol exclusively as an anti-freeze.

Theatre tickets climbed to $150 when mercury dropped to zero

a costly experience with a frozen motor

"JUST a little thoughtlessness on a winter's night changed the price of our theatre tickets from $5.50 to $75 each," writes Mrs. Gorham Gensch of Rye, N. Y.

"During the evening the temperature dropped to near zero. After the show, tired and ready to go home, we discovered the car would not start. So we had the car towed to a heated public garage. The mechanic showed us that the cylinder block was badly cracked.

"The cost of repairing the engine and the inconvenient taxi ride to the suburbs totaled $150. An expensive night, even for the best show in town.

"It taught us a lesson that we aren't likely to forget soon. At the first sign of frost now, denatured alcohol goes into our radiator and we take care that it is replenished often enough."

Protect your motor with

DENATURED ALCOHOL

Among many anti-freeze preparations, denatured alcohol is the choice of the vast majority of all car owners. There are many reasons for this preference.

1. Denatured Alcohol is more economical. An entire winter's supply costs considerably less than any other anti-freeze.

2. Denatured Alcohol is more convenient to buy. You don't have to shop for it. Any dealer can supply you.

3. Denatured Alcohol does not seep out as other preparations have a marked tendency to do.

4. Denatured Alcohol does not corrode or eat the metal and rubber of the cooling system as many chemical preparations

5. Denatured Alcohol is approved by every leading car manufacturer, by dealers, and by the world's largest makers of automobile radiators. No other anti-freeze preparation receives such universal endorsement. In the case of many cars the radiator guarantee becomes void if anti-freeze preparations other than denatured alcohol are used.

Take five minutes today and have your dealer put Denatured Alcohol in your radiator. He knows the correct amount for your car.

DENATURED ALCOHOL
Use it early enough
Use it often enough*
Use it late enough

This takes the guesswork out of Anti-freeze protection*

DANIELSON

SAMUEL ARMINGTON, CIVIL WAR VETERAN, DEAD

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 7—Samuel Armington, 85, and veteran of the Civil war, died today in Putnam, where he had gone to spend the winter from his home of many years in Attawaugan. Mr. Armington, whose wife died a year ago, was in Danielson last Saturday to attend to some business matters, and at that time appeared to be in his usual state of health. He had not been feeling real well of late, but there was nothing to indicate that the end of life was so near for him. He had arranged to make his home for the winter with a family resident on Marshall street in Putnam.

Mr. Armington was a native of the town of Killingly, a son of Leprect and Amelia Goodspeed Armington. He spent practically all of his life in this section. During the Civil war he served as a member of B company, 18th Connecticut infantry. His only near living relative is a sister resident in Rhode Island. The body was taken in charge of Undertaker L. E. Kennedy and is now at the Kennedy funeral home here.

Few Vagrants Visit Here

Danielson borough officers are not getting so many requests for "put-ups" for the night from knights of the road. It appears that the grapevine mode of transmitting information has been at work, and effectively. This means, in effect, that word has been passed along to the idle gentry that Danielson is no place for that class to look for something for nothing. It so happens that Danielson is very generous in many other ways. However, it will neither harbor the rounders, nor foist them onto the county to be kept in jail for anywhere from 30 days to three or four months. Chief McFarland has made it a rule for several years to preserve the police station from being a bunkhouse for these men who roam the countryside, and his officers have instructions to this effect. It is such a well established regulation now that it is generally known by those who go about looking for lodgings and food without working that Danielson is off the list for them, and that they are wasting their time by coming here on their favorite winter-time mission.

Today brought numbers of reports of more Danielson people being confined to their homes by illness, while others who have been ill a few days were able to go about their regular duties again this morning. It is a fortunate circumstance that very few of the large number of the people who are ill are seriously so. There are a few cases of severe illness, but no more, it is said, than is usually the case at this time of year.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Miralda Lasnier

This morning the funeral of Mrs. Miralda Lasnier was held from the home on Dyer street with services at St. James' church at 9:15. The officers of the solemn high mass of requiem were Rev. J. A. Demers, M. S., Rev. Joseph Bergin, M. S., and Rev. Arthur R. Veziard, M. S. of Sulphur, La., formerly of Danielson. Many relatives and friends attended the service. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, where Fr. Veziard conducted the committal service. The bearers were Arthur Lasnier, Leodore Lasnier, Adelard Lasnier, Oliver Lasnier, Edgar Lasnier and Adelare Choquette. Martin T. Burns was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

St. Alban's Church Officers

The following are the newly elected officers of St. Alban's church to serve during the year: Senior warden, James E. Milner; junior warden, W. G. Shaw; clerk, Alfred L. Reed; treasurer, Hubert Taylor; auditor, Walter A. Musgrave; secretary of finance, John Bamford; to fill four vacancies in the vestry, for a period of three years, Samuel Boyd, Edward Ingamells, Herbert H. Pepler and Earle F. Winslow; delegates to the diocesan convention, Sidney P. Marland, Edward Ingamells; alternates, Earle F. Winslow and E. H. Kesch; delegates to the arch-deaconry, James E. Milner, William G. Shaw.

Operators of overloaded trucks taken into custody in the town of Plainfield the past week end by state officers from the Danielson barracks were in each case fined $100 and costs. During the remainder of the winter and the early spring season state officers will be on the alert for overloaded trucks all through this section of the state. These heavy vehicles are capable of doing material damage to state highways on such days as was Sunday, when even heavy pleasure cars were breaking through the oiled surfaces of state highways from which the frost had come out.

Danielson has no such hordes of starlings as Washington, D. C., is now complaining of, but a very plentiful supply. Hundreds of these birds are wintering about the borough. At homes where food is put out during the winter for any birds that may come to partake of it, the starlings are getting the major share.

President E. B. Wilbur, it is anticipated, will outline something of the plans of the organization for the year, when the chamber of commerce holds its initial meeting of 1929 on Tuesday evening. Above all other things that the chamber considers and endeavors to accomplish is the desire for additional industries for Danielson and adjoining territory. Some small plants are available here and one large one, so that Danielson has something to offer in the way of quarters if any concern can be interested in locating its business here.

Incident to the monthly Church Family night and annual meeting of the Westfield Congregational church Thursday evening there is to be a supper at 6:30, this served without charge by members of the Ladies' Benevolent society. A brief meeting of the standing committee will follow, at 7:15. At the same hour there will be a period for stories and play for the boys and girls, and a social period, in the parlor, for adults. The annual meeting will be convened at 8 o'clock. Reports covering 1928, will be made and officers for 1929 elected.

A possibility, but not a certainty, for this year is that the state highway departments of Connecticut and Rhode Island may undertake the long deferred project of building the trunk line that will run, in Rhode Island, from North Scituate to the Connecticut line at East Killingly, and from East Killingly, still following an old stage coach route, to Dayville Four Corners, to a point near Goodyear and then west into Pomfret to connect, up with the present Putnam-Hartford route. Building of this route, which has been surveyed for several years past, will give another optional route for traffic between Hartford and Providence and greatly lightening the load of traffic on the present routes between these points for a distance of more than 20 miles.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon J. Gale were in Hartford this afternoon.

A missionary program has been arranged for the meeting of the Wesleyan circle of the Methodist Episcopal church Tuesday evening.

Edward McBride this week begins his duties at the state capitol in Hartford as a member of the capitol staff for the legislative session.

The business usually occupying the attention of the annual meeting was considered tonight at a meeting of the Girls' Friendly society of St. Alban's church.

The stock of the Keystone store has been sold to out of town interests. W. L. Dixon, who established this store years ago, is to retire from business.

Henry C. Denmore of Springfield was a visitor with friends in Danielson over the week end.

Motor vehicle dealers from Danielson and other towns in this vicinity will be in New York this week attending the automobile show.

In no other year has the mandate against using 1928 registrations on motor vehicles after Jan. 1, been so completely obeyed as this year. Not an arrest has been made in this territory for driving under the old numbers.

This morning at a session of the town court Judge W. Fenner Woodward fined Aldi Coutu $2 on each of two counts charging intoxication and breach of the peace, with costs, a total of $16.37. Coutu was picked up in a Dyer street store Saturday night when he entered as state officers were raiding the place.

Capt. Harold E. Greene has been named as the administrator of the estate of George W. Winslow, for years a resident of East Killingly.

On property he owns at the junction of Reynolds street and the un-named new highway leading from Stearns hill into Danielson Benjamin B. Banks is erecting a building in which he is to relocate this business.

This afternoon at a meeting of the trustees of the Brooklyn Savings bank Treasurer Sidney W. Bard said that the institution's new building probably would be ready for occupancy about the last of February.

The body of Mrs. Charles A. Byles, who died in Schenectady, was brought to Central Village, where she lived for many years, and where burial is to take place.

Joseph Christina has disposed of his business, in a Main street location. He said today that he has no plans for the immediate future.

Commander Walter F. Jacobs, U. S. N., remains on duty in European waters. He is expected to return next fall, after two years of sea service aboard.

The January Child Welfare conference is scheduled to be held at the Health station in the town hall building Tuesday afternoon.

JEWETT CITY

WHAT THE LAW REQUIRES IN FISHING THROUGH THE ICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 7—Fishing through the ice is the pleasurable occupation of the local sporting fraternity. No wonderful creels are reported, yet everybody is getting a few. William Magel is high line with a pickerel that pulled the beam for two pounds flat. The Stove-Pipe club is holding nightly sessions, arguing out the new fish and game laws as touching ice fishing. Not far away from Pachaug pond lives a family of three, a man, his wife and 14-year-old son. Saturday, the mother and the son were fishing through the ice, and were doing a lively bit of hustling with their 12 tilt-ups, that were snapping up their red flags in lively fashion. Neither of the two had a fishing license. Along toward sundown, the man of the house came over to the pond and took a hand. He possessed, and wore on his coat, a 1929 fisherman's license. Yet, to be within the law the lad took up four tilt-ups and threw them on he bank, while the three fished in eight holes only.

Sunday afternoon, after the storm, the man and boy set in again, and still within the provisions of the law, used only seven tilt-ups. Monday, the man was on the ice and fished alone. He could use but six traps. Yet, if he kept off the ice, his wife and boy could operate 12 with no state permit.

JOHN E. TRIDER 53 YEARS WITH HALIFAX HERALD

The following item from the New Year edition of the Halifax, N. S., Herald is of local interest, as Mr. Trider's daughter is Mrs. Hector Sibellaud of Jewett City: On a recent visit with his daughter here, Mr. Trider was cordially welcomed at The Bulletin offices in Norwich and conducted over the plant. A notable record of service in on newspaper pressroom: From 1875 to 1928—a period of 53 years—is a unique record, we believe, for a mechanic in the pressroom of a newspaper office. Such is the record of John E. Trider, whose unbroken connection with the Halifax Herald, dating from its inception in 1875, terminated in July last, rounding out a few months over 53 years, during the whole of which time he devoted himself unsparingly and efficiently to the skilful performance of the important and exacting duties of his position as foreman of the pressroom. In this capacity, for upwards of 40 years, he carried on, always delighting in his work and keeping abreast of the times that brought frequent installation of higher grade printing presses.

A quarter of a century ago, the Herald, in referring to Mr. Trider, remarked that "his heart is as young as ever, even though the passage of the years may have left some marks upon his countenance—though in this respect he has fared remarkably well at the hands of Father Time." These words might still be justified in the leisure he now enjoys. It is the hope of all his old associates that Mr. Trider may be spared for many years to come to enjoy his well-earned rest.

Mr. Trider finds pleasure in detailing many experiences during the vicissitudes of so long a term of service. Among these perhaps the brightest incident is one connected with the visit to Halifax of the Marquis of Lorne and the Princess Louise. On this occasion several copies of the Herald and the Mail were printed on coated paper, with a bronze heading, and the delivery of these papers at Government House was entrusted to John Trider, who was very proud to have been chosen for such an honor.

A brisk snow squall all through this section, during the mid-afternoon Monday, dropped the mercury from 33 to 26 in less than a half hour.

R. A. Wilbur has all competitors in the early pussywillow hunt tied to a post. Monday afternoon, during the squall, and when coming over Crooked hill, a mile above the town, he stopped his machine to gather seven branches with the upper six or eight buds on each with a fair showing of silver to be seen as the buds open in spring.

Mrs. Amanda Langlais and Miss May Hrabosz are in New York, attending the Eastern States Beauty Trade show to be held in the Butterfly room and roof garden of the Pennsylvania hotel, Jan. 7, 8, 9.

Dr. G. H. Jennings, with Miss Brennan, R. N., in attendance, removed a .22-calibre bullet from John Pariseau's leg. The lad is 11 years old and was one of three boys shot a few days ago in the kids' gang here.

PUTNAM

BIRTHS EXCEED DEATHS IN PUTNAM DURING 1928

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 7—Vital statistics on file in the office of the town clerk, Henry N. Benoit, reveal that during the year 1928, 112 marriages were performed by Putnam clergymen, 187 babies were born and deaths of 133 Putnam persons occurred during the year.

Persons from many outside states choose Putnam as the city in which to commence their life in matrimonial bliss, according to the records in the town clerks office. The number of marriages performed in Putnam during the past year showed a considerable increase over the number performed during the preceding year 1927.

The birth rate was increased to about one third over the rate of the year 1927. June and July proved to be the heaviest months for births. The year 1927, June and July proved to be twins to the city.

The death rate during the past year was somewhat increased over 1927.

Representatives Leon A. Talbot and J. Otis Fox will leave Putnam Tuesday evening for Hartford where they will report at the state capitol the following morning to attend the opening exercises of the legislature, representing their city.

Representatives Fox and Talbot are both democrats and were swept into office on Nov. 4 by an overwhelming democratic victory, the first recorded in this city since the republican party was organized in 1861.

Neither Mr. Talbot nor Mr. Fox are at present aware as to what committees they will be appointed to serve on. Mr. Talbot has stated that he is opposed to the compulsory vaccination laws now in effect and will do his utmost to have them repealed, if the proposed action is started in the house of representatives, as is now expected.

John Lely of Dayville, arrested Saturday evening by State Policeman Royal V. Scranton of Danielson barracks, was presented in city court this morning on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. He pleaded guilty to the charge and received a fine of $100 and costs of court, $75 of the amount being remitted upon a recommendation from Prosecuting Attorney Eric H. Johnson, who told the court that Lely's misfortune of Saturday was his first criminal offense and he felt that the state should consider his circumstances.

The troubles of a police officer are both many and of a wide variety, according to a yarn related by Officer Bill Durand of the local police this morning. Officer Durand has been a member of the local bureau of the nation's law enforcement body for many years and during his career as a "bluecoat" has never been called into a family strife of any nature.

While acting in the stead of his captain during the early hours of Sunday morning the telephone in the station house buzzed "Hello," remarked Bill, following a brief pause at the transmitter of the instrument. "Is this the police station?" came the inquisitive voice at the other end of the wire. "Yes," returned Bill in a hurried manner. "Well send a policeman up to my house at once, my husband won't get out of bed to start the fire, and I want him arrested!" said a feminine voice, who in her spell of excitement failed to reveal her name and address. Another brief pause of time elapsed before Bill gave the woman a decision. "Oh, let him sleep, this is Sunday morning and besides it is too chilly to turn out yet."

The weather man turned the tables topsy turvy during the past twenty-four hours, first sending June's warm sun, followed by warm rains and thunder storms and today dispatching a number of severe snow flurries which managed to cover the ground for brief intervals today. The thermometer has been having its ups and downs over the week end. It descended to a low score of four above Saturday morning and raising to a record mark for Jan. 6, of 58 early Sunday afternoon and again sustained a severe set back this morning when observers noted the silvery column to be standing two degrees below freezing point.

Local ice companies were delighted today to find the cold spell prevailing again today after the sudden warm wave and rain of Saturday covered their ponds with three inches of water and blasted their hopes of an early harvest. Ice today was reported at several ponds in the city to be about six to seven inches in thickness, with favorable indications that the gangs would begin to reap their harvest within the passing of another week.

Franklin Perry, son of Dr. and Mrs. E. F. Perry of Grove street, returned to his studies at Amherst today, after spending the Christmas recess at his home in this city.

Dr. E. F. Perry, who for the past two weeks has been a patient at the Day Kimball hospital, suffering from a nervous affliction has returned to his home and commenced his practice of medicine again.

The fate of Ned Carrington, of Stamford, United States air mail pilot burned to death Saturday evening when his plane crashed to earth in Union, again brings to the fore the need of an airplane landing field and emergency station in this vicinity for the benefit of pilots who make their routes over this city. Carrington had experienced engine trouble shortly after he took off with his cargo of mail parcels from the East Boston airport. He made a landing at the Webster airport, about 10 miles from Putnam, where he refueled his plane and was forced to take his bearings in the direction of the dangerous Union woods, because of the flares of the Hartford beacons seen from Webster.

Had there been air beacons for the night air mail pilot in Putnam he would have been able to make a forced landing here, adjust his troubles and take off over a safe route to the port in the capitol city, that followed by Lieut. Davis on his many trips to Langley field, Va. The only effort made to aid fliers in this city to date has been the painting of a large sign "Putnam" on the roof of the Union block.

It was reported here this morning that a case of influenza had found its way into a Putnam home. A check up of the disease records on file at the city health office was made and it was learned that the "flu" case was a severe attack of pneumonia. As yet the disease that is now threatening the country at large has not as yet appeared in this community, although sight cases have been reported in Webster and other surrounding towns.

The Friendly evening service was held last evening at the Second Congregational church. A motion picture was filmed and an address by Rev. James F. English, pastor of the church was given, both being on the life of Russell Conwell of literary fame.

A district meeting of the American Legion and its auxiliary was held Sunday afternoon in Moosup. Representing the Anselm Mayotte post of this city were: A. D. McIntyre, G. Stanley Shaw, J. D. Potter and Martin B. Robertson, and for the Anselm Mayotte auxiliary were Mrs. J. D. Potter and Mrs. Archibald Macdonald, Jr.

Todu Leafka, 57, died Saturday at the Day Kimball hospital following a short illness. Mr. Leafka was a native of Macedonia, but has lived for the past number of years in North Grosvenordale. Funeral services were held this afternoon at his home in North Grosvenordale. Burial was in the West Thompson cemetery. He is survived by his wife and a nephew Nicholas Leafka of this city.

Melvina Menard for many years a resident of Pomfret died at her home there Sunday evening at the age of 41 years. She is survived by her husband George Menard also of Pomfret.

Capt. Jarvis of the local police was today scheming to apprehend young vandals destroying lights in the subway leading from South Main to Main streets. During the past week a number of the electric lights in the underground passage have been deliberately broken by the youngsters. Capt. Jarvis said tonight that he will make an effort to catch the youths in the act of striking the bulbs. If arrested they will be hailed before police court on charges of destroying city property.

Miss Elizabeth Hurdman of Bolles street returned today from Salmon River, Nova Scotia, where she attended the funeral services of her fiancee, Moses Deoxe, who died Jan. 1, at the Day Kimball hospital from wounds sustained when he was injured in the engine room of the Bloom Silk Co.

Miss Elsie Gallant of Church street, entered a Worcester hospital this morning to undergo an operation.

NEW TELEPHONE LINE CARES FOR EXTRA SERVICE

Several of the village residents were transferred to a new telephone line, 1631, last week, the old lines, 1874 and 1887, to the village, being overcrowded. Connections were made Thursday afternoon. The parsonage telephone, formerly 1887-32, is now 1631-2.

Lifting Our Hearts Godward was the theme of the New Year sermon at the Community M. E. church by Rev. Jerome Greer, at the Sunday morning service. The sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered at the close.

Mrs. Jerome Greer conducted the Epworth league evening meeting. The topic was Problems in a Changing Order. The Lord Is My Shepherd was sung as the offertory anthem by junior girls.

At a recent business meeting of the league, Rev. and Mrs. Greer were appointed a committee to arrange for special features for the evening meetings. It was announced at this time that a Time and Tide contest would begin Sunday evening next, with a roll call at 7:05. The president, Courtland E. Colver, Jr., and the secretary, Miss Lillian Atkins, were named captains of the contest and they are to be in charge of the special features for February. There is to be a mystery score during the contest, which will be kept by the committee.

The week of prayer will be observed by the local church with cottage services at the home of Mrs. Harmon L. Perkins, in the village, at 7:30 this (Tuesday) evening and at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Courtland E. Colver, at the Submarine base, at the same hour Wednesday evening.

District Supt. Rev. Myron E. Genter of Norwich is to conduct the fourth quarterly conference of the Gales Ferry charge, Thursday evening.

Roads were badly washed by the Sunday morning downpour of rain. A large cedar tree on the ledge back of the railroad station blew over across the new roadway of the Gales Ferry Realty Corp., completely blocking the approach to their Bluff property.

Members of Queen Esther circle met at the home of Misses Lillian and Velma Atkins Thursday evening for the January session. Miss Velma, vice-president of the circle, presided in the absence of the president, Miss Helen L. Colver. Reports of Christmas gifts sent to a school at Olive Hill, Ky., and a kindergarten chair valued at about $5 to the Silver Lake work, at Providence, were made. Miss Margaret Parker was chairman of the supper committee for the evening. The next meeting will be at the home of Miss Bernice Percival in the Drawbridge district. Miss Lillian Atkins was appointed chairman for the supper.

A rehearsal for a play to be given by the girls was held during the evening.

Rev. Jerome Greer conducted service at Norwich State hospital at Brewster's Neck Sunday morning at 9 o'clock.

Mrs. Carleton P. Browning and children, who were joined here at the home of Mrs. Browning's father, Nathan A. Gibbs, by Mr. Browning for a visit over the holidays, left with him Sunday morning for their return trip to Brittania Beach, B. C. Mrs. Browning with her family spent about two months at her former home in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miller have returned to their home in Boston after a week's visit to relatives in the village. They were accompanied to Boston by Mr. Miller's grandmother, Mrs. Marie Sorensen, and his aunt, Mrs. C. Christiansen, for a visit to Mrs. Sorenson's daughter, Mrs. Anton Larsen, and family.

Miss Elizabeth Smith of Norwich was an over-Sunday guest of Miss Emma Beth Bennett, in the village.

School Supervisor James F. Connolly of Norwich visited the village schools Thursday.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

CORNSTALK PAPER MAY AID CORN BORER FIGHT

The renewal of efforts to establish large-scale manufacture of paper and wallboard from cornstalks may become an important factor in the control of the corn borer, provided the rather ambitious experiments now being undertaken by several firms prove more successful than the many previous ill-fated attempts to convert this important waste into profitable commercial products, according to Dr. F. P. Veitch, in charge of the industrial farm products division of the bureau of chemistry and soils, United States department of agriculture.

"A profitable method for the disposal of cornstalks that would insure their complete disintegration," said Doctor Veitch, "would obviously be one of the most effective weapons in fighting the corn borer. And if this profitable disposal could be made on the individual farms where the cornstalks are grown, the effectiveness of the weapon against the borer would be materially increased. Unfortunately no universally applicable and profitable farm disposal of cornstalks is yet in sight. So attention has been turned to the industrial concentration and utilization of cornstalks without, of course, neglecting the search for more satisfactory and practicable farm uses.

"The tremendous quantity of widely distributed cornstalks in this country increases the difficulties of their profitable ord complete utilization as a means of fighting the corn borer. The yield of cured cornstalks or corn stover is variously estimated at from one ton to, in some instances, two tons per acre, giving a total of approximately 100,000,000 tons to possibly 150,000,000 tons of cornstalks as an average in this country annually. Of course, not all of this material would be available for other than farm utilization, but there are several times as many cornstalks produced in this country as would be required to make all the paper and board in which they could be used, so it is clear that this means of utilization is far from sufficient to meet the situation."

FUMIGATION WILL DESTROY PEA AND BEAN WEEVILS

Weevils cause serious damage to the seed crops of numerous varieties of legumes, including peas, beans and cowpeas. The damage has been so severe that in some sections of the country many farmers have abandoned efforts to grow the crops. The opportunities for damage are increased owing to popular misunderstanding of the habits and life history of the weevils. In Farmers' Bulletin 1275-F, "Weevils in Beans and Peas," just published for free distribution after a revision by the author, E. A. Back, the United States department of agriculture offers a simple explanation of how the infestations are spread, how the weevils develop and damage the seeds, describes the various weevils, and gives simple instructions for the prevention of infestation and the fumigation of the stored seeds to prevent damage by the weevils after infestation. With proper precautions, particularly if they are applied on a community-wide basis, crops subject to weevil injury can be grown in localities where their culture has been abandoned.

Infestation of growing crops by weevils occurs usually as the result of the flight to the field of adult weevils which have matured in seeds held over winter, or in stacks of bean straw or litter containing seed. If the seeds are fumigated and the litter and straw cleaned up and burned before spring, infestation will be minimized. With proper fumigation the crop may be saved from serious injury even though infestation in the fields is prevalent.

Carbon disulphide and hydrocyanic-acid gas have given excellent results as fumigants. Carbon tetrachloride is less satisfactory although it has the advantage of being non-inflammable. Weevil injury may be checked by either cold storage or heat treatments.

Weevil injuries in freshly harvested seeds are hardly discernible. The adult weevils lay their eggs either on or among the seeds. The eggs hatch and the minute weevil larvae eat their way into the interior of the seed. The entrance hold is so small that it is almost indiscernible. Some believe that the weevils develop from the germ of the seed. This is, of course, incorrect. Fumigation of the seed, as recommended, kills the young weevils or the eggs within the seeds, and prevents material damage. The cost of treatment is slight in comparison with the value of the seed.

HINTS FOR THE FARM

Cornstalk fields, grain-stubble fields or pastures which were not closely grazed in summer may be used to supply a large part of the winter maintenance feed for horses.

Locally grown agricultural seeds usually are the best. When local supplies are not available, buy from organizations of known reputation. The purchaser should buy in his own state to get the protection of state laws governing the sale of seed.

For southern soils that are naturally poor and also those on which yields have markedly decreased the velvet bean is one of the best improving crops.

A "sticky" ration is not easily digested by the dairy cow, and feeds such as oil meals and wheat middlings, which get sticky when wet, should be combined with a more bulky material like wheat bran or ground oats so that the digestive juices may mix more readily with the feed. If wheat bran or ground oats, or both, make up one-third to one-half the total weight of the grain mixture, it will crumble when wet instead of sticking together.

Brood sows need exercise and will get more if fed on ear corn scattered over the stalk field.

Comparisons of red clover seed show that seed which has been produced for several generations in sections where anthracnose is serious is much more resistant to the disease than is imported seed or seed produced in the northern or western United States or Canada. A strain of red clover has been developed in Tennessee that is highly resistant to the disease.

STEAMSHIP INSPECTION.

Inspection of steamships is for the purpose of giving protection to those who take passage thereon. It is quite as important that this protection should be given to all passengers alike whether they happen to be subjects of the country whose flag the ship flies or some other. Naturally this country is concerned in the protection of American citizens regardless of the ship on which they take passage. It may be impossible for it to have any say when the ships fail to touch American ports, but when they do there is an opportunity to insist upon American inspection.

With the purpose in mind of having foreign as well as American ships subjected to the federal inspection laws of this country when leaving American ports, Senator Jones of Washington has introduced a bill in congress making such a provision. This is in keeping with one of the suggestions that followed the inquiry into the sinking of the Vestris, when it was disclosed that our inspection laws do not apply to foreign vessels sailing from American ports.

It is perfectly evident that as long as foreign vessels sail from American ports there can be expected to be American citizens taking passage thereon. Unless those vessels are adequately inspected there is no telling when there will be repetitions of the loss of the Vestris, for it is pointed out that foreign vessels placed on a route between New York and the West Indies are not subject to thorough inspection until they return to the country whose flag they fly.

This means that inadequate protection is provided. Americans are not getting the benefit of safeguards which they should and foreign vessels leaving our ports are subject to less precautions than our own. It isn't necessary to experience another sea horror like the Vestris before applying a remedy. Senator Jones believes it is time to insist upon a change and the legislation he proposes is calculated to effect it. This is only one of several protective measures which have been urged following the loss of that British vessel.

REMOVE THE TEMPTATION.

Possibly payroll robberies do not appear quite as frequently in the day's news as they used to, but there is no question but what they are numerous enough. Holding up the paymaster and relieving him of his funds has been the source of large hauls by criminals. They have given careful study to all the operations surrounding the transportation of funds so that they are able to calculate to a nicety every move that will be made. Thus they can strike at the right moment and do so with a reasonable degree of success.

When the chairman of the national crime commission declares that a special committee has been made to study payroll robberies with a view to preventing them, it will be admitted that it is a move in the right direction. There is always the opportunity for the authorities to catch and punish the holdup men, but there is also the chance to remove temptation from the path of those criminally inclined.

Instead of transporting funds in trolley cars, motor vehicles and afoot, not a few establishments have resorted to the employment of armored cars for the transportation of their funds from the banks to the offices. That meets the situation until the robbers either hold up such cars or get in their work as the funds are being put into or taken out of the cars. Such cases have awakened a realization to the fact that payrolls can be met by check instead of cash and not a few factories have adopted such a method.

That overcomes the possibility of payroll robberies, but it frequently means inconvenience for the employes in obtaining cash for the checks. The men is apparently one of the problems to which the commission must give serious consideration in seeking a remedy for the situation.

It isn't to be expected that payroll robbers should be fought in no other manner, but that offers a method which overcomes the present practice of placing temptation in the way of those who are ready to take desperate chances to make quick and big hauls.

TAX REFUNDS.

Every year there is a question raised about the large amounts of money refunded to federal tax payers. It is evident that we are still suffering from the fact that large sums were collected by the government, in the early days of the new taxes, which were not justified. It was a new business. The government differed with the taxpayer with the result that the government insisted upon getting what it claimed and testing the law out later. Since then there have been many cases heard, many rulings made, many adjustments arranged but the end is not yet. There are claims undergoing adjustment every year and it is no easy task to tell a year in advance how many are going to be made as the result of efforts and new decisions during the year.

That there are such returns made indicates that the government took much more than it was entitled to in the first place. Disputes have dragged along with the government subject to interest in case the matter is decided against it and this year the adjustments made have been sizeable and in excess of estimates.

Such always afford an opportunity for partisan attacks and they have not been lacking. The idea of starting an investigation doesn't appeal. There is believed to be too much politics back of it.

Since 1917 the government has made tax returns to the amount of $935,000,000 and it will not be long before it will pass the billion dollar mark. It is not a situation that can please any administration for at the present time it opens up the possibility of a deficit at the end of the year.

It is unfortunate that it is necessary for the government to collect so much in excess of what it is entitled to. The most of the trouble came during the early years when there was less experience and more complicated provisions surrounding the federal taxes and adjustments with the government do not proceed any faster than they do in some other instances. But is evident with the calls for more funds to meet the refunds that the effect of the excess collections has not been overcome.

QUESTION MARK WINS.

From the performance during the early stages of its endurance flight there was reason to believe that the Question Mark would establish a new record. It was just a question of how long the motors could be kept in operation and that proved to be just short of 151 hours, but that meant staying in the air so much longer than any other kind of a flying machine or dirigible that those who exceed it must plan on spending about a week in the air.

One of the difficulties in the past has been to obtain a sufficient supply of fuel to operate the motors. That was overcome when it was demonstrated that planes could be refueled in the air both from other planes and from cans of fuel picked up from the ground.

With the fuel problem taken care of, and that was by no means as simple as it might seem, it was then a case of seeing how long the motors could be kept in operation without breaking or sticking. With five men in the Question Mark there were sufficient aboard to provide relief while part of them slept.

But for the fact that one motor stopped the Question Mark might have been flying yet. At least two of the motors were functioning perfectly when the trouble developed and interest will now center upon determining what defect appeared after 150 hours of steady operation which could not be overcome in the air.

There were the days when endurance flights covered comparatively brief periods of time, but the performance of the Question Mark makes it evident that record breakers are in for long grinds in the future, the time being dependent upon the number of hours the motors can be kept functioning. The uncertainty has changed from that of sufficient fuel to the length of time the motor can be kept turning.

The performance of the Question Mark has been remarkable and it now remains to be seen how long it will retain the endurance honor.

TRANSATLANTIC MAILS.

It rests with the postoffice department to despatch mails as it sees fit, but it is expected to do so with the idea of effecting the earliest possible delivery. It was thus with considerable surprise that it was learned that mail which would ordinarily have been sent to Europe by the Berengaria the last week end was ordered to go by other vessels, except in case of that which was directed via that ship.

The Berengaria was due in Europe two days earlier than any other and that meant a delay instead of speed. Had the situation been reversed and mail ordered to the faster ship there would have been nothing thought. It was when slower rather than faster service was ordered that criticism was heard.

Inquiries and protests resulted in the cancellation of the order, but that hasn't ended the demand for an explanation of what seems rightly termed a blunder. Even though the postoffice department disclaims any intention of trying to retaliate for the entrance of the Cunard line into the New York-Havana service by declaring it has no concern with the shipping board's troubles, it came at a time which caused such an inference. It wasn't even a case of shifting the mail to an American rather than a foreign ship, but from a fast to a slow British ship.

The correction of the order relieved the situation, but it created a situation which there should be good care to see does not develop again. Postal service isn't so fast it needs slowing up.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

That person is forehanded who has already made purchases in anticipation of next Christmas.

Mr. Hoover has had enough experience to know that picking a cabinet is a mighty important job.

Now is the time, of course, to point to the weak as well as the strong points of the Kellogg pact.

The man on the corner says: How are the new resolutions riding as the result of a week's experience?

There hasn't been any more use for the sleds and arctics this winter than there has for the horse and sleigh.

Speakeasies in New York seem to stand in well with the police until they start dealing in poisonous drinks. But who knows in advance about the poison and will he paste a label "tested and found O. K." on those allowed to continue business?

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—Connecticut carries off the honors in the toy making record of the United States. Not only will that come to the front when tariff revision is considered, but is likely to come before the federal trade commission in a novel way, before long.

As New England is the greatest toy-making section of the country, and Connecticut will figure in the "audition" the federal trade commission will probably soon hold for dolls, at the request of the Institute of American Toymakers. They claim so called ma-ma dolls are not playing fair this year, and that 2,000,000 such dolls put on the market do not utter a distinct ma-ma. They merely give a disconsolate wail when turned over on their little "tummies" or squeezed at the waist line. So the institute has formally requested the United States federal commission to take a hand in compelling a ma-ma doll to speak right out loud. As a result Washington may be treated to the unusual spectacle of five august United States commissioners paying rapt attention to the wails and whimpers of ma-ma dolls, as produced by the manipulating fingers of equally august corporation lawyers.

In that connection a scene in the United States supreme court a few years ago is vividly recalled. A churn patent was the case before that body. Chief Justice Taft and the entire court, in black silk gowns, sat in dignified state, while a distinguished patent attorney diligently plied the hopper of a churn up and down, all the time making enlightening remarks as to why that particular brand of churn differed from the brand just operated with equal zeal by the equally distinguished attorney representing the other party in the case. We could not laugh aloud in the presence of the highest judicial body in the world, but it is doubtful if that picture of the justices in their robes, backed by the red velvet hangings of the court room, gazing fixedly at the perspiring attorney working huge yellow churn handles up and down, has ever been quite effaced.

Another feature of dolls of the vintage of 1928, as commented on by the institute, is their dress and make-up. Whatever may be the popular opinion that "Gentlemen prefer blonds," it does not cut any figure with American toymakers, as it is stated that only one out of every five dolls are blonds. Dolls this year are long legged, thin in body, have highly rouged cheeks and wear dresses well above the knees. The institute refers to this. It bases the great popularity of American made dolls on the ground that since the war dolls and their clothes are designed by "American artists who mirror the spirit of American femininity."

Judging from what we observe when walking down F street, which is the favorite parade ground of Washington's flappers, the doll and clothes designers will have to step out to a pretty lively tune, if they keep pace with "the spirit of American femininity."

Although the Fenn census bill comes up this week, it is not likely to have clear sailing after it passes the house, as the senate has a little bill of its own, to attach as a rider. The Fenn bill provides the census to begin, next November, and the senate insists on an early date, which they say should be May 1st. Probably it will be fought out in conference, which may spell a delay that carries it over to the next congress.

The same is true of the cruiser bill. If the Borah, Norris element wins, it is likely the proposed 15 cruisers by the house bill will fall to 5 after the senate votes, that would mean conference in which a deadlock might prevent the passage of any cruiser bill, which is exactly what the Norris pacifist element wants.

Senator Bingham has played a prominent part in the senate all the past week. He insists that Mr. Borah shall show him just why the Moses resolution should not be attached to the Kellogg measure, and thus far Mr. Borah has failed to answer back with the oldtime eloquence and air of conviction, that marked his stubborn and successful fight against the league of nations. In other words, it is apparent that Mr. Borah hasn't quite the same "pep" in fathering the present measure as he had in opposing the league.

Senator Bingham has been asked to take part in the air-site tour which is to be conducted here by a senate committee. Mr. Bingham is the senate's recognized expert on aviation.

Sitting in the gallery keenly interested in the debate on the Kellogg treaty have been Mrs. Bingham and five of the seven Bingham sons. They followed closely the part Senator Bingham took in the debate and later made an interesting group as they filed out of the private gallery, to go down to the senate lunch room with the distinguished head of the family.

Congressman Freeman was one of the few members of the Connecticut delegation to spend the holidays in Washington.

Until congress convened Thursday senators and representatives were "As skerce as hen's teeth" as they say way down east. Practically everybody who was within hailing distance of home, went there for the holiday recess, either to be with their families, or to attend to personal business left unfinished in the stress of the campaign. Moreover it was their last breathing spell before March 4th when the 70th congress automatically adjourns.

The home-coming of President-elect Hoover may, or may not settle several of the vexed questions that are uppermost here today. One is the extra session, another will Washington have a big parade to mark inauguration and so help fill the coffers of hotels and shops; still another, will efforts be made to pass the farm relief measure this winter.

Thus far, President Coolidge has not wavered in his apparent determination not to mix in with the Hoover administration plans—nor has Mr. Hoover wavered in his determination not to interfere with the Coolidge administration, although it is generally conceded that Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Hoover are in very close sympathy as to most of the important measures pending, or to be brought up.

If they continue that hands-off policy, it is difficult to see how the tariff revision men and the farm relief men will find the situation greatly changed by the arrival of Mr. Hoover.

At present it's nip and tuck, whether the farm folks will think a bird in the hand worth two in the bush, and so get some sort of a measure passed this winter, or play for bigger game, and take the chance of what an extra session, with many new men in congress, will do in their behalf. At this minute one man's guess is as god as another's.

The farm bloc is divided, and so is the tariff revision group. Led by Borah a group of senators are clamoring for an extra session for farm relief—led by Capper, the farm bloc has a number of men who are just as strongly against an extra session. It is the same in the house, and also applies to tariff revision. Led by Floor Leader Tilson, and urged by the greater number of New England embers there is a strong move for an extra session in the spring to revise the tariff, led by Speaker Longworth, with a big following, there is equally vigorous opposition to such a session.

Moreover recent developments on the democratic side of the house indicate that revision of the tariff upwards, will meet with stronger opposition than was anticipated. To be sure, Representative John Garner of Texas, who will become democratic floor leader and also retain his position as a member of the ways and means committee, is somewhat liberal minded on the tariff, but another leader of that party this week announced determined opposition to such revision. That was Representative Cordell Hull of Tennessee, one of the top-notchers on the ways and means, and swinging a powerful influence in the house. Hull this week made a public statement to the effect that if tariff revision was to take place, it should be downward instead of upward, and that he should do all in his power to bring that about. That indicates even if the tariff was made the subject of the extra session, it will not only meet opposition in republican ranks, on the ground that immediate revision is always a handicap to the winning political party, but with determined opposition, a safe and sound tariff bill might fail to pass, and so put the party into a hole.

Apparently it is New England that will take the lead in urging such revision, New England is powerful, but numerically it is small, and whether or not it could muster enough votes to get through a bill that will help New England industries, is questioned by opponents of the proposed revision, no matter how loyal and zealous the New England delegation is sure to be.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—Administrations and congress come and go on the political tides. Each brings to Washington new faces and personalities. Each leaves in its wake flotsam and jetsam of far-off political storms, its own additions to the permanent, non-official population of the growing city.

Sometimes, they came to legislate and remained to lobby. More often the accident of national political preferment, be their office holding long or brief, served utterly to transplant them socially and in private occupation. Ties and friendships in old homes snapped with prolonged absences in Washington; new tendrils spread out to bind them to the new environment. Probably hope that political defeat was only momentary played its part in each man's planning.

But for whatever reason, the retired or rejected politicians have found themselves strangely metamohphosed into that anomally of the American democracy, the odd political number of the nation—voteless Washington.

Adapted Washingtonians

The thought is prompted by casual inspection of the city's newest telephone directory. Between its covers, no doubt, still linger the names of men wha stalked boldly on the national political stage in days too far back for the Bystander's memory to reach. Among the cabineteers of less than a score of years past, however, among the senators and representatives of just yesterday, there are names in that book that defy forgetfulness, although their owners now may be out of the spotlight, going peacefully about their private affairs.

To explore the book as a whole would be a fruitless task. Yet with the proven affinity between politics and men of the law, the classified list of Washington's legal fraternity affords an easy glimpse behind the curtain of private life obscurity that now cloaks many a once powerful political figure.

Who can have forgotten "Joe" Tumulty, once of New Jersey, now of Washington, the president's secretary all of the eight Wilson years at the white house? Who would not note William G. McAdoo of New York, California and Washington? Or there is Phil Campbell, once of Kansas; Sydney Anderson, late of Minnetota, who once figured so much importantly in the house on the farm relief issue that is still unsettled.

Names Stay After Death

Among the C's, too, is ruddy faced and now white haired Charlie Carlin of Virginia, long a figure in the house. Oscar Underwood's campaign manager in the nightmare length New York nominating convention in '24. Along farther is another former Virginian of the house, Bascom Slemp, also once presidential secretary and now, by the book, a Washington lawyer. There, too, is Irvine Lenroot, once senator from Wisconsin and almost every day in the news; there also is Jos Davies, once commissioner of corporations. And so it goes.

And still on the Washington telephone list of lawyers, although both are now dead, stand the names of Robert Lansing, wartime secretary of state, and George Chamberlain of Oregon, wartime chairman of the senate military committee.

JOSEPHINE JUMPS

"Harrison," said Mrs. Dart, "it's time we started looking for that new apartment."

"It's time you started looking," Harrison Dart corrected his wife. "I don't intend to have anything to do with it this year."

"Nonsense. Of course, you must help me. You can get away from the office for an hour or two this afternoon, and with any luck that should take care of it."

"I hardly think so, Josephine. You know, I don't think we'd better bother with an agent this year; it may take longer, but we'll be better off if we sort of look around for ourselves."

"I don't see where you get such insane ideas. That's what an agent's for—to help people find apartments. It will make everything much simpler and quicker."

"Oh, very well, dear. You no doubt know best. But do let me urge you not to get that Phelps person again. I have an idea he stung us on this place."

"I can't understand you, Harrison. Whatever I propose lately you're against. Why not Mr. Phelps? I know him and have confidence in him. And as for his having stung us, that's all talk. This would have been a very desirable place if you hadn't antagonized the janitor the very first day."

"Very well, Josephine," murmured Mr. Dart. "Call him yourself and make arrangements."

"I'm sure, Mrs. Dart," said Mr. Phelps, "that I have just the thing to suit you. New building, excellent neighborhood, obliging owner. And the price is right. I'll be much surprised if you don't jump at it."

"I seldom jump at an apartment," confessed Mrs. Dart grimly. "The better they look the more certain there is to be something wrong with them."

"But this is perfect. Just a step from excellent transportation—"

"Noisy," diagnosed Mrs. Dart.

"A beautifully quiet neighborhood—"

"Clear out in the sticks, probably."

"The very best part of town—"

"I hate stuckup neighbors. Really Mr. Phelps, I don't believe it will do at all. Haven't you something else you can show me?"

"I'm afraid I haven't another thing you'd be interested in. There's a rather neat little place—but no, you wouldn't care for that."

"Why not?"

"Well, it's rather larger than you need, and I feel—"

"I can best judge that, Mr. Phelps. Where is it?"

"I'm sure you won't like it, and I hate to waste your time. Oh, well. It's just a few blocks from here."

"Terrible!" said Mr. Dart. "Look how far it is from the railroad."

"Harrison, the walk will do you good."

"And it's got all that built-in stuff. You know you don't like built-in stuff, Josephine."

"Whatever gave you that idea? No, I think it's quite satisfactory."

"It's too much money, Josephine. You ought to get more than this for a hundred and eighty."

"I'll leave you," said Mrs. Dart, "to settle about the lease. I'm going to pick up a cab and do some shopping. Good day, Mr. Phelps. Remember be sure to walk home. It will do you good."

"And that's that," said Mr. Phelps, wiping his brow.

"So it is," agreed Mr. Dart. "Nice work, Jimmy. Say, it's a swell place, isn't it?"

"It is, Harrison. I should think any woman would jump at it."

"You don't know Josephine. She takes handling. Did they put in those extra wall plugs for me?"

"All done. Will you sign the lease now?"

"O. K. I just wanted to be sure. What's the real price?"

"A hundred and ten," said Mr. Phelps. "You do know women, don't you, Harrison?"

"Just one of them," said Harrison Dart modestly.—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

PNEUMONIA, DANGEROUS AND TREACHEROUS

By L. Winfield Kohn, M. D., New York City.

Pneumonia is a common disease and occurs most often as a result of exposure to wetness and particularly during the cold seasons. Under such circumstances, the germ known as the pneumococcus encounters favorable conditions for its growth, and readily infects the individual whose resistance is below par. The inflammation involves a portion of one or both lungs.

Pneumonia is a disease occurring in all types of people, but especially in early adult life. At times it follows surgical operations, the taking of ether, as a sequel to other diseases such as measles, bronchitis, kidney disease, heart ailments and alcoholism.

It usually begins with a sudden chill, fever, short and sharp cough, rapid and difficult breathing. At times a sharp pain in the side may occur. The expectoration may be rusty in color or bloody. Other general symptoms such as headaches sleeplessness and weakness may come on.

Later the patient may become very ill. Breathing may become very difficult, the fever quite high and the heart beat very rapid. Other general symptoms such as headaches, sleeplessness, irritability and weakness may become more pronounced. At times the patient goes into a state of delirium.

After a period, anywhere from the fifth to the ninth day, the fever may begin to drop suddenly and within a few hours the patient will feel better. This drop in temperature is spoken of as the crisis. At times, however, the fever may drop gradually, over a period of days, and this is spoken of as lysis.

It is important that a physician be called early, when symptoms indicating a lung fever may arise, so that the true diagnosis may be made quickly and definite treatment instituted in the direction of strengthening the heart and circulation so that these organs may withstand the onslaughts of the disease. The heart and circulation especially must be sustained during its course.

The treatment will depend in great measure upon the general condition of the patient. Absolute rest, fresh air and easily assimilated nourishing food are essential. Other forms of treatment such as stimulation, oxygen inhalation, local measures for the chest, as mustard paste and serum injections will depend upon the judgment of the physician.

Pneumonia is a treacherous disease and exceedingly dangerous. The death rate varies from 10 to 25 per cent. If people would avoid exposure to drafts, unnecessary sweating with exposure, and keep the feet dry, this disease would not take hold so often. Fresh air should pervade all sleeping rooms and general hygiene must be respected. The difference between fresh air and a draft should be recognized and care taken to avoid the latter.

Stories That Recall Others

Spoiled His Evening

The rattle of crashing glass arose above the rumble of autos as his car drew up at the hostelry for his New Year's eve dinner.

The crash came not from a shattered windshield but from his "pint of red" which dropped to the sidewalk. With a muttered imprecation as the "amber" trickled to the gutter, he passed on, but it "spoiled the whole evening" for him.

The cork was uninjured, but he disdained to salvage it.

Home Manufacture

A radio loving family has been greatly annoyed lately by a man in the neighborhood who has an electric work shop, saw, lathe and so on. He was running it full blast one evening when one of the family, giving up the radio in despair, complained: "I wonder what on earth he's making."

Then up spoke five year old Bobby. "I know," he asserted, "he's making static!"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Snakes.

Mr. Editor; I have been rather interested in reading in The Bulletin letters from some of your subscribers commenting on the value of the black snakes as an aid to the farmer. I rather hesitate on writing on this subject for it is something that gives one the "creeps" for since the days of Adam, the mere sight of a snake when you come upon one unexpectedly gives us all a start, no matter how much we are used to seeing them.

Perhaps in my early days I have had as great an opportunity to see them as any of the kids of yesterday for I was always roaming through the woods and I knew the best places for huckleberries, chestnuts, the best fishing places and in fact any place where nature had made a hiding place for her treasures. During my tramps through nature's wonderland I never hesitated to kill a snake no matter if it was a copperhead, puff adder or black snake for it was a case of get them before they got me, and in that game I think I come first, for self preservation is the first law of nature. How many times have I when out after berries, found a great big fellow stretched out on the top of the bushes where the song birds would come to feed on the bugs and berries, and as I disturbed it, what an evil look it would turn on me. Its eyes seemed to emit sparks of fire. Not a very pleasant sight I can assure you. Did I ask it to please go away? Not so, dear reader, for I used a little persuasion in the shape of a club, for a good snake is a dead one, others to the contrary notwithstanding. Even though this one was gotten rid of, one must be on the qui vive to watch for its mate.

At one time just back of Jim Spicer's over in Preston there was one of the finest places for blackberries that I have ever known and here was to be found a great field of berries. Naturally this was the feeding ground for many birds and also their arch enemies the black snakes. I myself have seen and dispatched quite a few, and among them a copperhead. After all I do not think they would make very fine pets although I have read where some one had trained one as one would train a dog, but I don't think it will become a fad.

Many years ago I used to go with Walter Durfey up to the fields near to the Nigger house pond just about in the location where Jack Hall has his duck farm at this time. And here among the bushes, I have seen them in the act of charming a bird and they would be hanging head down by their tails, swinging back and forth, making a peculiar sound to attract their prey and with the victim uttering very pitiful cries as it circled back and forth, and the circles getting smaller, as it slowly but surely was getting toward the charmed circle.

Walter Durfey's father was in the milk business and we two boys used to go up there to drive the cows home. He lived midway of the block between 9th and 10th street and where he is today the good Lord knows, for I don't.

Perhaps some one will take exception to something I have written here and if so let it be so for after all this old world is full of different kinds of people and I am one of the kind that doesn't like the thing that tempted the first man and doomed us to a lifetime of bondage.

Over around Lantern hill where the silex mines were located was the habitat of the so-called red snake, more dangerous than the rattler for it didn't give a person any warning. So far as the rattler is concerned there is no "such animal" to be found in or about Norwich except possibly as a curio in a cage.

Wauwecus hill was a great place for these snakes but now due to the continual warfare carried on against them they are practically a thing of the past.

There is a fanciful story that a fellow who was a violin player went there and played such swept music that a large rattlesnake followed him into the town fascinated by his melody. Believe that one and I'll tell you another one, but it is so recorded.

Still after all this is a good old world and there are many things to interest us and instruct for it is a glorious privilege to live and behold all the works of nature to look up in the day time and see the blue sky and when the sun has sunk below the western horizon and the darkness falls upon the earth we gaze up into the self same sky and we see all those other worlds come into view like so many eyes and the myriads of stars that no man can count. Those scintilating stars, of which it has been said each one represents a loved one who has gone before, are looking down and watching over us until we take our place. With the many who have gone before and after all isn't that a beautiful thought? In conclusion I want to quote from Lord Tennyson:

Sunset and evening star
And one clear call for me!
And may there be no moaning at the bar
When I put out to sea.
For though from out our bourne of time and place
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my pilot face to face
When I have crost the bar.

Perhaps this may seem to be a fanciful ending to rather a gruesome beginning, still it is all in nature's world, which too has many ad varied changes.

Sometime I want to tell the boys of today the mimic world as "kids" lived in in the yesterdays. With best wishes to all

JUDGE SUSTAINS DEMURRER AGAINST SHAUGHNESSY

Judge John R. Booth has sustained a demurrer interposed by Attorney Charles B. Whittlesey, counsel for the Griswold Co., the demurrer being entered against certain paragraphs in an amended complaint of James K. Shaughnessy of Pomfret in his $20,000 damage action against the company in which he claims one-half of certain profits he says were made as the result of his management of the poultry farm there.

Shaughnessy states that he was entitled to certain profits which came after the expiration of his contract in February, 1928, but Judge Booth in sustaining Attorney Whittlesey's demurrer on the ground that no profits could be due after his contract had expired, did not agree with Shaughnessy's allegations.

REPORT NORWICH INN SUBSCRIPTIONS NOW REACH TOTAL OF $201,310

"Merchants' Night," the first meeting of the Norwich chamber of commerce and the first under the presidency of Joseph C. Worth, was held Monday evening at the Wauregan hotel with a supper at 6:15 with an attendance of about 125.

One of the especially interesting announcements of the evening was that made by William G. Park, general chairman of the Norwich Inn campaign, when he was called upon by President Worth. Mr. Park stated that since the formal campaign closed with subscriptions at $180,000, some further work has been done and total subscriptions were now $201,310, which made the project possible, the incorporation papers have been received back from Hartford and a meeting of the subscribers is to be held on Jan. 16.

In this connection, Mr. Park spoke of the very substantial advertising Norwich is receiving throughout the country by the achievement of Massie Miller, pro at the Norwich Golf club, in winning a leading place in the Miami golf tournament, one stroke ahead of Johnny Farrell, the national champion.

Before the meal was served, the divine blessing was asked by Rev. Harry P. Brothwell of the Third Baptist church and during the supper Mr Park was song leader with E. A. Fitch at the piano.

President Worth addressed the gathering briefly when the business part of the meeting was reached, giving his assurance that he would do his best to give the membership a good administration and saying that he should always be glad to receive suggestions.

Secretary Walter H. Pilcher announced that Chairman E. O. Rodier of the entertainment committee had arranged to have Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone of the Sixth Corps area here to speak at the meeting on Feb. 18, which will be a civic-patriotic dinner. He also announced the inauguration of a weekly noon luncheon plan for the chamber of commerce which will begin next Monday at the Wauregan hotel.

Reception of New Members

Four new members were announced by Secretary Pilcher and were escorted to the front by Dr. Hugh B. Campbell to meet President Worth and receive some earnest words of welcome and advice from James L. Case, past president. These new members were Miss Dorothy Holden, representing the Business and Professional Women's club; Charles Sutler, manager of the United Fruit and Vegetable Co., Capt. W. W. Carroll, manager of the Metropolitan Chain stores, and Arthur M. Thompson of Cudworth & Thompson.

After the announcement by Mr. Park regarding the Norwich Inn, President Worth turned the meeting over to J. B. Caron, vice-president of the Merchants' bureau, who took the place of C. Edward Smith, whom illness prevented from presiding.

Unveiling Norwich

Mr. Caron announced that one of the features of the chamber of commerce meetings would be to unveil Norwich to Norwich and this would be accomplished by Max Hanover for "mercantile Norwich."

Mr. Hanover did this in an instructive way with a chart which he displayed on the wall with figures bearing upon the subject, which he explained as follows:

The merchants of Norwich contribute an inestimable part in community life. Quite often we consider that our prosperity lies at the hands of the manufacturer. While this is true to a large extent, nevertheless, where would the manufacturer be if there were no merchants in town? The merchant performs the function of purchasing agent for the public; in other words he is the man we look to buy all of our goods. He thereby becomes an employe of the community, or one of its servants.

There are 537 retail stores in Norwich which employ over 1200 people, who produce an estimated payroll of $1,132,400 annually. Of the 537 retailers 275 deal in food—of which there are 151 grocers, 39 markets, and 25 confectionary stores; 94 deal in clothes, 46 in automobiles, 30 in fuel and building materials; there are 18 shoe stores, 19 druggists and 55 deal in various other lines.

In addition to the 537 retail stores you will note on the chart 44 wholesalers, 634 service establishments such as 37 garages, 27 barbers, 39 dressmakers, 37 realtors, 35 insurance agents, 24 painters, 28 plumbers, 73 contractors, and 322 establishments rendering every conceivable kind of service. There is a total of 1215 concerns engaged in commercial activities. The payroll of the group would exceed the $3,000,000 mark.

The buying power of Norwich was recently estimated by the Babson engineer as being $10,000,000—that is to say that the purchasing power of the people amounts to $10,000,000.

Let us give a little consideration to the trading territory which includes 20 small towns. These towns have a combined population of 42,000, which added to the Norwich population of 32,500 and the estimated number of people we draw from New London for trading 15,500 it gives us a total of 90,000 prospective customers; therefore, we see at the bottom of the chart that Norwich is the natural trading center for 90,000 retail customers and 158,000 wholesale customers.

William Pidgeon, a Rochester shoe merchant, was introduced by Mr. Caron as the speaker of the evening to address the meeting upon "Business and Its New Dawn."

Found Beauty in Norwich

In opening his address, Mr. Pidgeon acknowledged the impression he had received of the beauties of Norwich and this part of the country as he had been shown around by Secretary Pilcher.

He gave an inspiring address which was listened to with the closest attention and in which he brought out the idea of the service element in life. He sketched the changed spirit that has come into other fields, such as the home, the church, the law, medicine, and education, declaring that idealism is injecting itself in larger measure than ever before into business. We are working out our problems in a higher way than ever before, he declared, and into business will come some of the great underlying spiritual values that have come into other realms and changed them from things of terror to things of blessing.

At the conclusion of his address, Mr. Pidgeon was given a rising vote of thanks with applause and the meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

KU KLUX OFFICER FIGURED IN ROOMING HOUSE SCANDAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 7—Police Sergt. Patrick Murphy was summoned to Providence today to testify in the case of John W. Perry, former New London police officer, now an officer of the Ku Klux Klan, who is charged with perjury in the superior court. Perry, it is claimed, testified falsely as to his police record when he was interrogated by the Rhode Island state senate committee in connection with the alleged endeavors of the Klan to obtain control of the Rhode Island state militia. Perry testified that he was not dismissed from the New London department on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer, when in reality he was found secreted in a closet and with part of his uniform removed, in the former rooming house, 147 Bank street, then known as the Fournier house. The closet was in the room of a woman known as "Billie" Frank. The discovery of Perry in the closet was made by former Lieut. Benjamin Beebe, now deceased, and Sergeant Murphy. Perry explained his being in the closet that he was seeking a runaway girl. Later Perry was given a hearing and his services were dispensed with. Sergeant Murphy's appearance in court was to substantiate and corroborate these facts.

TOOK UNCLE'S WAD OF $600 AND LEFT TO SEE NEW YORK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 7—John A. Suter, 13, of Arlington, Mass., wanted to see New York, but he got only as far as New London, for he was arrested here today and found in his possession was much of the money he had stolen from his uncle and with which he hoped to see the metropolis. The boy early today stole $600 and went to Providence. There he purchased a ticket for New York and boarded the train that is due to reach here at 11:06 o'clock. In the meantime, the theft and disappearance of the money had been made known and the New London police and the New Haven railroad special agents were requested to intercept the boy. When the train arrived at the union station, Acting Sergt. Augustus Ray and Lieut. David Marks, the latter of the railroad police, boarded the train, finding the youth. He was held at police headquarters until a relative came after him late this afternoon. When the boy was searched $518.17 was found in a wallet. Included among the bills was one of $500 denomination.

JEWETT CITY WOMAN ROBBED IN PROVIDENCE

Anna Penecky of Main street, Jewett City, was robbed of $30 while on a visit to Providence Saturday. Miss Peneckey went to No. 15 Kirk street, that city to visit friends and found they were not home. She went to a second floor tenement to await the arrival of her friends and the theft took place there, the money being taken from her pocket book which she left in one of the bedrooms. Louise Ranson, 37, and her husband, Andrew Ranson, are held by the Providence police, the former on a charge of theft of the money and the latter on a charge of receiving part of the stolen money, given him by his wife.

NEMROD GROTTO ELECTS HENRY GEE MONARCH

The annual meeting and election of officers was held Monday evening by Nemrod Grotto, M. O. V. P. E. R., in Grotto hall on Broadway with a large attendance when the meeting was called to order by Monarch Fred G. Prothero. Annual reports were presented by Treasurer Arthur E Story and by Louis Brown, acting secretary, both showing a satisfactory condition.

The following officers were elected: Monarch, Henry Gee; chief justice, Fred C. Thumm; master of ceremonies, Richard Mills; secretary, Louis Brown; treasurer, Arthur E. Story; trustee for three years, P. M. Everett Peckham.

Monarch Gee made the following appointments: Marshal, Chester Davey; captain of the guard, John O. Johnson; orator, Lewis J. Oat; sentinel, William Buckingham.

The officers were duly installed by P. M. Herman Stelzner as grand monarch and P. M. Edmund Hindle as master of ceremonies.

A past monarch's fez and jewel were presented by P. M. Stelzner to P. M. Prothero, whose term at the head of the Grotto has been a year of marked progress.

It was announced that the next meeting of the Grotto will be held in the new Grotto home on Cliff street, the former Robbins residence, which the members are getting ready for early occupancy by the Nemrod grotto.

$15,000 FIRE LOSS IN JORDAN VILLAGE RESIDENCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 7.—The residence of Mrs. Sarah Powers, widow of Theodore Powers, Jodran Village, was entirely destroyed by fire early this morning, although a very small amount of furniture from one room was saved. The loss, it is estimated will be close to $15,000.

The caretaker of the house, Charles Budgeon, was aroused about 4 o'clock by smoke and found a lively blaze in the vicinity of the cellar. Budgeon applied a quantity of water to the fire and believing that he had subdued it returned to bed. About 5.30 o'clock, Budgeon was again awakened and this time the flames had gained great headway. Mrs. Powers had been confined to her bed by illness and after the woman had been taken from the building, the Waterford fire company was summoned. When the firemen arrived the house was a mass of flames and assistance was asked of the New London department. Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and Niagara Engine company responded. The New London firemen stretched two lines of hose from Jordan brook and these streams drowned the blaze as well as saving nearby property.

LEGION NATIONAL COMMANDER TO SPEAK IN NORWICH

Through the efforts of Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, A. L., Paul V. McNutt, national commander of the Legion, will come to Norwich on his visit to Connecticut early in February. Commander McNutt is one of the finest public speakers in America and his appearance will doubtless attract a large audience. All legionnaires and ex-service men in particular and the public in general are to be welcome. This will be his only appearance in eastern Connecticut. Arrangements are being made to provide ample accommodations. Further details will be announced later.

BOY SCOUTS PLACING NUMBERS ON HOUSES

The Boy Scouts are making considerable headway in their efforts to properly number houses in the city. The Scouts, who are co-operating with the city, have started their campaign in the vicinity of Chelsea parade. They have visited Sachem street, Williams street, Uncas street, Oneco street, Lafayette street, Linden parkway, Carroll avenue, Grosvenor place, Lincoln avenue, and Sachem terrace.

Most of the houses are properly numbered the Scouts have found. In four instances the Scouts met opposition as they were refused permission to place numbers on houses in each instance. Next Saturday the Scouts will visit Washington, Yantic, Watercress, Broad, Cedar, Fountain and Happy street, Tyler, Sturtevant, Greene and Elmwood avenues.

WILL BE PRESENTED IN PRESTON COURT

Charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, Gustave Grissell of R. F. D. No. 1, proprietor of a gasoline station on the Norwich and Westerly highway, will be presented in the Preston town court Friday evening. He was arrested Sunday afternoon by State Police Officer Peter Busch following an accident near the Hallville road.

Grissell's machine was badly damaged after it crashed into a coach owned and operated by Royal Wight of No. 51 Fairmount street. The coach was also considerably damaged. Grissell was cut on the nose and bruised about the chest.

Mrs. Lawrence Gillett

Mrs. Elsie P. Gillett, 34, wife of Lawrence Gillett, of Waterford, died Sunday at Lawrence-Memorial hospital after a brief illness with pneumonia. Besides her husband, Mrs. Gillett is survived by two children, Matilda and Lawrence Gillett; her mother, Mrs. E. Bertha Perkins, Groton; two sisters, Mrs. Edna Main, Groton, and Mrs. Eva Hushard, Waterford, and a brother, Roy Perkins, of Groton.

Mrs. Martha Louise Palmer.

It was with sincere sadness that the news of the death of Mrs. Martha Louise Palmer at West Somerville, Mass., was received in this city on Saturday last.

Mrs. Palmer, who was in her 92nd year had enjoyed good health up to within a few days before her death last Friday when she was taken with a convulsion from which she did not recover.

Mrs. Palmer was born Aug. 18, 1838 in Norwich, the daughter of Christopher Brown and Betsy Spicer Brown, being a direct descendant of Peter Spicer the first an early New England settler. She was seventh in line of descent.

She was twice married, her first husband being Joseph C. Palmer of Montville, who was a dry goods merchant in New London and who was a brother of the late Elisha Palmer of Montville. From this marriage three children were born, J. C. Palmer of West Somerville, Mass., with whom she made her home up to the time of her death, Freemont D. Palmer, formerly of this city, now deceased and Mrs. Mercy P. Story, now of Melrose, Mass., formerly of this city.

Her second marriage was to Herbert J. Palmer, who was one of the best known grocery dealers of his time in Norwich and who died three years ago.

Mrs. Palmer was particularly well versed for one of her years and kept constantly abreast of the times. She enjoyed all her faculties to the utmost even at her advanced age and was most happy in the company of her friends and particularly with young people.

She is survived by a son, J. C. Palmer of West Somerville, Mass., a daughter, Mrs. Mercy P. Story of Melrose, Mass., by Arthur E. Story of this city, Dr. Theodore L. Story of Southbridge, Mass., Mrs. James A. Whitlock, Jr., of New Canaan, Dr. Louis Palmer and Merton Palmer of West Somerville, all grandchildren and by a nephew, William H. Dowsett of this city. There are also several great grandchildren.

The passing of Mrs. Palmer takes away a life-long citizen who will be greatly missed by all who knew her.

Burial was held Saturday at the Willimantic cemetery where Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock of the Congregational church, conducted the committal service.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

The Fesma Auction Bridge club was entertained Monday by Mrs. Frank W. Clapp, of Lincoln avenue. Mrs. Herbert M. Leroy won the prize.

Miss Elizabeth Kempton, of Yantic will motor with friends today (Tuesday) to the Gunnery school, Washington, Conn., where she is teacher of art, following the holiday recess at her home.

Mrs. William H. Palmer entertained with a luncheon Saturday at her home, Elm Hill.

Miss Barbara Smith, formerly of Norwich, who has been the guest of Miss Marion Brewer Briggs has returned to Newton Center, Mass.

Miss Constance Raymond left Monday for Mt. Holyoke college and Charles V. Raymond returned to Dartmouth, having spent the vacation at their home on Broad street.

Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Perkins Browning and three children, who have been at the Gales Ferry cottage of Nathan A. Gibbs, have left for their home at Brittania Beach, B. C.

The Monday Study club met with Miss Jane McG. Aiken, Miss Margaret Campbell having the paper, on Henry of Navarre and the Huguenots. Miss Nancy E. Lucas considered the oral topic, her theme being Renaissance Sculpture in France.

Accompanied by Miss Josephine Weber of New York, Mrs. Charles Henry Osgood sailed from New York Saturday on steamer Bermuda, for Hamilton.

In compliment to Mrs. Robert Williams, of the Mohican, Mrs. Gardiner Greene gave a luncheon Saturday, other New London guests including Mrs. Carr, wife of Rear Admiral Clarence A. Carr.

We had dinner with a prize fighter

We were surprised to watch him eat jelly

WE HAD dinner recently with a famous prize fighter—one of the big fellows noted the world over for his perfect fighting physique. We were interested in seeing what he would eat. We heard him tell one of the waiters to bring a glass of jelly. Before the meal was over, the great fighter cleaned up more than half of that glass of jelly.

That was a practical eye-opener as to the energy value of sugar. The active body of this man craved and needed sweets.

Normal children also are athletes and their energy-consuming bodies hunger for and need sweets. All people whose daily work is of an exhausting, physical nature hunger for and need sweets.

And all others need sugar as an appetizing agent. Sugar develops the flavor of health-giving cereals, of fruits and of vegetables, of milk in milk shakes, and of eggs in egg-nog.

Every grocery store carries pure jams, jellies and preserves, and enough canned fruits and vegetables to bring health to every table. The Sugar Institute.

ONE OF RICKARD'S LAST ACTS WAS TO NAME LEADERS IN BOXING DIVISIONS

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP) —Tex Rickard's last contribution to boxing literature is his ranking list for 1928, coupled with what he planned to be the definite announcement of Jack Dempsey's comeback this year. It is contained in a copyrighted story written by the promoter for the issue of The Ring, monthly boxing publication, appearing this Friday.

Rickard's rankings are especially significant, as giving the promoter's final analysis of the game he developed so extensively, equally interesting is his forecast of Dempsey's plans, even though they now are in doubt as a result of the promoter's death.

The promoter ranked the former champion as the outstanding heavyweight now that Tunney had retired and declared that Dempsey would fight once, either in August or September, as the finalist in the elimination tournament that gets under way with a battle between Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling at Miami Beach, Fla., February 27.

"Jack Dempsey will come back this year," Tex wrote in a signed article. "One cannot think of Dempsey except in terms of greatness and therefore in his case inactivity last year must be disregarded in the rating of the world's leading heavy weights, for he is greater than any fighter now basking in the limelight and striving for the title left vacant by Gene Tunney.

"The return of Dempsey will cause the public to accept the appointment of a successor to Tunney as a genuine champion. The fellow who can whip Dempsey will earn the recognition of the public as champion. He will win their confidence and after all public opinion is what will count most in deciding Tunney's successor. Although Dempsey lost the verdict to Tunney at Chicago, there are thousands of fight fans throughout the world who feel that he is the uncrowned world's heavyweight champion.

"Dempsey will fight only once and that one battle will be for me and it will decide the holder of the crown. He will be one of two finalists, the other to be selected from other contenders. Dempsey is the former champion and as such is entitled to more consideration than Sharkey, Stribling, Paulino, Heeney, Risko and the rest of the field. The date of the title bout will depend on how long Dempsey needs to get in condition.

"Dempsey is coming back to give the heavyweight class the punch it now lacks, to re-inject a lot of the old interest and Dempsey color into the situation. The public wants Dempsey to return and he will heed public clamor as did Jim Jeffries."

In rating 416 boxers from all parts of the world in the various divisions on the basis of the ring wars of 1928, Rickard placed Gene Tunney, although he is retired, at the head of the heavyweight, named Fidel LaBarba as the outstanding bantamweight in a division that knows no generally recognized ruler, and gave the same recognition to Spider Pladner of France, of the leader-less flyweights. The promoter gave Jimmy McLarnin the palm among the junior welterweights in preference to Mushy Callahan, considered the champion of this unorthodox division, but recognized all other titleholders as the leaders of their classes during 1928.

Rickard's list of first choices follows:

Heavyweight—Gene Tunney, New York.

Light Heavyweight—Tommy Loughran Philadelphia.

Middleweight — Mickey Walker, Rumson, N. J.

Welterweight—Joe Dundee, Baltimore.

Lightweight—Sammy Mandel, Rockford, Ill.

Junior Lightweight—Tod Morgan, Seattle, Wash.

Featherweight — Andre Routis, France.

Bantamweight—Fidel LaBarba, California.

Flyweight—Emile Pladner, France.

Rickard divided the heavyweight division into five classes. In the second division he placed Sharkey, Stribling, and Uzcudun. Tom Heeney and Johnny Risko outstanding last year, fall into the third division with Tommy Loughran, 175 pound king, Jimmy Maloney, George Godfrey, and Phil Scott of England.

Leo Lombaski, James J. Braddock, and Jimmy Slattery are ranked behind Loughran in that order in the light heavyweight class. Mickey Walker, middleweight, Pete Latzo, Tuffy Griffiths and Maxey Rosenbloom, Ace Hudkins and Rene De Vos are rated second and third to Walker among the middleweights. Jackie Fields and Young Jack Thompson, both Californians, are Joe Dundee's chief welterweight challengers, although Thompson knocked out the Baltimore Italian in a non-title fight and Fields whipped Thompson.

Rickard ignored the claims of Izzy Schwartz, New York state champion, and Frankie Genaro, national boxing association titleholders, among the flyweights, placing Pladner first and Johnny Hill, British champion, second. Similarly Bushy Graham, New York champion, and Al Brown, N. B. A. titleholder, ranked behind LaBarba, among the bantams.

AGGIES OPEN HOCKEY SEASON THIS AFTERNOON

STORRS, Jan. 7—Varsity hockey will open at the Connecticut Aggies tomorrow afternoon in the newly built rink when the Nutmeggers face Massachusetts Aggies for the first time since the breach in 1926 in any sport. The Bay State college was recently scheduled for a basketball contest and now the announcement comes concerning the hockey contest here.

It will be a pre-season game for the Aggies since the M. A. C. team was not listed on the regular schedule that starts with Middlebury on January 12. The contest tomorrow will be the first formal inter-collegiate event for the state college on the ice since hockey was first instituted last winter when the Blue and White sextet went through a short list of games all arranged as the time went by.

The Connecticut Aggies will be captained by William H. Knaut, '29, of New Haven who has seen considerable experience as a puck chaser. Last winter the Nutmeggers showed some real talent and since the forming of ice on the pond, the men have worked out under the direction of Coach Sumner A. Dole who has developed a formidable sextet. Other members of the team who will see action tomorrow are Thomas Mullane of Hartford, Corwin Hawkins of Hartford, Harold Christensen of Greenwich, Abe Moore of Worcester, Mass., Joseph Gobel of New Haven, Sterling Harger of Hartford and Attilio Sasso of New Haven.

TUNNEY PAYS HIS TRIBUTE TO RICKARD

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Jan. 7—(AP)—"I am very grieved to learn of Tex Rickard's untimely death and sympathize with Mrs. Rickard and their little daughter in their great loss.

"Tex Rickard was a man of genius in his way. He made a place for himself through his education of the public to his idea that no man ever before had held and one which it is quite doubtful will ever be held again by any individual.

"His passing is a great personal loss to many people of whom I am but one."

The retired heavyweight champion did not learn for more than a day of the death of the man under whose promotion he won his title and twice defended it.

Tunney, with Mrs. Tunney, is at St. Moritz enjoying the winter sports and difficulty was experienced in locating him. The Associated Press finally reached him by telephone to inform him of Rickard's death. Tunney said he was "inexpressibly shocked" and at once dictated his tribute.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Sparkling Broadway could sparkle no more than Paramount's latest production, Manhttan Cocktail," sparkled at its opening performance at the Palace theatre. "Manhattan Cocktail" has all the bright lights, the thrills and the mystery of Broadway itself and, in addition, it has two exceptionally bright stars leading its cast, Nancy Carroll and Richard Arlen.

"Manhattan Cocktail," the story of New York backstage life, is the vehicle chosen to co-star this young pair of Paramount's younger players and both the young players and the story do justice to the selection.

The second feature discloses popular Reginald Denny, surrounded by a fine cast in "The Night Bird" a prize fight story told just enough different as to make it good, wholesome entertainment of the kind that lovers of screen productions would like.

The Palace theatre, which is now being operated by the Alfred Gottesman Enterprises of New England, is rapidly getting itself in condition to offer Norwich theatre-goers a bigger and better brand of shows.

Watch this paper for early announcements of these great shows to be presented at the Palace and let the Palace stage and screen reflect the answer as to whether the "promise will be performed."

Coming Wednesday for only one day will be another double feature program of rare screen enjoyment. Patsy Ruth Miller in "Beautiful But Dumb" is all that the name implies and gives promise of some highly amusing comedy. Helen Chadwick in "Confessions of a Wife" is a picture with a title that should make us all wonder just "what" a wife would want to confess to an eager and expectant audience. The usual "China-Nite" takes place again on Wednesday and those who have started their china collection will not want to miss getting another dish towards the completion of the set. Those who have not started had better make this Wednesday the beginning.

RICKARD'S BODY WILL LIE IN STATE AT MADISON SQUARE GARDEN

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—(AP)—In the very center of Madison Square Garden, the dream of a sport mansion that came true, the body of Tex Rickard will rest in state tomorrow.

Surrounded only by those who knew him best, the remains of the greatest boxing promoter in history will lie in the palace he helped put together with his own hands. Sleeping his last sleep, he will rest where the ring, symbol of his greatest successes, usually stands. They believe at the Garden that Tex would have liked that.

The massed seats about the arena, stretching up in tidy rows for two city blocks, will be empty. There will be none of the colorful, roaring crowd, with its dark mass of dollar customers far back and stately white shirt bosoms down front that so often brought a sparkle to "Tex" eyes, a jauntier perch to his pearl gray hat, a fresh hold on the long, black cigar, and a livelier swing to the yellow cane.

Instead there will be just a handful of mourners, his closest friends, grouped about all that remains of the shrewd yet simple, silent but friendly maker of fistic champions. The man who revolutionized boxing, raised it literally from the gutter to the hobby of big business and millionaires.

The man who made millions and had loads of fun doing it, will be alone with his co-workers, the members of his family, and newspapermen, who visited him daily for years in quest of the latest "dope."

There may be others there that won't be seen, for the walls of the Garden are festooned with the likenesses of old-time fighters Tex made famous, of characters Tex knew and labored with in his earlier and more rugged days, many of them now dead. Battling Nelson and Joe Gans, "Bat" Masterson and Jesse James, Bob Fitzsimmons, Stanley Ketchel, Pancho Villa, Harry Greb, Tiger Flowers, all are keeping vigil from those walls.

The body of the promoter will arrive at 10:15 a. m. from Miami Beach, Fla., where Rickard died yesterday after failing to rally from an appendix operation performed New Year's day. With a police escort of twenty men, the body will be accompanied to the massive steel and stone symbol of Rickard's genius by Jack Dempsey, Walter Fields, Mrs. Rickard, and the directors of Madison Square Garden.

Once there the body will lie in state until Wednesday morning at ten a. m., when the public will be admitted. Religious services of a type as yet undetermined will be held at 1:30 p. m., with burial at 2 p. m., in the Rickard plot at Woodlawn, where his first wife and daughter lie.

So that the period of mourning will be complete Col. John S. Hammond, appointed today by the board of directors of Madison Square Garden corporation as acting general manager to replace Rickard temporarily, postponed a hockey game scheduled for Tuesday night between the Rangers and Canadiens and an amateur boxing show set for Wednesday. The hockey game probably will be cancelled.

No attempt was made at the meeting of the directors to name a permanent successor to Rickard. The board adopted a long resolution expressing sorrow at the death of their president and lauding his ability and sportsmanship.

While the funeral train sped northward from Florida, discussions as to Rickard's successor, tempered on all sides with expressions of sorrow, were lost in preparations for the return of the dead "chief." Most prominent were the names of Jack Dempsey, who was Rickard's firm friend and with him when he died, Tom McArdle, present matchmaker at the Garden, and Col. Hammond. While appointed only temporarily, the latter said he would "hold the job until removed."

One of Hammond's first duties was to issue an announcement that there would be no change in plans for staging the heavyweight title match between Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling that sent Rickard to Florida. Hammond said he believed Rickard would have wanted the fight to go on and that preparations were practically complete to hold the bout Feb. 27.

DOWD CALLS FUCHS A LIAR AND ADAMS A HYPOCRITE AT COUNCIL MEETING

BOSTON, Jan. 7—(AP)—The Boston city council postponed at its meeting late today the election of its 1929 president and imposed further delays in the way of granting a permit to the Boston National league baseball club to play Sunday baseball in this city. Its action was taken after another bitter attack upon Emil Fuchs, president of the Braves, whose charges of attempted extortion by city council members in connection with local ratification of the Sunday sports law are being investigated by the finance commission and by Attorney General Joseph E. Warner.

Councilman William G. Lynch, the man named by Fuchs as the councilman who sought from him bribes of $5,000 apiece for himself and 12 other councilmen to vote for Sunday sports, was to have been nominated for the council presidency today by colleagues, irate at Fuchs' charges. He would oppose President Thomas H. Green, up for reelection. Motion by Councilman John I. Fitzgerald, calling for election today, was defeated however, by a vote of 18 to 4. The council probably will not meet again until next Monday.

An order introduced by Councilman John F. Dowd, calling for the appointment of a committee of five to consider regulations governing the granting of Sunday baseball permits, was adopted unanimously. On introducing the order, Councilman Dowd declared: "We have a right to tell those gentlemen outside of Boston, who come here thinking Boston is a hick town and they can get away with anything, how much they shall charge us.

"I will go down to political defeat before I'll let Fuchs, the liar, or Adams, the narrow minded hypocrite, blackjack or coerce a Dowd into giving them that permit."

Just before the council adjourned, Acting President Frederick E. Dowling announced the names chosen to the permit committee. They were Councilmen John F. Dowd, Edward M. Fitzgerald, Thomas W. McMahon, Henry Parkman Jr., and Robert Guardiner Wilson. Dowd and Wilson have been particularly outspoken in their attacks on Judge Fuchs and Vice President Charles F. Adams of the Braves. Adams testified before the finance commission that he thought it was Wilson's voice that spoke to him over the telephone saying that a bloc of councilmen would vote "no" on Sunday sports unless they were paid.

Tomorrow, the finance commission will resume its hearings on the bribe charges and counter charges brought by those accused. It is expected that several of the councilmen included in the bloc named by Fuchs would be called to testify.

The attorney general's office, meanwhile, continued today its investigation of charges made before the commission by Joseph P. Walsh, attorney for Lynch, that a list of contributors to the Outdoor Recreation league, sponsors of the Sunday sports bill filed with the secretary of state, was false. Walsh alleged that Fuchs gave almost all the $30,000 listed as coming from various contributors.

Assistant Attorney General Gerald Callahan today interviewed Samuel Hoar, counsel for Fuchs and Adams, in connection with the investigation, and later saw ex-Senator Thomas H. Bilodeau of this city. Bilodeau was opposed in the republican primaries by Walter Jackson, who it had been alleged, was supplied with a large number of free tickets for admittance to Braves field with the inscription "Vote for Jackson" on the backs. Callahan did not reveal what was said in his interviews with Hoar and Bilodeau.

Callahan said that he had read the testimony relating to the Outdoor Recreation league made before the finance commission and that he would begin tomorrow to question some of those listed as contributors to the league fund.

Tominich, c	c,	Ludlow
Dugas, lg	lg,	Brown
Lamoureux, rg	rg,	Pingree

This evening at Parish hall, Taftville, the Peerless Finishers of the United States Finishing Co. will tackle the C. F. C team of the city in a return game. Saturday night at the Y gym the C. F. C. bested the Finishers, 54 to 25, but a different story is forecast by the Peerless outfit.

Tominich, former U. S. Marine star, has been signed to jump center for the Finishers, a position in which they were weak Saturday, and Long, another ex-Marine, will probably play one of the guard positions during the game.

The C. F. C. will present their regular lineup, which, to date, is undefeated, having decisions over Battery E of Westerly, Hartford Central Baptist quintet and the Finishers. The game will be played under amateur rules and should present quite a struggle.

In the preliminary the Taftville Whirlwinds will meet the Norwich All Stars, this game being under professional rules. As Taftville has no other team this season, a large crowd is expected. The preliminary will start at 8 o'clock with the main game around 9. Dancing will follow the big game.

NORWICH Y SENIORS TO PLAY MIDDLETOWN SATURDAY

At the Y. M. C. A. gymn on Saturday evening the local Y Seniors play a return game with the Middletown Y in an exhibition game before the opening of the state Y. M. C. A. league. Several weeks ago Norwich met the Middletown five at Middletown and barely nosed them out. There is considerable interest in this game as the Middletowners are entered in the state league.

"I know an easy way to keep from getting fat . . . . . Light a Lucky instead of eating sweets."

Nazimova

Nazimova
Famous Stage Star

THE modern way to diet! Light a Lucky when fattening sweets tempt you. That's what thousands of lovely women are doing—successfully. The delicately toasted flavor of Luckies makes them a delightful alternative for fattening sweets. Toasting does it. Toasting removes the impurities and improves the flavor of the finest tobacco. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

Men who pride themselves on keeping fit discovered this long ago. They know that Luckies steady their nerves and do not impair their physical condition—many prominent athletes have testified to this fact. They discovered, too, that Luckies don't irritate the throat—a fact subscribed to by 20,679 physicians.

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say:—

"REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD OF A SWEET."

WESTERLY

TOWN COUNCIL COMMENDS NOVOGROSKI'S ENTERPRISE

The Westerly town council at its January meeting was called to order at 9.30 Monday by President Horace E. Burdick, Councilman Isaac G. Smith being the only absentee. Most of the time was taken up with the hearing of monthly and yearly reports of town officers, read by Council Clerk Everett E. Whipple and the payment of bills. At 11.45 a. m. when the matter of clearing up the approach to the Westerly police station from newly graded Union street at present a hazardous place to travel was brought up Councilman Joseph Fraser moved that the council go into executive session.

During the council session a motion was introduced by Councilman Rogers E. Trainer and revised to read: "That it was the sentiment of the Westerly town council that the removal of the caisson in the Pawcatuck river by Max Novogroski is to be commended and that he should be cooperated with in the proper development of his property."

Before the council adjourned it was agreed that the councilmen, representatives from Westerly to the R. I. general assembly and the Westerly highway commission get together to see what could be arranged and agreed upon relative to the completion of a proper approach to Westerly police station.

The balance of the estate of Fred L. Pierce, who died at the Westerly town farm, was voted returned to his estate, a daughter in the south being the only heir. Previously an assignment to the town of Westerly had been secured.

The report for December by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown showed 9 arrests, insane person 1, intoxication 1, violation of parole 1, operation of auto while under influence of liquor 1, and idle and suspicious persons 4.

Among recommendations was the establishment of a semaphore light at the junction of Elm and Cross streets to be operated simultaneously with the present one at Elm and School streets. A recommendation to the R. I. State board of public roads that a semaphore light be installed on the High street section of the state Noose Neck Hill road at the intersections of Pierce street and Mountain avenue. A new patrolman at Bradford was recommended, the securing of gas attack guns and protection devices for the Westerly department and the installation of filing cabinets at police headquarters. The addition of one more detention room in the women's department, equipment and repainting, were recommended also.

With the payment for engineers' work on the establishment of a new building lines and the additional changes the council fathers felt that the bill should be a 50-50 one with the Westerly highway commission.

Town Solicitor John Ferguson, who brought before the council a plat of the proposed establishment of a continuation of the line on High street, had the proper vote prepared and it was passed by the council. An average of 11 feet is the new set-back line beginning next to Wilcox park and traversing the properties of Frank W. Coy and Co., Philip Leibovitz, Rose Collins, Henry P. Walton and the South County Public Service company.

Dr. Thomas E. Robinson, milk inspector, reported that 112 applications were received during the year, and 108 were granted. There are 21 producers under the State and Federal supervision and 12 hold licenses to sell grade A milk.

Miss Mary Randall, director of mothers' aid, reported that applications were received from eight families and five received aid. The families included 18 children. The expenditure for the year amounted to $4751.

Thomas Wills, building inspector, reported 11 applications received for frame buildings during the past month and nine granted.

Dr. Samuel C. Webster, health officer of the town, reported three cases of chicken pox, one of measles and one of infantile paralysis during December.

Charles Cannon was voted a victualizing license for the Railroad Lunch on Railroad avenue.

Sheffield Green was re-appointed forest warden with power to select his own deputies. The present deputies are C. Palmer Chapman, George E. Ezzer and George Williams.

Councilman James Naccarato of the lighting committee announced that a lighting expert is engaged in mapping out the light system and will have a report to make to the council later.

The Westerly Square and Compass club, No. 176, National League of Masonic clubs, Francis G. Haswell, president, held its tenth annual meeting in the club rooms Monday evening. Clifford T. Barber of Potter Hill was elected president. Other officers elected were: Vice president, John R. Ong; secretary, Byron C. Taylor; treasurer, Lewis Stanton; member of executive board for three years, Dwight L. Freeman; auditing committee, Fayette F. Freeman, W. Russell Dower. The nominating committee John O. Mills, George Smith, William T. Stillman, Henry A. Stahle and Farquahar Smith. The officers' reported that the club had added seven to the membership during the year. The club has added a radio equipment. The club plans to hold a dance at an early date. Announcement was made that the concluding banquet of the Eastern Shore bridge tournament would be held Monday evening, Jan. 14th at the Mohican, New London, when at its conclusion twelve prizes will be given to the highest scorers of the evening, the play to begin at the close of the banquet.

The Westerly fire alarm siren was sounded about 9.20 Monday morning from Box No. 39, Granite and John streets for a fire in the rear chimney of the house of Santa Panciera, 110 Granite street. Chief Egger and three pieces of apparatus responded. A red hot stove in the kitchen had overheated the stove pipe which in turn ignited some soot in the chimney. The recall soon sounded. There was no damage.

CHARLES MOUSSIE'S BIRDS WINNERS AT MERIDEN

Charles Moussie of Dew Drop Inn farm on the North Stonington-Norwich road, a member of the South County Poultry and Pet Stock association of Westerly and the New London Poultry association of Norwich, was a successful exhibitor the past week in the three-day show at Meriden. With an entry of 150 birds in the Barred Plymouth Rock class he secured first cockerel, first hen, second hen and fourth pullet. He has exhibited in the shows in Westerly, Norwich, New London and Brockton, Mass., with almost equal success.

PROVIDENCE PASSENGER TAKEN SUDDENLY ILL ON TRAIN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 7—Mrs. M. Lubusky of 135 Chester avenue, Providence, a passenger on the Mayflower west-bound express on the New Haven road, was taken suddenly and seriously ill before the Westerly station was reached at 10.33 a. m. Monday en route to New York. The train conductor informed Westerly Station Agent Earl S. Bavier and Dr. Michael H. Scanlon, railroad surgeon was summoned. She was found to be suffering from a serious heart attack. Dr. Scanlon notified the Westerly hospital where Mrs. Lubusby was taken in the hospital ambulance after being removed from the train at the Westerly station. Mrs. Lubusky was reported as having been previously stricken with the same trouble and Agent Bavier telephoned Mrs. Samuels, a daughter, living at the same address, 135 Chester avenue, Providence, that her mother had been taken from the New Haven train at Westerly and taken to the hospital. Mrs. Samuels came to Westerly on an early afternoon train to join her mother in the hospital where Mrs. Lubusky's condition was stated to be critical.

WOONSOCKET DRIVER FINED ON TWO CHARGES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Jan. 7—Paul N. Fountaine of 211 Glen road, Woonsocket, was brought before Judge Oliver H. Williams in a special session of the Third District court Monday morning by State Trooper Carl Anderson of the Hope Valley barracks, charged with operating an automobile Nov. 17 last in the town of Richmond, on the Noose Neck Hill road, in a reckless manner and without an operator's license. Fountaine was summoned into court by State Trooper Ralph Bonat on duty at that time. On the defendant's plea of guilty he was fined $10 on the charge of operating an auto without a license and on the reckless driving charge a fine of $25 and costs was imposed. Fontaine paid.

When Food Sours

Lots of folks who think they have "indigestion" have only an acid condition which could be corrected in five or ten minutes. An effective anti-acid like Phillips Milk of Magnesia soon restores digestion to normal.

Phillips does away with all that sourness and gas right after meals. It prevents the distress so apt to occur two hours after eating. What a pleasant preparation to take! And how good it is for the system! Unlike a burning dose of soda—which is but temporary relief at best—Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

Next time a hearty meal, or too rich a diet has brought on the least discomfort, try—

POETRY

An Antique

She gazed at the tall old clock on the stair;
'Twas a relic of days long fled,
A costly timepiece, a treasure rare,
But lately purchased and perched up there.
"A quaint old gem!" she said.

"Did you stand in some old Colonial hall
Where the firelight flickered red
On polished floor and on carven wall,
Where fell the shadows of chairbacks tall
And straightly stiff?" she said.

"Did you look, perchance, on a winsome maid—
Alas! a century dead—
Softly demure and sweetly staid,
In a tortoise-shell comb and a gay brocade
With a very short waist?" she said.

"Did you see her lover, a comely swain
A-bending his stately head
To touch her lips and to touch again
Till her fair cheek warmed with a crimson stain,
O quaint old gem?" she said.

"Oh, the wondrous picture once known to you!
And the tales that you have read!"
But the tall old clock fetched a grin to view.
"I wonder what she'd remark if she knew
I was made last week," it said.

—By E. A. Opper.

A Portrait

In sunny girlhood's vernal life
She caused no small sensation,
But now the modest English wife
To others leaves flirtation.
She's young still, lovely, debonair,
Although sometimes her features
Are clouded by a thought of care
For those two tiny creatures.

Each tiny, toddling, mottled mite
Asserts with voice emphatic,
In lisping accents, "Mite is right,"
Their rule is autocratic;
The song becomes, that charmed man kind,
Their musical narcotic,
And baby lips than love, she'll find,
Are even more despotic.

Soft lullaby when singing there,
And castles ever building,
Their destiny she'll build in air,
Bright with maternal gilding;
Young Guy, a clever advocate,
So eloquent and able!
A powdered wig upon his pate,
A coronet for Mable!

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Teacher—What animal makes the nearest approach to man?

Schoolboy—The cootie, of course.—Detroit News.

"Wonder who invented those vibrating exercises?"

"Some fellow who owned a flivver I'll bet."—Exchange.

Ethel—I'm cutting down on my expenses this Christmas. For one thing no old-fashioned and senseless mistletoe.

Marie—I see—unnecessary ove head—Boston Transcript.

Butler—The post, m'lady.

Mrs. Uppish—Ah. Christmas cards I suppose, Jenkins. Well, look them over, will you? And if you consider any of them too familiar, just destroy them, Jenkins.—Punch.

Husband (to scantily clad wife ready for dinner party)—But, surely, my dear, you are somewhat—er—haven't you forgotten something?

Wife—Why, of course! My earrings.—London Opinion.

"Does your bride know anything about cooking?"

"Well, I heard her telephoning her mother inquiring if she had to use soft water for soft-boiled eggs and hard water for hard-boiled ones."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

"John, what shall I get you for Christmas?"

"One thing would please me very much, my dear."

"And what is that?"

"A receipted bill for all the other Christmas presents you have bought."—Exchange.

It was their first airplane ride and the young woman of the party felt quite nervous.

"You will bring us back safely, won't you?" she said to the pilot, with a rather faint smile, as they were about to start.

"Of course I will, miss," he assured her, touching his leather helmet. "I've never left anybody up there yet."—Boston Transcript.

The father of a war veteran recently asserted that his son's sanity was preserved in his fighting days largely because he kept up interest in observing birds that he had studied at the Brooklyn Children's museum.

Two thousand cats have been put on the municipal payroll of Havre. Havre was overrun with rats a year ago, many of them brought from all parts of the world by the hundreds of boats using the port. The municipality decided to rid the port of rats and hired cats to do it.

A huge magnet suspended from the rear axle of a wagon used at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., to remove puncture hazards from the roads that cross the military reservation. Private Sam Smith, who follows behind the wagon as it cleans the road of metal, let his eyes wander for a moment. He suddenly plunged into a manhole, the lid of which had been whisked away by the magnet.

A drug obtained from an East Indian plant called the gasubasu which has been used as a remedy for toothache for many years has now been examined by a London pharmacologist, Dr. E. Hesse, who has found that it is one of the most powerful surface anaesthetics known, about 30 times stronger than cocaine. It has a most violent action on the heart, and strongly resembles the African arrow poison. Dr. Hesse regards such a powerful poison as probably much too dangerous to be used generally as a local anaesthetic.

A woman in Washington, D. C., telephoned for a taxi and before she could put on her hat there the taxi was. Whereupon she called up the traffic bureau and reported the taxi driver for reckless driving. "Any driver that can come from the company's headquarters to my house in a minute and a half should be arrested," she said. Although it was explained to her that the company had several call boxes and that the cab came from just around the corner the woman still refused to ride with that driver.

SHARP DOWNWARD READJUSTMENT OF QUOTED VALUES IN STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—(AP)—The stock market underwent another sharp downward readjustment of quoted values today despite the desperate efforts of pool operators to bring about a general rally. Several of the higher priced specialties cracked 5 to nearly 15 points, and a long line of standard industrials and rails closed 1 to 4 points lower. Relatively few issues, conspicuous among which was Studebaker, recorded substantial net gains.

Uneasiness over the credit situation, which has been heightened by fears of an increase in federal reserve rediscount rates, prompted much of the day's selling, as business and trade news continued favorable in character. Call money, which dropped from 12 to 6 per cent last week, held steady at 7 per cent all day, although hopes had been entertained in some quarters that the large supply of funds available at that figure would result in a reduction in the charge on day to day loans.

Federal reserve officials intimated that call money is not likely to go any lower, the central banks have been increasing the volume of acceptances held by them which has had the effect of throwing that form of financing back on the member banks, and thereby restricting the volume of speculative credit available. There is a feeling in conservative brokerage quarters, expressed in market advices to customers, that a sharp reduction in the volume of brokers' borrowings is necessary before there can be any sustained general advance in prices.

The day's business news includes an advance in refined sugar prices, effective tomorrow; publication of a series of unusually favorable December earnings statements by some of the leading chain store systems; reports of increased car buying by the railroads, with official predictions of a stock dividend on General American Tank Car at the January meeting of directors; and a continued good demand for copper metal at the year's high prices. The bureau of railway economics announced that net railway operating income of Class 1 roads in November totaled $113,694,856 as against $86,708,399 in the same month of 1927.

Radio Corporation common broke 24 1-2 points to 365 in the mid-day selling movement, but recovered half its loss. The new stock will be admitted to trading tomorrow on a "when issued" basis. Midland Steel Products preferred broke 14 1-4 points, National Tea 14, Rossia Insurance 12 and American Smelting, Burroughs Adding Machine, DuPont, General Electric, Greene Cananea Copper, Marmon Motors, Montgomery-Ward, Union Carbide and Warren Bros. all showed net declines of 5 to 8 points.

Despite the glowing predictions of 1929 production and sales, most of the automobile shares were under selling pressure, probably in reflection of fears that the keen competition shown by recent price cuts would impair profits. Chrysler fell more than 5 points and rallied 2, and Hudson, Hupp, Nash and some of the others lost a point or more. General Motors dropped more than 4 points but recovered all but a fraction of its loss. Studebaker ran more than 6 points to $3 and closed within a fraction of the top, and the Pierce Arrow issues moved into new high ground.

Rails also fell back sharply despite the favorable character of current earnings and traffic reports. Canadian Pacific slumped 8 1-2 points and rallied 1 and Rock Island, Delaware & Hudson, Gulf, Mobile & Northern, "Nickel Plate" and Texas & Pacific fell back 2 to 4 points. Wabash preferred A moved up more than 7 points to 104 7-8, and then eased to 102 on buying influenced by a court decision, which states that dividends must be paid on that issue when earned before payments are made to common stockholders.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Commodity markets were mixed. Cotton dropped 50 to 75 cents a bale in reflection of the slackening in the good market. Wheat advanced about a cent a bushel. Coffee rallied 12 to 22 points.

Foreign exchanges moved within narrow and irregular limits, with sterling cables quoted around $4.85 1-8.

RULES FOR YOUNG WRITERS

1—Write plainly on one side of the paper.
2—Use pen and ink, not pencil.
3—Short and pointed articles will be given preference. Do not use over 250 words.
4—Original stories or letters only will be used.
Write your name, age and address plainly at the bottom of the story.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES

To His Mare

My girl has legs as slim and straight
As tule-rushes are.
Her eyes are lovely things to see
And always look afar.
Her little pointed restless ears
Her haunches keen and strong—
My mare, my mare, my Betsy mare,
She's worth a bit of song.
Her nose is as soft as a woman's breast,
Her tail a cloud by night,
Her nostrils filled with morning fire—
A swallow in her flight.
Her feet are shod with the West Wind,
Her neck a bended bow;
And all my sins are left behind
When I dare to let her go
—Charles Erskine Scott Wood, in Poetry: a Magazine of Verse.

Western Tanager

Flaming
In the silver fir,
The exotic
Tanager.

Crimson-crested,
Dressed in yellow
Song a cadence
Honey-mellow.

Like an orchid
The wind tosses
It among The Druid mosses.
—Ethel Romig Fuller.

The Caged Cripmunk

To see a chipmunk spin
His wean, round
Within a man-made wheel
Puts man to shame
And God to scorn.

It is an evil thing
When men will stand,
And gape and grin,
To see the frantic little thing
Spin out his hundredth mile or more;
And seek in vain an open door.
—Isadora Kerr.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES

The cardinal is one of our most beautiful birds, with his bright red suit. His prominent crest tends to give him distinction. The cardinal is nearly as large as the robin. He has a large red bill, black throat, and black on the sides of the head and all about the bill. The females are soberly dressed in olive, brightened with red, and they like the males, have fine crests.

The cardinal is a great songster with an unusual song. He is a grand opera singer. Like the brown thrasher, he prefers a prominent perch when singing. He often sings from the tops of very tall trees.

The cardinal prefers to live in wooded regions along streams, where the sun is warmest in winter and where the cold winds lose much of their force. He is found in the largest numbers throughout the southern part of the United States.

They are permanent residents, generally remaining in one place after they locate their home. In the summer they are hidden by the foliage of the trees and no doubt household cares make them more or less secretive. The notes of his song sound something like this: "Whit, whit, whit, whit shee-u, whee-u, whit, whit, whit, whee-u, whit-whee-u, whit, whit, whit, whit."

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

The Petrified Forest

Dear Uncle Jed: I want to tell you and the Wide-Awakes about the petrified forest. Four years ago last August, when we were taking a trip east from California, we came through a place in Arizona that is called the petrified forest. It is very sandy there, and many large logs and small pieces of petrified wood are lying all around the ground. They look very much like stone and are different colors. My mother found a piece with little shiny things on one side of it; they shine something like diamonds. On some of the wood there is something which looks like bark. My cousin found some little chips. He said: "They look like they had just been chopped today." He said: "If I could only find a petrified axe handle, I would know somebody had been chopping them."

My uncle took some pictures of some of the logs. While we were there we ate our lunch. It was so warm I took off my shoes and forgot about them and left them there. I said: "I wonder if they'll be petrified, too."

The way some people think it was petrified, there was an earthquake, the ground trembled, throwing the trees to the ground. Then sand washed over the trees and buried them. As water went through the wood it soaked out tiny bits and at the same time left tiny bits of stony matter in place of these bits of wood.

Likes Dolls

Dear Uncle Jed: This is Christmas day and my two brothers and I were up at 3 o'clock poking around to see what we could find under the Christmas tree with our names attached. I found many, many things, but, Uncle Jed, this is the first time I haven't received a doll. I have had lots of nice dolls and I know I am too grown up now to add any more to my family. Just the same, I was lonesome for one. We had dinner at noon, then dad took us for a ride and at 2 o'clock I arrived at the home of my aunt and uncle to spend the rest of my vacation with them. They are to have dinner at 5 o'clock, and my! it smells good. Goodness only knows where I'll put my share of it. We had a large tree at home for the five of us and I have a smaller tree here just for me. It is a pretty one and has the lights and everything.

I don't mean to be selfish and for all I am so happy today I try to think of the children who are not as fortunate as I am.

This has been a nice day, but wouldn't it have been nice if there had been a little snow, especially for the children who got new sleds? There is a little girl that lives a little below my aunt who has a great big doll carriage and doll. She's pretty proud of it, and the little boy who is 3 years old across the street loves dolls, and I have often let him play with mine, but this year Santa Claus left him a nice little doll carriage and doll all for himself. I will close now, Uncle Jed, hoping you have had a merry Christmas and wishing you a happy New Year.

My Collie.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to you and I will tell you about my dog. Her name is Lady Jean. She is an all white collie. She has many tricks and I will tell you a few of them. When she wants a drink of water she will bring her pan and lay it down in front of us. She will also sing when she wants to go out. We live on a farm and had been missing several of our chickens. One evening we heard a furious barking in the woods in back of our house. My brother and I went to see who it was. What was our surprise to see Jean keeping guard over a skunk. She would not let him go and was trying to attract our attention. My brother killed it.

My New Year Dream.

Dear Uncle Jed: I wish you and all the Wide Awakes a Happy New Year. On New Year's eve I tried to keep awake but I couldn't. As I was sleeping I heard a loud noise. So I woke up and saw three boys with cans, beating on them with sticks. I fell asleep at one o'clock in the morning. As I was sleeping I had a dream. I saw a baby tatooed with marks on his body, "1929." Out of the sky appeared an old man. He had a long beard. They both met and shook hands. The old man walked away slowly, but 1929 stood where he was. When I woke up my ears were filled with shouts "Happy New Year."

Helped An Old Lady.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day when I was coming home from the library there was an old lady going home with a lot of bundles. She was very feeble, and she was so tired that she leaned against a fence. I offered her my help, so I helped her to her home and she was very grateful to me. I hope all the Wide Awakes will be kind to old people when they are in need.

BERNARD SEARS, Age 9.

A Cat.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first story I have written to you. I have a cat. Its name is Tricksy. It is black and white. We named it Tricksy because when it was small we taught it to jump over our hands and some other tricks. It has four white paws and a black cape. He is very big. He is four and a half years old. He is as old as my smallest brother.

WALTER GREENHALGH.

Disobeyed Her Mother.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my third letter I am writing to you. I hope you will enjoy reading my letter. I am going to tell you how sorry I was because I did not obey my mother.

It was snowing when I awoke in the morning. After breakfast I took my sled and went out coasting.

I was still out in the afternoon. My mother told me to come in the house and get warm and have my lunch. My mother told me that I could go out after I was warm and had my lunch. I told her I will soon be in.

When I came in the house I was still and cold. I looked at the clock. It was five o'clock!

After supper I went to bed because I did not feel well.

In the morning I had a bad cold and I could not go out. It snowed that night and it was better coasting than the day before. I could not go out because I had a bad cold.

I felt very sorry because I did not obey my mother. I said I will always obey my mother.

The Catskills.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time that I have ever written to you and the Wide Awakes. I am very happy about writing to you. Last summer I went to the Catskill mountains in New York. We were ready about eight o'clock in the morning on Sunday. We got in Hartford about two o'clock in the afternoon. We were riding along when I saw something that interested me very much. It was the head of a bull carved out of stone. Its eyes and mouth were painted red and it looked like a real one. There was something else that interested me very much and that was the tobacco fields which I never before knew grew in Hartford. We rode on the ferry a short time. When we were on land again we started for a hotel. When we were at the hotel I put on my bathing suit and went down to the lake for a swim. When the week was over we started home as we planned only to stay there a week. I had a lovely time and would like to go there next summer.

My Pet Rabbit.

Dear Uncle Jed: It is very long time since I have written to you.

I have a pet rabbit who is always skipping out of its house. One day it got out and was jumping as fast as he could. We could not catch him for he was very tiny and lively.

Another day he was sticking his head through the fence and my mother happened to see him. She gave his head a little push. He got frightened very much and he ran into his cabin. I do not think he will try to skip again.

A Brave Girl

Dear Uncle Jed: I have never written to you before, but I have read the letters and stories some of the girls and boys wrote to you and became very interested. One story caught my eye and I recognized it as my girl friend's. It was about a car. I am a fond reader of fairy tales, historic tales and books that don't belong to series. I am going to write a story now which I have made up.

It was a beautiful day and along the roadway a dog was running back and forth. Under an apple tree sat a girl of about 14 years. The dog was bringing her flowers. The girl then rose and called the dog to her. "Here, Collie, come here, boy." The dog came to her side and they proceeded on their way. The girl was wearing a green bathing suit and she and the dog were going to the lake. The dog always ran ahead and came back with a stick or a flower.

They were nearing the shore of the lake and were about 200 feet away when a woman's cry was heard: "Oh, quick, someone save my baby; she's drowning!" Collie, the dog, rushed ahead and his mistress, whose name was Roselyn, ran behind him. But the dog was always in the lead. The dog swam to the spot where a 2 year old child had fallen in. He went under the water and came up with the child. Roselyn, who also swam to the spot, just then took the child from the dog's mouth and swam to shore. She then laid the baby on its stomach and slapped it on the back so the water could come out. She succeeded. She then let it lay on its back and let the dog watch it and walked over to the mother and comforted her and gave her the baby. She and the dog were just starting for home, because Roselyn said she had enough for the day, when an elderly man approached her and said: "I have come to thank you for saving my daughter. May I know your name, please?" "My name is Roselyn White and I am very glad to do something for anyone." She then gave the man her address and he gave her his card and they started for home, Collie staying at her side the whole way.

At the dinner table Roselyn told her father and mother what had happened and her father asked to see the card. On it was written "Dr. Connolly." "Do you know who this is, Roselyn?" asked her father. "No, I don't, dad." "Well, my dear, this is the noted English doctor." Roselyn was too surprised to speak.

Next day a letter came to Roselyn with a check payable to the order of Roselyn White for $3,000. She ran in the house to show it to her dad, who took it and read the note. This is the note Roselyn received:

Dear Roselyn: Inclosed is a check for the sum of $3,000. You must not return it. Please, little girl. Hoping in the future to be friends, I am

Sincerely yours,
DR. ROBERT CONNOLLY.

Roselyn was a very good friend from then on to the doctor, his wife and child, and when the time came for the doctor and his family to depart for England Roselyn knew she was losing a very good friend. Many years passed and Roselyn paid a visit to the doctor and his family once every three years. At her death the doctor came to her funeral and many mourned her loss.

My Christmas Stocking

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my Christmas. Soon after we got out of school Monday night we hung up our stockings, as it was Christmas eve, and then we went to bed.

The next morning we got up and peeked into the parlor. We could see some very mysterious packages under our tree and our stockings were quite fat.

When we got home from church we opened our presents. There was an awful lot for me, so I guess Santa must have thought I was a good boy. I got a red bus that is just like the New England bus, a sweater, some handkerchiefs, a jig saw set, a jackknife, an airplane race and a box of candy.

After we had opened them all, we had dinner and then we played until it was late.

Happy New Year, Uncle Jed!

My First Year in Club Work

Dear Uncle Jed: I have just completed my first year in 4-H club work, that is, in a sewing club.

Our name was the Nimble Workers of Franklin. There were 13 members. The leader was Miss Julia Rodman. We had a president, vice president, secretary, treasurer, song leader, cheer leader, pianist, judging team and demonstration team. A member wrote a club song.

We made many things in our club. We sent a member to the state roundup at Hartford and two members to junior short course. We exhibited our things at several fairs and took prizes. We had an achievement night program. We gave plays, sang songs and sold things.

We made about $20 in our first year of club work. We have reorganized again. Although we are proud of club work. We have reorganized even better in the coming year.

My Summer Vacation.

Dear Uncle Jed: Every week I read the Wide-Awake stories and wondered if they would like to read one of mine. Am going to tell you about my summer vacation at Camp Mohican.

Reveille was blown at 7 o'clock in the morning. We each had our chores to do. The first was to take a swim, air our beds and eat breakfast. I had the dishes to wash.

After doing our chores we had sports which we sure did enjoy. These included such games as basketball, volley ball for about an hour. The counselor then called "swim" and we were very glad to hear that call. We all rushed to get into our bathing suits.

We then ran down to the lake and before you could count three we were all in the water splashing about. After being in the water for about a half hour we were called out.

Then came tent inspection which we did very thoroughly in order that we might get 10 points for having a good cabin. After this it was time to go for dinner. There was a resting period after dinner. Sweets were passed around and we all had a sweet tooth.

Then swimming again. We got into our bathing suits in a hurry.

Sports came once more and we played until five. Supper was then eaten. Seven o'clock came camp fire. At nine taps was blown and we went to bed.

I enjoyed my summer vacation very much and wish that every boy and girl might have the opportunity to go to camp.

Caught Rabbit In Trap.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about the first rabbit I caught in my trap. I had my traps set for about three days. The rabbit closed my traps a few times. One night it started snowing. It snowed about four inches deep. This snow covered my traps so the rabbit could not see them. In the morning when I went to look at my trap I found a brown rabbit caught by three legs, and his head ate off. The tracks looked like those of a skunk or a cat. I took the dead rabbit away and put some apples there to see if any more rabbits were there. The other rabbits ate all the apples I put there. So I set my traps again. But I haven't caught any more rabbits yet.

Plays Games At Recess.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a little girl six years old. I like to go to school and am in the first grade. I like my teacher very much. The other girls in my class are about my age and at recess we have lots of fun playing all kinds of games.

I received a nice sled for a Christmas present. I am hoping we will have snow soon, so I can go sliding. We haven't had very much snow this year. Santa left a great many gifts this year, for which I thank him.

STAFFORDVILLE

Miss Doris Richard of Vernon visited her brother, Rev. Clayton E. Richard at the M. E. parsonage over Sunday.

Miss Bessie Brown, telephone operator at Willimantic exchange visited local friends the first of last week.

George B. Howard visited with his son Byron Howard and family in Putnam last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chandler and daughter and William Chandler of Hartford were recent guests of Mrs. Julia Ensminger.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Belcher have returned from their wedding trip. They will make their home with the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Belcher for the present.

A watch night service was held in the Methodist church New Year's eve and there was a large attendance. A play was given by three young people after which games were played and refreshments were served. Songs and hymns were sung after which there was a religious service the pastor, Rev. C. E. Richard making a timely address. At 12 o'clock the two church bells were rung, members of the congregation returning home, wishing each other a happy New Year.

LOOM-FIXER INJURED, HAND BEING CRUSHED

Albert Wilcock, employed as loom-fixer in the weaving department of the Baltic Mills Co., met with an accident, Friday afternoon, when the Stafford loom which he was fixing, accidentally started up and crushed his hand. Mr. Wilcock was taken to his home on Main street in a machine and a physician was summoned.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Shaw of Jewett City were week-end visitors at the home of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. David Flowers, of Main street.

George Phillip of Little Flats is seriously ill and was taken to the Backus hospital Saturday.

Notification cards have been sent out to the members of the American Legion auxiliary, St. Germain unit, for a meeting and whist this week.

Bills have been posted for a dance to be held by the American Legion.

Roderick Jodoin of Railroad street is in Boston on business.

Donais Blais is employed with the Shetucket Worsted Co.

Arthur Legroes has resigned in the weaving department of the Baltic Mills Co.

The parishioners of the Immaculate Conception church were saddened by the news of the death of Rev. Father Pliny F. Cooney at New Canaan. Father Cooney was a former curate at the Immaculate Conception church.

The first Friday of the month was observed at the Immaculate Conception church with confessions, followed by the sacrament of holy communion at the masses at 5 and 8 Saturday morning.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

THAMES BELTING COMPANY ORGANIZED IN NORWICH

The Thames Belting Co. has recently been organized to carry on a leather manufacturing business in Norwich.

L. R. Cochran, who for several years has been general manager of the Ulmer Leather Co., will continue in this capacity for the new concern. The services of several other former employes, including G. M. Schein, superintendent, have been retained, thus eliminating the possibility of Norwich losing a number of skilled workmen.

The new company has purchased all of the belting equipment formerly owned by the Ulmer Leather Co. and will continue to occupy the former Ulmer plant at the foot of Forest street on the West Side.

The Thames Belting Co. as well as the Van Tassel Sole & Leather Co., another new concern which recently started operations at the same address, report very satisfactory progress and Norwich is to be congratulated on having added these two new business concerns to her ever growing list of manufacturing industries.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—(AP)—Virtually all chain stores report increased sales for 1928. Sales of McCrory Stores Corp. totaled $41,103,418 against $39,336,101 in 1927. McLellan Stores Co. reports sales of $13,940,852 against $11,940,327 in 1927. Sales of Borland Shoe Stores, Inc., amounted to $2,587,372 compared to $1,938,999 in 1927. G. C. Murphy Co. of McKeesport, Pa., reports $12,118,187 against $10,233,507 in 1927.

Canada Dry Ginger Ale, Inc., reports closing the most successful year in its history. Net earnings for 1928 are placed at $3,650,000 or $6 a share on 508,689 shares of capital stock. This compares with $2,334,181 or $5.07 a share on 459,706 shares in 1927.

Reports from 145 brick firms on Dec. 1 to Common Brick Manufacturers' association of America shows 537,712,000 burned brick on hand compared to 454,931,000 on hand at 163 plants on Nov. 1 and 538,698,000 at 150 plants on Dec. 1, 1927. Brick moved from yards totaled 180,360,000 against 122,076,000 in November and 187,448,000 in December, 1927. Orders on books totaled 204,189,000 brick, against 145,427,000 in November and 211,961,000 in December, 1927.

The New York Cocoa exchange had the greatest turnover in its history in 1928, when 38,432 lots, or more than a billion pounds of cocoa beans, changed hands on the exchange's floors in futures transactions. The turnover in 1927 was 614 lots, equivalent to 18,420,000 pounds.

Sales of J. J. Newberry Company stores in 1928 increased to $20,524,729 from $18,069,158 in 1927. Metropolitan Chain Stores, Inc., sales in 1928 mounted to $13,546,753 from $12,262,174 in 1927.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—(AP)—Trading was full and listless in the bond market today. While a few speculative and convertible issues made substantial gains the general trend of prices again was irregularly lower. The heaviness of the stock market rather than an easing tendency in money rates seemed chiefly to influence traders.

Although a number of the less active utilities advanced, the group leaders, Public Service of New Jersey 4 1-2s and International Telephone & Telegraph convertible 4 1-2s, continued to sag, Public Service losing more than 8 points.

Stronger issues in the industrial list included Dodge Brothers 6s, North American Cement 6 1-2s, Keith Corporation first 6s, Inland Steel 4 1-2s, A. Certain-Teed 5 1-2s and Chile Copper 5s. There were some fairly wide declines, however, Abraham & Straus 5 1-2s selling off more than 3 points, Anaconda Copper 7s 2, and Transcontinental Oil 6 1-2s, Humble Oil 5 1-2s, Cuban-American Sugar 8s, General Motors Acceptance 6s and Kayser & Co. 5 1-2s showing smaller losses.

Rails were mixed, with the secondary liens chiefly in demand. Most gains were fractional, although Soo 5s, Hudson & Manhattan 5s, Denver & Rio Grande 4s, Long Island & North Shore 5s, Texas & Pacific 5s B and others advanced more than a point each. Chicago Great Western 4s, St. Paul 5s, Atlantic Coast Line 4 1-2s, New Haven 6s, Frisco 4 1-2s and others yielded to selling pressure.

The foreign list was inclined to heaviness, with Italian industrials showing the wider losses. U. S. government bonds attracted little attention and price trends were mixed.

It May Be Urgent

When your Children Cry for It

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctors' word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot put away. And it's always ready for the cruelest pangs of colic or constipation or diarrhea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

INSTANT RELIEF FOR DEAFNESS

Head Noises, Ear Aches

Roaring and hissing sounds, discharge, pains, sensitive and tender ears, all eardrum trouble. You will be surprised how quickly Aurine will help you. You may be a chronic long-time sufferer, you may have tried many things without relief, but do not give up hope before you know what Aurine Ear Balsam can do for you. Dr. Edward Kofler, M. D., said, "Aurine helped cases I had given up as hopeless. A truly remarkable scientific remedy."

Stop paying high prices for earpieces, stop buying expensive treatments and enjoy the glorious relief that more than 100,000 others have found in Aurine. A few drops in each ear and relief comes instantly. Mr. R. P. Maxwell, a well-known Deputy Sheriff, says, "Just started using my second bottle and am glad to state that I can now hear my watch tick. Today was the first time this summer, I heard the church bell ring." No matter how stubborn or what your trouble is, you must try Aurine. No risk, no chance, no doubt. Aurine must do the work or cost you nothing.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Peter Has a Bad Night

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

The best of plans may go askew;
They have for me; they will for you.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit was in high spirits when he reached the Green Forest. A full stomach will put almost anyone in high spirits. Peter was most anxious to find his big cousin, Jumper the Hare, and tell him about the good things he found in Farmer Brown's barn and how that barn could be entered through a little swinging door. He rather hoped that Jumper would go go over there with him.

But it was a long time before he found his cousin, Jumper the Hare. In fact, Peter was quite tired out when at last he saw Jumper in his white coat, hopping down the Crooked Little Path. Peter felt a little pang of envy. He always does when he sees that white of Jumper's. "I would dare do any thing if I had a white coat like that," thought Peter.

Somehow, it seemed to Peter that Jumper wasn't particularly glad to see him. As a matter of fact, Jumper wasn't. He felt that Peter didn't really belong over there in the Green Forest. When food is scarce, company isn't welcome. But Jumper was polite and stopped to talk a bit. Peter poured out the story of the great feast he had had the night before at Farmer Brown's barn. "Come up with me tonight," invited Peter. "It is perfectly safe. We can go up along the Old Stonewall, beside the Old Orchard, and then it will be only a short run over to the little door in Farmer Brown's barn."

"Thank you, Peter," replied Jumper. "It is very kind of you to invite me, but I think I'll stay in the Green Forest. There are dangers enough here without going outside to look for more. You can take such chances if you want to, but as for me, I'll stay where I belong and make the best of things. Now I must be going along. Good by, Peter."

Peter was disappointed and at the same time he was a little provoked. "Oh, well," said he, "if he doesn't want to go with me, he needn't. I'll never again take the trouble to tell him about a good thing. He's afraid, that's what's the matter with him. But I'm not afraid. I'm going over to Farmer Brown's barn tonight just as soon as it is dark enough, and then I'll have another feast."

Peter worked his way up to the Old Orchard. There he sat beside one of his favorite holes in the Old Stonewall. He always felt perfectly safe there. He was waiting for night, when all would be quiet around Farmer Brown's house and dooryard. Then he would slip over there and enter the barn by pushing open the little swinging door that had been provided for Black Pussy the Cat. It was the way he had gone in the night before.

At last all became quiet at Farmer Brown's. The moon was shining and the way seemed perfectly clear. Peter hopped along close to the Old Stonewall until he reached the end of it. Then he sat up and looked across the dooryard. Just as he did so someone turned the corner of the barn. It was Reddy Fox. Peter's eyes opened very wide. He watched Reddy move along slowly, close to the barn, with his nose to the snow. He saw Reddy stop at that little door and with his nose push it in a little. Peter's heart sank.

"He knows about it," thought Peter. "He may not know that I have ever used it, but he knows about that little door. I shall have to be very, very careful when I come out."

Then Reddy started across toward the Old Orchard. Peter turned and scampered back to his favorite hole between the stones in the Old Stonewall. He waited until he saw that Reddy was coming down along the old wall. Then he dodged down out of sight. He hoped Reddy would pass without discovering that he had been over there. Perhaps you can guess how he felt when the voice of Reddy Fox said: "It's a nice evening, Peter. Did you have a good time in Farmer Brown's barn last night? Why not come over there with me now?"

Peter didn't say a word, but he spent a bad night right there.

(Copywright, 1929, by T. W. Burgess.)

The next story: "Hooty the Owl Makes a Mistake."

"Come up with me tonight," invited Peter

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre.

Broadway playboys and detectives, hat check girls from the Ritz and gold-digging girls from the chorus figure in "Naughty Baby," closing tonight at the Breed. It's a First National offering featuring Alice White and Jack Mulhall with Thelma Todd, Doris Dawson, James Ford and Benny Rubin in support.

Fifty-two of Hollywood's most eye-filling girls in bathing suits. Close-ups of them. Side views of them. Blondes, brunettes, red-heads, short and tall, willowy or curvy — all kinds! They form the pulchritudinous human background for beach scenes of "Naughty Baby."

Broadway.

"Sunrise" with Janet Gaynor and George O'Brien playing the leading roles, is the attraction at the Broadway theatre. F. W. Murnau, famous German director, who made "The Last Laugh" and "Faust," was given free reign in "Sunrise."

One of the features of "Sunrise" is what Murnau has termed "scenic moods." It is a new idea in pictures and reveals not only the physical action of the players, but transcribes their mental action as well. "Sunrise" is based on an original theme by Hermann Sudermann. It tells of a tragic emotional revolt of a man against his wife—a revolt born of the wiles of a temptress and shows how his own soul redeems him, his love for his wife enduring in the end.

The story is not laid in any particular country, nor any particular year. Titles were practically eliminated in the picture, as the continuity was comprehensive. In order to "de-nationalize" the picture an enormous set showing the heart of a great city, was built by Murnau in the Fox Hollywood studios. This city not only boasts skyscrapers, rows of apartment houses and street car lines, but an elevated structure that runs through the town as well.

The cast in addition to George O'Brien and Janet Gaynor, consists of Margaret Livingston, Ralph Sipperly, Farrell McDonald, Jane Winton, Bodil Rosing, Arthur Housman and Eddie Boland.

American Legion Play.

The American Legion Follies that bright and colorful revue, which will be presented by the American Legion, under the able direction of Mr. Michael Farrell, will be the outstanding hit of the season. This is assured by the wonderful talent displayed by the cast of characters and the chorus of over forty voices. Mr. Farrell, the director, is a veteran trouper of twenty years experience and he is using his skill to good advantage in bringing out the remarkable talent of his principals and chorus. The lilting airs of the latest song hits of the season are full of sparkling melody and delight. The spectacular settings, the peppy dancing and the extraordinary blending of voices all combine to make this revue an assured stage triumph.

Don't cast your bread upon the waters today and expect to have it come back tomorrow in the form of sponge cake.

NEW LONDON WOMAN KEPT ON SELLING IS FINED $200 FOR FOURTH TIME

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 7—Mrs. Marona Rutski, 137 North Bank street, proprietress of a small store, was tried in the police court this morning on a charge of violation of the liquor law. There was but one count against the woman, actual sale, and as she pleaded guilty, a fine of $200 and costs was imposed. It was the fourth time that the woman has been arrested on a charge of liquor law violation and each time she has been penalized by a fine and costs. Mrs. Rutski was doing business Saturday night and when Patrolman Dennis Murphy noticed Joseph Boyle enter the store, the officer waited a few seconds then he, himself, entered. Boyle was about to drink a purchase of "gin", but was only partially successful, for Murphy seized the glass and succeeded in gaining possession of the greater part of the contents. Boyle was arrested also, but he was discharged today.

George Law, 115 Broad street, was charged with violation of the city's traffic ordinances in passing an automatic danger signal, which was set against him. He was discharged.

Tony Christina, 35 Shaw street, was charged with driving an automobile without having a license and with reckless driving. The latter charge was nolled and on the former a fine of $10 and costs was imposed. Christina was arrested Saturday night by Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin after the car he was driving had collided with an automobile driven by Dr. C. P. Knight, U. S. coast guard.

PEEKED IN WINDOWS BUT CHARGE IS NOLLED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 7—Philip Dorre, 20 Brewer street, was charged with being a "Peeping Tom" but the charge was nolled as the complainant, Harry Scheinman, 75 Washington street, refused to appear against the accused. Dorre was arrested Sunday night by Patrolman Arthur Feeley when Scheinman complained that Dorre had been detected peering through one of the windows of the Scheinman home.

Several cases of intoxication were tried and in most instances a fine was imposed by Judge Victor Prince.

Mitchell Hyslop, 69 Hempstead street, a stevedore at the wharf of the Central Vermont Railroad company, was presented on a charge of breach of the peace, the original charge of assault having been amended by the substitution of the less serious offense. He pleaded not guilty, but on the testimony introduced Hyslop was found guilty and was fined $100 and costs. He gave notice of appeal and furnished a surety on his bond for his appearance in the next criminal court of common pleas.

A NORWICH MAN FINDS BOTTLE THROWING COSTLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 7—Boris Avedevich, Norwich, was charged with breach of the peace in hurling a bottle into the street, the fragments being scattered in the highway. He was fined $10 and costs. Avedevich was on North Bank street and was arrested by Patrolman Dennis Murphy when the Norwich man was observed to deliberately smash the bottle.

John Gronderk of Gardner lake, made complaint to the police this morning that he had been attacked and bitten by a dog while walking in front of the premises, 18 Fourth street. The complaint was referred to Dog Warden John Sweeny.

Collector of Taxes Hibbard N. Alexander today issued releases of tax warrants against Francesca Scialabba and Samuel and Fannie Lutin, the latter of Hartford.

Katherine Williams has sold a house and lot on Huntington street to Stanley and Jessie Preda.

Theodore Bodenwein has sold an undivided one-half interest in a building lot on Norwood avenue to Michael and Mary Hallisey. Margaret Whittlesey Mahan, administratrix of the estate of Bryan F. Mahan, has sold the remaining one-half interest in the property to Mr. and Mrs. Hallisey.

Mrs. Florence Manning of 37 Cover street; Paul Kuhn, 120 Riverview avenue; Peter Juerinic, U. S. coast guard and Thomas Perry, 613 Main street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged over the week-end.

FUNERALS.

Mrs. Augustus Kopp.

The funeral of Mrs. Minnie Kopp, wife of Augustus Kopp, was held this afternoon at her home, 8 Connecticut avenue, the services being conducted by Rev. J. APPLICANTS FOR POSTMASTER'S POSITION MUST FILE SOON

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—The civil service commission announces that the applicants for the post mastership vacancy at New London must file with the commission not later than January 29th. Already the New London town committee has recommended the appointment of Philip K. Dewire, now acting postmaster, and Congressman Freeman will also recommend his appointment. As Dewire is on the classified civil service list, he will not be required to pass further examination, and his experience will count in his favor in the rating, although if not classified, it would require the necessity of examination.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 7—Barbara Clapp, 5 a pupil at the Harbor school, was struck by an automobile driven by Joseph Vescovi, of Niles Hill road, this afternoon. The child has a fractured leg and is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. The girl was on her way to school and when she attended to run across the street at the corner of Montauk avenue and School street, she was run down by the auto. Patrolman Elwood Bailey was on duty nearby and had the child taken to the hospital.

SUBMARINE DEFENDER DELAYED UNTIL THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 7—The submarine Defender, which has been expected to arrive in this port daily, has been delayed enroute from its base and will not get here until Thursday at the latest, according to word received by officers at the base this morning. The delay is attributed to the fact that several mooring drums were lost in transit.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John W. Manwaring

Mrs. Mary Manwaring, 91, widow of John W. Manwaring, who stated the Oswegatchie house, Waterford, died yesterday at the home of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Selden B. Manwaring of Waterford. Death followed an illness of about a week. Recently she celebrated her 91th birthday by entertaining friends at her home. She was born in New London, February 26, 1837, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Morgan. She is survived by two daughters-in-law, Mrs. Selden B. Rockwell-Platt

Announcement was made today of the marriage of Harold A. Rockwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rockwell of Summit avenue, in New York Saturday afternoon to Miss Elisabeth Platt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Platt, of New York city. After the ceremony a reception was held at a Fifth avenue hotel for about 150 guests.

The case of Leno Bottinelli, of 195 Pequot avenue was continued in the police court this morning to January 14. Bottinelli a few weeks ago ran over and killed Richard Beckwith of Howard street and the reason for the continuance was that Coroner Edward G. McKay of Norwich has not yet been able to determine the exact cause of the accident.

Another case of influenza has been reported in this city. This is the second to come to the attention of medical authorities.

Work on tearing down and carrying away the debris resulting from the recent disastrous fire on the State Pier is rapidly nearing completion. Before the end of the week it is expected that the razing will be completed.

Patients dismissed today from Memorial hospital were Mrs. Burton Gates, 35 Learned street; Mrs. Frank Racine, 20 Steward street; Mrs. Robert Gaines, Ridgewood Park, Waterford and Peter Moriano, of Shaw street.

His case will be called in the police court tomorrow.

The New London police recovered a stolen automobile this afternoon as a result of the alertness of Patrolman George Perkins. The officer observed that a Rhode Island car, carrying registration, 13333, a Paige brougham, had been parked several hours at the corner of Winthrop street and Crystal avenue. Inquiry of the Providence police brought the information that the machine was stolen in that city Sunday night. An officer of the Providence police will come to this city and take charge of the car.

Patrolman Patrick Sheehan resumed duty tonight after having been confined to his home, Crystal avenue, a fortnight by illness.

FIVE PROPERTIES ATTACHED TO SATISFY CREDITORS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 7—Certificates of attachments of five properties have been made by Deputy Sheriff J. H. Tubbs and the same have been received for record at the office of the city clerk: Property owned by William T. Connor, this city, and Bernard F. and Mary E. Carroll, Brookline, Mass., has been attached by the New England Trust Co., Boston, to satisfy a claim of $15,000. The case is returnable before the next term of the superior court.

Dennis Devine has brought suit against Michael F. Carver and property of the defendant has been attached in the sum of $750, the Carver residence, Brooks street, being attached. The case is returnable before the court of common pleas. The plaintiff claims that the defendant owes him $450 for plumbing work and payment cannot be collected without legal action.

Hillhouse & Taylor, Windham, have caused an attachment of $350 to be made against property of Reubin Lubchansky, Broad street, in connection with a suit in the superior court in which plaintiffs claim that the defendants owe them $264.89. Property of Lubchansky on Broad and Parker streets has also been attached by the Thames Sheet Metal Works, it being claimed that the defendant owes the plaintiff $323.17. The latter property was attached in the sum of $5,000.

Moriarty Bros., Inc., have caused an attachment to be levied against property of Thomas Humphries, Park avenue, plaintiffs claiming that Humphries is indebted to them for merchandise furnished him.

COUNCIL WILLING TO MODIFY APARTMENT LAW OF 600 SQ. FT.

(Special to The Bulletin.

NEW LONDON, Jan. 7—The city council held the longest meeting of its career this evening, much of the time being consumed in discussion of the provisions of the zoning act. The J. Wallace Harney Co., Inc., some time ago purchased the John J. Stanton residence for the purpose of altering it into an apartment house, providing 32 apartments, most of them of two or three rooms. This brought a protest from residents nearby. An appeal was taken to the zoning commission appeals board. A provision of the zoning act provides for 600 square feet to an apartment. Now, the zoning board is of the opinion that that provision is too strict. They want to modify it but are unable to do so because of ordinance provisions.

It was pointed out that in Hartford and New Haven the provision is for 300 square feet to an apartment. The Stanton house is located within zoning area No. 3. Judge Alfred Colt represented the Harney Co., Attorney Charles Smiddy spoke for the zoning commission and Theodore Bodenwein, a member of the zoning board, expressed his opinion. Judge Colt pleaded for a modification of the zoning board provisions and neither Smiddy nor Bodenwein objected to a modification, both claiming that there is a demand for small apartments, which is not met. Blueprints were examined and the whole matter was thoroughly canvassed with the result that the matter was referred to the public welfare committee Friday, as it is desired to go on with the work.

Contractor Chapman explained for the Harney Co. that the building would be a handsome brick structure and an ornament, architecturally to the street. The size of families entered into the discussion in relation to the 600 square feet space allowed. It was explained that the small apartments would be used by two or three people.

A dozen building applications were granted. An appropriation of $6 600 was voted for Riverside sewer.

The council voted to buy 50 manhole covers for $948.50. Councilor Twomey objected, claiming that the manholes in use could be reinforced and still used.

The council voted to buy 400 yards of soft coal cinders at $1.19 a yard, which was one cent lower than the next bid.

A petition was presented, asking for the naming of one of the new cruisers for New London. Councilor Fox said there was no hurry about this, that there was no prospect now of building them, any more than there is a prospect of establishing the Four-Day line steamers here.

It was voted to extend the Ledyard street sewer. Louisa Bishop, owner of land on Broad street, made a claim against the city for $7,500 damages for the taking of her land. She claimed that the city entered into possession of it, used it, and left it in such a condition that she could not make much use of it, since 1917.

Taxpayers in the Riverside section protested against having to pay their sewer assessments by Feb. 1. It was shown that this was required under charter provisions and could not be changed. Councilor White asked if the protestants did not petition for the sewer and promise to pay under the charter provisions. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

Councilor May brought up the matter of the proposed removal of the superintendent at Hillside home. He asked the city manager to explain the facts but no reply was forthcoming and May said he would ask for it at the next meeting.

Dollie F. Hirsh gave notice of a claim for damages from the city for injuries she sustained from falling on ice on a Williams street sidewalk.

Residents of Maple avenue sought information as to the rights of the New Haven railroad to erect a fence there. Director of Law Troland explained that this matter had been brought to the court of common pleas and it was found that the railroad had the right, as this was not a public crossing, at grade. The supreme court of Connecticut later confirmed this decision.

The only way a crossing can be built here is underneath or overhead. However, action may be started and if it is found the crossing is a public necessity the project may be pursued to a finish in court.

The court of common council, at its January meeting in the council chamber Monday evening, paid tribute to the late Jeremiah J. Desmond, former mayor of the city, by adopting a resolution in his memory. The memorial resolution is to be entered in the records of the city and a copy is to be sent to Mrs. Desmond.

The meeting was called to order a few minutes after 8 o'clock by His Honor, Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, and the minutes of the previous meeting were accepted without reading, according to custom. Petitions were received and referred as follows:

From Edna Leavitt for an electric light opposite No. 216 Elizabeth street, referred to the police commissioners with power.

From Andrzej Jurzicki for an electric light on Lorenzo street, referred to the police commissioners with power.

From the United Workers for an electric light in front of their premises at No. 9 Washington street, referred to the police commissioners with power.

From J. Theve, et al., asking that the council change the name of Denham street, to Casper street, to avoid confusion with Dunham street, referred to the public works committee.

From J. Theve, et al., asking that the city accept as public highways Elijah street, Lorenzo street and Denham street, referred to the public works committee.

From Thomas J. Sullivan and about a hundred others calling attention to the poor condition of Seventh street, between Prospect street and Boswell avenue, and requesting the city to make needed repairs. Referred to the public works committee.

For Changing Street Names

Mayor Robbins stated, for the information of the council, that he is endeavoring to have members of the Woman's City club circulate petitions for the purpose of securing changes in the names of streets that have the same names or similar names.

A report from the city milk inspector, Dr. Clarence G. Thompson, covering his activities the past six months was received and ordered placed on file.

To Represent City

The council then adopted a resolution authorizing the corporation counsel to appear and act in behalf of the city at the general assembly, which convenes at Hartford this week, in any matters in which the city is interested. Among the more important matters to come before the general assembly are action on the proposed new city charter, and action on a private bill which would authorize the city to issue bonds in order to meet the expenses or debts of the city that will mature in 1930 and 1931, should a bond issue be found necessary.

Another resolution adopted, directs the city treasurer to pay to James L. Case, $100 in settlement of his $125 claim for damage done to awnings stored in his garage, by water overflowing from a sewer.

Memorial Resolution

A memorial resolution, as a tribute to the late Jeremiah J. Desmond, was unanimously adopted. The resolution reads as follows:

On Nov. 26, 1928, the Honorable Jeremiah J. Desmond died at his residence in this city.

His death came as a shock, though it followed a long illness. The community felt a genuine grief at the loss of one who had and merited great public admiration and distinction. He had the friendship and love of all our citizens.

Mr. Desmond was a successful attorney-at-law and was engaged during his career in much important litigation and was an excellent counsellor and his advice was often sought and highly valued. He was mayor of the City of Norwich from 1918 to 1920 and gave his legal learning, best efforts and endeavors then, and at all times, for the best interests of our city and the public welfare.

Resolved—That as a mark of our respect for Mr. Desmond, this memorial to our former mayor be entered upon the records of this court of common council and that a copy of it, attested by the clerk, be transmitted to the family of Mr. Desmond.

Report on Crane Avenue

Reporting for the public works committee, Alderman Dahl stated that the committee had inspected Crane avenue, in response to a petition asking its acceptance as a public highway, and find that it is in no condition at the present time to be accepted. The alderman stated that if the property owners place the street in proper shape the committee will further consider the petition.

Alderman Paul Zahn, reporting for the fire commissioners, informed the council that the commissioners had named Deputy Chief Henry R. Taft acting chief of the fire department from Jan. 1 to and including June 30, and had named Capt. Dennis J. Brennan acting deputy chief for the same period. The temporary appointments were made necessary as Chief Howard L. Stanton, who is to be retired July 1, is on a six months leave of absence. The appointments were approved by the council.

Monthly Reports and Bills

The monthly reports of the street commission and city treasurer and the quarterly report of the fire marshal were all received and accepted. The fire marshal's report showed a total of 81 building permits granted during the quarter.

Monthly bills were ordered approved, as follows:

Recreation commission, $33; police department, $6,410.85; street lighting, $3,547.30; water dept., $4,261.07; Deep River reservoir, $594.51; fire dept., $8,419.99; gas and electric dept., $48,110.68; finance dept., $20,098.43; public works dept., $10,899.95; cemetery dept., $459.99; park dept., $303.63. The council adjourned about 8:30 o'clock.

TWO WOMEN ORDERED TO LEAVE MONTVILLE

Barbara Manierre and Blanche Giey were before Justice of the Peace Lewis LaBounty in Montville on Saturday, charged with keeping a disorderly house in the Trading Cove section of the town. Their cases were nolled on payment of costs and they were ordered to leave town within a week. George M. Stewart and Patrick A. Lynch, both of this city, charged with frequenting, had their cases nolled on payment of costs. The accused, who were arrested Friday night by Constable George Sisson of Montville, were represented in court by Attorney Thomas M. Shields.

Masquerade Dance for Class

A masquerade dance was held Monday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock at the Wauregan hotel by the members of Mrs. Edward G. Andrews' dancing class. The costumes were varied and beautiful. The programme included the following numbers: Entrance march, fox trot, waltz, Paul Jones, Mancier, Duchess, In Colonial Days, Swiss Martiners and Russian Polka. There were several toe dancing exhibitions by members of the toe dancing class and Miss Ruth Crowe entertained with two vocal solos. Refreshments were served.

SOPRANO AND VIOLINIST IN ENJOYABLE PROGRAMME

Two local artists, Mrs. Josephine Stewart, soprano and Henry Brynan, violinist, on the programme of the Norwich Music association for Monday evening at Slater hall annex, made the January meeting one of anticipation and the rendering of their selections made the programme one of special enjoyment for the members. Their pleasure was amply shown by their enthusiastic and spontaneous applause.

The programme opened with finely rendered violin numbers by Mr. Brynan, who played Handel's Sonata in D in four movements. This was followed by Mrs. Stewart, whose sweet soprano voice was used with most pleasing effect in her group of songs, which included Morgen Hymne (Henschel); O Lieb So Lang Du Lieben Kannst (Liszt); with an aria from Louise, which was splendidly given.

Mr. Brynan followed with an interesting group which he played with rare skill, the numbers being Nocturne (Boulanger); En Bateu (Debussy); and Hopak (Moussorgsky-Rachmaninoff). Mrs. Stewart especially pleased her audience with the next group of songs which included The Diver (McMillian); Dreams Tell Me Truly (Burleigh); The Cunnin' Little Thing (Hageman); and Love's a Merchant (Carew).

The programme closed with Mr. Brynan's violin solo, Polonaise Brilliante (Wieniawski), which was played with praiseworthy technique and tonal quality.

GIVES NEW YEARS MESSAGE AT RADIATOR PLANT MEETING

Under Y. M. C. A. auspices, another interesting noon meeting was held Monday at the plant of the Richmond Radiator company. In behalf of the "Y" management, General Secretary Edwin Hill wished the workers "A Happy New Year," and announced as the topic for the day, "Some Suggestions For The New Year." Rev. C. H. Ricketts was again the speaker, and he held the undivided attention of the group from the beginning to the end of his message. Mr. Ricketts spoke in part as follows. "It is difficult to say much of anything new about the new year, but perhaps some old things emphasized will not be amiss. As we enter the new year, we should look upon life as an adventure. We have never been this way before, and we will never go this way again. If a man is wise as he begins the new year, he will go through the year with some kind of a guide. A man needs something more than his own intelligence; something outside himself.

"A man should enter 1929 with great courage; with some line of determination. Every man will have his successes and his failures. We should face the new year with a good degree of faith: faith in ones self, and faith in his fellowmen. A man has a right to have faith in himself, not of course to become egotistic. He certainly should have faith in his fellowmen. We go out, not so much with knowledge as with faith. We don't know what is ahead of us; God has wisely hid from us what will come to us in the future. A man makes a great mistake to be thinking all the time what may happen. One step at a time is good enough; it was enough for that Godly man, Cardinal Newman, and it is good enough for me.

"To a large extent, a man is happy in proportion as he has faith in his fellowmen. While some of them are bad, I believe most of them are worth putting faith in, and I am going forth this year with faith in myself and faith in my fellowmen.

"I ought to remember that I owe certain duties both to my fellowmen and to myself, and I should discharge these duties faithfully. I like to speak with the children, and I find that they quickly respond to the cheery word. It is a pleasure to visit the sick in the hospital and to try to bring them a bit of cheer; they appreciate it always.

"Every man should determine that no day shall pass without his doing some good to someone else.

"We should pray to God that he may make us men of courage; real men. We must expect to have hardships, and they are good for us. A man who has no hardships don't amount to "a hill of beans." Hardships develop us. We should go forth in Gods great name to face anything and everything. We get more power by doing things. We should go through the year with a sacrificial spirit. A parents sacrifices for his worthy children pays very large dividends. I do not forget that others have sacrificed for me, and I keep in mind the great sacrifice Christ made for every man."

DISTRICT SALES MANAGER FOR NATL. BISCUIT CO.

The National Biscuit company has selected Robert Charles as district sales manager to preside over its newly created central and southern New England territory, which includes the Norwich sales agency. This announcement is of unusual interest because it provides the sequel to the recent decision of the "Uneeda Bakers" to split its New England territory into two parts, to properly handle its ever increasing volume of business there.

Mr. Charles is a veteran member of the "Uneeda Bakers" selling forces and has held various positions with unusual distinction. His record of over 12 years in New England includes that of salesman in the Jamaica and Hartford sales agencies and sales agent of the Lowell, Bridgeport and Springfield sales agencies in the order named.

FORMER NORWICH MAN MARRIES IN NEW YORK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Daniel F. Devine, 31, formerly of Norwich, Conn., but at present residing at 219 Cherry street, New York, and Alice M. Manning, 41, of this city, obtained a license to wed at the municipal building last Saturday. They were to be married in New York later in the day.

Mr. Devine was born in Norwich, the son of Patrick and Mary Leary Devine. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mary Manning. She was born in Ireland.

DISMISSES APPEAL IN BOLZ COMPENSATION CASE

Judge John Richards Booth of the superior court has dismissed the appeal in the workmen's compensation case of Mrs. Irene Bolz of 22 Grove street against the United States Finishing Co., where her husband, William Bolz, was employed up to the time of his death. Judge Booth's decision, which has been filed with Clerk John H. Walker of the superior court, sustains the award made by Compensation Commissioner Albert J. Bailey who directed that the insurance company carrying the United States Finishing Co. risk pay Mrs. Bolz $17.87 per week for 312 weeks besides $200 for funeral expenses. The insurance company took an appeal.

Mr. Bolz received an injury to his thumb while at work as a machinist on April 9, 1928, from which infection resulted and his death followed.

VERMONT PASTOR ACCEPTS CALL TO STONINGTON

Rev. P. W. Back, pastor of the Baptist church at Passumpsic, Vt., has resigned to accept a similar position with the Baptist church in Stonington, and leaves Vermont soon for his new charge in Connecticut. Mr. Back received his religious training at the Gordon School of Theology in Boston and has held pastorates in Arlington, Mass., and Somerville, Mass. For five years he was with the Evangelical Association of New England with headquarters at Tremont temple in Boston and in this capacity did evangelistic work in all the New England states.

In the four and one-half years he has been at Passumpsic he has built up the church in many ways and both the pastor and wife have entered heartily into the community life of the village. He has also often participated in religious services in the neighboring town of St. Johnsbury, supplying on many occasions not only the pulpit of the Union Baptist church of that town but pulpits of other denominations.

375,000 Jars Vicks Now Produced Every 24 Hours

That the public has not forgotten the lesson of 1918 is indicated by its prompt responses to the warning of health authorities to combat the flu by keeping free from colds.

The demand for Vicks Vapo-Rub, the vaporizing salve which proved so valuable during the 1918 epidemic, has already shattered by a wide margin all previous records.

Although the capacity of the Vicks laboratories has been tripled since 1918, they are once more operating night shifts. The present output is more than 375,000 jars every 24 hours.

Mild though it is in comparison with 1918, this year's epidemic has already affected more than a million persons, and it is apparently still increasing.

EDUCATIONAL ADVANCEMENT SHOWN IN CONNECTICUT

Statistics covering the past ten years have been prepared by the state board of education to show the progress along educational lines in Connecticut in that time.

These make the following showing:

In September 1927 there were 876,045 children enumerated between the ages of 4 and 16 years. During the school year 1917-18 242,870 pupils were enrolled in the public schools of the state. This figure in 1927-28 was 307,560, an increase of 26 per cent in the decade. During this period the average daily attendance grew from 190,897 to 262,392 or 37 per cent. There has been a marked increase in the regularity of attendance. In 1917-18 the average daily attendance was 78 per cent of the enrollment, ten years later it was 85 per cent.

In 1917-18 there were 6,915 elementary teachers and 1,018 high school teachers employed in the public schools. These figures a decade later were 7,579 and 1,635 respectively. During this time the average salary of a teacher increased from $797 to $1,660. Expressed in the terms of the 1913 dollar these average salaries would have been equivalent to $580 and $965 respectively in that year. These figures should be considered in connection with the fact that only 59 per cent of the teachers in 1917-18 were normal school graduates while ten years later 70 per cent were normal school graduates.

There have been some very significant changes in the number of schools during the decade. The number of high schools has almost doubled, 1917-18—49; 1927-28—88. This means that many more children in the state have the opportunity of a high school education. The period has witnessed the introduction and rather rapid rise of the junior high school. In 1927-28 there were 15 junior high schools in the state. The effect of the increased number of high schools will be clearly seen in a later paragraph dealing with attendance.

In the elementary schools there has been a marked decrease in number. In 1917-18 there were 1,430 while in 1927-28 there were only 1,267. This does not mean decreased opportunities for elementary school attendance but rather a movement toward larger schools with a better educational program. It is further significant that a large part of this decrease was due to the gradual elimination of the one-room schools. In 1917-18 there were 751 one-room schools. Ten years later there were only 536, a decrease of 29 per cent.

During the decade public school property has tripled in value, 1917-18—$30,000,000; 1927-28—$90,000,000. In the same length of time current expenditures for schools have increased from $8,910,000 to $25,600,000 or 187 per cent. Much of this rather striking increase is due to social and economic changes over which those in charge of schools have little or no control and not wholly to a more expensive type of educational service. In the following paragraphs an attempt will be made to show the relative importance of the factors causing the increase in school costs.

The decade under consideration has seen a large growth in school attendance. As stated above the average daily attendance has increased 37 per cent. It is further significant to note that a considerable part of this growth in attendance has been in the secondary school which is more expensive. The high school average daily attendance in 1917-18 was 21,000 and in 1927-28—36,000, an increase of 71.6 per cent. Taking the latter fact in consideration and using an adjusted average daily attendance figure, the current expenses per pupil in average daily attendance in 1917-18 was $44.81 and ten years later $92.76, an increase of 107 per cent.

Another factor which has unavoidably influenced the cost of schools as well as all other activities is the changing value of the dollar. In terms of the 1913 dollar the dollar in 1917-18 was worth 70.3 cents while the 1927-28 dollar was worth only 58.1 cents. If this change is allowed for by changing the current expenses per pupil in average daily attendance to the basis of the 1913 dollar the figure for 1917-18 becomes $31.46 and that for 1927-28—$53.93, an increase of 71.4 per cent.

In other words although the current expenses for 1927-28 were three times the corresponding figure for 1917-18, a large part of this increase was due to an increase in the number of pupils attending schools and to a decrease in the value of a dollar. When these factors are eliminated the increase which must be charged to a more expensive type of educational service is 73 per cent or considerably less than one-half of the total increase in current expenditures.

Suffered Severe Injuries

Herbert Clark of 218 West Main street and Mrs. Mary Bates of 224 West Main street, who were injured Nov. 15 in an automobile accident on the Hope Valley road, R. I., have returned from the Westerly hospital. Mr. Clark is very lame and has lost the use of his right eye. Mrs. Bates will return to the hospital in a few days for a serious operation for internal injuries. Miss Betty Bates who was hurt at the same time, having suffered a broken ankle and other contusions, will remain at the hospital for another month.

Paid Fine In City Court.

Max Moskowitz of Jewett City, paid $3 in the city court Monday morning on a charge of operating a motor vehicle without having his driver's license with him. He was arrested at Franklin square Saturday night after the machine he was driving figured in a collision with another machine owned by William F. Welton, Stanton avenue, and operated by John Morosky of Uncasville. The accident happened at Franklin square.

PLAINTIFF'S VERDICT IN COMSTOCK VS. HARRINGTON

The jury of six men in the justice's court before John H. Barnes as judge returned a verdict for the plaintiff Monday afternoon in the summary process suit of Miss Carrie Comstock of New London against John T. Harrington, proprietor of the monumental works on Franklin street at its intersection with Pond street. She brought the suit to eject him from the location.

The jury returned the verdict at 5.10 o'clock in the afternoon, after being out about an hour. The earlier part of the day was occupied by the arguments by Attorneys Arthur T. Libby and Thomas J. Kelly for Miss Comstock and Henry H. Pettis and Edmund W. Perkins for Mr. Harrington. Judge Barnes gave the case to the jury at 4 o'clock after delivering his charge.

It is understood that the defendant has 48 hours in which to file a writ of error, which is in effect an appeal to the common pleas court. Unless the writ is filed Mr. Harrington has to give up possession of the location.

The jury consisted of Charles P. Bushnell, George W. Armstrong, Albie L. Hale, P. T. Connell and James McNally with Albert W. Lillibridge as foreman.

SPINAL MENINGITIS ON DESTROYER MONAGHAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 7—Spinal meningitis has developed among the crew of the U. S. Coast Guard destroyer Monaghan, moored at the state pier, and every effort is being made to prevent the spreading of the malady. When the disease was discovered, one of the sailors being taken ill, it became known that other members of the crew had been in contact with the stricken seaman and orders were issued to the shore patrol to pick up these bluejackets that they might be sent to the Mitchell ward of Lawrence-Memorial hospital as a precautionary measure.

TELL EASY WAY TO FIGHT FLU

Health Authorities Say "Foolish to Take Needless Risks"...Urge Simple Precautions

Important to Remove Germs From Hands Often

WITH city after city throughout the country, reporting more cases of flu every day—as many as a million new ones in a week—health authorities are urging people to take every precaution against this dread ailment.

Always remember that hands may spread influenza, just as they carry and spread the germs of other serious diseases. No one can escape contact with germs, authorities say. Every time we handle money, use a public telephone, touch a car strap or doorknob, we are likely to pick up germs which some one's soiled hands have left for us. For this reason, health officials advise every one to take the simplest of precautions and remove germs from hands frequently.

Greater safety in an antiseptic toilet soap

Since the outbreak of the flu, countless new thousands of people have turned to the famous Lifebuoy Health Soap. As is well known, this popular toilet soap possesses an antiseptic, germ-removing lather.

It is not enough to wash hands once or twice daily. Lifebuoy should be used many times during the day, especially before eating, for, as pathologists point out, germs get into our systems principally by direct conveyance from hand to mouth. It is important, too, that this habit of frequently removing germs from hands be practiced not only now, but at all times—just as doctors themselves do to protect themselves and their patients.

Teachers in over 63,000 schools have taught children the Lifebuoy way to guard health. Now countless thousands of mothers are being urged to follow this splendid example.

Lifebuoy is obtainable in practically every store. Its cost is no greater than other toilet soaps, so you secure its extra protection free.

Other precautions urged are as follows: Keep out of crowds. Get plenty of sleep, fresh air, and nourishing food. Take plenty of exercise. Avoid exposure. And lastly, if you have the real flu, don't take "home remedies"—call a doctor.

HEARING THURSDAY ON FENN BILL FOR REAPPORTIONMENT

Lines Are Being Drawn in the House For a Battle Over the Bill—Representative Rankin, Democrat, Has Filed a Minority Report Against the Measure—Representative Fenn, Author of the Bill, Declares That the Prospects For Passage Are Brighter Than Ever.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—(AP)—Taut lines are being drawn in the house for a battle over the Fenn bill for reapportionment of the 435 representatives among the several states. The measure today was scheduled by the rules committee for consideration Thursday.

Chairman Fenn of the census committee, author of the proposal, declared after a conference with colleagues that the measure "has the best chance for adoption of any reapportionment measure submitted in the past decade and that the prospects for passage were brighter than ever."

Representative Rankin, Mississippi, ranking democrat on the house census committee, filed a minority report against the measure, and issued a statement characterizing the bill as "undemocratic and an unwarranted delegation of constitutional power with the secretary of commerce now vested in the census."

While the minority report bore no other signatures than Rankin's the Mississippian said nearly all the democrats in the house and many republicans would oppose the measure.

The majority report pointed out that the last reapportionment was made in 1921 when 435 representatives were allocated to 91,000,000 persons. It charged that by the failure to make a reapportionment in 1920, more than 13,000,000 persons have been without fair and equitable representation.

The Fenn measure would become effective at the end of the 71st congress and would provide for reapportionment of the representatives of each fifth congress thereafter.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR THE FENN CENSUS BILL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—The prospects for passing the Fenn census bill at this session brightened today when it became known that the senate is likely to soften its antagonism to the measure and meet the differences more than half way, when the bill goes to conference, should it not pass the senate in its present form. The senate regards reapportionment as a matter of far more consequence to the house than to the senate and as a matter of courtesy is likely to yield its preference as to detail. This change of heart came as a surprise to some of the opponents of the bill but Floor Leader Tilson feels that the measure will pass both senate and house before the end of the present session.

BELIEF IN WITCHCRAFT NOT LEGAL INSANITY

YORK, Pa., Jan. 8—(AP)—Judge Sheppard, presiding in the trial of John H. Blymyer for murder of Nelson D. Helmeyer, threw consternation into the ranks of the defense today when he ruled that belief in witchcraft, or similar "delusions" do not constitute legal insanity.

The ruling came when the defense produced the first witness to establish the basis for a plea of insanity. Blymyer was a leader in a cult in which the murdered man also was a practitioner, which professed belief in the power of "boxing," i. e. the casting of spells.

Herbert B. Cohen, counsel for Blymyer in opening had announced he would prove his client insane.

Blymyer, he said, was obsessed with a notion that he was under a spell and the attorney, who was appointed by the court, was ready to introduce testimony to that effect when the court refused to permit it. So greatly did the court's ruling upset the defense plans that Cohen asked for an adjournment in order to properly prepare his case.

Blymyer's face took on a worried look when the court ruled out any testimony relating to his superstition as irrelevant.

FOUR TRUE BILLS FOUND GAMBLERS' PAY-OFF MAN

CHICAGO, Jan. 8—(AP)—Oliver J. Ellis, who as pay-off man for the Cicero Heights gambling and liquor syndicate said he handled more than $50,000 a month, today was reported to have been named by the county grand jury in four true bills charging him with operating gambling devices.

Ellis was one of more than a score of men arrested in the suburb Sunday in a wholesale raid by federal agents and the Chicago police who descended on the town of 25,000 at dawn, took over the city hall and in the raids seized guns, ammunition, liquor and more than 400 slot machines, the latter at Ellis' home.

While federal agents said Ellis statedfrankly that he was the payoff man for the gambling syndicate, he refused to name four other men, two of them reported to be county politicians, who shared the $50,000 a month with him. Whether the names were learned by the grand jury today the state's attorney's office refused to say.

HEIR TO $3,000,000 ESTATE FOUND DEAD OF EXPOSURE

CHICAGO, Jan. 8—(AP)—Documents found on the effects of an itinerant merchant who died of exposure in a West side rooming house yesterday, led police to believe he may have been the heir to a $3,000,000 Florida estate.

The body was found in a dingy basement room, and police ordered it buried in the Potter's field.

Today two satchels that held the man's worldly goods were opened and through correspondence found in them it was indicated he was Benjamin Wyatt, 58, nephew and chief heir of the late Alexander Terwilliger, millionaire real estate pioneer of Florida. Terwilliger's estate, still in probate, was estimated to be worth from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 in newspaper articles found in the bags. The pioneer left no will, but correspondence indicated Wyatt, his nephew, would be the principal beneficiary of the estate.

Wyatt's widow, from whom he was estranged, lives with five children in Fitzsimmons, Ga.

URGES EXTENSION OF LIFE OF FED. RADIO COMMISSION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—(AP)—Urging the extension of the life of the federal radio commission for another year, Chairman Robinson of the commission testified today before the house merchant marine committee that in his opinion radio broadcasting and reception conditions were better before the commission's reallocations in November than "they are now."

The chairman advocated continuance of the commission's existence so that it could among other duties correct errors in the new radio station assignments if they have occurred.

THIRTY-DAY REPRIEVE GRANTED GANGI CERO

BOSTON, Jan. 8—(AP)—After a special meeting today the governor's council granted a third 30-day reprieve to Gangi Cero of Brooklyn, N. Y., under sentence of death in the electric chair for the murder of Joseph Faraone, in this city in 1927. The reprieve granted today will expire at midnight Feb. 7.

LIFE IMPRISONMENT FOR FOUR OF THE BIRGER GANG

MARION, Ill., Jan. 8—(AP)—Four members of the Charlie Birger gang of southern Illinois gunmen, were sentenced to life imprisonment this afternoon by Circuit Judge D. T. Hartwell for the slaying of Mrs. Ethel Price, who with her husband, State Highway Patrolman Lory L. Price, was kidnaped and slain two years ago.

The four are Art Newman, chief lieutenant of Birger; Leslie Simpson, Freddie Wooten and Riley Simmons.

In addition to the life sentence, each was sentenced to serve 57 years in prison for conspiracy to murder Mrs. Price and 57 years in prison for conspiracy to murder her husband. Under these sentences, which were recommended by State's Attorney Roy Browning, none of the four will be eligible for parole for 58 years.

All four had pleaded guilty to the slaying of Mrs. Price and the sentencing followed a hearing at which all four testified. Browning had made an agreement with defense attorneys to recommend that none of the four be sentenced to death, but that all be given life imprisonment.

QUESTION MARK IN SHAPE TO TAKE THE AIR AGAIN

METROPOLITAN AIRPORT, Los Angeles, Jan. 8—(AP)—Minor repairs to the three army Wright Whirlwind motors that carried the monoplane Question Mark to its astounding record of 150 hours and 40 minutes of continuous flight today put the big ship in shape to take the air again.

An "autopsy" performed on the motors by army officers disclosed that they were not dead at all and had stood up under nearly seven days of ceaseless duty with only trivial wear that could be overcome by quick adjustments.

Plans were made for a flight to Rockwell field, San Diego, this afternoon, but it was finally decided to delay the take-off until probably Thursday to permit a more detailed examination of the engines and also allow the hardy crew of five men who landed the ship yesterday after its historic flight some much neded rest and recreation.

It was announced that the same engines used in the endurance test will furnish the power for the Question Mark on its triumphant journey back to its home station at Washington, D. C.

GOVERNOR OF OKLAHOMA CHARGED WITH INEFFICIENCY

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 8—(AP)—Insurgent democrats who for months have avowedly sought the impeachment of Gov. Henry S. Johnston, joined with republicans when the Oklahoma legislature convened today and gained control of the house organization.

The coalition forced the adoption of rules providing for a committee of committees, which will enable the bloc to dominate the impending investigation of state departments.

Representative Allen Street of Oklahoma City, regarded as favorable to the Johnston administration, resigned as speaker of the house when shorn of his appointive powers by creation of the committee. He had been elected speaker a few hours earlier without opposition from the coalitionists.

Inefficiency is one of the principal charges brought against Governor Johnston, a democrat, by opponents within the party.

REPARATIONS SETTLEMENT PROBABLE IN SPRING

PARIS, Jan. 8—(AP)—Final settlement of the irritating question of reparations will, it was predicted in reparations commission circles today, come with the advent of spring. This forecast was based on the work of the Dawes committee and men closely associated with the new effort to end financial controversies between Germany and the allies, calculated it would require two months to go over the ground again.

As the experts will assemble in Paris the first Monday in February, their report ought to be due about April 1.

JENNY DOLLY MAY ESCAPE OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS

PARIS, Jan. 8—(AP)—Jenny Dolly, one of the noted American dancing sisters, may escape the operation for appendicitis which was announced last night as having been set for tomorrow. She was to have entered a private clinic at 3 p. m. but the doctors decided to wait another 12 hours to see if the case would yield to treatment.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 8—(AP)—Fear of Moslems that their sacred religion was being undermined by the introduction of the Latin alphabet and other measures was believed to have resulted in plots which were suppressed by the government at Sivas and Broussa.

ROME, Jan. 8—(AP)—An unprecedented situation in the sacred college was created by the death of Cardinal Tosi, archbishop of Milan for the first time since the so-called Babylonian captivity (when the popes lived at Avignon in the 14th century) the Italian cardinals are in a minority of four.

LONDON, Jan. 9—(AP)—The lord mayor's fund for the relief of unemployed miners has no wreached approximately $2,000,000. At present the need for the necessaries of life is so great that it demands most of the attention of those administering the fund, but it is realized something should be done to provide some form of really productive work for some of the unemployed.

ANTIBES, France, Jan. 8—(AP)—The body of Grand Duke Nicholas, head of the Romanoffs, was taken to Cannes today for burial. Twelve stalwart Cossacks stood guard over the silver casket which was smothered in wreaths and clusters of the finest flowers of the Riviera. Within the casket the cold hands of the former commander-in-chief of imperial Russia's armies, clasped a gold crucifix.

Death of Benjamin N. Duke, Tobacco Magnate

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(AP)—Benjamin N. Duke, who rose from a boy peddler of tobacco to help place his family among the pioneers of big business, died today in his upper Fifth avenue mansion after a long illness. He was in his 74th year.

Behind him he left a fortune estimated at upwards of $60,000,000, founded on the profits of a southern country tobacco shop and expanded by years of effort in railroads, banking, cotton, real estate and other high scale enterprises.

Out of this fortune came huge philanthropies which he never permitted to be publicly listed. But of which $1,000,000 was said to have been given to Trinity college, now Duke university at Durham, N. C., and Guilford college, from which he was graduated.

Burial will take place at Durham, where he maintained an estate. A special train leaving Pennsylvania station at 4 p. m. tomorrow will carry the body, accompanied by members of the family and friends, to Durham where it will lie in state at Duke university from the time of its arrival, about 8:30 or 9 a. m. Thursday, to 11:30 a. m., when the funeral will take place at Memorial chapel. Meanwhile arrangements were that the body would remain at a funeral parlor here. There will be no services in New York.

Mr. Duke died at 5:45 o'clock this morning, failing to rally after a bronchial attack last night.

The Duke family name became known throughout the world after Mr. Duke and his brother, the late James B. Duke, peddled to country merchants the product of their father's business to save the enterprise from failure immediately after the Civil war. At the time of the death of their parent, Washington Duke, a factory had been established at Durham and the business was regarded as one of the country's most prosperous tobacco factories. From this start the Duke fortune was made.

20 PASSENGER CHAPMAN MONOPLANE WAS TESTED

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 8—(AP)—A huge 20-passenger Chapman monoplane was flown on four test flights today from Newark airport by Lieut. Leigh Wade, around the world flier, and Capt. Earl Stewart, World war pilot. Fifteen passengers were carried on the last flight. The ship, designed by Vincent J. Bernelli, was financed by Paul W. Chapman, of New York.

The next week or so will be spent in daily test flights over this section. Although no confirmation of dates could be obtained, it was thought that the ship would be flown to Washington, Chicago and San Francisco.

The plane was designed with a view to establishing long distance passenger service in the United States. With a fuel capacity of 1,000 gallons it can make 2,400 miles at a cruising speed of 115 miles an hour.

TOLD SOLONS TO READ HIS MESSAGE IN NEWSPAPERS

PIERRE, S. D., Jan. 8—(AP)—Something novel in the way of delivering an opening message to a hostile legislature, was resorted to here today by Governor W. J. Bulow, who suggested that the republican dominated body obtain his recommendations from the newspaper accounts.

When the assembly convened, the governor read the first three paragraphs of his message and then said: "It's going to take an hour and a half if I read this. I don't want to read it. You don't want to sit that long. The A. P. boys will send it out. Printed copies have been furnished members of the legislature and I want you to read it and abide by the recommendations."

Amid laughter and applause, Bulow sat down.

BATHING BEAUTY CONTEST FOR PALM BEACH SOCIETY

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 8—(AP)—Palm Beach plans a bathing beauty contest that will be different. Entrants will be confined to members of the colony's "Four Hundred." The gallery will be limited to husbands and close friends of the beauties.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Dobyne of Beverly Farms, Mass., originated the contest which will be held Friday morning around the pool of their ocean boulevard estate.

John Charles Thomas, noted baritone, will be official announcer, with Maj. Barclay H. Warburton, mayor, Arthur Somers Roche, author, and a group of prominent clubmen as judges.

Entries range all the way from Hackensack to Kelsey City, Fla., in their home addresses.

BOMB WAS EXPLODED AT RESIDENCE IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Jan. 8—(AP)—A bomb was exploded today at the home of Dr. Charles E. Humiston, professor of clinical surgery at the University of Illinois. The professor, his wife, and daughter were awakened by the blast but no one was injured.

Dr. Humiston blamed members of the "medical underworld," who he said were incensed by his fight against quackery in medicine.

General Assembly Officials Selected

Republicans in Both Branches Followed Program Outlined by the Leaders.

STATE CAPITOL, HARTFORD, Jan. 8—(AP)—This stately building on the hill which this year will come into its 50th anniversary awoke to life once again tonight, when the members-elect of the 1929 session of the general assembly met to outline a permanent organization tomorrow.

A republican body in both branches of the caucus outcome of the political majority fulfilled what had been planned for it by the leaders. Senator Roy C. Wilcox of the 13th district, Meriden, was nominated for president pro tempore, of the senate, and that veteran in legislative life, Representative Samuel C. Eddy of North Canaan, was nominated for speaker of the house.

On the part of the democrats, Representative John Tobin of Waterbury was selected as the party nominee for house speaker but as he will fail of election he will become the minority floor leader. The democratic senators chose Frank S. Bergin of New Haven as minority floor leader in the upper body, choice being after two ballots.

In the democratic house members' caucus, State Chairman J. J. Walsh called to order with A. S. Lynch as temporary clerk. Mr. Walsh spoke briefly from a democratic viewpoint of the session and legislation. Several others spoke and Mr. Tobin was selected as leader, his name being offered by Peitro Diana of New Haven. Mrs. Marian G. Roberts of Hartford was clerk and Miss Annie Maher of New Haven assistant clerk. The caucus nominated Lewis Phelps of Andover for state auditor for four years, which will be a re-appointment on confirmation.

In 12 minutes the republican senators unanimously decided on Senator Wilcox for president pro tempore, and J. Frederick Baker for clerk, and picked its messengers and doorkeepers.

Hartford and New Haven counties won the messengers—Paul G. Leupold of New Britain and Wallace Horsfall of Milford.

The choice for doorkeepers were: Mr. Bigelow, of New Fairfield; Ray L. Harding, of Lyme; Robert M. Belch, of Ashford; Linwood R. Campbell, of Ellington; Fred Brown, of Durham, and Frank D. Hall, of Canaan.

Senator Wallace R. Pierson of Cromwell was chairman. Each choice was made without nominating speeches.

The permanent organization of the house organized immediately after the caucus. It elected Elwyn T. Clark of Haddam, chairman. If the committee's action is approved by the house Wednesday, Rev. Andrew G. Littlefield of Lebanon, who was a member of the 1927 house, will become a messenger this session.

The permanent organization committee's slate, by counties, follows:

Hartford: Doorkeeper, E. A. Elliott, Newington; messenger, Leo P. Flamion, Hartford.

New Haven: Doorkeeper, Ralph Beers, North Branford; messenger, Bernard Atlas, Milford.

New London: Messenger, Rev. Littlefield.

Fairfield: Messenger, Roy L. Adams, Norwalk.

Windham: Doorkeeper, Levi N. Clarke, Canterbury.

Litchfield: Doorkeepers, A. R. Belden, New Hartford, and George W. Drakeley, Woodbury.

Middlesex: Doorkeepers, Charles Berg, Middletown, and Robert D. Chapman, Westbrook.

Tolland: Doorkeeper, John M. Bowers, Tolland.

SESSION OF HIGH COUNCIL OF THE SALVATION ARMY

SUNBURY-ON-THAMES, Jan. 8—(AP)—Any citations that the high council of the Salvation Army, which assembled here today, would reach a quick decision regarding the fitness of General Bramwell Booth to continue as commander-in-chief, were dispelled. Although three separate sessions were held, the starting of the machinery of the council took up all the time.

Committees were appointed and officers elected. It was said unofficially tonight that the real work of the council will begin tomorrow.

One of the points which may explain the time necessary for organization is the fact each member of the council is entitled to express his or her views on any subject that may come up. The proceedings respecting the Army leadership may, therefore, prove protracted.

The 63 men and women commissioners, selected for their experience in all parts of the Army's dominions, met behind locked and guarded doors.

ASKED TO PROVE CHARGE AGAINST SENATOR PINE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—(AP)—The senate Indian affairs committee investigating the case of Jackson Barnett, wealthy Creek Indian, adopted a motion today asking Commissioner Burke of the bureau of Indian affairs to prove a charge that Senator Pine of Oklahoma had conspired to "destroy him and the Indian service."

The action was taken on motion of Senator LaFollette, republican, Wisconsin, a member of the committee, after Senator Pine had read a statement in which he denied there was a conspiracy.

Burke yesterday told the committee he believed he could prove the charge but asked for time to call witnesses from Oklahoma. This was granted and the hearing on the charge was set for next Monday.

DISCLAIMS PERFORMANCE OF AN ILLEGAL OPERATION

CHICAGO, Jan. 8—(AP)—Dr. Amante Rongetti charged with the murder of Miss Loretta Enders, 19, by an illegal operation, testified today that he had performed no such operation and charged a former coroner's physician with an attempt to extort money from him in connection with the girl's death.

It was Dr. Rongetti's first appearance on the stand in his two trials for the girls' murder. He did not testify in the first trial in which he was convicted and sentenced to death but later granted a new trial by the supreme court.

Dr. Rongetti took the stand after the state had made a request that one of his principal witnesses be arrested on a perjury charge. The court ordered her taken into custody.

Hoover Listens To Republican Leaders

President-Elect Will Not Interfere in the Present Legislative Situation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—(AP)—President-elect Hoover talked over many problems today with Secretary Mellon and a number of congressional leaders and approved plans for a simple inauguration to be followed by a military and civic parade lasting about two hours.

Members of the senate and house who discussed legislative affairs with Mr. Hoover were informed that he would have no suggestions to make on pending measures as he would consider such a course improper. Members of the Iowa congressional delegation quoted him as having said that President Coolidge still was chief executive and that his administration would have to solve its own problems.

Secretary Mellon, whose reappointment to the treasury post is regarded now as almost a foregone conclusion, had lunch with the president-elect at his headquarters and the Mayflower hotel. They were closeted together for nearly two hours, but neither had any statement to make regarding the conference.

Mr. Hoover started off his second day in Washington since his election with a breakfast conference with Senator Borah, of Idaho, who urged an extra session of the seventy-first congress in the early spring to put through a farm relief program. Senator Smoot, of Utah, also suggested an extra session for tariff revision.

The determination of the president-elect not to interfere in the present legislative situation was expressed first during a conference with Chairman Hale, of the senate naval committee, who requested that he make a public statement endorsing the pending measure authorizing the construction of fifteen light cruisers and an aircraft carrier.

The policy of non-interference was reiterated to the Iowa delegation in the house, which reported that the consensus in congress was that farm legislation could not be enacted at this session, and again was voiced during a conference with Senator Moses of New Hampshire, president pro tempore of the senate, who reported on the legislative situation in that body.

The New Hampshire senator said he had told the president-elect that the Kellogg treaty to renounce war as an instrument of national policy would be ratified and that the cruiser bill would be passed by the senate and sent to the president. Beyond that Sen. Moses did not go other than to say that if the senate would get down to work it could pass an agricultural measure at this session.

Senator Moses said he gained the impression that Mr. Hoover is favorably disposed toward both the Kellogg treaty and the cruiser bill, but added that the next president did not formally express himself regarding them.

Several more cabinet recommendations were made to Mr. Hoover during the day, the Iowa delegation urging the appointment of Dante Pierce, a farm paper publisher of Des Moines, as secretary of Agriculture; Senator Moses asking for the promotion of John H. Bartlett, of New Hampshire, to the post of postmaster general, and Representative Robinson, of Kentucky, recommending the selection of Mrs. A. T. Hert of Kentucky, vice chairman of the republican national committee, as secretary of the interior.

FINDS VOLSTEAD ACT WAS CONTRIBUTORY TO DEATH

PATCHOGUE, N. Y., Jan. 8—(AP)—Coroner Dr. William B. Gibson of Huntington has filed a death certificate with Town Clerk Jones in the case of Joseph B. Urbanowicz of Riverhead charging the Volstead act as a contributory cause of Urbanowicz's death at Port Jefferson station Sunday. Urbanowicz drove his automobile into a tree, fracturing his skull.

Alcoholism and intoxication frequently are mentioned in coroners' reports as contributory causes of deaths, but Dr. Gibson is the first Suffolk coroner in Jones' memory who charged an act of congress with partial responsibility for a death.

CONDITION OF KING GEORGE IN UNCHANGED

LONDON, Jan. 8—(AP)—Another stereotyped medical bulletin on the condition of King George was issued at Buckingham palace tonight. It was signed by Sir Stanley Hewett and Lord Dawson of Penn and although it was the first announcement in 24 hours it said only this:

The public showed a distinct decrease in interest in the case today and is beginning to adopt the view that so long as "no change" is recorded there is no occasion for anxiety about the king.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. COOLIDGE GUESTS OF HONOR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—(AP)—President and Mrs. Coolidge were guests of honor tonight at a dinner at the Willard hotel given by Attorney-General and Mrs. Sargent. Other guests included Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford, Frank W. Stearns of Boston and Gov. and Mrs. William W. Stickney of Vermont.

TWO PASSENGERS AND AN ENGINEER KILLED

TEWKSBURY, England, Jan. 8—(AP)—Two passengers and the engineer were killed today when their train crashed into a freight train at Ash church because of the thick fog. Fifteen passengers were injured, some of whom are not expected to recover.

OBITUARY.

Frank W. Dutton

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Jan. 8—(AP)—Influenza today caused the death of Frank W. Dutton, 70, president of the Agricultural National bank, a leading institution of western Massachusetts.

Since 1897, Mr. Dutton had been a director of the Agricultural bank, and after eight years as vice president, succeeded the late Irving D. Forrey as president in 1926. He was a trustee and a member of the board of investment of the Berkshire County Savings bank. Directorships held by Mr. Dutton were in the Berkshire Mutual and Hampshire Mutual Fire Insurance company, the New England Fire Insurance company, the Union Co-operative bank, the Lenox Water company, and the Pittsfield Baseball club of the Eastern league.

FIGHT OPENS IN SENATE ON KELLOGG ANTI-WAR TREATY

Senators Moses, Robinson and Blaine, Republicans, Demanded Interpretative Reservations to American Adherence—Senator Borah is Determined to Fight It Out, Confident of Enough Votes For Ratification Without Any Reservations or Accompanying Resolutions.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—(AP)—The senate started in today to talk itself out on the Kellogg anti-war treaty, as hopes faded for a compromise of the dispute over an interpretative declaration.

Secretary Kellogg and Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee blew up the tentative agreement reached yesterday by declining absolutely to be committed to sending any manner of interpretative declaration on the treaty to the other world powers along with American ratification of the pact.

New conferences were called during the day but each disbanded as new objections were raised to new suggestions and Senator Borah took his station on the floor with a determination to fight it out, confident of enough votes for ratification without any reservation or accompanying resolution.

A fight to the finish, with the possibility of the fiery democrat, Reed, of Missouri, taking the floor, admittedly would require several days and administration leaders, who are anxious to get started on the pending cruiser construction bill, had not given up hope tonight of obtaining an agreement on the demands for the interpretative declaration, which would make possible an early vote on ratification.

Meanwhile, the treaty came under assault from the republican side during the day as Senator Moses, New Hampshire; Robinson, Indiana; and Blaine, Wisconsin, demanded interpretative reservations to American adherence.

From the democratic side issued words of indorsement for the treaty, couched in terms of doubt as to its potency. Senators Bruce, Maryland; Wagner, New York, and Sheppard, Texas, announced their support of the pact as a "step in the right direction."

All declared against any reservations. Senator Gillett, of Massachusetts, a republican member of the foreign relations committee, ended the discussion with the first words of praise for the day from the republican side for the pact.

In the midst of the peace negotiations, Senator Blaine resubmitted his resolution to have the senate declare that it did not consider the correspondence of Great Britain reserving the right to protect her territories as a reservation to the text of the treaty. He announced he would demand a roll call vote.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the prospective republican leader next session, took the initiative late today in another effort to reach an agreement whereby a report, already drafted by Chairman Borah, could be made by the foreign relations committee, as a substitute for the proposed interpretative resolution of Senator Moses. It is now hoped to have the proposed report of Senator Borah referred to the senate by the foreign relations committee but not acted upon. This report would set forth the views of Senator Borah that the treaty does not infringe upon America's Monroe Doctrine nor imply any obligation to resort to punitive action in enforcement of the pact.

The "reservationists" are believed to be ready to accept this as one means of getting on record with these interpretative views. However, such a step would not require the transmission by Secretary Kellogg of the senate's views to the other powers.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES REFUSES TO UNSEAT BECK

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 8—(AP)—Less than two months before the end of his term, James M. Beck, former solicitor general of the United States, was given a clear title today to his seat as republican representative from the first Pennsylvania district.

By a vote of 247 to 72 the house rejected a resolution to unseat him which has been reposing in a committee pigeon hole for more than a year. A few minutes later with a resounding chorus of ayes, it adopted another resolution to give him the seat.

The vote was taken after almost three hours of debate over the constitutional question of whether Beck was an inhabitant of Pennsylvania at the time of his election. The question was raised on the first day of last session by Representative Garrett, of Tenn., the democratic leader.

Although the point had been raised by the democratic leader and opposition in the committee largely had been carried on by members of the minority party, the final vote found many southern and eastern democrats climbing over the party fence to join the almost unanimous republican vote against adoption of the resolution to unseat.

Beck, sitting beside Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the majority leader, answered "present" when his name was reached on the roll call, and after the result had been announced asked the privilege of addressing the house briefly. Then, for the first time since he entered the house, fourteen months ago, he spoke to the members from the floor.

His talk was a brief one, applauded alike by democrats and republicans, in which he thanked the members for supporting his claim to a seat and declared he knew the minority leader was not actuated by any feeling of partisanship when the question was raised.

VAN C. M'CRORY WAS SHOT AND KILLED WHILE HUNTING

ORLANDO, Fla., Jan. 8—(AP)—Van C. McCrory, 32, of Ridgewood, N. J., son of John G. McCrory, five and ten cent store magnate, was shot and killed while hunting near his father's ranch in Orange county, late today. He was shot accidentally by Raymer F. McGuire, Orlando attorney, and close friend of McCrory, according to officers.

The accident occurred while the two were hunting deer on horseback, officers learned.

McGuire's shotgun was discharged accidentally, the load taking effect in McCrory's back. Death followed within a few minutes from a number of shots that penetrated one lung.

NO DATE FOR CONSIDERING THE NOMINATION OF WEST

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—(AP)—Efforts of Senators Deneen and Glenn, Illinois republicans, to have the senate fix a date for considering the confirmation of Roy O. West as secretary of the interior, failed today when Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, asked that before such action Mr. West be heard by a senate committee on the award of the middle Rio Grande conservatory district contract in New Mexico.

Senator Deneen declared he would make another effort tomorrow to have the senate fix the time of its consideration of the appointment.

WEALTHY ITALIAN IMPORTER ASSASSINATED IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Jan. 8—(AP)—Pasqualino Lolordo, wealthy Italian importer and reputed chief of a North Side liquor syndicate, was assassinated tonight as he sat drinking wine in the parlor of his home with two companions.

No one knew who his assailants had been. The police found his widow, hysterical, prostrate over the body of her husband. A revolver lay beside him. Lolordo's sister-in-law told the officers "two or three men had been drinking with Pasqualino and they shot him."

The slain man was a brother of Joseph Lolordo, companion of the Sicilian chieftain, Tony Lombardo, when he was shot down on a busy street corner last fall. For a time Joseph was held as a suspect, but was later released and Lomberdo's slayers remain unknown.

CORNERSTONE OF NEW TAMMANY HALL LAID

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(AP)—The cornerstone of the new Tammany Hall near Union square was laid today by John R. Voorhis, 99-year-old grand sachem of the Tammany society, owner of the building.

Among those present were former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Mayor James J. Walker, and other city officials, Tammany leaders and members of the Tammany society. George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany, held a reception to district leaders and the public immediately after the ceremony.

It is expected the building, which is nearing completion, will be finished in time for dedication on April 12, the anniversary of Thomas Jefferson's birth, or on April 30, the anniversary of George Washington's inauguration as president. The new building is located at Fourth avenue and 17th street, three blocks from the old headquarters in 14th street, just off Union square.

BENCH WARRANT ISSUED FOR ACTRESS ALMA REUBENS

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8—(AP)—A bench warrant was issued by Judge Elliott Gibb for Alma Reubens, film actress, when she failed to appear in court here today to face trial on a charge of disturbing the peace.

The charge against Miss Reubens was brought by Mrs. Elizabeth Uhl, owner of an apartment court in which Miss Reubens lives.

In municipal court at the time of the issuance of the warrant were Rita Carew, film actress, and her husband, Leroy Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Finis Fox and Mrs. Uhl. While Mrs. Uhl filed the charges against the actress, the others were to appear as witnesses against her.

Miss Reubens is charged with holding "wild parties" at her bungalow apartment.

EXPOSITION OPENS TONIGHT AT THE STATE CEREMONY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 8—The state armory on Pleasant street was the scene of noisy activity today as preparations for the grand opening of the fourth annual Willimantic exposition, under the auspices of the Windham County, Pigeon and Small Stock association, Wednesday evening were being pushed ahead. Prize stock, cages, pens, and a wide variety of commercial and educational displays were arriving at the armory throughout the day. Many valuable birds came by motor truck and railway express from exhibitors of this state, Massachusetts and New York.

The feature pen of world champion laying hens owned by George Lowry of Willington will arrive direct from the Boston Poultry show. The hens, ten in number, are heavily insured. They were winners of the 1928 egg laying contest at the Connecticut Agricultural college. Jerry, the Wirthmore educated rooster that has pleased many audiences is also to be on hand during the exposition.

Several prominent poultrymen from all parts of New England, including a group from the northeastern section of the United States have already arrived in the city and hotel rooms have been reserved for several more who are expecting Willimantic their stopping place on the world's two biggest poultry shows, Boston and New York.

The actual demonstration of the Willimantic State Trade school where actual work by the students will be carried on during the exposition was being set up in the southwest corner of the hall today.

Owing to the many displays of interest to school children, General Manager D. D. Cavanaught of the exposition announced today that Wednesday and Thursday afternoons until 2.30 o'clock the exposition will be free to the pupils of the two parochial schools if accompanied by teachers and Friday and Saturday afternoons the pupils of the graded and high schools will be admitted under similar provisions.

The household display which will include an all-electric kitchen, furniture and other furnishings of the modern home promises to be one of the big attractions.

While these arrangements are being completed, Manager Cavanaugh is mailing an impressive array of speakers for the annual exposition banquet of the poultry men which will be held in the Nathan Hale hotel Thursday evening.

MAZZOLA HAVING DIFFICULTY IN SECURING COUNSEL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 8—Friends of Thomas Mazzola, being held under guard at police headquarters in order of Chemist Arthur G. Bill as a suspect in the murder by strangulation of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Rosaria Lorella, on the morning of January 3, were tending every effort today to secure proper counsel for the suspect. It is understood that at least two local attorneys, S. B. Harver and W. A. King, have been approached by Mazzola's friends but they gave reasons which made them ineligible to act as counsel.

A new angle and a new name was injected into the case by Mazzola, who has made a change in accounting for his activities on the morning of the murder. Mazzola is alleged to have told the coroner that he left his home at 6.30 o'clock on the morning of the murder and went to the home of Frank Russo at Brick Row, a short distance away from his own home, to bid Russo farewell as the latter was leaving that day for Europe. Russo took the 11 o'clock train to New York and has since sailed for Italy. Mazzola claimed that he remained at Russo's home for about an hour and then continued on to his employment. Russo was employed on the section force of Foreman John Sullivan up to several days ago.

Accompanied by County Detective William E. Jackson and Investigating Officers Arthur Hurley and Roderick Lariviere, City Engineer John F. Colline was at the Mazzola home today taking measurement of the rooms and localities about the house of interest in the case.

The police are being delayed in securing a statement from Mrs. Angelina Mazzola, wife of Thomas and daughter of the slain woman, owing to Mrs. Mazzola's illness. The woman is reported as suffering from a form of breakdown and was under the care of a physician today.

From his cell at police headquarters Mazzola continues to maintain his innocence of the crime, still claiming that he knows nothing of the alleged murder nor that he can throw suspicion on any one else who might be connected with it. He has been confined since Saturday night and his conversation is beginning to wear on him somewhat but he remains quite calm and apparently assured of ultimately regaining his freedom.

OBITUARIES.

Abraham L. Robarge

Abraham L. Robarge, 57, known throughout the country as an expert chef, especially for large out-of-door events, died at his home 26 Prospect street this morning. He leaves four daughters, Mrs. George Anthony of this city, the Misses Phyllis of Boston, Bessie of this city and Edith Robarge of New London; four sons, Leroy of New Haven, Russell of New York, Everett of the U. S. navy and Herbert Robarge of Cranston, R. I., three sisters, Mrs. Joseph Meikle of this city, Mrs. George Nicholls of Cranston, R. I., and Mrs. John Logan of Providence, R. I.; three brothers, Joseph, Nelson and Dorsey Robarge of Providence; and several nieces and nephews.

Thomas Johnson

Thomas Johnson, 53, died early this morning at the Norwich State hospital of bronchial pneumonia. He was born in Willimantic, October 6, 1875, a son of James and Emma Henry Johnson. He leaves his wife and one sister, Miss Ella A. Johnson of this city. The deceased was affiliated with his father in the livery business on North street for many years. He was formerly a member of the old volunteer fire department and was well known throughout the community.

Mrs. John W. Fuller

Mrs. Kate Esther Fuller, widow of John W. Fuller, died at her home in Columbia Monday evening. She was a native of Columbia and had been a lifelong resident of the town. She was born January 21, 1864, a daughter of James L. and Adelaide Wright Downer. Surviving her are: One sister, Mrs. L. E. Winter of Columbia; a brother, R. W. Downer of Hartford and several nephews and nieces.

A vote to hold a Willimantic progress exposition early in May was taken at a lengthy committee meeting held in the chamber of commerce rooms Monday night wit hone of the prominent exposition managers of New England in attendance. The matter has been under consideration for several months. It is planned to make the exposition reflect the progress of this district within the past five years and to indicate the extensive lines carried by commercial firms. It is proposed to choose a Miss Willimantic of 1929 at a fashion show and there will be a battle of music between leading orchestras of this section.

Albert B. Smith, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. outlined the work proposed for the city planning commission in an interesting talk on Community Service delivered at the weekly luncheon-meeting of the Willimantic Rotary club held in the Nathan Hale hotel this noon. Secretary Smith tabulated on a blackboard a list of 81 civic, social and fraternal organizations which are now doing community welfare work although much of this work was not in the past recognized as such. He then outlined over a dozen projects that would come immediately to the attention of the new planning commission. Included among these were: Sewerage disposal, transportation, business building, crime and fire prevention, aviation field, tax revaluation, pure milk supply, hospital facilities, school needs, recreation for children, public library, zoning, building code, welfare and charity. The commission will be made up of committees including a chairman and representatives from the Rotary, Exchange and Women's clubs and the chamber of commerce. President Raymond A. Parker was in charge of the session and Edward G. Kenney introduced the speaker. Guests were Rotarian Albert Murdock of Providence, R. I., and Harry Kinne, member of the Kiwanis club of Watertown, N. Y., accompanied by Treasurer Walter Abbe. The singing for the day was led by Harry W. Standish.

Joseph B. Riordan was chosen to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Dr. Owen O'Neill on the board of directors of the Windham National bank at the annual meeting of the shareholders held this forenoon in the institution building. The directors elected were: Edgar E. Bass, Arthur I. Bill, William D. Grant, Attorney William A. Kirg, Louis A. Kingsbury, H. Clinton Lathrop, Herbert D. Pollard, Joseph B. Riordan and George F. Taylor. The directors elected as officers: President H. Clinton Lathrop; vice president, Edgar E. Bass; cashier, Herbert D. Pollard; assistant cashier, Archibald W. Buchanan, Jr., tellers, Harold S. Maine, Earle K. Haling and Willis Ridgeway.

FUNERAL

Albert B. Kenyon.

Funeral services for Albert B. Kenyon were held at the home in Goshen Hill, Lebanon at 1 o'clock this afternoon with Rev. Mr. Tompkins of Colchester officiating. Burial was in the new Lebanon cemetery where a committal service was conducted by officers of Wooster lodge, No. 10, A. F. and A. M., of Colchester. Arrangements were in charge of Avery & Van Zandt.

The cases of Mariano Genesoso of this city and Howard F. Goodwin of Mansfield, charged with reckless driving following an accident for which they failed to agree on a damage settlement, were ordered continued until February 9 at the session of police court this morning. A nolle upon the payment of costs was entered in the case of Robert H. Morey, Brown university student, charged with failure to have his operator's license in his possession.

A dissolution in the partnership of Charles Flubacher and Henry Hecker, known as the firm of Flubacher & Hecker, mason contractors, has been announced after a five year affiliation.

Representatives Frank M. Lincoln and Joseph Lavivlere were at the state capitol in Hartford this evening to attend the caucuses of their party. They will attend the opening exercises of the legislature Wednesday and the governor's ball in the evening. Representatives Lincoln and Lefebvre are both democrats having gone into office in the sweeping democratic victory in Windham, November 4. A number of republicans and democrats were at the capitol this evening.

Annual guest day was held by Anne Wood Elderkin chapter, D. A. R., at the Congregational church this afternoon. J. D. Little of New York, manager of the International Silver company gave an illustrated lecture on The Romance of Silver. Mrs. George Graves was in charge of the invitations committee.

It was stated today that several bids have been presented for the four "star" routes out of the Willimantic post office on which the contracts are for four years from July 1, 1929 to July 1, 1923. The routes are: Scotland to Willimantic, 7.8 miles; Leonard Bridge, Chestnut Hill to Willimantic, 9.6 miles; Mansfield Center to Willimantic 5.5 miles and Columbia to Willimantic 5.37 miles.

The mercury dropped again overnight and readings averaged from two to five above zero about daybreak today. Neighboring towns reported the temperature as below zero and in North Ashford the ground was covered by half an inch of snow that had fallen Monday afternoon.

A metal sign bearing the name State Trade school in letters three feet high was erected on the flat roof of the Willimantic State Trade school building on Valley street today. The sign is 45 feet long and is readily visible from several places about the city including from Main street at the Bank street junction.

Mrs. Walter O'Connor entertained at a birthday party in honor of her daughter, Miss Claire O'Connor, aged four, Monday evening. Little Miss O'Connor received many pretty gifts. Present were James and Thomas Pickett, Eileen Pickett, Ruth and Jean Taylor, William Jolie, Gladys and Lucille DeMontigney and Martin Reynolds.

The silent policeman on Main street at the head of Railroad street was badly damaged late Monday night when struck by a large truck owned by the Dancy Transportation company of Waterbury and driven by George H. Spencer of 115 Park Terrace, Waterbury. Spencer said that he did not see the signal and has agreed to settle for damages.

Harold Rivers, pupil in the Natchaug grammar school, is ill at the home of his aunt, Mrs. W. L. Champlin of Windham road.

Mrs. Jay E. Grant entertained a bridge club of three tables Monday afternoon.

Guests of the club were Mrs. Walter S. Barnes, Mrs. William A. Burleson and Mrs. H. W. Standish. Mrs. Barnes won the prize.

Mrs. Joseph B. Riordan entertained the Monday evening club of two tables, prizes being won by Mrs. A. L. Gelinas and Mrs. Eugene E. Curran.

Ex-Mayor Herbert R. Chappell is now able to be about his home, 265 Prospect street, where he has been ill for several weeks.

Mrs. Irving L. Cary of Hampton and winter guest at the Nathan Hale hotel entertained with five tables of bridge Monday afternoon, friends from Scotland, Windham, Spring Hill and this city. Otto B. Robinson won first prize, Mrs. Arthur C. Everest, second and Mrs. F. Louis Hall, consolation.

Mrs. Charles L. Crane is confined to her home on Prospect street by illness.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

TWO WEDDINGS MONDAY AT ST. ANDREWS' CHURCH

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Jan. 8—Miss Helen Fagan, daughter of Mrs. Catherine Fagan of Hydeville, and George Wise, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Wise of East Main street, were united in marriage by Rev. Felix J. O'Neill, Monday morning at 9 o'clock in St. Andrews' church. They were attended by Miss Barbara Fagan, sister of the bride and Edward Shea of Prospect street. The bride wore a gown of white velvet and a cap of white lace. She carried calla lilies. The bridesmaid's dress was of light blue georgette and she carried a shower bouquet of roses. After the ceremony a breakfast was served at the bride's home in Hydeville. Upon their return from a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Wise will reside in Hydeville.

Nuccio-Hotkowski.

Miss Leona Hotkowski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hilary Hotkowski of High street, and Samuel J. Nuccio of Thompsonville were married at St. Edward's church Monday morning at 7 o'clock by Rev. John Weiden. Miss Camille Hotkowski, sister of the bride and J. Nuccio were the attendants. A breakfast was served at the home of the bride to members of the two families. Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Nuccio left for a wedding trip to New York. Upon their return they will make their home on Church street, in Stafford Springs.

TROUBLE WITH WELL AT NEW SCHOOL BUILDING

The new school building in Staffordville is about completed and will be ready for occupancy soon. The building committee is having trouble with the well being sunk on the school grounds. A shaft has already been sunk a distance of 360 feet and it will have to go down several feet farther before sufficient water can be secured. The building committee reports that the cost of the building and equipment will be within the appropriation, but there will probably be some additional expense on account of the added cost of the well and for grading. It will be possible also to realize something on the sale of the old school building, still being occupied.

Miss Julia Mullins has returned after spending several days with her brother, Daniel F. Mullins, in Springfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Sawyer of Springfield were recent visitors with relatives in town.

Miss Harriet Wildey has returned to her studies at Wellesley, after several days at her home on Highland Terrace.

Edward Hotkowski of Boston university has returned to his studies after visiting at his home on High street.

George Greendonner has resumed his studies at Lowell Textile school after the Christmas recess at the home of his parents on Keefe's Plains.

Siswick-Fleming

The engagement of Miss Vera Siswick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Siswick of Grant avenue, to Francis P. Fleming of Hartford has been announced.

Frank Mason is substituting as day officer for Louis Helm, while the latter is indisposed.

The meeting of the Stafford library association is to be held next Monday afternoon at the library.

Howard Daley of Hartford is spending a few days in town.

CLARK'S CORNER

Miss Viola J. Naven has returned from St. Joseph's hospital, where she underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Miss Miner, of Groton is substitute teacher during Miss Naven's illness.

Martin Marline and John Scott were ill the past week.

Master John Larkham is able to be out after his recent illness.

COLUMBIA

ANNUAL CHURCH MEETING WITH 79 ATTENDING

The annual business meeting of Columbia church was held at Yeomans' hall Friday evening. A chicken pie supper was served at 7 by the Ladies' Aid society to about 70. Following the supper, the business meeting was held, with William Wolff chairman. Reports of the various officers and societies connected with the church were read and accepted. The report of the church clerk, Mrs. Florence Badge, showed the present membership 149. During the year 10 new members were received into the church, a letter of dismissal was granted to one, and there were three deaths, showing a net gain of six members. Of the 149 members, 104 are residents, representing 50 families; 20 other families are connected with the activities of the church. The non-resident members number 45. Of the 15 surrounding towns in the vicinity, Columbia church stands second in total membership, and third in resident membership. The treasurer's report showed receipts during the year of $2,502.63, and a balance now in the treasury of $34.90, with all bills paid. A noticeable increase in offerings by the envelope system was noted, $705.48, as against $552.04 last year; 45 persons pledged by the envelope system last year sums ranging from 3 cents to $1 weekly. Interest on invested funds also showed an increase of $100. An especially large item of expense during the past year has been the renewal of insurance policies, amounting to a premium of $528.97. This is for three years. The trustees' report showed over $15,000 invested funds, interest on which has been paid over to the treasurer. The Ladies' Aid society reported a balance in the treasury of $700. During the year the members spent over $100 planting shrubbery around the church and chapel, in keeping with the shrubs set out on the Green by the Columbia Improvement association. The Christian Endeavor society, though small in numbers, have had a profitable year, money being raised by a supper and past proceeds of two out of town plays; $80 of this they spent redecorating the interior of the chapel, making a very attractive room. The annual election resulted as follows: Secretary, Mrs. Alice E. Hunt; treasurer, Edward P. Lyman; member of board of trustees for three years, H. W. Porter; member church committee for three years, C. E. Hunt.

Miss Agnes Lyman returned Saturday to Briar Cliff Manor, N. Y., after spending the holidays at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Crittenden of New Haven spent Friday at their lake cottage, bringing a picnic lunch with them.

Rev. John Howell preached on Evangelism Sunday morning. The attendance was small, owing to the hard rain and bad traveling. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed at the close of the service.

The annual election of the Sunday school was held Sunday. The following were elected: Superintendent, Clayton E. Hunt; assistant superintendent, William Wolff; secretary and treasurer, Miss Margaret Hutchins; assistant secretary and treasurer, Howard Squler.

A public whist is to be held for the benefit of the local grange.

The daughter, Janet Morton, born to Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Collins of this town, is their second daughter.

The following pupils of the Center school had perfect atendance for December: Virginia Collins, Alice Gallup, Carol Lyman, Mary Szegda, David Hunt, Westcott Rice, Jasper Woodward, Floyd Gallup.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Hunt and family spent Tuesday in Hartford.

The town schools opened Wednesday after ten days' vacation.

The meeting of Columbia grange was held Wednesday evening. The next meeting will be for installation of officers, Jan. 16th.

YANTIC

LOCAL FIRE DEPARTMENT HAS TWO CALLS EARLY IN YEAR

The Yantic Fire Engine company was called to the home of Louis Burdick of the Franklin road Saturday to put out a bad chimney fire and Sunday to the home of Mrs. Amy Frink for the same kind of a fire. Their first calls of the year were easily managed and with little property damage.

Sunday's rain and thunder and lightning storm filled rivers, brooks and canal so that all overflowed their banks and spoiled the excellent skating of Saturday.

Friends of Mrs. Charles Schlough, formerly of Yantic, now residing on Dunham street, Norwich, regret that she is spending the beginning of the new year in the W. W. Backus hospital, but look forward to her return to health as a result of her stay there.

Mrs. Joseph Rogers of the Franklin road is a patient at Backus hospital.

Henry Briggs, state dairy inspector, has been attending the convention of the State Dairy association in Hartford this week, also the opening of the Connecticut legislature at the capitol.

Mrs. Adam Baer is improving after a few weeks' stay in bed as a result of a fall.

BOLTON

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Sumner entertained a bridge party at their home Saturday evening, three tables playing.

Charles Asa Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Lee, died Sunday night at Manchester Memorial hospital after an illness of three weeks. Mr. Lee leaves his wife, Mrs. Ada Lee, and eight children, Mrs. Thomas W. Skinner, Jennie Amelia, Myron McAllen, Edna Elsie, Evelyn May, Hattie Welranch, Teresa V. and Pearl Irene. He is also survived by his father and mother and by four brothers, Myron, Herald, Albert and Russell and three sisters, Mrs. William Atkins of East Hartford, Katie and Jennie, of Manchester.

Bolton grange, No. 47, will meet Friday evening at the basement.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Haley and son, Joseph, have returned home after spending a week in New Jersey visiting Mrs. Haley's brother, Erick Lahsten.

A milk truck owned by Charles M. Pinney and driven by Joseph Novak, turned over near the Ruggles place Tuesday afternoon. Several hundred quarts of milk were lost.

The North school opened Monday, January 7, instead of January 3, due to the death of the father of Miss Mary Mayberry, the teacher.

Miss Elizabeth B. Rose returned to Mt. Holyoke college Monday after spending a week with her brother, George O. Rose.

DANIELSON

F. S. PORTER, 99, VETERAN OF CIVIL WAR DIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 8—This morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Joseph Scott, in Goodyear, Frederick S. Porter, one of the dwindling corps of veterans of the Civil war in Killingly, died in his 99th year. He was one of the oldest residents of Windham county.

Mr. Porter was born in Manchester, N. H., April 29, 1830, a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Porter. He grew to manhood there. In his early 30's he enlisted for service in the Civil war, and was a member of the first artillery outfit that left from New Hampshire for the south. He served the entire period of the war, a matter of about four years. His service record accredits him with participating in many engagements, but he was not one to talk much about his war-time experiences and even those close to him rarely heard him make much mention of the great conflict through which he passed.

In Goodyear, then Williamsville, Mr. Porter was married in 1877 to Miss Josephine Bennett, a sister of Edwin Bennett of Brooklyn. They removed to Brooklyn, where they occupied a farm for many years on Grant hill, which is west from Stetson's Four Corners. Mrs. Porter died several years ago. Following Mrs. Porter's death Mr. Porter continued to make his home on the farm with his son, but becoming feeble he eventually went to Goodyear to spend his final years with his daughter. He was a resident of Brooklyn for about 50 years.

In addition to his son, Frederick, of Brooklyn, and his daughter, Mr. Porter leaves two grandsons.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Sabra Wheaton Chapman

This afternoon at the home on Dorrance street, funeral services for Mrs. Sabra Wheaton Chapman were conducted by Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Baptist church. During the service a male quartet composed of A. P. Burns, Rev. Albert Abbott, Henry E. McDowd and David King sang Nearer My God to Thee, and Rock of Ages. The bearers were Judge Oscar F. Atwood of Brooklyn, Frank T. Preston, Frank L. Bennett and Bernard Simmons. Burial was in the Putnam Heights cemetery. A. T. Wood was the funeral director.

There is no great drive in Killingly as yet for hunting and fishing licenses, though some have been issued by Town Clerk Frank T. Preston. All of the 1928 licenses expired with the year. There are several reasons why no great rush for licenses is on as yet. One of them is that there has been little opportunity for fishing through the ice. Another is that many who take out fishing licenses do not do so until just before the opening of the trout fishing season in the spring.

Chief John McFarland is engaged in an effort to establish the identity of a woman believed to have engaged in a bit of shoplifting in a Main street store this afternoon. The suspect is believed to have stolen an article of some value while the person who was serving her is supposed not to be looking. The woman indignantly denied having taken anything and flounced out of the store and before an officer could be called had disappeared.

Chief McFarland believes there is a chance of establishing the woman's identity.

The sudden death in his office at Norwich this morning of Aaron Gordon came as a shock to the great many people who knew him in this vicinity, especially in Danielson, where he lived for 8 years up to about ten or eleven years ago, and where he was in charge of the Danielson end of the business of The Max Gordon and Son corporation. The Gordon interests purchased the junk and rag business long conducted by Eliot Getty about 27 years ago, Aaron Gordon coming here with his family to take charge. He greatly expanded the business during his residence here, also entering the coal business. Since moving to Norwich he has come here regularly and kept in intimate touch with his Danielson interests. Joseph Gareau, manager here for Mr. Gordon, left here this evening to present at Mr. Gorden's funeral.

The morning the annual meeting of the stockholders of The Windham County National bank was held at the banking house here and the following directors were re-elected in each instance for another year: Nathan D. Prince, A. Lee Hopkins, Obadiah Butler, Charles A. Tillinghast, William E. Parker and William H. Putnam. The stockholders voted to arrange for group insurance for the officers and employees of the bank. At a meeting to be held later the directors will elect officers for the ensuing year.

It is beginning to dawn on the sporting public that Danielson has the best basketball team in the Danielson Town team that it has had in years. This year's regular quintet includes three former college players—Arthur "Pop" Williams, formerly of Connecticut State, Gallup, of Woodstock, who was with Worcester Tech., and Burke, formerly of Dean academy. Around this core a fine offensive and defensive team is built, and is going great guns. The strength of this season's team makes it possible for the management to sign stronger teams than has been warranted in other recent seasons, so the fans are assured of some great games during the winter and early spring.

The Orpheum theater was crowded this evening when the distribution of awards was made in behalf of the chamber of commerce, members of which were in attendance following their regular monthly supper and meeting at the Attawaugan hotel. Tonight's distribution was $200 in gold, given by local business men as an incentive to increase trading here during the holiday shopping season.

South Killingly people are enjoying the benefits of electric lighting service, and after a fortnight of having lights and power for such purposes as may be needed are generous in their expressions of appreciation. In the territory served it is now possible to employ electricity for various domestic and farm purposes, and that means lessening of work.

A wedding in Providence today was that of Mrs. Marion Mason Preasher of that city and a summer resident of East Killingly and Louis M. Ream of Thompson.

This morning, though it seemed much colder on account of the cutting wind the maximum temperature in Danielson was from 2 to 3 degrees above zero, some localities being a little colder than others.

Miss Marion D. Chollar has been ill at her home on Broad street.

Miss Blanche Gauthier of Broad street is visiting with relatives in Norwich for a few days.

Arthur A. Dean, collector of personal taxes, said this afternoon that the prospect is for from 800 to 1,000 people failing to pay their personal tax assessments by next Monday, the time limit. He further stated that no back-dated checks would be received after that date without the penalty of one dollar being imposed; that all payments must be made on time to be accepted without penalty.

A very great degree of congestion at the postoffice, due to the large amount of mail matter being handled, particularly parcel post, will it is confidently believed obligate the postoffice department to seek some method of relieving the situation in the not distant future.

Dirt highways all through this territory are now a tangle of ruts, the result of the softening up during the rain and thaw of Sunday, the subsequent travel and then the cold wave.

Representatives A. W. Williams and W. S. Hunter are in Hartford for the opening session of the legislature.

Miss Henrietta A. Meilleu of Fall River is visiting with friends in Danielson for a few days.

When the members of the Danielson Rod and Gun club meet at the Danielson inn Wednesday evening they will hear reports covering 1928, and will elect officers for 1929.

Members of the Bohemian club listened to annual reports at tonight's meeting. The club has arranged to retain its quarters in the Danielson Trust company building for another year.

Last evening at the meeting of the Girls' Friendly society of St. Alban's church, Mrs. Alfred L. Reed was elected president for the ensuing year, Miss Marie Taylor treasurer, and Miss Doris Shipman secretary.

The Clinton German Five, a very fast team, comes to Danielson this week to play the Danielson Town team.

Radio fans with modern sets are getting splendid reception results these January nights, and picking broadcasts from California stations has come to be quite a common event.

PLAINFIELD

An impressive service was held in the vestry of the Congregational church the other evening, when the Truth Torch was brought in by runners from Danielson. This torch, under the direction of the county Y. M. C. A. is being borne over the state by boys. The torch was brought to Plainfield by the Killingly group, under the leadership of Edmond Damon of East Woodstock, assisted by Arthur Hughes and Wayne Haskell of Danielson and Orrin Alford of Dayville. The torch was presented by Bertram Hammond of Danielson, John Dodge accepting the torch. A poem was read by Donald Gallup and the messages of the torch by Francis Hammett of Danielson. The challenge was given by Secretary Edwin Hill. The hymn "Pass on the Torch" was sung, Alfred Royle being at the piano. Prayer was offered by the pastor, Rev. William C. Prentiss. Sixty boys were present from Danielson, Dayville, East Woodstock, Brooklyn, Moosup and Plainfield. Friday evening the torch was carried to Jewett City. Mr. Edward Hill of Danielson, Liman Bennett of Central Village, Alfred Royle and Harry Johnson, with Roy Dressinger's car, accompanied the boys and carried the relay runners.

The calendar of the First Congregational church Sunday was given by Mrs. Samuel Baldwin and family in memory of Mr. Baldwin.

The C. E. service was held in the vestry, subject, Forces Making the World Better. The leader was Miss Rose Beaudry.

"The Rich Young Ruler," the first in a series of moving pictures was shown after the C. E. service.

The juniors who have attended the morning service forty Sundays during the past year received a red-lettered self-pronouncing New Testament.

Friends of Mrs. Eva Pike are glad to know that she has recovered and is able to be out.

Pat Delaney has moved from Main street to Wauregan.

Mrs. William Krauss is ill with grip.

Miss Dorothy Pike returned to Willimantic Normal school Sunday after caring for her mother for two weeks.

NORTH LYME

J. W. Stark, William Marvin and N. S. Strong attended the opening sessions of the legislature at Hartford.

N. S. Strong and Newton Lee attended a meeting of the Milk Producers' association, held in Hartford Monday.

Edward Strong, who has been employed at Mitchell Farms, Salem, for several months, is at home for the winter.

Robert Tomoll of this place is holding an exhibition of his paintings at Dallas, Texas, this month.

PUTNAM

THOMPSON MILLIONAIRE WEDS AT PROVIDENCE TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 8—Louis Marshall Ream, son of the late Norman B. Ream of Thompson, will embark upon his third matrimonial venture at noon Wednesday at Providence, when he will be married to Mrs. Marion Mason Phresher, daughter of William H Mason of Killingly and Providence. The wedding ceremony will be a quiet affair with only immediate relatives attending. Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Ream will leave Providence for New York, where they will depart upon a six weeks' trip abroad. It is Mrs. Presher's second marriage.

The son of the late Thompson millionaire was first married in Hoboken, N. J., on Sept. 1, 1911, to Miss Elenor Davison, a Follies girl, after an acquaintance of two months and an engagement of a fortnight.

An uncontested divorce action was heard in superior court in Putnam in 1918. Following a consultation of lawyers it was announced that a settlement had been agreed upon by both parties, it being fixed at $210,000.

On June 1 of the same year, after he received his divorce from his first wife, Mr. Ream was married to Miss Mary Weaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Weaver, of Thompson. They took up their residence in Thompson, where two children were born, a son and a daughter.

In September, 1925, Mrs. Ream No. 2 brought action for divorce on grounds of intolerable cruelty. The case was tried in Hartford county superior court and divorce was granted on Sept. 4, 1925.

Since his second divorce, Mr. Ream has been living on his estate, known as "Carolyn Hall" in Thompson. As to where Mr. and Mrs. Ream will reside upon their return from Europe, is not known at present.

Whistles on railroad trains passing through cities where grade crossings are in existence, will be blown at frequent intervals, as the train approaches the crossings, despite the writings of newspapermen who have termed this phase of railroading a nuisance, according to word from railroad officials in Putnam today. Since the great horde of autoists, who ignore the train approach warning at grade crossings, is ever increasing, the railroad has announced in bulletins, as ready to take unusual steps to protect itself from lawsuits, brought about by many who were responsible for crashing into trains passing the grade crossings. In Putnam the fast night flyers of the New Haven road stop to switch and refuel. The huge engines move up and down the railroad yards and in doing so, pass the May street grade crossing several times. After 10 o'clock at night, the gateman goes off duty and the crossing is left unprotected, except for the warnings of the engine whistles. This practice has been attacked through the press, but it is really necessary to the safe movement of night traffic over the May street crossing. Additional blasts have been added to the warning code, which may disturb a few, yet the new measure is generally recognized by all as an added means of protection. Additional engine whistle blasts have been adopted at all crossings in Danielson and Central Village and at other points where danger lurks at the grade crossings.

Windham county superior court will convene at Putnam again Thursday at 11 o'clock, when several cases on the criminal docket will be disposed of. Judge Newell Jennings will again occupy the bench.

The weekly bridge gathering of the Bridge Widows was held yesterday at the home of Mrs. L. T. Champlain on Grove street. The first prize was captured this week by Mrs. Eben Holden of Grove street, while the consolation went to Mrs. E. H. Burt, who for the past several weeks has been clinching first honors. Following the play, the hostess served refreshments.

Of interest to Putnam ring enthusiasts today was the naming of Louis Kid Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., among the lightweight class of ranking boxers, by George L. "Tex" Rickard, leading sports promoter who died Sunday. Kaplan is a character of wide reknown in the lightweight division of the boxing world. He has appeared in this city in exhibitions, through the courtesy of his friend and loyal supporter, Rev. George J. Donahue, pastor of the Holy Trinity church in Pomfret. Since his appearance in Putnam, Kaplan has proved to be a favorite among the Putnam fans, who have displayed much interest in his fistic exploits.

An item appearing in the Danielson column of The Bulletin this morning, regarding the host of road knights no longer seeking lodgings in Chief MacFarland's police station in that borough, may state the reason for the increased number of hobos skipping through Danielson and taking advantage of hospitality afforded them at the local police station. "Any old port in a storm," is an old saying and is being upheld by the travelers these cold nights. Sergt. George Liard, who directs police affairs in the city after dusk, has not as yet refused any of the "Tumbleweeds" a bed, yet he has placed in effect a new order, whereby blankets and mattresses will be reserved only for those whom the law has taken into custody. This will perhaps tend to drive the knights to other cities for evening stop-overs.

The Putnam lodge of Elks and the members of the Masonic club renewed hostilities again last evening after a rest of three weeks, during the recent holidays. The rest apparently inspired the Masons and they took the evening's play by a close margin of one point, the score being 8-7.

The play last evening, which resulted in a victory for the Masons, places them in a one-point lead for the season's honor, since the score had previously been tied.

The monthly meeting of the Putnam Parent-Teacher association was held last evening at the Putnam high school auditorium with a large attendance of its membership present. A very enjoyable programme was presented, the features being a "Question Box" conducted by Principal E. L. Robinson, Supt. of Schools L. N. Farrin and Attorney E. H. Johnson, a member of the school board, and a musical programme rendered by Prof. Frederick Very of Providence.

Edward Alexander of Grove street was in New York today on business.

Miss Judith Sabin of School street returned to her studies at Brown university in Providence today.

SOUTH KILLINGLY

On Spaulding hill during the sleet and ice storm Tuesday, a sedan and truck came together during the morning hours. The sedan, which was coming down, started to skid and hit the truck, causing that to turn around. No great damage was done either machine. In the early evening, a car coming from Providence left the road at South Killingly, climbed a bank and plunged into a cellar hole, where the Old Tavern once stood. This car was badly damaged but neither of the four occupants received other than minor injuries. The driver claimed the heavy fog caused him to miss the highway.

Mr. and Mrs. Milan Whitaker recently entertained Mrs. C. M. Geer, Leroy Geer and Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Goodwin of Lebanon.

Malcolm, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Spaulding, has been seriously ill at the home of his parents, suffering an attack of influenza which was followed by measles. A slight improvement in his condition was reported early in the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Milan Whitaker and Mr. and Mrs. Byron Place visited friends in Providence, Monday.

Harry Dean of Central Village called on Mrs. A. E. Hall Thursday.

Recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tetreault were Mr. and Mrs. Felix Lefleur and daughter, Dora, of Danielson.

James Salisbury and Harvey Fortune were in New London recently.

Mrs. Patrick Coffey, Francis and Beatrice Coffey and Byron Wood were guests Thursday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Young of Danielson.

Mrs. A. E. Phillips, Mrs. Patrick Coffey, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hall were in Danielson Thursday afternoon to meet with the standing committee of the Westfield Congregational church. Several plans for revising the spiritual work of this place were presented. This work has been taken care of by the pastor of the Danielson church and his assistant, but it has been suggested that this arrangement be discontinued and a new one tried.

Fred Shippee and son, Junior, of Danielson were callers at The Oaks, Sunday.

JEWETT CITY

DEATH SUGGESTS BOOK BY "ADIRONDACK" MURRAY

The recent death of the widow of Rev. W. H. H. Murray as told in Monday's Bulletin, was of interest to some in Jewett City. When the late William A. Slater, in accordance with the munificent will of his father, John F. Slater, of Norwich, was attending to the purchase of some thousands of books for the new Slater library, the late A. A. Young, Jr., of Jewett City, exercised considerable influence in their wise selection.

In 1869, Rev. W. H. H. Murray published a book, Adventures in the Wilderness, which he affectionately dedicated to his friend, U. S. Senator Orville H. Platt, of Meriden. A copy of this book was sent to Mr. Young, and it is in the library today, a fine narrative of camp life in the Adirondacks. Among the many interesting chapters is to be found one given to "Loon Shooting in a Thunder Storm." The same fall, during which the book was secured, a pair of northern loons showed up in the upper Tadpole pond. There has never been the trace of one seen there since.

Every afternoon, just at dusk, when the black ducks dropped in, along came the loons. Old hunters, as well as several younger members with their first guns, let go nothing less than 50 pounds of lead in the attempt to bag one of the loons, but never did.

Two Jewett City boys then took it upon themselves to write a letter to Rev. W. H. M. Murray, in which they asked him, how to get one of the Tadpole loons. One of the boys, (not a boy now, by some) has the reply from Mr. Murray in which he advises the methods used by him, "(fdtile" also), and described in the book now to be had at the Slater library.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS NOMINATES BOROUGH TICKET

The republican caucus was held in the Town hall at 8 o'clock Monday evening. The moderator was Dr. G. H. Jennings and clerk, L. M. Carpenter. Nominated for borough officers were: Burgesses Felix Goffiet, Thomas McBroome; collector of taxes, Ulderic Jodoin; clerk and treasurer, John F. Barrett; assessor, John H. Tracy; auditor, George H. Prior; bailiff, Hector Sibelleaud.

The nominations of Ulderic Jodoin for collector of taxes and of John F. Barnett for clerk and treasurer, will be noted as being a ratification of the democratic nominations in the caucus of Jan. 3rd.

Passers-by on Main street all day Tuesday viewed with interest the work of the roofing gang at the Baptist church, all day, in temperature of 16 to 18 above, in the teeth of a steady half-gale from the northwest, they kept at the job of closing in the roof, 50 feet above the street.

GIFT OF HANDSOME TEA SET FOR POLISH SO. PRESIDENT

The Polish Rosary society gave a surprise party for Mrs. Kolbus, Sunday, Mrs. Kolbus retiring as its president, after serving fourteen years. She was presented an exquisite tea set in recognition of her services. There was a short program during which Adeline Glowacki danced and sang and recited several poems. Stella Glowacki played piano selections and Theodore Arabik gave violin selections. The officers elected are: Mrs. Burda, president, and Mrs. Shocsylas, treasurer. The women selected for the refreshment committee were Mrs. Joseph Glowacki, Mrs. Frank Menski, Mrs. John Burda, Mrs. J. Kapcsukiewicz, Mrs. Boduch, Mrs. Shocsylas, Mrs. Wojdon and Mrs. Pajah. The tables were decorated with flowers made by Mrs. Chmebroski. Over one hundred women were present at the party.

Mrs. Abraham Zegeer is to entertain the Congregational women at a missionary tea at her home, Thursday.

JEWETT CITY TRUST CO. HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

The Jewett City Trust Co. held its annual meeting Tuesday afternoon and re-elected these officers: President, L. M. Carpenter; first vice president, Alex McNicol; second vice president, James H. Shea; treasurer Chester Dudkowski; secretary, James Dolan. The directors elected in addition to the above names were: A. D. Tripp, Andrew McNicol, Dr. G. H. Jennings, Edmond Jodoin, Earl Wood, W. C. Terry and E. E. Gilbert. The bank has had a very prosperous year, with bright prospects for increased business.

Fourth quarterly conferences of the Methodist church, Rev. Myron E. Genter, district superintendent presiding, are to be held at Bethel Methodist church today (Wednesday) at two o'clock, at Voluntown church at 3.15 and in Jewett City at 7:30.

At the meeting of Lisbon Community club to be held in the Newent hall this (Wednesday) evening, especial attractions are planned by the committee. Amateur entertainers will give the program.

Monday night, some driver, cross-eyed or wall-eyed, ran into the hydrant, corner of Main and Soule street. A leak resulted, causing an area of glare ice on the side walk. Ashes were applied by the street department. The workmen opening the state road out to the water main, found the frozen cement and rock ballast offering the resistance of flint to the blows of the pick.

Representative Lionel E. Boucher was in Hartford Tuesday evening at the Capitol, to be present at the legislative caucusses.

Six-room tenement to let. Inquire at Arremony store.—adv.

Mrs. Walter A. Richardson left New London this (Wednesday) morning as a passenger on the "Everglades" express bound for Deland, Florida. The identical cars that leave Boston, are in the train make up when it reaches Deland. Mrs. Richardson is an ardent and exceptionally well informed botanist, especially on the varied mountain and low land flora of New Hampshire. Her herbarium of specimens collected in the Granite state is of much interest, both for correctness of detail and finish in mounting. On recent trips to Florida, Mrs. Richardson has brought to her home in Jewett City, several varieties of cactus from the Palmetto state, which have been taught to bloom in her gardens here. In the spring of 1927 she transported, wrapped in a paper in her baggage, several dry cuttings from the great yellow Everglades cactus. As a result of the quantity of water in the great flesh-like leaves, they survived the trip and bloomed during the summer in great beauty.

Mrs. E. H. Hiscox was the guest Tuesday of her cousin, Miss Gertrude Arnold, of Windham Center.

Officers of Faith Chapter, O. E. S., No. 32, are to be installed at the next regular meeting. Past Matron Isabella M. Blair will be the installing officer.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Delaney, Mrs. Eva Lathrope and Mr. and Mrs. Alburtus Dawley were in Boston recently to attend the funeral of a brother in the family of which Mrs. Delaney and Mrs. Dawley were children.

Simplicity of cooling system is a feature of the new Ford

A COMPLETE water plant is a part of every automobile as it is a part of every modern city.

The purpose of this water plant is to keep the engine cooled to a temperature that will make it efficient in operation. If it were not for this, the cylinder walls would overheat and the pistons would refuse to operate.

The cooling system of the new Ford is particularly interesting because it is so simple and reliable.

When the radiator is full of water, the engine of the new Ford will not overheat under the hardest driving. Yet the action of the water is so regulated that it will not impair engine operation by running too cold in winter.

The cooling surface of the Ford radiator is large and there are four rows of tubes, set in staggered position so that each receives the full benefit of the incoming air.

The fan is of the airplane-propeller type and draws air through the radiator at the rapid rate of 850 cubic feet per minute at 1000 revolutions per minute of the motor.

The hot water around the cylinder head is drawn to the radiator to be cooled by a centrifugal water pump of new design.

The entire cooling system of the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires very little attention.

The radiator should be kept full of water, of course, and drained once each month so that sediment will not collect and retard the free passage of water. In cold weather a reliable anti-freeze solution should be added.

As owner and manager of this important water plant, you should also see that the water pump and fan shaft are properly lubricated and the packing around the pump shaft kept in adjustment.

The hose connections may also need replacement after long, continuous service. For those little adjustments, it pays to call on the Ford dealer.

He works under close factory supervision and he has been specially trained and equipped to do a competent job at a fair price.

ONE CANAL OR TWO.

For several years there has been talk of a new canal across Central America. This has got its greatest support from the fact that the business through Panama canal has increased to such an extent that it will not be able in a few years to accommodate the demands upon it.

What is going to be the action at that time? Is traffic going to be made to wait until there is a chance to get through, is the Panama canal going to be enlarged to meet the increased demand or is there going to be additional facilities provided through another canal?

It is the belief of Senator Edge of New Jersey that there should be an investigation and survey made for a canal that would go through Nicaragua, making use of the San Juan river and Lake Nicaragua. This would be in accordance with a plan that was considered at the time the Panama canal was built but which was regarded as less desirable at that time.

Such development would be pleasing to Nicaragua, with which country we already have a treaty permitting such construction. It, as claimed, it will be impossible in 20 years for the Panama canal to handle the traffic, there must be a considerable outlay somewhere. Whether it should be made at the Panama canal, which became the longer route between our two coasts, ought to be determined by inquiry. It is necessarily a question for engineers to decide, at least as far as expense is involved and the practicability of such development. A study of the conditions now and those predicted some years hence should be made. The advantages and the objections need to be carefully weighed. It is not a matter for snap judgment but it is well that efforts should be made to have our policy determined before the day arrives when better canal facilities are going to be needed.

There are those who maintained back in the beginning of this century, and still cling to their belief, that the Nicaraguan route was better than that across Panama. The latter won the decision but now the question arises as to whether all the canal consideration should be centered at one point or divided and the Edge resolution if adopted will mean an early start to get a decision on the new situation.

OUR SHIPPING LINES.

An announcement of more than passing interest was that which was made last week by the Ward line to the effect that it would soon let the contract for the construction of two new modern steamships for the run between New York and Havana.

This last, as might at first thought be supposed, the result of the recent competition which has been entered into by the Cunard line over this route. The Ward line has been developing its plans for a considerable time in recognition of the need of giving better and faster service. This means much for the American merchant marine for the vessels to be built will be of strictly American type and make valuable additions to the American fleet.

But while this additional service is being arranged for this particular line it must become evident that much the same need exists in connection with other steamship lines between this and other countries of the western hemisphere.

When there is business aplenty and it is unable to get such accommodations as it seeks and attracts the owners of vessels in other countries to step in and supply the requirements, it becomes evident that if American enterprise had been dealing properly with the situation there would have been no chance for such outside competition.

Although it may be rightly insisted that the run to Havana is open to any steamship line that wants to make it, we cannot overlook the fact that we left the way open and really extended the invitation for such competition by taking the attitude that the service being rendered was adequate. The use of the Cunard liner in the Havana service may awaken us to a realization of shortcomings in other directions.

RECLAIMING WASTE LAND.

Reclamation work has accomplished great changes. Waste lands have been transformed and made highly valuable for many purposes through draining and filling to such an extent that it is surprising that it is not until this late date that the reclamation commission has conceived the idea of filling in the swampy area between the Passaic and Hackensack rivers in New Jersey with the ashes and garbage from New York city.

For a long time objection has been raised to the methods which New York has adopted of getting rid of such material. When its garbage was sent to incinerators there was objection and when that was followed by towing it to sea another howl of protest resulted from the beaches to which it was claimed, the refuse floated.

If New Jersey desires it and New York is agreeable to such a disposition, there ought to be a satisfactory arrangement made by which everyone will be benefited.

It is easy to point to many localities where low lands have been drained and filled and today present some of the most attractive and costly residences. From the swampy region they have become exclusive residential sections. The change has been most agreeable for those who knew the section in other days may remember but cannot fail to appreciate the improvement, while those who never knew of the reclamation are happy and contented.

Furthermore the work of filling in just such places has provided highly valuable and desirable sites for industrial plants after a few years.

When it is realized that 4,500,000 cubic yards of ashes are collected in New York districts which could contribute to such a fill and that as large an amount of garbage and rubbish is available it can be readily seen that it would take no great time to cover a large acreage, eliminate a useless swamp and make it available for many purposes. The advancement of such an idea doesn't mean its adoption, but there is certainly justification for a careful study of the scheme for any objections that may be raised. It is a proposition for waste elimination which is interesting.

ALEXANDER AS DICTATOR.

Efforts to reconcile the differences among the three leading groups of people making up the population of Jugoslavia have not been successful. When the constitution for this new monarchy was established there were great hopes but equally grave fears. In the test that has been made during the past seven years there have been manifestations of ill will which could not be overlooked and from all indications could not be overcome. Conditions have gotten to the point where King Alexander has decided that it is necessary to take matters into his own hands and in setting up a dictatorship he does so with due recognition of the fact that he has been a good king, anxious to prevent trouble and the hope is that what could not be accomplished through the parliament can be done through the firm hand of the dictator.

Jugoslavia has followed in the footsteps of other European countries. After it was demonstrated through trial that the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes could not make a success of parliamentary methods and were disposed to disagree and even assassinate when that seemed necessary, Alexander decides to see what he can do by taking hold of the reins in the crisis.

The difficulties have not risen over him or his rule. He is thus in the fortunate position of being well regarded by all and from the manner in which he has selected members of his cabinet from the respective sections of Jugoslavia appeals to these fighting groups in a manner which is best calculated to get results.

It cannot be expected that he is going to overcome certain of the differences which have prevailed in the past. The aim is to get those who have been making a united nation impossible to stand together under the new arrangement. They have shown that they are not ready for parliamentary government. The trouble within the country has been made all the worse by the knowledge of unfriendliness from the outside. Thus the dictator is certain to have his hands full, but his record is such as to lend encouragement to the belief that he has the welfare of the country at heart and will make a determined effort to accomplish a recognized hard task.

MR. ROOT'S SELECTION.

In connection with the decision of the league of nations to make certain revisions in connection with the operations of the world court, it will be admitted without question that an excellent selection has been made in the choice of Elihu Root as the American to assist in that work.

Back in 1920 Mr. Root served as a member of an advisory committee of jurists to draft a statute for the court. His influence in that committee was not slight, both because of the country he represented and the ability that he carried to the task. He was eminently fitted for that work through temperament and training and he made such a good impression that his services are again sought in connection with changes. Not only has this honor been offered to Mr. Root but he has accepted it and he will go to Europe to participate in this important international work. It is highly creditable that a man of his high type and fitness should be chosen for such work. It is not only recognition of his qualifications but an evidence that there is a desire to have skilled hands participate in the revision.

The selection of such a leading American supports the belief that others who will serve will be of equal outstanding ability in their respective countries and that the selection of such talent means the determination that the world's best minds shall be brought into action in effecting changes in the court from which so much is expected.

In whatever direction Mr. Root's services have been sought they have resulted in a response that was a credit not only to self but to country.

The mayor of New York is blaming drugs for crime in that city. But who is he blaming for the drugs?

Those who are bemoaning because they haven't had much snow to shovel should not worry; the next ten weeks will provide plenty of exercise.

The commissioner of police in Chicago says the city needs 12,000 additional policemen. Perhaps he could pick up some of those New York has been discarding.

LOVE VIA A TYPEWRITER.

It was blue Monday. Marie Barton sat at her typewriter in the entrance office of "Bibbs & Co., Investment Brokers." She sat with eyes fixed studiously on her shorthand notes, her fingers moving with rhythmic precision across the celluloid keys. "Plinkty-plankty-plunk" went the typewriter under her expert touch. Marie removed a typed sheet from the roller, inserted fresh paper and began a second page, but her heart was not in her work.

"Where do you work, Marie?
For Bibbs and Compan-ee.
What do you do, Marie?
Oh—I plinkty-plankty-plunk."

It was the quavering tenor of Dave the office boy, his face twisted into a mischievous grin as he danced behind her desk. At another time Marie would have laughed and composed a parody of her own, but today, somehow, all the world seemed wrong.

"Hello, what's going on ...ere? Grand opera?" A tall young man had swung open the office door just in time to hear Dave's song and now stood before Marie's desk, his warm brown eyes twinkling with humor.

"What can I do for you?" demanded Marie in her most business-like manner. The stranger produced a card.

"I'm Jack Glenn of the bond department at National Trust," he explained. "I'd like to see the boss".

"He's busy," said Marie primly, "but I'll see what I can do," and rising, she went into Mr Bibb's private sanctum. The boss was at the telephone and it was some three minutes before she could return and inform Mr. Glenn that he could enter. As she seated herself again at the typewriter her eye caught four strange lines typed squarely in the middle of the page:

"Why do you work Marie,
For Bibbs and Compan-ee?
Why don't you come with me
For lunch—for lunch—for lunch?"
"JACK GLENN"

The fresh thing! In spite of herself Marie laughed. When the author came out of the private office a short time afterward she tried to refuse his invitation, but Jack Glenn would not be denied and in the end she yielded and accompanied him.

It was blue Monday again. Marie Barton sat at her typewriter, her fingers moving mechanically over the keys.

"Hullo, everybody!" called a cheerful voice and Jack Glenn breezed through the door. For several months now that gentleman had been a frequent visitor at the Bibbs office and it wasn't to see Mr. Bibbs, either. In fact, Jack never seemed to find it possible to get farther than Marie's desk. He was always there asking her to lunch, to the movies or out for Sunday picnics.

Today, however, that lady turned a frosty shoulder at his greeting and not for an instant did her fingers stop their rhythmic pecking. "Plinkty-plankty-plunk!" Jack bent across the desk his voice pleading:

"Aw, listen, Marie. Don't be sore about my breaking that date. I tried to get you on the telephone, but you weren't in. The boss ordered me to deliver those bonds in Peoria and I had to go. It was a big deal, dear. Nice commission, nice nest egg for—" But Marie did not listen. She was on her feet.

"I'll tell Mr. Bibbs that you're here, if you want to see him," she announced frigidly. Jack's face hardened, his jaw set.

"Very well," he snapped and when later Marie reappeared and nodded toward the private office he strode past her without a word.

He hated her. Her horrid temper had ruined everything and her pride would never let her make amends. Marie's eyes were blurred with hot tears as she crossed to her desk.

"Why are you mad, Marie?
I love you, don't you see?
Why don't you marry me
For good—for good—for good?"

Her heart leaped. The strange lines on her typewriter danced before her. With fumbling fingers Marie wrote her answer beneath the verse. "I will—I will—I will!" And then, trembling with excitement, she grabbed her hat and fled from the office.

"Tell Jack I'm at—the usual place," she stammered to Dave. When Jack Glenn, white and sterned-faced, emerged from Mr. Bibb's office, Dave handed him a sheet of paper.

"What's this?, exclaimed Jack. "I love you—marry me—I will!!" But she was so peeved I didn't write anything today." The office boy grinned proudly.

"'Course you didn't—too dumb. But she thinks you wrote it—and, take it from me, you'd better never tell her you didn't." Jack had already bolted for the door, but not before slipping Dave a crisp new $20 bill.

"Believe me," he shouted, "I never will.—Exchange

YOUR HEALTH

CHRONIC CONSTIPATION MAY REQUIRE SURGERY

By M. H. Streicher, M. D., University of Illinois College of Medicine, Chicago.

Chronic constipation is a term usually applied to a state of irregular bowel activity. The condition is prevalent among a large group of people, and therefore is predominantly essential in problems of preventive medicine. Normally it requires from 20 to 24 hours for food to pass through the digestive canal. This necessarily implies the assertion that persons in good health have a bowel evacuation once in 24 hours, preferably after breakfast.

It is usually an organic or functional impairment that brings about a delay in proper evacuation of the intestinal contents. Specifically, constipation may be due to:

1. Errors of diet, such as intake of food containing too little cellulose to stimulate peristalsis, or to insufficient use of water.
2. Mental excitement.
3. Alteration of mode of life.
4. Excessive use of laxatives.
5. Excessive use of constipating drugs.
6. Sedentary habits.
7. Weakness of abdominal muscles.

The malady is manifested mainly by mental sluggishness, depression, dizziness, headache, poor appetite, a coated tongue and impairment of activity and nutrition in general.

The complications arising in the alimentary canal are numerous, and are a challenge to the entire organism. Among the most common complications following constipation are hemorrhoids, appendicitis, and certain skin diseases, such as eczema and acne.

When you stop to consider the distance from the stomach to the rectum and the complicated reflex of defecation under the control of the autonomic nervous system, you undoubtedly will appreciate the extreme importance of the necessary team work.

The treatment of chronic constipation will depend largely upon the specific condition or factors that are producing the impairment. For example, if the constipation is produced as a consequence of an abdominal tumor pressing on the bowel, then the treatment must necessarily be a surgical removal of the obstructing mass. If, on the other hand, constipation is the end result of post-operative adhesions, it is perhaps advisable to cope with this situation by regulating the diet and the use of certain medications.

However, a much greater percentage will fall into the realm of those who are constipated on a constitutional or functional basis, and to this group I recommend the observation of the following each morning:

1. Inhibit desire to defecate at irregular hours.
2. Eat a properly balanced diet.
3. Cultivate "habit" to defecate regularly after breakfast each morning.
4. Avoid mental strain.
5. Avoid undue use of drugs.
6. Exercise of abdominal muscles
7. Proper dental care.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—Shouting and tumult over the extra session problem enlivened an otherwise dull holiday recess season for Washington.

With Senator Borah conducting a pro-extra session crusade and a good many of his republican colleagues on the other side of the fence, a lively and enjoyable time was had by all. By coupling up with this and some other matters the unexpected change in plans that curtailed President-elect Hoover's good will journeying in Latin America to rush to Washington for conferences, political speculators found a delightful field of activity during the lay off.

Mr. Hoover being the only source of authority to convoke a special session after March 4 next, obviously all the gabbling about it had value only as it might indicate or influence his point of view.

Coolidge Clearing Desk?

There have been a good many things to indicate that President Coolidge and some republican stalwarts "on the hill" had no intention of leaving over to the new administration any unfinished business that possibly could be disposed of before Mr. Coolidge leaves office. The farm relief bill, for instance, has been urged for imediate passage in such form as to win a Coolidge signature by no less an authority than McNary of Oregon, co-author of the McNary-Haugen measure. This means a bill shorn of the equalization fee financing plan for control of the marketing of crop surplus.

McNary talked this idea over with President Coolidge weeks ago. It seemed then to have found favor at the white house. There were rumblings suggesting that both were quite of a mind to round things out in the interest of the Coolidge administration's record on the books and not contribute to anybody's idea that farm relief was too tough a nut for the incumbent authorities to crack. That, of course, was just gossip; but it seemed unusually well founded at the time.

Borah Gets Action

Whatever the fact may be, plans to hustle through the farm bill in some form this session reckoned without Senator Borah. Having declared for an extra session during the election, he was still for it after election. Just as soon as congress shut down for the hiladys and there was a chance for his voice to be heard, he began saying so, right out loud.

Borah is a remarkable figure in Washington's public life. Since the League of Nations battle in the senate, he has developed to high efficiency a personal technique in getting things done his way. The most effective publicity machinery in town, aside from the white house press conferences, is the Borah private press conference system. He alone among the senators enjoys the distinction of regular meetings with those of the press gallery who care to attend.

He knows when to be completely frank and permit himself to be quoted and when to be just informative but unquotable. If you doubt it, look at the extra session row. It was just simmering along until Borah decided to stir things up. Then it began to boil. And that upset even Mr. Hoover's Latin-America good will schedule.

...tories That Recall Others

Falling to Pieces

The intractable Joseph was playing among his delapidated toys after a joyous Christmas of introspection.

Mother viewing the wreckage said despairingly: "It makes me sorry, Joseph to see your gifts going to pieces."

"Your new bird is falling apart, too, mother. His fur is all over the cage," replied the calculating four year old.

A Thrifty Housewife.

A thrifty housewife was buying her husband some overalls at a store.

"I want the largest size you have," she said.

The proprietor, knowing the husband's physique, said: "These are the largest, but I think they will be too long for your husband."

"I want them long, so I can cut off the legs for patches," replied the shrewd wife.

Camera Coincidence.

Mr H. A. Ball calls the Nomad's attention to the marked resemblance between newspaper portraits of Governor Frank G Allen and Congressman John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, who lately addressed very ably the tariff conference at Hartford. Mr Ball says: "If these two gentlemen are as much alike in the flesh as they are in these photographs Congressman Tilson could take Governor Allen's seat in the executive chamber on Beacon Hill and the governor hold forth in the congressman's place in the halls of congress and nobody would be the wiser." However, the Nomad is able to say that, in the flesh, these two gentlemen do not look noticeably alike. Either in the halls of legislation or elsewhere, no one would be likely to confuse them. It seems to be merely a matter of that curious illusiveness that photographs frequently develop. Nothing can look more unlike a real man or woman than an honestly taken photograph. The camera has a queer trick of occasionally presenting some aspect of a person's face that is very far away from his usual character and appearance. The resemblance between the press photographs of Governor Allen and Congressman Tilson is really quite marked, but it is only a sort of camera coincidence.—The Nomad in Boston Transcript

Hooty the Owl Makes a Mistake

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Even the wise will often make
An inexcusable mistake.
—Old Mother Nature.

Hooty the Owl had not forgotten how and where Peter Rabbit had slipped out from under his very claws. He knew Peter so well that he knew that if Peter found plenty to eat in Farmer Brown's barn not even possible danger would be able to keep him away from there. So Hooty planned to keep watch of that little door—that little swinging door—by means of which Peter had escaped into the barn. So the next night Hooty perched where he could watch Farmer Brown's dooryard from the time Farmer Brown's Boy finished his evening chores and went into the house. It was moonlight and Hooty could see for a considerable distance.

"As soon as all is quiet in the house," thought Hooty, "I'll move over where I can drop on Peter Rabbit if he comes out of that barn. I want to be near enough to give him no chance."

It was moonlight and Hooty could see for a considerable distance

Hooty saw Reddy Fox come stealing around the corner of Farmer Brown's barn. He saw him move along with his nose to the snow. He saw him stop beside that little door and finally move on down along the Old Stonewall beside the Old Orchard, disappearing finally in the Green Forest. "Good riddance," muttered Hooty to himself. "I am glad he is out of the way. I have a feeling I am going to catch something tonight. I don't want to have to fight for it after I get it."

At last all was quiet in Farmer Brown's house. Hooty flew over on silent wings, to perch on a fence post of the henyard, which was very near that part of the barn where was the little swinging door through which Peter had disappeared the night before. In the moonlight Hooty looked very like a part of the post. It looked simply as if that particular post was taller than the others. Patience is one thing that Hooty the Owl has plenty of. Much of his hunting is done sitting still. Instead of flying about Hooty sat perfectly still for a long time. The only movement he made was to turn his head now and again, and he did this so quickly that unless you had happened to be looking right at him, you wouldn't know he had turned it. But most of the time his great fierce eyes were fixed on that little swinging door in Farmer Brown's barn.

At last his patience was rewarded. He saw that little door push out just a little. Instantly he spread those great noiseless wings of his and sailed over until he was right above that little door. Just as he got there the little door was pushed way up and someone came out. Hooty didn't wait to see who that someone was. He dropped with those great claws of his reaching for what he was confident was Peter Rabbit. It was only as he struck that he realized he had made a mistake. He was too late to fully withdraw those claws. They struck, and struck hard, and when they struck there was a screech and the thing he had caught twisted and turned and began to claw him. He had caught Black Pussy the Cat, and Black Pussy was too big and too strong for even big, fierce Hooty the Owl.

My, such a racket as there was for a few minutes! It brought Farmer Brown's Boy to the window. It set Bowser the Hound, who was spending the night in the house, to barking. Hooty the Owl was trying his best to let go. He was beating Black Pussy with his great wings and striking with his hooked bill, and Black Pussy was digging in with the claws of her hind feet and tearing the feathers out of Hooty in clouds. Black Pussy was both hurt and angry.

That fight lasted only a few minutes. Hooty got a chance to take to the air and went flapping away in a heavy manner, as if he had hardly strength enough to move those big wings. Black Pussy scampered straight across for the house, entering through another little door over there in the backshed. There Farmer Brown's Boy found her and bathed her wounds. She wasn't seriously hurt. As for Hooty, he no longer had an appetite for the rest of that night. He had lost it when he made that mistake.

Jars of Vicks daily

Compared with 1918, this epidemic, so far, is mild; and yet, in spite of vastly increased capacity, the Vicks Laboratories are once more operating night and day to meet the emergency demand for more and more Vicks VapoRub. Over 375,000 jars are now being produced daily.

approved method for using Vicks for FLU

1. AS A PREVENTIVE

Several times a day, insert Vicks up the nostrils. Also melt a little night and morning in a bowl of boiling water and inhale the steaming medicated vapors. This helps to ward off germ-infection.

2. IF A COLD STARTS

If possible, go home and go to bed. Take a laxative and a hot lemonade. Apply hot, wet towels over throat and chest until the skin is thoroughly reddened. Then rub vigorously with Vicks. Spread on thickly and cover with warm flannel. Leave the bed-covering loose, so that the vapors, released by the body-warmth, may be freely inhaled. At the same time, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice.

Repeat this treatment every four hours, eat lightly, and stay in bed until the cold is broken. Complete rest helps the body throw off the cold more quickly.

3. AFTER A FLU ATTACK

Physicians advise that the chief danger in this epidemic is after influenza. Then, more than ever, colds, attacking the weakened system, may lead to bronchitis, sinus-trouble or pneumonia. This is especially true of children or old folks.

Heed even the slightest cold as a danger signal. Vicks is especially valuable here, because it is applied externally, and so can be used freely, as often as needed, without upsetting delicate digestions, as too much "dosing" is so apt to do.

Quick Relief From Constipation

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years and calomel's old-time expert, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative mixed with olive oil.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver — constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

DANGEROUS Stomach Ulcers

Result from Neglected Stomach Acidity. Too Often Treated as Indigestion. Watch These Symptoms.

Stomach trouble is bound to get worse if you don't treat it properly, and dangerous ulcers may form before you realize. An excess of stomach acid causes gas, heartburn and indigestion, sours and ferments the food and attacks the delicate stomach lining. The fermented food then forms still more acid and makes a dangerous, vicious circle.

Merely to stop the pain of indigestion is not enough. Many simple remedies will do that. But for full protection against chronic acidity and stomach ulcers, more potent means are required. Bisurated Magnesia neutralizes excess acid instantly, and thus, by removing the cause of the trouble, gives quick relief. But still more important, it works to soothe, heal and protect the sore inflamed stomach lining. Don't take risks with anything less efficient. Today get a trial package of Bisurated Magnesia—either powder or tablets—from the nearest drug store. Either form will give almost instant relief.

SANITY COMMISSION NAMED TO EXAMINE MOLINARO AND WIFE

The expected trial of the cases of Fortunato Molinaro and his wife, Marieteresa, both of this city, on the charge of criminal libel of judges and lawyers in this county, which had been set to begin at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the superior court before Judge C. L. Avery and a jury did not transpire. Instead of the trial a sanity commission was appointed to examine the two accused and Judge Avery had court adjourned until next Tuesday morning, also excusing the jurors and telling them that they would be notified by telephone if they were needed again.

The commission named by Judge Avery consists of Dr. E. S. Burdsall, superintendent of the Norwich state hospital, Dr. James J. Donohue of this city and Dr. C. John Satti of New London. They will examine Mr. and Mrs. Molinaro before next Tuesday and make report to State Attorney Arthur M. Brown.

The spectators' seats in the court room were will filled when the hour to open court arrived and most of the five or six lawyers against whom the alleged libelous charges were made in the form of an appeal issued and circulated by the Molinaros last September were on hand in the court room. The two accused were brought in after a wait of about an hour while the papers in the appointent of the commission were being drawn up. Molinaro who was carrying the little black bag which contains papers which he believes have a bearing on this case and his other legal troubles, including the foreclosure of a mortgage, was placed in the pen but his wife was seated outside, behind the clerk's desk. She soon burst into tears as she tried to talk to her husband in a loud tone of voice but she became quiet when she was allowed to sit next to the steel cage where she could talk through the wires to her husband in a low tone of voice.

Papers in the Molinaro case have been sent to Washington with a view to possible deportation, but according to State Attorney Arthur M. Brown, he has received word that it will not be possible to deport the couple. He has been notified that after persons have been in this country for a certain length of time they cannot be deported unless there are a certain number of convictions against them. They have been here about 20 years. It is understood and there are no convictions against them as far as is known.

Besides the Molinaro case, the only other business for the court before the afternoon session adjourned was the calling of the bond of $150 in the case of Charles Tillinghast, 17, of North Stonington, who was accused with two others of the juvenile court age of the theft of about $100 which his grandmother had in a trunk.

Tillinghast was not in court and State Attorney Brown moved to have the bond called, which was done by Deputy Sheriff George H. Stanton. The bondsman was Frank B. Tillinghast. It was claimed by a friend in court that Tillinghast had misunderstood the day when he was to appear, believing it to be Wednesday of this week.

COMMITTEE APPROVES HOME DEMONSTRATION PROGRAMME

A new county home economics committee has been formed to act as an advisory committee for home demonstration work in New London county. This committee consists of Mrs. H. R. Whitman, Waterford; Mrs. E. M. Woods, Wequetequock; Mrs. E. J. Graham, Lebanon, and Miss Margery Brewster, Jewett City.

A meeting of this committee was held at the Farm bureau office on Monday afternoon. Miss Edith L. Mason, state home demonstration agent leader, told the women of the general plans and functions of a home economics committee.

The following plans for a county programme for home demonstration work were presented and approved by the committee:

First—A county-wide food project entitled, Square Meals for Health, to be done through leaders trained by Mrs. Marion E. Dakin, nutrition specialist. This work will consist of meetings in each community to be held from January through May.

Second—General meetings to suit the needs of local groups throughout June and July.

Third—A county kitchen improvement project to be held in September, October and November, under the direction of Miss Gladys E. Stratton, home management specialist.

This committee plans to meet three or four times a year when necessary to make arrangements for county meetings, etc.

Eleven North Stonington women met at the Congregational church vestry in that town on Friday, Jan. 4, for a Farm bureau meeting.

Remodeling of clothing was the subject for the day. Two dresses and a coat were remade and two felt hats were also completed.

This group of women plans for a felt hat meeting the first of February.

Goshen Hill Farm bureau group met at the home of Mrs. J. A. Thomas on Jan. 3 for a meeting to make wheel trays and to plan a program of work for 1929. One tray was put together and two more were taken by the women to be done at home. For further meetings the women plan to have three on clothing and two on food.

A chair seating meeting will be held in Stonington on Thursday, Jan 10, at 10 a. m. at the church parlors. Each woman has been asked to bring a chair to reseat in cane or twisted grass.

Norwich Town women will discuss meetings for 1929 on Friday afternoon, at 2 p. m., at the home of Mrs. William Weaver.

AARON GORDON STRICKEN WITH FATAL HEART ATTACK

Stricken with an acute heart attack, Aaron Gordon, 56, of No. 75 Sachem street, secretary and one of the founders of the Max Gordon and Son Corp., dealers in waste cotton and metals, died at about 10 o'clock Tuesday morning at his office on West Main street. Mr. Gordon, with several others, founded the Max Gordon corporation shortly after he came to the United States from Russia, where he was born on Dec. 15, 1872. Before locating in eastern Connecticut Mr. Gordon lived in Worcester.

At first Mr Gordon was manager of the Danielson branch of the corporation, serving in that capacity for about 12 years. He then became connected with the Norwich branch and six years ago he was chosen secretary of the corporation. While in this city Mr. Gordon took a prominent part in Jewish Welfare work and in the affairs of the several Jewish organizations. He was a founder of the Norwich Free Hebrew Institute, a charter member of the Brothers of Joseph Synagogue and a member of the B'nai B'rith, Odd Fellows and Norwich lodge, No. 430, B. P. O. Elks.

Mr. Gordon is survived by his widow, Rose Morrell Gordon, to whom he was married in Worcester about 31 years ago, three daughters, Mrs. K. K. Markoff of this city, Mrs. James Yoffa of Boston and Mrs. M. Contoff of Boston, two sisters, Mrs. B. Cotton and Mrs. B. Mintz, both of Boston and three grand children.

Mr. Gordon, one of the most prominent and well known citizens of the city, had a keen interest in the civic life of the city, was actively identified with the many Jewish and Gentile organizations in the city and served the Max Gordon and Son Corp., efficiently and satisfactorily for many years. The news of his sudden death was learned with profound regret and his wide circle of friends extend their heartfelt sympathy to the surviving members of the family in their bereavement.

SCHOOL BOARD TO NAME A VISITING TEACHER

The school board at its monthly meeting Tuesday evening in the court house voted that a visiting teacher be appointed by the board for the balance of the school year. The teacher will be selected by the superintendent subject to the approval of the board, the ordinary course in the appointment of a teacher being taken. Bills were ordered paid and reports from committees were made. The appointment of a visiting teacher was the only important business to come before the board.

There will be no blue laws governing Sunday radio broadcasting so far as the radio commission is concerned.

NORWICH MAN FINED FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

Charged with reckless driving and operating a motor vehicle with faulty brakes Henry W. Alofsin of West Main street was presented in the city court Tuesday morning. The accused was fined $25 and costs on the first count and a nolle was entered in the second due to lack of evidence. Alofsin was arrested on Jan. 2 following an automobile collision at the intersection of North Main and Second streets.

LOST RIGHT INDEX FINGER IN GEAR CHAIN

Benjamin Green, about 50, of Yantic, a special foreman in the employ of the state highway department, had the index finger of his right hand taken off about 7 o'clock Tuesday morning. The finger became caught in a gear chain of a sand machine, which was in operation at Yantic. Mr. Green was taken to the W. W. Backus hospital, where the injury was treated by Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve and he was later discharged.

DIRIGIBLE LOS ANGELES OFF ON TRAINING TRIP

LAKEHURST, N. J., Jan. 8—(AP)—The navy dirigible Los Angeles took off at 8:45 p. m. tonight for a training cruise of more than 2,000 miles which will take it south along the coast to Florida. The craft will participate in the dedication of the municipal airport at Miami, Fla., and then proceed to St. Joseph's bay to the mast-ship Patoka.

CONTEST AT THE TARIFF REVISION HEARINGS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The first fight between producers and manufacturers—one which touched upon a phase of the farm problem—broke out today at the tariff revision hearings of the house ways and means committee.

Casein, a powder made from skimmed milk and used extensively by makers of coated paper, was the item over which the battle was fought. Disagreement developed over both the quantity and quality produced in this country.

NEW YORK SUBWAY COMPANY HOLDS IT NEEDS 7-CENT FARE

NEW YORK—(AP)—Although the Interborough Rapid Transit Company carries millions of passangers under and above the streets of New York city, it has been unable to pay dividends for about 10 years.

The possibility of winning its 7-cent fare case, now before the United States supreme court, holds out hope of strengthening the company's financial position, but competition with a municipal subway now under construction, and the city's plans to endeavor to seize all or part of the Interborough lines, remain important factors.

The Interborough was plunged into financial difficulties by complications arising from its lease of the Manhattan Railway Co. elevated lines. While the subway lines are profitable, the elevated lines are now operated at a heavy loss. The company asserts that the restriction to a 5-cent fare in the face of higher costs of labor and materials is a severe handicap.

The company's gross earnings for 1928 are estimated at $67,502,320, an increase of $4,000,000 over 1927. The company places its net at $3,021,000, about double the net for the previous year.

UNITED STATES STEEL EXPECTS ACTIVE YEAR, IN 1929

NEW YORK —(AP)— The United States Steel Corporation has entered 1929 with a good backlog of orders after one of the busiest years in its history. Last year saw a complete reversal of the downward trend of steel industry at the beginning of 1928. U. S. Steel's earnings for 1928 are expected nearly to equal the basis of $12.55 per common share of 1926, in contrast to earnings of only $8.81 per share in 1927.

The corporation closed this year operating at nearly 85 per cent of capacity, although the year-end normally brings a seasonal decline. Heavy requirements of the automotive and building industries kept mills operating at a high rate in the later months. Requirements of these industries are expected to run at a high level during the early months of this year. To them has been added the resumption of the purchase of equipment on large scale by the railroads.

While steel prices increased only moderaterly during 1928, prices for some lines were marked up for the first quarter of 1929 and the general tone of steel prices has shown firmer tendencies.

STAFFS ENLARGED IN WALL STREET FIRMS

NEW YORK—(AP)—January 2 probably was the biggest moving day in the history of Wall Street.

Changes in executive personnel of commission houses were more numerous than before, their announcements requiring two pages or more of newspaper advertising space and columns of news.

Virtually every firm enlarged its staff, indicating widespread expectations of a growing volume of business in 1929, the increases coming on top of others made late last year during the great bull market.

The larger houses added five partners, or more. Most others took in at least three. There were wholesale promotions in the street as veteran employers in firms many of them joined as office boys. There was also a realignment of established forces as traders and brokers found opportunities to employ their experience and and knowledge to better advantage with other houses, and an unusual amount of changing of fields of endeavor. Even the newspaper ranks were invaded for men of experience and understanding whom brokers believed would be helpful in meeting the exacting demands of a growing public interest in security trading.

Curiously, announced changes in executive personnel of corporations were comparatively few.

Electrify Old Railroad

SWANSEA, England —(AP)— The Mumbles Railroad Line in Wales, England's oldest continuously operated railway, which claims to be the oldest in the world, has been electrified. Authorized by act of Parliament June 29, 1804, the road first was used chiefly for transportation of minerals.

ALL PARKING REGULATIONS IN PUTNAM RESCINDED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Jan. 8.—The January meeting of the common council was held here tonight with Mayor Charles A. Richard presiding. Mayor Richard delivered his annual message to the body, commenting upon the work of the municipal departments and the cooperation given him by the members of the city council during the past year. A very noticeable accomplishment touched upon in Mayor Richard's message was the decrease in the city debt, which had diminished $5,000 during 1928.

Two of the most important matters touched upon by the aldermanic body this evening were the solution of the parking situation, which has been in the limelight for the past two months and the water situation which is still in an unsettled state, despite the fact that the controversy regarding it has been in existence for two years.

Alderman Robert T. Chadwick, chairman of the city ordinance committee, read the new parking code, adopted and ratified by the aldermen tonight. Under the new code all parking restrictions now in effect are to be abolished and the city in the future will be wide open, so far as the parking of motor vehicles is concerned. The present ordinance maintaining Main street as a fire lane has been rescinded and will be supplemented by the "wideopen" policy. The new parking code as presented by Chadwick brought little discussion from the councilmen and was readily adopted as a solution to the vast amount of dissatisfaction on the part of business men in the city, who claimed to have been effected by the enforcement of the fire lane ordinance.

Annual reports of heads of the city departments were read and accepted with a motion being passed to have them published in the city register for 1929. Shortly before the close of the meeting Alderman-at-Large Ames inquired as to what the present board of water commissioners has done toward a favorable plan for a solution to the much disputed water problem, which involved the construction of some type of water storage tank and a new system of supply pipes and water mains. Ralph E. Thurston in reply to the inquiry said that the present board of water commissioners are new to their duties and have been during the past two months endeavoring to tabulate receipts and expenses of the water department, so as to compile a more satisfactory and complete report of the activities of the department to the council. This Mr. Thurston said, will be a feat which has never been done before. His statement was accepted with a promise of a report on the water problem at the February meeting of the council.

Mayor Richard announced to the council that the city departmental committee of 1928 would remain unchanged during the present year. The mayor also reappointed Ernest B. Kent to the board of water commission for three year term expiring June 1, 1932. With the reading of bills for expenses incurred during the current month the council voted to adjourn to the February meeting to be held on February 5.

NORWICH MEN ASSISTING IN NATIONAL CAMPAIGN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—A committee for Norwich, Conn., has ben formed by George E. Johnson, salesman of Norwich, to assist in the national campaign to endow a $3,000,000 home, hospital and place of rest and recreation for aged, inoapacitated and indigent traveling salesmen, near Winston-Salem, North Carolina, according to an announcement made by John H. J. Arnold Todd and family are moving to Pennsylvania.

No service was held in the Baptist church, Sunday, on account of the storm.

Trade In Partridges

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia—(AP)—A growing export trade in live partridges has been established in Czechoslovakia, more than 10,000 birds have been shipped in recent months to United States, England, France, Denmark, and The Netherlands. The business actually is a renewal of an old trade stopped when exportations threatened to deplete the native stock nearly to exhaustion.

Change Dress Measurements

NEW YORK—(AP)—Reference to age in dress pattern measurements will be eliminated and a size designation based on definite natural lengths will be adopted, if producers, distributors and users of dress patterns approve at a standardization conference here Friday7. The change will provide a number designation for the established sizes of misses', juniors', girls', childrens', boys', little boys', and infants' garments.

Tire Competition Keen

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The United Kingdom, France, Canada, Italy, Belgium, Japan and Germany are leading competitors of the United States in the world's tire market, the department of commerce says. The United States leads in production and exports, shipping from this country in 1928 nearly twice as many times as the next largest producer, France.

DEMPSEY WILL RETURN TO RING TO FULFILL RICKARD'S LAST WISH

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Grieving and weary, but still very much in the active fight picture, Jack Dempsey came back to New York from Miami Beach today with the body of Tex Rickard, to help work out the pretentious plans the great promoter had for him this year.

Bereft of the guiding rudder of Rickard's friendship and advice, Dempsey could hope only to "do the things Tex wanted done, the way he wanted." Tex wanted him to fight again for the heavyweight championship and clear the muddled situation left by the retirement of Gene Tunney, twice his conqueror. And this Dempsey intimated, is just what he will do.

But for the time being the old Manassa mauler could consider only the immediate future, the burial tomorrow of the "finest pal a man ever had," and completion of plans for the heavyweight match Rickard arranged for February 27 between Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling at Miami Beach.

Dempsey will leave Thursday for Miami Beach actively to undertake this task but before leaving he expects to make definite announcement of his plans. Mrs. Rickard, the promoter's widow, will probably go back to Florida at the same time for a rest.

"When a fellow like Rickard dies it takes the edge off everything" said Dempsey. "He was my pal."

On the train bearing Rickard's body Dempsey talked frankly of his position in the boxing world now that the great promoter the man who made him a millionaire had passed away. He said that he had not retired that he must carry on as Tex wished but that he had no desire to step into the master's vacant position as head of Madison Square Garden and its manifold activities.

"No one could not that and perhaps myself least of all" he said simply.

His connection wit hthe Miami Beach fight Jack said would be t'at of a part owner of the door track on the beach where the bout will be staged. He knew how Rickard wanted the match handled and will see that things are done Tex's way. He also will do anything necessary to protect Mrs. Rickard's interest. He will not referee the bout.

Dempsey was reluctant to talk of his agreement with Rickard which led to the promoter issuing a statement, printed after his death Sunday, that the former champion hd agreed to return to the ring for one match this year. He admitted he had promised to fight again and would not deny that he had actually signed a contract with Rickard.

Dempsey said Rickard never had a chance to recover from th eappendicitis operation on New Year's day. He said the accompanying infection had spread through the muscular walls of the stomach before the operation was performed. Rickard played 18 holes of golf the day he became violently ill.

At the request of the former champion, Arthur F. Driscoll, attorney who represented Dempsey in his legal battle with Jack Kearns, has been retained as Mrs. Rickard's attorney. Driscoll said Rickard's will was made last March. Garden attaches this afternoon removed all of Rickard's papers from the Garden to a valut of the New York company. Rickard's will be read on Wednesday.

GEORGE OWEN, NOTED HARVARD ATHLETE, SIGNS WITH BRUINS

BOSTON, Jan. 8—(AP)—George Owen one of Harvard's most noted athletic figures and probably the greatest American college hockey player since the days of the immortal Hobey Baker, has decided to have his fling at professional hockey.

Owen signed a one-year contract with the Boston Bruins today. He stipulated that he would not have to sever his connections with the Boston investment firm, to which he became attached when he graduated in 1923.

News of Owen's signing a Bruins' contract was considered the most sensational bit of hockey news that has developed here since the professional sport was introduced in this city in 1924. It eclipsed even the announcement that Myles Lane, the former Dartmouth star, had decided to play for the New York Rangers. for Owen has been long regarded as the most outstanding figure in amateur hockey.

For the past five years Owen's services have been sought by almost every club-owner in the National league. It was said that he had turned down four previous offers from the Boston Bruins. It was announced that Weston Adams, a senior at Harvard and a son of Charles F. Adams, owner of the Bruins, was influential in inducing Owen to forfeit his amateur standing.

STAFFORD SPRINGS DROPPED FROM BAY STATE CIRCUIT

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 8—(AP)—The annual meeting of the Bay State circuit of light harness racing, was held here today. Allan J. Wilson, former president of the circuit and now manager of the Sage Park track at Windsor, Conn., announced that his association will stage a renewal of the $25,000 New England pacing derby on July 3. Some of the leading pacers in the country competed in this event last year, then held for the first time. Stafford Springs has dropped from the circuit, it was announced today, with Danbury, Conn., being considered as a possible successor.

PUTNAM TAKES OPENING GAME IN S. N. E. LEAGUE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 7—Headquarters company of Putnam defeated the Armory Five here tonight in the opening game of the Southern New England league by the score of 24 to 17. The contest was exceptionally rough, 29 fouls being called by Referee Lambert on both quintets. The Armorians led throughout the first half until Cronin dropped in a long shot to knot the count at 11-all just before the whistle. Shortly after intermission L. Poirier was ruled off the court and the Danielson attack went to pieces, Headquarters running up a safe lead. Weiss featured for the winners, while L. Poirier and Gadreau played best for the locals. In the preliminary the Putnam Independents defeated Peter's Pets 22 to 17. Danielson and Putnam meet again Wednesday night at Putnam. The summary:

C. F. C. FIVE WINS EASILY OVER FINISHERS

The C. F. C. five of the Central Baptist church made it two straight over the Peerless Finishers of the United States Finishing Co. Tuesday evening at Parish hall, Taftville, by a score of 51 to 29. Last Saturday the C. F. C. won from the Bleachery boys in the city.

Nell, at center, was the shining light for the winners, dropping in 17 points and playing a neat game generally. Brown was close behind in point scoring with 14 tallies. Walter Dabrowski, former Westerly High athlete, led the losers with 11 points and played a nice game. Archibald also played well.

This was the fourth straight victory for the undefeated C. F. C. five.

HARVARD CREWS TO HAVE THREE NEW SHELLS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 8—(AP)—Indications that Harvard oarsmen would be given a wider choice in shells than before, were given today when Coach Ed Brown announced that three new boats would soon be added to the Harvard fleet.

A new Bowers & Phelps eight-oared shell, the gift of Robert F. Herrick of Boston, was delivered at the Newell boathouse at Harvard today, where it will await warmer weather for its first tryout. This shell, constructed in England, has sharper ends than most shells. Coach Brown said its bottom was much more rounded than those of the old Harvard shells and that it had almost straight lines.

Harvard also has been given the Sims shell which the Union Boat club eight used in England last summer when it lost to the Thames Boat club crew, at Henley. A third shell, which has been ordered in time for spring training, is now being built by Bill Lutz, veteran Harvard boat builder, at the Newell boathouse. Lutz said he planned to construct a light shell which would be capable of carrying the heavy Harvard varsity eight.

WHITTEMORE LEADS QUALIFIER IN PINEHURST TOURNEY

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 8—(AP)—Parker Whittemore, of Brookline, Mass., won the qualifying round in the annual mid-January tournament of Pinehurst Country club today with a score of 78. He had an outward round of 38 strokes and an inward of 40. William O'Brien, Detroit, finished second with a card of 79.

A field of more than 60 teed up in the medal round. A score of 85 was needed to qualify.

Others in the championship flight and their scores were: R. H. Swoope, Philadelphia 81; Norman Maxwell and F. Wolstenholme, Philadelphia 83; J. D. Chapman, Greenwich, Conn., 83; J. B. Blackburn, Pittsburgh, 85; R. J. Breed, Lynn.

MASSIE MILLER IN TIE FOR SECOND IN LOW BALL

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 8—(AP)—Johnny Farrell, and Gene Sarazen today reversed their latest tournament standings. Farrell, national open champion, paired with Alex Layton, Springfield, Ill., professional, won the Biltmore professional low ball tournament with a score of 68. Johnny was just barely in the money at the Miami open last week. Sarazen, winner of the Miami event, played with Tom Pepin of New York for best ball score of 69 and fifth place in the Biltmore match.

Farrell and Layton each chalked up four birdies during the play. Three pairs tied for second place in the tournament, with marks of 68. They were Joe Turnesa and Carl Anderson, Mike Brady and Eddie Hassman, all of the Metropolitan area, and Massie Miller, Norwich, Conn., and Norman Sommers Fort Lauderdale.

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

Stonington high lost a close game to the Stonington Iron Men last week in its first start of the year. Bill O'Brien will have a strong contender in the league race this year, however, for Stonington is determined to put up quite a fight.

One of the big surprises of the current basketball season came Friday night at New Haven when Coach Pete Foley's Naugatuck high five went down to a 28 to 27 defeat before New Haven Commercial high.

Wilby high in Waterbury, got revenge over Lyman Hall of Wallingford Friday for the beating received earlier in the season. Wilby won this game, 13 to 9.

A sweet battle between Windham and Bulkeley of Hartford is expected today at Hartford. Windham will rule the favorite to win, however. Windham lost to Conn. Aggies frosh Monday in a practice tilt.

Either Putnam is very good or Warwick very weak would seem to be the deducements following their games with Plainfield. Putnam had little difficulty beating Plainfield while Plainfield turned around and trimmed Warwick. It would not surprise if Putnam was very good. Anyway, her game with the Academy ought to show something about it.

HAGEN AND HORTON SMITH FAVORITES AT LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8—(AP)—Golfing legions, recruited from virtually every district of the country by the magnet of gold and glory, swarmed over this section's courses today in final practice skirmishes before swinging into action in the $10,000 Los Angeles open.

Early tomorrow morning approximately 300 golfers, split up into threesomes, will march to the first tees of six courses for 36 holes of qualifying play. This pre-tournament battle will cut down the field to the 74 low scorers and ties, and this force will battle it out with 42 others who are exempt from the qualifying test because of their showing in the recent national open and last year's Los Angeles open, in a 72-hole drive over the Riviera Country club layout, near Santa Monica, Calif., Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Names that are bywords in the realm of golf will figure in the open, crux of a coastwise string of tournaments, Walter Hagen, greatest money winner of all time; Macdonald Smith, the Scot who will be defending the open title; Leo Diegel, national open champion; George Von Elm, the blonde amateur from Detroit and Horton Smith, the tall 21 year old Joplin Mo., marvel, are only a few.

While the aforementioned players are regarded as the best bets, with Hagen rated as a 2 to 1 shot by virtue of his marvelous golfing stroke and long list of national and international titles, others have come up for consideration as potential winners. The concensus appears to place among the favorites the swarthy Al Espinosa of Chicago who has finished in the money in six of the seven tournaments held in the west during the last few weeks, and Tommy Armour, National open king in 1927 and winner of the $2,500 Sacramento open.

The canny Macdonald Smith, who, unlike the others, refused to enter any of the midwinter events, leading up to the Los Angeles open, is considered the most formidable of the "dark horses."

The bulk of interest lies between Hagen and the youthful Horton Smith, and the open promises to be the decisive contest between the British open champion and the lad who already is regarded as the heir-apparnt to many of the "Haig's" crowns. Looking over the tournament showings of the two it is revealed that they are even up after having met four times in the last few weeks. In the Portland, Ore. open, Hagen finished one stroke better than Smith. At Santa Catalina Island the cool-headed Joplin youth won by a like narrow margin from Hagen. The $5,000 Long Beach open saw Hagen winner with a 276, while Smith finished third with 282. Then in the San Diego open over the Chula Vista, Cal., course, the two met again and Smith took a second with 283; Hagen dropped to seventh with a 289, and the youth from the "show me" state got back the six strokes that his more illustrious opponent took at Long Beach.

LERMOND SETTLES DIFFERENCE WITH THE BOSTON A. A.

BOSTON, Jan. 8—(AP)—Leo Lermond, probably the country's greatest two miles runner, today patched up his differences with the Boston A. A. and agreed to resume immediate training under Jack Ryder, who developed him into a champion in three years.

The Boston runner, who was fourth in the Olympic 5,000 meters race last summer, had aspirations to join the New York A. C. and when negotiations with this club fell through, decided to go through the coming indoor track season unattached. It was believed that the action of the New York registration committee of the A. A. U. in giving Paavo Nurmi a permit to run as often as he likes in this country, caused Lermond to return to his old coach.

Lermond has been anxious to race Nurmi again and it is a certainty that the Boston A. A. will point him for the Finn at two miles.

NO SPRING MEETING FOR AMERICAN LEAGUE

CHICAGO, Jan. 8—(AP)—The affairs of the American league are in such excellent shape that the club owners decided today that a spring meeting would not be necessary. This is the first time in history of the circuit that the club owners decided to forego the spring session.

All of the business was cleared up at the December meeting in Chicago, E. S. Barnard, president of the league has gone to St. Petersburg, Fla., for a vacation until February 1.

THOUSANDS VIEW BODY OF RICKARD AS IT LIES IN STATE IN THE GARDEN

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP)—On the spot where the ring is placed when boxing contests are held at Madison Square Garden the body of Tex Rickard rested tonight, awaiting funeral services tomorrow afternoon and burial.

Before the final words are said in praise of the genius of the sports promoter who built the great arena where his body lies, thousands of men and women from every walk of life will pay their silent tribute. Tomorrow other thousands will be admitted until 1.30 o'clock, half an hour before the funeral service is read.

For three hours tonight the doors of the Garden were swung open to admit the public to pass the massive $15,000 bronze casket holding the body of Tex.

In his rise to the front rank of promoters, Rickard was continually striving to bring the "best people" to the ringside for his shows and if not to replace the fight fans of other days, whose uniform was a cap and a sweater, at least to push them farther back in the picture.

In death the "best people" in their high hats came with the boys nervously twitching their caps in their hands to pay tribute to a man who succeeded in making boxing respectable.

Boxing champions and titleholders of other days were in the throng, several white-haired men who held belts before Rickard ever saw a gloved hand lead or counter, coming to pay respectful tribute to a man whose like was not seen in their day.

Hockey, too, was represented for not only does the body rest near the ring posts for a boxing bout on a surface that hears the clang of skates on speeding feet. Boxing was the promoter's first and fondest love but hockey was second in his affections.

At the funeral tomorrow, boxers and hockey players and officials will join with enthusiasts for both sports in saying a final "well done."

At 1.30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, the many doors of Madison Square Garden will be closed and only holders of cards will be admitted after that hour. Card holders will include friends of the family, men prominent in sport, especially boxing and hockey and officials of the Madison Square Garden corporation, of which Tex Rickard was president and general manager.

The services in the Garden will be conducted by the Rev. George Cales Moor, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, and it was expected that a eulogy would be pronounced by Mayor James J. Walker, the mayor as a state senator was the father of the Walker law restoring boxing to favor in New York state. He was long a friend of Tex, and occupied a ringside seat at nearly every big fight in the Garden.

Honorary pallbearers announced include: Bernard Gimbel, Walter C. Kelly, Roy Howard, Ralph Pulitzer, Emil J. Carter, Richard Dunn, George F. Getz, James Hall, Frank Calder, Leo Dandurand, Gene Buck, Richard F. Hoyt, William F. Carey, John M. Chapman, Col. John S. Hammond, Harvey Gibson, Walter Chrysler, Walter Fields, Jack Dempsey, William Muldoon, James A. Farley, George E. Brower, Walter Camp, John Kilpatrick, Sydney R. Kent, John Ringland, Herbert Bayard Swope, Kermit Roosevelt, Dewey W. Dilworth, Matthew C. Brush, J. Ernest Richards, James I. Bush, John R. Dillon.

Representatives of the boxing and hockey writers also will serve as honorary pallbearers.

The body of the promoter reached New York from Miami this morning and was carried through a large crowd at the Pennsylvania station direct to Madison Square Garden, accompanied by a police escort. An inspector, his deputy, 20 sergeants and 200 patrolmen were assigned as the body lay in state.

A haggard and worn Jack Dempsey escorted Mrs. Rickard, bordering on collapse, to her New York home. The former heavyweight champion showed signs of suffering at his friend's death almost as pronounced as those of the widow.

At the Garden the crepe hung heavily about the arena was not needed to show that the biz sports place was in deep mourning. As the biz business men from "down-town," athletes whose names are on the sports pages every day and the plain fans came, they walked with hesitant tread and spoke in whispers. All said the same thing:

"How can it be the Garden without Tex?"

ACADEMY OPENS SEASON AT PUTNAM FRIDAY

The Academy's basketball season gets underway Friday night at Putnam when the Wildcat warriors face Putnam high in an Eastern Conn.-Western Rhode Island Interscholastic league tussle. The last meeting of these teams was in 1927, the Academy's first year of basketball, when the teams split even on their two-game series.

Friday's game is one of real importance to the Academy. It is probably the stiffest opener that Red and White court teams have had in their brief career. Aside from the league flavor of this meeting there is also the fact that these teams were very closely ranked during the past football campaign. Putnam had an undefeated record and therefore the best in Eastern Connecticut but the Academy also beat some good teams and played a stiffer schedule. There was quite a bit of wrangling among the supporters of both clubs but no post-season game was arranged.

Therefore, the issue carries on to basketball. Putnam will be a rather heavy pre-game favorite because of having played some four or five games already this campaign. The boys of Lauriston P. Noyes will be quite a bit ahead of Coach Whitney's athletes in teamwork because of actual game experience.

With schol opening at the Academy Monday, practice was renewed in earnest after the holidays. The locals got in about two week's work before the recess and seemed to show good progress. There is only one letterman, however, Capt. Buck LaCroix, but several boys with a lot of amateur games under their belts are working out including Frank Barber, Pat Stevens, Chet Berghinzo, Swatzburg, Golembeskie, Dickerman and others. Barber will probably be used at a forward berth while Stevens, Swatzburgh and Golembeski are guards and Dickerman and Berghinzo, who is the football captain-elect, are centers.

The league race this year will be run by five teams, Putnam, Chapman Tech, Stonington, Windham and N. F. A. without a doubt just about the best in the section and a real champion should be crowned. Previous to the formation of the new conference the early part of 1928, this basketball loop consisted only of three teams, Windham and Putnam are the new ones.

NO TESTIMONY IN SUPPORT OF CHARGES BY FUCHS

BOSTON, Jan. 8—(AP)—The hearing by the Boston finance commission on bribery charges by Emil Fuchs, president of the Boston Braves, moved toward a close today, when the commission resumed its public sessions and heard the testimony of five witnesses.

None of the testimony today was in support of the charges by Fuchs that William G. Lynch, a Boston city councilman, had approached him for a bribe of $5,000 for each of 13 members of a "bloc" of councilmen, to vote for ratification of the Sunday sports law. In fact, one of the witnesses, Myles T. McSweeney, a Boston sports writer, admitted that the story he told Fuchs concerning two councilmen was false. When the hearing first opened, Fuchs testified that McSweeney had told him he had "enough on two councilmen to hang them." Fuchs also had said that McSweeney informed him that his knowledge was verified by two witnesses. Today McSweeney told the commission that he had merely heard rumors that "someone wanted some money" and that the story he told Fuchs was a "mere presumption."

"I was just fishing for a story," he said.

While the commission was delving into the Fuchs charges, Gerald J. Callahan assistant attorney-general of Massachusetts, was questioning persons whose names appeared on a list of alleged contributors to the Sunday sports fund of $30,000 filed by the Outdoor Recreation league, sponsors of the Sunday sports law, with the secretary of state. Joseph P. Walsh, attorney for Councillor Lynch before the finance commission, had charged that the list was false and that it had been drawn up to cover Fuchs' expenditures in behalf of the Sunday sports bill. Callahan said that the course of action by the attorney-general would depend upon the information he received from the persons he questioned.

The finance commission devoted much of the hearing today to questioning Thomas H. Green, president of the Boston city council last year. Green said that he had promised Fuchs that he would vote in favor of the Sunday sports bill when it came before the council. He said he and Fuchs had been friends for more than twenty years and that he (Green) had always been in favor of Sunday sports.

Green said he never believed that Councilman Lynch had accused him of wanting money for favoring the bill.

Green also told the commission that when he called a special meeting of the council for the purpose of voting on the bill, he did it of his own volition and not at any suggestion by the Braves' management. He said he sent out the notices of the meeting from Fuchs' room at the Hotel Copley Plaza because he had accidentally met Edmund Cunningham, secretary of the Braves, at that time, and that Cunningham offered him the use of the room to write the notices.

GEORGE OWEN STARS AS BRUINS BEAT MAPLE LEAFS

BOSTON, Jan. 8—(AP)—The Boston Bruins celebrated George Owen's professional hockey debut here tonight by defeating the Toronto Maple Leafs, 5 to 2 in a game that contained plenty of action. The former Harvard star made a wonderful impression, being a tower of strength on the defense, checking everybody that came his way, and climaxing his brilliant performance by scoring the Bruins' fifth goal late in the final period.

Harry Oliver was the brightest star of the game, scoring three of the Bruins' five tallies.

Before the game the audience of 15,000 stood with bowed heads as a pair of buglers sounded "taps" for the late Tex Rickard, who was president and a director of the Boston Garden corporation, which operates the Bruins' home rink.

Wesleyan Plays Springfield

MIDDLETOWN, Jan. 8—(AP)—Wesleyan university will engage the Springfield college basketball team here tomorrow night. Springfield has won all three of its games this season, including a victory over the Crescents of Brooklyn, which defeated Princeton. Wesleyan carried Springfield's crack team of last winter into two overtime periods before losing. Howard and Owen will start at forward for Wesleyan, with Nye at center and Millspaugh and Sanders, guards.

Loughran and Emanuel Matched

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 8—(AP)—Tommy Loughran, world's light heavyweight champion, was today signed to fight Armand Emanuel in Los Angeles February 12, his manager announced tonight.

The match, it was said, is in line with Loughran's program to meet any heavyweight contenders for the title left vacant by the retirement of Gene Tunney.

NOANK

FIRE LOSS KEPT SMALL BY VOLUNTEER DEPARTMENT

The yearly report from the chief of the Noank fire department shows that the department has answered 11 bell alarms and one telephone call. Only at four of these fires was there any property damage and then it was less than $2,000. The truck covered 20 miles to the 11 alarms, laying 200 feet of chemical hose and using about 200 gallons of chemical during the year. The department has had a hard problem in keeping out of debt and only by having entertainments of some description have they succeeded. By subscription they have purchased a five horsepower double-head sterling siren. This siren can be heard a distance of about four miles. The siren has arrived at the firehouse and they are now waiting for extra subscription money to raise enough to erect it on the building and to make the necessary hook-up. They are also going to place a firebox some place on the Main street.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church held an all-day session at the church Tuesday. At noon a fine dinner was served by the committee, Mrs. Stella Rathburn and Mrs. Minnie Palmer.

Shoe Imports Grow

WASHINGTON—(AP) Imports of duty free shoes are estimated by the department of commerce to show an increase of more than 1,000,000 pairs for 1928, a gain of around 75 per cent. Women's shoes from Czechoslovakia predominated but Canada, France, Austria and Switzerland supplied many.

Basketball Tonight

Plainfield Community House

PLAINFIELD PROS. VS. PHILADELPHIA COLORED GIANTS AT 8:45

Plainfield Buddies vs. B and W. Collegians of Woodstock AT 7:45

DANCING AFTER THE GAME

PLAINFIELD VS. COLORED GIANTS TONIGHT

TONIGHT'S LINEUPS

Giants	Plainfield
Chambers, rf	Williams, rf
Jackman, lf	Kasper, lf
Cooper, c	Bernot, c
Yancy, rg	Tadell, rg
Bethard, lg	Dissinger, lg

When the Philadelphia Colored Giants, the country's most popular colored team, sends the above lineup against the Plainfield Pros tonight at the Plainfield Community house the fans of Eastern Connecticut will be treated to some real snappy basketball. The Giants come to Plainfield with a record of 31 games won and three that they have lost, these games being with the best of the professional clubs in the country. Only last week the Giants took over the Marlboro Bears, 35 to 24, in one of the closest games of the season, the Bears' lineup including all the Plainfield players with the exception of Dissinger. The Giants also won from the Plymouth team, 3 to 32, the next night. The Plymouth club is made up largely of players from the Boston Whirlwinds. From these two games it can be seen that the Plainfield club is up against stiff opposition.

Included in the lineup for the Philadelphia club are players not only prominent in basketball but also in the baseball world. Yancy, who is captain of the colored five is a star of the diamond and it is only his color that keeps him out of the big leagues. Jackman is noted throughout the country as a top-notch pitcher. Cooper is absolutely one of the best basketball centers in America. Standing six feet six inches in his gym shoes Cooper is a tower of strength in the center position. Many times has the management of the Renaissance Five of Brooklyn tried to buy him but without success. Berthard, the right guard for the Giants, is one of the trickiest of players and his handling of the ball is something well worth seeing. He is a comedian and entertain sthe crowds with his witticisms.

The Plainfield Pros will be without the services of Brusso, the running mate of Kasper in the forward line, as he is ill with the flu. However the team has an acceptible substitute in "Pop" Williams, former Conn. Aggie star. Williams has been playing brilliant basketball with the Danielson town team and the New Britain club should work well with Kasper.

In the preliminary game the Plainfield Buddies clash with the B. and W. Collegians of Woodstock in a Southern New England league game. The Woodstock team was Windham County Y. M. C. A. champion last season. The preliminary starts at 7:45 and the big game an hour later. Dancing will follow the games.

HISTORY repeats itself again

ON January 7, 1926, the Pontiac Six came into existence. It had bodies by Fisher. It sold for $825. It introduced real luxury and beauty to buyers in the low-priced field.

But Pontiac's builders did not rest content with their early triumph. They knew that American people are constantly on the lookout for new and finer things. So in February, 1927, they introduced the New and Finer Pontiac Six. And it was lower in price than ever, selling for $775. Then, in July, greatly increased production enabled Pontiac's builders to reduce the price again. Now Pontiac sold for $745.

Came 1928, and with it a still finer Pontiac. Even then the price remained only $745. And after six months, Pontiac was made faster, more powerful and more attractive than ever.

This brief review gives you an idea of something that is coming. Automobile history is repeating itself again. Soon Oakland will present a brand new Pontiac Six, an even greater advancement over other low-priced cars available today than the original Pontiac represented in 1926.

POETRY

The Financial Vampire

A fool there was and he bought some stock,
(Even as you and I!)
He was told it was strong as eternal rock;
(We called him a lamb of the newest flock)
But the fool he bought an enormous block,
(Even as you and I!)

Oh, the risks we take and the deals we make,
And the spoil of our head and hand,
Belong to the Magnate who knew too much,
(And now we know that he knew too much)
But we didn't understand.

A fool there was and his stock he sold,
(Even as you and I!)
And then with a bound it upward rolled,
(At the word of the Magnate who controlled)
But the fool was scared and his feet got cold,
(Even as you and I!)

Oh, the toil we lost and the spoil we lost,
And the excellent gains we planned,
Belong to the Magnate who knew too much,
(And now we know that he knew too much)
But we didn't understand.

A fool there was and his stock he held,
(Even as you and I!)
And the price went down like a tree that's felled,
(Yet somehow the Magnate's surplus swelled),
But ruin for that same fool was spelled,
(Even as you and I!)

And it isn't the dross and it isn't the loss
That stings like a redhot brand,
It's coming to know that we don't know much
(Seeing at last we can never know much),
And never can understand.

—By Carolyn Wells.

Prelude

The young snow comes on sungly slippered feet—
Races the hilltop, wonderingly lingers
Down by the valley path; a lonely child
With the gray scarf of the wind in his fingers.

He will seek out the darkened window ledges
Where no hand has set a warm lamp burning;
He will lie down to rest in shadowed doorways
Where he is sure no steps will be returning.

Only to quiet will he give his magic,
Only into the lap of silence spill
His pale laughter, and then turn shyly homeward,
Leaving the world pure white and softly still.

—Sarah Litsey, in Christian Science Monitor.

A petrified ham, thought to be at least 100 years old, was found in an old rock fence near Danville, Ky. Persons who have examined it declare that the rock was undoubtedly a fine ham at one time. It has the exact shape and size of a ham which would weigh about 15 pounds. In its petrified state it weighs 25 pounds.

The immense increase in the artificial silk trade has led to the use of many new methods in the process of manufacture. Two Japanese workers, Y. Kami and S. Nakashima, have introduced the use of micro-photographs (that is, photographs taken through the microscope) for observing the minute structure of the filament in artificial silk. In this way they can quickly discover whether alterations in the conditions of spinning have any effect on the texture.

In 1880 jellyfish were observed to be gayly swimming about in the huge fresh-water tank which houses the large Victoria regia lily in the Botanic gardens, Regent's park, London. No one knew how these jellyfish first entered the tank. Their appearance was a complete mystery, but they were welcome, as they looked very pretty moving slowly about like small electric light globes. For three years they inhabited the tank, and then in 1883 they disappeared as suddenly as they had come. It was thought at first that the draining of the tank for six months in the year probably explained the mystery. Now after an absence of 45 years jellyfish unlike any found elsewhere are once more swimming in the same tank in which they were first found.

TRADING FELL OFF AND WEAKNESS PREDOMINATED IN STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(AP)—The sinking spell on the stock market was less acute today, but bullish operations in a handful of issues failed to revive confidence, and weakness predominated at the close, although a few net gains of about 3 to 14 points were recorded.

Trading fell off markedly, and the peak of the selling movement appeared to be past for the present. Total sales aggregated but 3,850,000 shares, as compared to 4,795,000 yesterday. This was encouraging to a considerable element in Wall street which believes that the stock market must be given a rest and the credit situation permitted to return to somewhere near normal before another extended bull movement can be expected.

Speculative sentiment, while far from cheerful, was rather less pessimistic than it was over the week end, and there was a growing disposition to believe that an increase in the federal reserve rediscount rate may be avoided. Bankers felt that the New York bank would be unlikely to raise its rate from 5 to 5 1-2 per cent. as long as the rates of four of the reserve banks remain at 4 1-2.

Statements of the heads of large banks holding stockholders meetings were hardly of a sort, however to encourage speculative enthusiasm. Chas. E. Mitchell, president of the National City bank, pointed out that stumbling blocks in past periods of prosperity have been overconfidence and unwise use of credit, and "if this present period of prosperity is halted, it will be by the same old cause, and we are bound to guard against it."

Call money held at 7 per cent. all day, and although a rate of 4 per cent. or lower has been normal at this time in recent years, bankers now look for an average rate of 7 per cent. for some time to come. When banks are able to get a yield of 4 1-2 to 5 per cent. on acceptances, there seems little hope of real easy call money.

The day's news was largely favorable, but not of a character to affect the market. Despite hope of reduced activity on the stock market for a time, a seat sold at the record price of $600,000, which is $5,000 above the previous record. American Light and Traction raised its annual dividend rate from $8 to $10, and a few good earnings statements and more large railway equipment orders made their appearance.

Goodyear shot up 10 points to 136 1-2 and closed up more than 7, leading a general upturn in the rubbers. The outlook for the industry is regarded as vastly improved with the price of crude rubber stabilized and the heavy motor production programs. Goodrich made an extreme gain of 6 points, and U. S. Rubber common made good headway. Commercial Investment Trust was also a strong point, mounting 12 points to 155, about 100 points above its 1928 low, and closing at 148. General Electric made an extreme gain of 14 points.

Radio (old stock) sold off 16 points at one time, and closed at 359, down 10. The new stock closed unchanged, after rapid fluctuations. Curtiss Aero sold up 6 points, but Wright, after fluctuating wildly, closed more than 7 off. Motor shares were generally weak Chrysler and Packard and General Motors, old, losing 3 to 3 points. Studebaker was in demand for a time, but reacted late in the session. Pierce Arrow shares were again strong, however, the A stock and the preferred mounting 3 and 5 points to new peaks.

Coppers, oils and merchandising shares were generally heavy. In the irregular rails, St. Paul preferred sold at 72, the highest price since the reorganization. Wabash preferred "A" encountered some support on the decision of the supreme court that it is entitled to dividends, but sagged at the close. American Can touched new high ground on reports of a foreign expansion program, but lost its gain later.

Commodity markets were generally firm but trading was dull. Cotton sold from 80 to 80 cents a bale higher. Foreign exchanges were generally somewhat easier, with sterling cables quoted at $4.85. The discount Canadian dollar, however, was reduced to less than 1-5 of a cent.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—(AP)—Further irregularity developed in today's curb market, but the selling movement appears to have lost much of its force. Better buying support was apparent for several of the leading oils and public utilities, with a sprinkling of specialties again marked up to new high records.

Recent uneasiness over the credit situation has resulted in the heavy liquidation of some of the popular curb securities on margin with the result that they are frequently thrown overboard by traders with impaired marginal accounts on the "big board" in any sustained reaction.

There was nothing in the day's news to explain the sudden demand for some of the oil shares. There is a hopeful feeling in trade circles that further progress will be made this year towards the voluntary restriction of crude output, and the further stabilization of the industry. Gulf Oil of Pennsylvania was the leader, touching 160 and then easing to 148 3-4, up 8 3-4. Imperial, International Petroleum and Vacuum all moved up 1 to 2 points.

Revival of activity and strength of Hiram Walker was based on reports of merger negotiations involving that company with several of the world's largest distillers, and the acquisition of a substantial interest in that company by the Fisher Brothers of Detroit. Trans Lux crossed 8 to a new high record for the year on the perfection of a rear projection screen for motion picture theatres.

Wide swings took place in some of the high priced specialties.

Ford of Canada, which recently crossed 500 to a new high record, broke 21 points on odd lot sales. Pendix, Libby Owens, Sheet Glass, Deere & Co., and Procter & Gamble ran up 5 to 15 points on a small volume of trading.

Further selling of Electric Bond & Share carried that issue down more than 2 points, but strong support was apparent for several of the other leading power and light stocks. American Gas & Electric was marked up 8 points and Rochester Central Power, American Super Power A and a few others advanced a point or more.

Merchandising issues still were mixed, but a brisk demand was noted for the National Family Stores issues, based on the publication of an unusually favorable December sales report.

WESTERLY

CHIMNEY CLEANERS CARELESS, CAUSE OF NEEDLESS ALARM

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 8—The Pawcatuck fire department, Francis J. McMahon, chief, responded to a fire alarm from Box No. 52, West Broad and Moss streets, shortly after 11 a. m. Tuesday. The alarm was sounded for what was thought to be a chimney fire in the house of Frederick J. LeRoy at 9 William street. The motor apparatus left the new Liberty street station and on arriving on William street found that the chimney had been cleaned recently, but a cleaner bag had been left in it. The bag became ignited with the result that the chimney was thought to be on fire. The fire burned itself out.

Carmeno Gebcarello has sold to Carmeno Gebcarello and wife, Lots Nos. 197 and 198, Central Park tract.

Daniel C. Hall has sold to Charles Gavitt real estate at Avondale, bounded northerly by land of Nelson W. Pickering, westerly by other lands of grantor, and land of the estate of Courtland P. Chapman; southerly by the Watch Hill road and easterly by land of Vincent Champlin and the Pawcatuck river.

DEBORAH CHAPTER, O. E. S. HAS INSTALLATION SUPPER

Deborah chapter, No. 8, Order of Eastern Star, of Westerly, Mrs. Elizabeth D. Mayne, worthy matron, and Andrew E. Ralston, worthy patron, held its 22nd annual meeting Tuesday in the Masonic rooms, beginning with a business session at 5:30. A report was received from a committee named for the purpose of purchasing and replacing chapter properties. Announcement was made of the presentation of a handsome altar cloth by a chapter member, Mrs. Ada G. Davis, residing in Brookline, Mass. At 6:30 o'clock a supper was served in Narragansett Commandery, K. T., banquet hall, adjoining the lodge room. The supper consisted of fruit cocktail, roast beef, vegetables, ice cream and cakes. The annual reports of the various officers and committees were made at 8 o'clock, and were followed by the election and installation of officers. Deborah chapter is named for the wife of Benjamin Franklin, from whom Westerly blue lodge takes its name. Presiding at the election was the Worthy Grand Matron of Rhode Island O. E. S., Alfa M. Pierpont, member of Pawtuxet chapter, No. 16, of Edgewood, and Worthy Grand Patron, George H. Potter, member of Queen of Sheba chapter, No. 10, of Cranston. The deputy grand marshal was Susie E. Farnum, matron the past year of Providence chapter, No. 1. The reception committee for the grand officers was made up of the past worthy matrons and past worthy patrons of Deborah chapter.

The following officers, elective and appointive, were installed: Worthy matron, Mrs. Myrtle P. Campbell; worthy patron, Andrew E. Ralston; associate matron, Mrs. Jennie A. Mitchell; secretary, P. M., Mrs. Grace P. Willard; treasurer, Mrs. Rhoda M. York; conductress, Miss Alice D. Fiddes; associate conductress, Mrs. Adah B. Alger; chaplain, P. M., Mrs. Elizabeth D. Mayne; marshal, Mrs. Marion T. Hiscox; organist, Mrs. Gertrude C. Murphey; Adah, Miss Ruth Solomon; Ruth, Mrs. Miriam Solomon; Esther, Mrs. Mildred P. Ashworth; Martha, Mrs. Edwina Pendleton; Electa, Mrs. Lucy A. Sanders; warder, Mrs. Agnes Williams; sentinel, William D. Wells; trustees, P. M. Mrs. Esther O. Tetlow, 1929; P. G. M. Miss M. Isabel Fiddes, 1930; and P. P. Thomas McKenzie, 1931. Honorary members of Deborah chapter are P. G. M. Bertha G. Haines, grand secretary; P. G. P. Joseph A. Hallges and P. G. M. Harriet G. Bullock. There were present many visitors from Eastern Star chapters in both Rhode Island and Connecticut, among them Worthy Matron Anna H. Blake of Hope Valley chapter.

Maurice W. Flynn

Maurice Walter Flynn, 58, died at his home, 15 Sumner street, about 4 o'clock Monday evening. Death followed illness for a number of years. He was born in Waterford, Conn., June 16, 1870, the son of Michael and Magdeline Walter Flynn. He attended the schools of New London during his childhood and then came with his parents to Westerly, where his education was completed in the local schools. He was a manufacturer of granite and marble monuments and memorials, and in 1896 established business at 103 Main street. He conducted it until ill health forced him to retire about three years ago. Mr. Flynn had resided here for over 40 years. He was elected a member of the town council in 1909, and served for ten successive years. From 1915 to 1919 he was president of the body. In 1919 he was elected senator from Westerly to the R. I. state legislature and he served that year and 1920. In the senate, he was a member of the important corporations committee. He was a member and past grand knight of Narragansett council, No. 21, K. of C., also a member of Narragansett Assembly, Fourth Degree. Besides his wife, who was Mary J. Colline, he is survived by a son, Attorney M. Walter Flynn, Jr., a daughter, Miss Dorothy Flynn, R. N., both of Westerly, a brother, Michael J. JAMES E. DOWD, GOLF PRO, DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Jan. 8—James Edward Dowd, 30, professional at Winnapaug Golf club, Westerly, and known throughout Rhode Island and Connecticut, died Monday evening at his home, 18 Chester avenue. Death followed an illness of seven months. Mr. Dowd was born in New York, Sept. 29, 1898, the son of Kate Glavin and the late James Dowd. He came to Westerly with his parents in 1902. He attended Westerly schools and was graduated from Westerly high school in 1917. In his senior year, he was captain of the baseball team, on which he played shortstop. After school he took up golf as a profession and became one of the leading players of this vicinity. When the Winnapaug Golf club was opened four years ago, he was secured as professional and instructor. He was a member of Narragansett Council, No. 21, K. of C., Westerly lodge, No. 678, B. P. O. Elks and Aerie No. 367, Fraternal Order of Eagles, of Norwich, Conn. Dowd had frequently played on the Norwich Golf club links. Besides his mother, he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Viola J. Dower and Mrs. James MacGregor.

The members of Harold Merrill Auxiliary, No. 16, American Legion, held their meeting with a good attendance Monday. The members voted to endorse the navy bill. Two applications for membership were received. It was voted to hold a whist later.

MISS GERTRUDE E. FOSTER DIES SUDDENLY AT HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 8—Miss Gertrude E. Foster, 65, residing at the Foster farm on the Watch Hill road, died suddenly at 2 p. m. Tuesday at Westerly hospital. Miss Foster had undergone an operation for the removal of a cataract from her eye and was thought to be improving. Miss Foster had been active in business lines in Westerly, having been bookkeeper in the former Phoenix-National and the Mechanics Savings banks and for over ten years was with the Washington Trust company. Up to a short time ago she was treasurer of the Westerly Historical society and an active member of the Westerly W. C. T. U. and Women's league for Christian service. She held membership in the Society of Friends. She was born in Westerly, the daughter of Ethan Foster and Anna Almy Wilbur. She was a graduate of Westerly high school.

COLCHESTER

IMPROVED FIRE DEPARTMENT KEEPS CHIMNEY LOSS TO $10

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLCHESTER, Jan. 8—The annual report of the borough's fire commissioners, A. T. Van Cleve and Leon [illegible] covering 1928 there have been only four chimney fires, with a total fire loss of ten dollars. This is a decided improvement over the two previous years, there being fourteen chimney fires during 1927 and during 1926, there were twenty-two chimney fires and a property loss of $1200.

This improvement is partly due to the fire prevention work of the fire commissioners. Under their guidance, property owners having unsafe and clogged-up chimneys have been requested to remedy the undesirable condition.

During the past year the Colchester Fire Co. was called to North Westchester and to Amston when there were fires at the Clarence H. Norton Paper Co. and at the Amston Grain store. On these two occasions, the borough of Colchester received twenty-five dollars an hour from the property owners since the fire engine was in use outside the limits of the borough. Shortly after the fire at the C. H. Norton Paper mill, the local fire company also received a substantial check from Mr. Norton as a token of his appreciation of their services.

The borough of Colchester is well equipped with fire-fighting apparatus and has a well-trained fire company of thirty men. Besides a 350-gallon pumper, there is a forty gallon chemical tank and two three-gallon chemical tanks. There are nineteen large cisterns about the borough which can be used if necessary. During the past year, the borough has hired Lawrence Rogers to stay at the fire house all night, to tend the furnace and answer any telephone calls for fire fighting assistance. The call number of the fire house telephone is No. 100. Fire Chief Gilbert J. Murray and Chief Engineer John J. Shea have been instrumental in improving the personnel of the fire company and under their supervision the fire engine and other apparatus are kept ready for instant use.

A number of members of Wooster lodge, No. 10, A. F. and A. M., attended the funeral of their deceased brother, Albert E. Kenyon, in Lebanon, Tuesday.

Miss Florence J. Dawley has gone to Meriden to visit her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kelly.

Mrs. Hyman London has been making several weeks' visit with relatives in New York.

Louis R. Chapman of Salem was a caller here Monday.

The Colonel Henry Champion chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, is to hold a meeting at the home of the Misses Day, this (Wednesday) afternoon.

Principal Raymond O. Kendall was confined to his home over the week end by a severe attack of grip.

ARMY AIRPLANE FORCED TO LAND IN BOCK MOWING LOT

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLCHESTER, Jan. 8—A crowd of nearly a hundred gathered in the F. G. Bock mowing lot on North Main street, Tuesday afternoon about three o'clock when a large United States army airplane made a forced landing. The plane was manned by two pilots and was bound from Providence to Brainard field, Hartford. Being about fifteen miles off their course and having encountered unexpected high winds, their gasoline supply was nearly depleted when they reached Colchester. After securing more fuel they took off toward Hartford amid the cheers of the crowd. The take-off was made difficult since the land was quite rough and stony. This is the third time in the past few years that airplanes have made forced landings in the Bock lot.

MYSTIC

BAPTIST CHURCH ADDS 24 MEMBERS DURING PAST YEAR

At the annual meeting of the Union Baptist church, Monday evening in the vestry, the reports showed the church was alive and alert and the working together of all members toward the goal. The following individuals, committees and officers gave their reports: Clerk's, previous business meeting; trustees; church treasurer; Fellowship fund; pastor's benevolent fund; Ladies' Aid society; Woman's Missionary society; Friendly league; Senior guild; Junior guild; Crusaders; Young People's society; Sunday school; Men's Bible class; Women's Bible class; John Mason, Pioneer class; music committee; organ custodian. The pastor's report contained the following statistics: We rejoice on account of those who have united with the church in the last year—20 by baptism and four by letter. The work in all departments is exceedingly promising. The church finances, as the treasurer's report showed, are a cause for real gratitude. The church of today is working against great odds, in relation to young people. There is so much competition on the outside that it sometimes seems a hopeless task to hold on to our young folks. Our church, however, is trying to face this situation frankly and earnestly; we make considerable provision for the social life of the young. Through Everyman's Bible class two tennis courts have been begun, which it is hoped will be ready this summer. This provides summer recreation. Likewise, the Men's class has started a parish house fund to which the C. E. society and Pioneers' club have also contributed. The idea of the parish house is to have a place where, during the long winter months, our young people can come together and have their indoor recreation and sports in clean, wholesome surroundings. A church that will give to young people adequate social life will find that its young people will give to that church their precious spiritual life. In all that has been said about the young people, we have not forgotten the older members. It has been their loyalty and support in the days past that makes possible such a program as we have outlined. The pastor has tried, to the best of his ability and time to attend to the pastoral calling, having made about 60 sick calls, besides the regular calls. He has also kept in touch by telephone with such members as needed his attention. The pastor's heart has been saddened, together with your hearts, over the loss of those two outstanding members, Capt. Elias F. Wilcox and Deacon Manning Miner, whom God called to their well-earned reward. Respectfully submitted, Rev. L. J. Shepler.

It was voted to accept the church budget for the year. The nominating committee then presented their report: Deacon L. P. Allyn, chairman; Clerk, Mrs. Julia Coates; trustees, L. P. Allyn, J. H. Thorpe, Alden Fish, Dr. L. M. Allyn, S. A. Stoddard, Dr. C. R. Chapman, Charles R. Heath; church treasurer, George S. Richmond; assistant treasurers, Mrs. E. C. Hall and J. H. Thorpe; Prudential committee, pastor, deacons, C. R. Heath, Mrs. Shepler, Mrs. R. H. Wilcox, Miss Harriet Fish, Mrs. D. M. Bennett; ushers, J. H. Thorpe, chairman, D. M. Bennett, R. W. Potter, J. E. Newbury, Robert McGregor, William F. Holliday, Sands Fish, S. A. Stoddard, William Fish, Earl Cutler, Hollis H. Price, Latham T. Packer; tithingmen, J. H. Thorpe, William McDonald, Lawrence Wilson; auditors, George H. Griswold, John Paton; music committee, Mrs. R. H. Wilcox, Mrs. J. A. Coates, Mrs. J. K. Backlyn; organ custodian, Mrs. Coates; Christian education committee, Mrs. John Lucy, Miss Nellie Beebe, Mrs. L. M. Allyn, Miss Jessie Fish; Miss Dorris Bindloss, D. M. Bennett, Sands Fish; committee for nominating Sunday school officers, Miss Happie Brown, Miss Beebe, R. W. Potter, A. L. Wheeler, Sands Fish. Following the report of the nominating committee for deacons, David M. Bennett and Russell W. Potter were voted in to fill the two vacancies caused by the death of E. F. Wilcox and M. M. Miner.

The Senior guild and Junior guild served sandwiches, cake and coffee. A social time followed.

FUNERALS

Amos Ripley Park

Funeral services for Amos Ripley Park, 70, were held at his home, 28 Pearl street, Tuesday afternoon at 2:30. Rev. Lyman G. Horton, D. D., of the Methodist church conducted the services. The bearers were Leander Park, Fred Strickland, Walter Sheehan, Herbert Benjamin, Charles Foley and Charles Benjamin. Burial was in Elm Grove cemetery. All the stores in the village were closed for an hour out of respect to Mr. Park, a merchant here for 30 years.

Gordon Spencer has returned to his studies at the Kent school for boys, after spending the holiday recess with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. Ernest P. S. Spencer.

The Master's Helpers class of Old Mystic Methodist church is to meet Saturday evening.

Capt. Neil Neilson

Funeral services for Capt. Neil Neilson, who died Friday night in Preston, were held at local funeral parlors Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. Burial was in Noank Valley cemetery. For many years he lived in Noank and followed the water. Captain Neilson was born in Norway in 1876, the son of Jacob and Sophia Oaslan Neilson.

Mrs. Latham Johnson is recovering from illness at her home on Pearl street.

Sang at New London

The Viking quartet, Willard W. Keigwin, first tenor; A. Orville Lewis, second tenor; Treffy A. Morin, baritone; Clifford J. Desley, bass, sang four numbers at the concert given in the parish house of St. James' Episcopal church, New London, Tuesday evening. Mr. Keigwin and Mr. Desley are regular soloists at the church. All who have heard this quartet, which was organized about two years ago, have the highest praise for their work and Tuesday night was no exception.

Thursday evening the last game of the Eastern Shore Bridge tournament will be played by the Winthrop club of New London and Mystic Hook and Ladder company in the latter's rooms on Gravel street.

Mrs. Alba Chapman and family have returned to New Haven, after spending the holidays at their summer home on Mason's Island.

The interior of Harold Main's store is being redecorated.

Mrs. Flora A. Morin substituted as organist at the Methodist church Sunday in the absence of Mrs. Charles Gildersleeve, regular organist.

Two persons were admitted to membership in the Methodist church Sunday.

Mrs. Hugh Walker and daughter moved, Monday, to Hartford, where Mr. Walker is employed. Mrs. Walker and child have been staying with the former's mother, Mrs. Herbert Davis, on Reynolds Hill.

GOSHEN

SIXTEEN COMPETED IN FIDDLERS' CONTEST

Ye Olde Tyme fiddlers' contest was given to a full house in Grange hall Friday evening. Twenty-five dollars in gold was given in four prizes by the Knights of Pythias for the four best players. There were 16 competitors—3 from Lebanon, 3 from Norwich, several from Willimantic, one from Eastford, Mansfield, Manchester and other surrounding towns. Most of the players preferred the piano accompaniment. The most popular selection was Turkey in the Straw and the Irish Washerwoman, with jigs and hornpipes galore. The talented pianist played Suwanee River in several keys. A New London soloist gave a number of selections on the trombone and the many very fine musical selections by the South Windham Military band received encores. All of the old fiddlers could not win the gold prizes, but they received congratulations for their clever playing. A number were heard to say that it would be a good idea for the old time fiddlers of the state to get together in the good old summer time for a reunion. The Connecticut state sifers and drummers do; why can't the old time fiddlers do the same?

The following took part in the contest: Benjamin Carpenter, Lebanon; James Randall, Lebanon; Thomas Nagle, Hebron; Herbert Wheeler, Norwich; Arthur Wood, Mansfield; Edward Adams, Norwich; B. McClure, Willimantic; William H. Wightman, Norwich Town; Herbert Chappell, Mansfield; Wilfred Cote, Willimantic; Ernest Tryon, Lebanon; Henry Richardson, North Windham; Jonathan Whitford, Eastford; Frank Hall, Mansfield; Mr. Elmore, South Coventry; Emil J. Weyer, Willimantic. The judges were C. C. King, Arthur Gadreau, H. E. Card.

FUNERAL

Albert B. Kenyon

People in this place were grieved to learn of the sudden death of Albert B. Kenyon Friday. He seemed in his usual health up to the moment he was stricken with heart failure while making a call on his nearest neighbor. It was 18 years ago that Mr. Kenyon bought the place known as Fair View farm, formerly the E. S. Geer farm, moving here with his family in the spring of 1911. He leaves his wife and two sons, Ralph Kenyon of Colchester and Rowland of Nantucket, Mass. Mr. Kenyon was a member of the Baptist church and of the Masonic order and of Goshen Community club. He was a kind neighbor, ever ready to help those in distress. He attended the last social time held here Christmas eve and seemed pleased to see everybody so happy. The funeral was held at his home Tuesday at 1 o'clock p. m., the Masonic order conducting the services. Burial was in the family lot in the new cemetery, Lebanon.

There has been fine skating at Pitcher's mill pond. The pond covers 10 acres. The warm rain at the week end ended this very healthy sport.

Schools here opened Wednesday, Jan. 2nd. Miss Davis returned from a pleasant visit with relatives in Newark, N. J., in time to resume teaching at No. 12.

Miss Ruth Russell of the farm bureau met a company at the home of Mrs. J. A. Thomas last Thursday. Plans were made for the coming year.

When a man gets into trouble the majority of those who call to sympathize are merely after the particulars.

McCASKEY, NEW LONDON PATROLMAN, GIVEN SUSPENSION OF TWO WEEKS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 8—Branded as a "bum" and liar by Attorney Morris Lutchansky, untruthful by her sister, Mrs. William Dean of Groton; her grandmother, Mrs. Elfreda Phelps, Groton and Ward S. Alling, her former employer, Beatrice Periatti, 17, of 133 Cedar street, Norwich, testified at the hearing today before City Manager William A. Holt and the board of aldermen of the police department, Judge R. Victor Prince, Deputy Judge John McGarry and Mayor Malcolm M. Scott. The Periatti young woman made statements in support of her charges of misconduct against Patrolman George McCaskey. The charge of the girl against the officer was that McCaskey had assaulted her, not once, but several times, while she was employed in this city and during a period when she believed that the officer was a single man, while in reality he is married and resides with his wife on Maple avenue. Undoubtedly the story related by the girl, who vehemently accused the officer of illicit relations with her, was doubted to some extent by the tribunal that heard the charges. Because of the scathing attack made upon the character of the girl, together with the character statements made by the accuser's sister, her grandmother and Mr. Alling; for these resulted in the accused officer being given a minimum sentence, after he had been adjudged guilty. This afternoon City Manager Holt announced that suspension of two weeks had been meted out to the accused patrolman.

The session, which occupied three and one-half hours, was held in the city manager's chamber. City Manager Holt presiding. Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney testified that he had instituted charges against McCaskey upon statements made to him by the mother of the girl, Mrs. Joseph Peratti. Attorney Lutchansky immediately offered an objection to the entire procedure, inasmuch as the city ordinance prescribing the method of instituting charges in such cases had not been complied with, because the complainant had not made her complaint in writing and signed by the mother. This was adjudged only a technicality and the hearing was continued.

Captain Pinney related the story of the visit of Mrs. Peratti to police headquarters and to inquiry for an officer known as "Mac." Mrs. Poretti did not know the last name of the officer sought, but when McCaskey's name was mentioned the mother immediately declared that he was the officer she desired to interview. McCaskey was summoned to police headquarters and in an anteroom the mother and McCaskey went into conference. The visitors left the building and an hour later Mrs. Peratti returned and informed Captain Pinney of the condition of her daughter and it was upon her accusations that witness ordered an investigation, detailing Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith and Desk Sergeant William Babcock to interview the mother and girl.

City Manager Holt read the complaint as set forth by Captain Pinney as a result of the investigation of his subordinates, which recited the allegations of the officer's alleged relations of intimacy with the girl, together with the fact that the girl had been dismissed by her employer and had been provided funds by which she could leave the Y. W. C. A. a visit to Dr. Charles A. Gasson for the purpose of obtaining treatment, the receiving of a box of pills claimed to have been given her by the accused to relieve her of her trouble and her subsequent hospital treatment.

Sergeant Babcock, the next witness, testified to going to Norwich, with Detective Sergeant Smith and obtaining statements from the girl, which statements were contained in the complaint of Captain Pinney and which he identified. The witness also testified to being given the box of pills by the girl, together with a handkerchief, claimed to be McCaskey's and a ring, which the girl said was given her by the officer. Witness also testified to having been handed a bill from Lawrence-Memorial hospital for the girl's treatment while confined there. Detective Sergeant Smith did not testify.

Mrs. Joseph Peratti, mother of the girl, gave evidence of coming to New London when she had been informed of her daughter's condition and the incidents immediately preceeding the latter's treatment at the hospital. She related her visit to police headquarters and to her conversation with McCaskey, after which she went to the McCaskey home. Returning to police headquarters the witness said that she made formal charges against McCaskey to Captain Pinney. Mrs. Peratti identified McCaskey as the man she accused of ruining her daughter. Witness also testified to the visit of the investigating officers at her home and to their talking with both the witness and the daughter.

On cross examination, witness admitted that the daughter first told the mother that her treatment was for rupture sustained in an automobile accident but finally told of the alleged real trouble. Witness denied that her daughter had told her that Aubrey Goodpasteur, formerly of Montville, now dead as a result of injuries sustained in a motor vehicle accident, was the father of the unborn child. Witness also denied asking money from McCaskey's wife as hush money. She denied also that she attempted to obtain money from Joseph Lukegord, manager of the A. & P. store, Uncasville, stating that he was responsible for her daughter's condition. Mrs. Peratti also denied that a youth named Marshall had ben intimate with her daughter.

Beatrice Periatti, the accuser, was called to the stand. When asked if she could recognize among those present who was McCaskey turning to the officer, she remarked, "Oh! I recognize him allright!" She told of meeting McCaskey Sept. 26 while he was on duty and later of meeting him and accompanying him to the Bloom Silk mill, Garfield avenue, and of having illicit relations with him there, while the watchman was making his rounds. She told of being sent home in an automobile and to having been on terms of intimacy several weeks afterwards and to having additional illicit relations with the officer in a cottage at Ocean beach and in an automobile. She told of being given the ring by McCaskey in October, after she had told the officer of the approach of her birthday. Witness said that it was on Nov. 1st that she realized her delicate condition and relating that fact to McCaskey, the latter gave her a box of pills. These failed to do the expected work and she then said that she was taken to the office of a doctor, but he did not prescribe or treat her. Another box of pills was given the girl, but in the meantime the others had proved effective and on Thanksgiving day, while at her grandmother's in Groton, she was taken ill, was attended by a physician and was then taken to the hospital.

On cross examination witness said that McCaskey had "too much mouth" for he had talked about her since their misconduct. She also admitted having had illicit relations with two or three others. When Attorney Lutchansky referred to witness as a "cheap bum," the girl resented this appelation and declared that she was not a "bum." Witness denied having been pregnant when she was but 14. She admitted naming Goodpasteur as being the father of her unborn child, but said she did so to shield McCaskey.

Witness in being interrogated by the city manager told of the party at a cottage at Ocean beach and of some of those there.

Henry L. Comeau, watchman at the Bloom mill testified to McCaskey bringing a girl to the mill, but could not identify the Periatti girl as the officer's companion. He said that he left the couple in the office about 15 minutes and when he returned they were about to depart. He did not observe any wrong act on their part or any evidence of such conduct.

Patrolman Harry Watterson testified that he was off duty the night of the beach party and while at Ocean beach with a woman friend, he met McCaskey and the Periatti girl. They decided to have a feast and Patrolman Albert Iverson, who had ben offered the use of an unoccupied cottage, suggested that the party be held in the cottage. They went to a cottage, but not the one they were entitled to use, for the door of the former was found unlocked and they entered where a lunch was eaten after which witness testified he and his friend left.

Patrolman Iverson testified to having been given the use of the cottage by Oscar Biegal and that he believed he had a right there, having been informed that he would find the door unlocked. The first cottage that the gathering went to was found open, but this was not the cottage intended to be used. Iverson was on duty at the time.

Mrs. Jennie C. Avery gave testimony that she was the owner of the cottage at 13 Ocean View place and this was the cottage used. She told of having gone there and to having found evidences of refreshments having been served, broken bottles, empty whiskey bottles and bottles of beer. She also testified to finding a scrap of paper on the floor, which bore the writing, 'Mac' I'm sorry." This was given to Patrolman Ernest Opperman.

Ward T. Alling testified that he saw but little of the girl, but his wife had informed him that she considered the girl unreliable and dishonest.

Mrs. William Dean, sister of the girl, declared that the latter was never known to tell the truth, that she was an habitual liar.

Mrs. Elfreda Phelps, the girl's grandmother, declared that she considered the girl a falsifier and that witness would not accept any statement the girl made as being the truth.

Dr. Philip Savage told of attending the girl at the hospital and the delivery of a two months' foetus. He said that the girl mentioned the name of "Goodpasteur" and also said that McCaskey would pay the hospital bill.

Joseph Lukegord, A. & P. store proprietor, Uncasville, testified that he was acquainted with the girl and that her mother attempted to obtain money from him because of the daughter's condition.

Dr. Joseph M. Ganey testified to the girl having been under treatment at the hospital as a result of an "incomplete abortion," and to the girl having told him that the man responsible for her condition was dead. The witness said that McCaskey's name nor no other was mentioned by the girl. Witness said that he would "hate to be convicted on her testimony."

McCaskey was then called to the stand and told of being accused at police headquarters by the girl's mother of being responsible for Miss Periatti's condition and the visit to the McCaskey home by Mrs. Peratti, to relate the mother's story to the officer's wife. McCaskey denied the charges of the woman and admitted knowing the girl, even to taking her to the mill, although he said she followed him there; to allowing the girl to inspect the ring, which she kept and to meeting her and going to Ocean beach, this visit, McCaskey testified, being to attempt to regain possession of the ring. He entered a complete denial of intimacy with the girl and declared that he ordered Mrs. Peretti from his home when she Mrs. Peratti from his home when she there were no initials inscribed on the band of the ring when he purchased it, for his wife. He denied giving the girl pills.

Mrs. McCaskey, when called to the stand, testified that Mrs. Peratti suggested the payment of $75 or $100 to hush the matter up and that the officer ordered the woman from his home.

Dr. Charles A. Gasson denied that McCaskey or the girl had sought any medical service of him. He was unable to identify the girl, saying he did not know her.

Attorney Tolley E. Babcock of Norwich was counsel for Mrs. Peratti and her daughter.

The penalty imposed upon McCaskey will not be severe, inasmuch as it is retroactive and the two weeks will have expired the 15th inst.

WORKMAN'S CIGARETTE BLAMED FOR WATERFORD FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 8—Fire occasioned slight damage to the building, 517 Bank street, owned by Joseph Farina, Waterford. The fire was discovered in the cellar of a store that is unoccupied, but which is being put in readiness for occupancy, about 6 o'clock tonight. An alarm was rung in from Box 42, corner of Bank and Howard streets, causing Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and four pieces of apparatus to respond. The firemen attacked the blaze, which was confined to rubbish, with chemicals and quickly subdued it, the damage, it is believed not being in excess of $100. It is believed that the fire originated from a cigarette thrown among the rubbish by workmen, who occupied the cellar throughout the day.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Still attracting large audiences, "Sunrise" continues its run at the Broadway theatre.

This remarkable picture, with the admirable work of Janet Gaynor and George O'Brien in the stellar parts, is enjoying similar successful engagements throughout the country. It is the first picture made in America by F. W. Murnau, whom William Fox brought to America from Europe.

The story, an original theme by Herman Sudermann, while of the eternal triangle, has been so ingeniously handled that it stands out as something sensational. Wherever it is shown, it starts lively discussion over whether the wife should or should not have forgiven the husband after she discovered that he had planned to murder her.

The musical score of "Sunrise" as it is being given at the Broadway is the one which S. L. Dothafel, the celebrated "Roxy," wrote for its Broadway presentation at the Times Square theatre. The present engagement will end with today's showing.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Today, for only one day, the Palace offers a unique double feature program containing two exceptionally fine feature productions.

Patsy Ruth Miller in a great comedy, "Beautiful But Dumb" tops the two pictures and brings this popular and pretty star back to Norwich in a kind of picture that is well liked

"Confessions of a Wife" is the other half of this great big program and features Helene Chadwick and a large cast of favorites. Both features are based upon well laid plots and both the acting and direction lend themselves to per fect entertainment

Tonight is "China Nite" and no one will want to miss adding to their rapidly growing collection of fine Chinaware.

Starting Thursday for three big days the Palace will offer the first of their new and greater shows.

The big time vaudeville is headed by double headliners consisting of "A Riot of Rythm" with a cast of six fast steppers in a novel and fast-moving flash called "A Cycle of Dance Amusement." If you like pretty girls good dancing and peppy music you will vote this one a corking good act.

The second headliner is "Oh, Mama" a condensed musical farce with a large and clever cast of artistes. Here again you will find what you are looking for in real comedy and hokum catchy songs and a fast moving plot—if you want to call it that.

Holding the next-to-closing spot on this great vaudeville bill you will not have to look further for honest to goodness laughs and chuckles.

Yvonne & Co. could easily be called a "class act" on any variety bill in the country. Yvonne herself, is not only a marvelous performer, but she has "form" and ability without question Last, but not to be forgotten, is Buddy Webber who will amble through a nifty little act called "Just Class."

The screen entertainment for the last half will bring our old favorite Adolphe Menjou in his latest, and probably best screen production in many a month. "His Private Life" is one of those pictures that is just built for a star like Menjou and how he will bring those contented laughs from the audience. In this picture his leading lady is not his own wife in real life. Katherine Carver whom many have admired on the screen for so long, apparently held more than celeloid attraction for Adolphe, so he decided to marry her and keep her his leading lady all the time.

Society of Ancient Instruments

In 1901, at the suggestion of the renowned French composer Saint-Saens, Henri Casadesus, expert performer on the viola and viola d'amore, founded the "Societe des Instruments Anciens" the purpose of which was to revive the music of old masters and thereby resuscitate the mellow, intimate and almost forgotten melodies of the past and upon the same instruments so remarkable in one-color so beautiful in construction and so delightful in performance

Having enjoyed nearly thirty years of popularity abroad and won considerable prestige in America the society returns for another season, appearing in New London on Thursday Jan. 17th.

Mr. Casadesus, on special invitation, paid a flying trip last October to assist Sergei Koussevitsky, conductor of the Boston Symphony orchestra, in his double-bass recitals at Boston and New York, contributing to these unique events superb performances on the viola d'amore

The music used in their concerts is the result of patient and painstaking research through dusty files of manuscripts in the libraries of Europe by Mr Casadesus who has thus been able to gather a remarkable repertory of unpublished music by composers of the 17th and 18th centuries including works by Bach, Mozart Haydn, and other notables of that period. The personnel of the society consists of Henri Casadesus (viola d'amore), Marius Casadesus (quinton), Lucette Casadesus (viola de gamba), Maurice Devilliers (bass viol) and Regina Patorni Casadesus (clavecin or harpsichord), forming an adequate and engaging ensemble which has undertaken seventy-five large tours, traveled a distance equal to nine times around the globe and amassed over 10,000 complimentary press comments.

Opportunities in the Government.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief as effectively as the messy old mustard plaster.

Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

EAST LYME MAN NAMED CHAIRMAN PERMANENT ORGANIZATION COMMITTEE

(Special to The Bulletin)

HARTFORD, Jan. 8—New London and Windham county members in the general assembly held their party caucuses tonight, meeting half an hour in advance of the main party caucus in the house, and quickly disposing of the necessary business.

The New London county caucus, held in room 73, fourth floor west, was called to order by George H. Bradford of Montville, senior member of the state central committee for the county, who invited the 20 members present to nominate a chairman and clerk in order to transact the business. Senator Mason Manning of Stonington was elected chairman and Judge Marvin of Lyme as clerk.

Elections were made unanimously as follows: for doorkeeper, Andrew Littlefield of Lebanon; for committee on permanent organization, Fred E. Beckwith of East Lyme; for member of general caucus, Elisha Waterman of Lebanon. There was no election of messenger from this county.

In the Windham county caucus, which had an attendance of 15, and was held in room 66, fourth floor east, Mayor Charles A. Gates of Willimantic called the caucus to order.

Edwin L. Dennis of Scotland was chosen chairman and Clinton A. Frink of Canterbury clerk.

The choice for doorkeeper was Levi N. Johnson of Canterbury, with Archie Walker of Eastford as second.

E. L. Dennis, Clinton E. Frink and William F. Johnson were made the caucus committee.

In the house committee on permanent organization the three eastern Connecticut counties are to be represented as follows: New London county, Fred A. Beckwith, East Lyme; Windham county, Clinton E. Frink, Canterbury; Tolland county, Andrew Grant, Mansfield.

HENS AT STORRS ARE INCREASING EGG CROP

Even though the past week has been one of the most disagreeable from the weather standpoint that the hens have had since the contest started, there was an increase of 43 eggs over last week's production. The total for the week was 4055 eggs or a yield of 57.9 per cent. The average egg production per bird at the end of the ninth week was almost 34 eggs per bird, which is seven more per bird than for last year at the same time.

During the week Charlescote's pen of Rhode Island Reds from Sherborn, Mass., and George Lowry's pen from West Willington, Conn., tied with 65 eggs each. Granite Springs Farm White Leghorns from Granite Springs, N. Y., were second with a yield of 64 eggs. A pen of Rhode Island Reds owned by Clarence E. Lee of Auburn, N. Y., and a pen of White Leghorns owned by Hanson's Leghorn Farm of Corvallis, Oregon, were tied for third place with a production of 61 eggs each. Toivonen's pen of White Leghorns from Girard, Penn., was fourth with a yield of 60 eggs. George Lowry's pen of White Leghorns is the leading pen of birds in the contest with a total of 550 eggs. A pen of the same breed owned by Granite Springs Farm is second with 529 eggs. A pen of Barred Rocks owned by R. C. Cobb of Littleton, Mass., is third with a total of 497 eggs. The Leghorns as a group had the highest per cent production for the week.

For the first time since the contest started the leading pens in the principal varieties have started to settle down and maintain their places for only one change is noted in the ninth week, and that is in the Rhode Island Red class. Homer R. Rowell's pen from Groveland, Mass., has captured third place, thus bringing the pen from Attleboro, Mass., owned by Gloubus Poultry Farm down to fourth place.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties:

Barred Rocks—R. C. Cogg, Old Pickard Farm, Littleton, Mass., 497; R. Walter Bishop, Guilford, Conn., 470; Hawes Bros., Union, Maine, 388.

White Rocks—E. A. Hirt, South Weymouth, Mass., 375; Granite Springs Farm, Granite Springs, N. Y., 287.

White Wyandottes — Ebenwood Farm West Bridgewater, Mass., 493; The Locusts, West Cornwall, Conn., 421.

Rhode Island Red—John Z. LaBelle, Ballouville, Conn., 459; . S. Chapin, Longmeadow, Mass., 458; Homer R. Rowell Groveland, Mass., 457; Globus Poultry Farm, Attleboro, Mass., 447.

White Leghorns—George Lowry, West Willington, Conn., 580; Granite Sprinf Farm, Granite Spring N. Y., 539; Hanson's Leghorn Farm, Corvallis, Ore., 453; Toivonen Leghorn Farm, Girard, Pa., 490; Wm. L. Gilbert Home Winsted, Conn., 463.

Total for the week 4,056 eggs; total eggs to date 33,970; best for week, pen 44—65 eggs; best to date pen 65—330 eggs; average pen total 339 eggs.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE FOR SETTING FIRE TO HAYSTACK

In the criminal superior court in this city Tuesday Horace F. Dewey, 20 of Mystic, was given three months in jail, sentence suspended for one year, by Judge Christopher L. Avery. Dewey pleaded guilty to a charge of setting fire to a stack of hay in Stonington, last September. The hay stack was owned by Allen N. Harvey of Stonington by whom Dewey was formerly employed. Dewey was described as a "simple minded" youth by State's Attorney Arthur M. Brown.

Thomas McCarthy of this city, who was bound over to the superior court from the city court on a charge of indecent assault, was given 30 days in jail on an intoxication charge.

The breach of the peace case against Nelson Humes of Sprague was nolled on payment of $50 fiat. Humes was bound over from the Sprague town court on a charge of assaulting Marie E. Deschamps of that town.

George Hapney of New London was given 30 days in jail on a breach of the peace charge. He was bound over from New London on a charge of assault with intent to rob.

MONTVILLE MAN STARTS SUIT FOR DIVORCE

August W. H. Gley of Montville has started suit in the superior court for a divorce from Blanche L. (Defosset) Gley of Montville on grounds of a statutory offense, alleged to have been committed between November 1st last and January 7th. The couple married October 23, 1922. The Gley woman was arrested last week on a charge of conducting a disorderly house at Trading cove and in the Montville town court was ordered to leave that town.

Vacancies in the Government.

The United States civil service commission has announced open competitive examinations as follows:

C., or in the field; instructor-foreman, stock fitting and sole leather department; instructor-foreman, bottoming or making department, and assistant instructor-foreman and machinist, fitting and stitching department, shoe factory, United States penitentiary, Leavenworth, Kansas. Full information may be obtained from James L. Tourtellotte, secretary of the United States civil service board of examiners at the post office in this city.

WILLIAM TOTH IS GIVEN SUSPENDED JAIL SENTENCE

In the criminal superior court in this city Tuesday, William Toth, 18, of South Thames street, was given a suspended sentence of one year in jail on a charge of embezzlement of an automobile belonging to the Norwich Taxi Co., Nicholas Mooney proprietor. It was on September 15th last that Toth, a driver for the tax company, drove away in a Whippet sedan owned by his employers, accompanied by a Taftville girl named Adams. The pair went to Canada and then returned to the United States, both being taken in charge on Long Island, N. Y. Toth was ordered by the court to make good damage the taxi sustained during the trip to Canada and back to Long Island.

When Toth was presented before Judge C. L. Avery, State's Attorney Arthur M. Brown recommended a sentence of four months, calling attention to the fact that Toth had already served several months in jail. The state's attorney stated that the youth comes of a good family. Infatuated with the Taftville girl he drove away with the girl and the cab on the impulse of the moment. The state's attorney expressed the opinion that the ends of justice would be satisfied with a four months sentence.

Counsel for Toth, Attorney Thomas M. Shields, informed the court that he had nothing to add to the state's attorney's statement of the case, as the latter's recommendation was just.

In view of the youth's previous good record Judge Avery pronounced the suspended sentence on condition that Toth keep out of trouble hereafter, make restitution for the damage to the car and for the $7 in taxi receipts he had with him when he disappeared. The girl who went away with Toth is now in a home for wayward girls.

SUPPER AND ENTERTAINMENT FOR HER 71ST BIRTHDAY

At the home of her daughter, Mrs. James Hallas of Depot Hill, Baltic, an enjoyable birthday party was given recently in honor of the 71st birthday of Mrs. W. Faulkner. There was a supper and a delightful entertainment. There were 40 guests present. The programme was carried out as follows:

Piano solo, Grand March De Concert, Master James Hallas; vocal solo, That Wonderful Mother of Mine, Jack Faulkner; piano solo, Vacation March, Miss Greta Faulkner; vocal solo, Little Mother, Miss Ethel Hallas; vocal trio, Lily Time, Misses Lillian Massey, Florence Cox and Ethel Hallas; piano solo, Glow Worm, James Hood and vocal solo, Wilfred the Baker, Mrs. Harry Hood. There were also numerous sentimental and comic vocal selections.

A supper of pork pies, cakes, sandwiches, coffee and tea was served. Cigars and chocolates were also passed around. A feature of the supper was a large birthday cake with 71 candles, which was lighted and later served.

Those who assisted Mrs. Hallas in serving were Mrs Jack Faulkner, Miss Ethel Hallas, Mrs Edith Wilde, Miss Alice Parker, Miss Florence Cox, Miss Lillian Massey.

Two feature numbers of the entertainment programme were a characteristic dance entitled In Clogs and Shawl or Lassie Fra Lancashie by Miss Alice Parker, Miss Jennie White, Mrs. Edith Wilde and Fred Greenwood and a vocal selection, Let Me Call You Sweetheart, by Eddie Robinson.

FORMER NORWICH MAN PROMOTED TO CAPTAIN

Jonathan L. Johnson of Putnam, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Johnson of Lincoln avenue, this city, has been promoted from first lieutenant to captain of Headquarters staff, First battalion, 192nd Field Artillery, according to official orders from the adjutant general's office, 192nd Field Artillery, C. N. G., Hartford. Captain Johnson has been associated with the National Guard since 1921, when he was assigned to Battery B as a first lieutenant, serving in that capacity until 1924. He was in temporary command of the Combat Train from Sept. 20, 1926, to Dec. 1, 1926, when he asked to be transferred to the headquarters staff. Captain Johnson will continue to hold the rating of adjutant. He was made adjutant after Capt. N. C. Pierce was transferred to the staff at his own request and Capt. William R. Denison was placed in command of the Combat Train.

DR. J. ROMEYN DANFORTH AT Y. M. C. A. IN LENT

The announcement by the local Y. M. C. A. management that Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth of New London has consented to conduct the Friday noon Lenten services, will be good news to many of the business men of the city.

Rev. Dr. Danforth has conducted this series in Lent annually since 1923, with the exception of last year, when he was away on a trip to other lands and Dr. Marshall, Rev. S. H. Howe, D. D. and Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., conducted the series.

The series this year will begin on Friday, Feb. 15, and continue through Friday, March 29, Good Friday.

The general topic of this series is "Travelling with Christ" and the weekly topics as follows: Feb. 15, With Him in Bethlehem; Feb. 22, With Him in Egypt; March 1, With Him in Nazareth; March 8, With Him on the Sea of Galilee; March 15, With Him in Samaria; March 22, With Him in Jericho; March 29, With Him in Jerusalem.

As in the past, each Friday noon of the series a luncheon will be served, and men, especially business men who appreciate real heart-to-heart talks of a deeply spiritual nature will be most cordially welcomed.

SENT TO STATE PRISON FOR STEALING AUTOMOBILE

Found guilty by a jury in the superior court in this city, Tuesday morning, on a charge of theft of an automobile, Albert Bellville, 32, West Warwick, R. I., was given a sentence of not less than five years nor more than seven years in state's prison by Judge Christopher L. Avery. Bellville, who has a former police record, was found guilty of the theft of an automobile from Huntington street, New London, Nov. 15, while the owner and his wife were attending a theatre. Lawson Hildreth, 19, former assistant manager for the F. W. Woolworth Co., at West Warwick, Bellville's companion in the theft, was sent to the Cheshire reformatory. Hildreth had previously pleaded guilty to the theft charge, shouldering the blame for the theft of the machine, a Nash sedan owned by John S. Cafaro of Groton.

Bellville and Hildreth, with Francis Sullivan of No. 480 Maple street, Holyoke, Mass., were captured by the "lone wolf" on the Boston Post road, Amos R. Anderson, motorcycle police sergeant of Darien police force. Sullivan gained his freedom when he proved that he had been picked up by the two men and was being given a lift.

Sergeant Anderson appeared in court Tuesday morning as a witness for the state in the case. After Sergeant Anderson had testified, the two prisoners were heard to remark that they would "get him," meaning Anderson, and would also "get" Sergt. Nelson Smith of the New London police department. Their statements were relayed to the jury by several in the courtroom who overheard the remarks. Those called to the stand included Deputy Sheriffs George H. Hoxie, Nelson C. L. Brown and Sergt. John Cavanaugh of the New London police department.

Bellville represents himself as a song writer and claimed that at the time of his arrest he was bound for New York to sell some of his songs. Bellville declined to testify in the case, on the grounds that he might incriminate himself, owing to his former police record. Public Defender Charles L. Stewart represented Bellville.

The jury in the case comprised Charles W. F. Billings, Arthur R. Blackledge, Norwich; Arthur Shedd, Charles M. Geisthardt, Preston; Gilbert J. Murray, Colchester; Willis H Morgan, Charles B. Palmer, Griswold; George H. Hoxie, Lebanon; Ernest D Chapman, North Stonington; Ira C. Wheeler, Bozrah; William M. Phillips, Frank D. Morehouse, Lisbon; Ralph Mudgett, Salem.

FIRST STATE HIGHWAY BIDS FOR NEW YEAR

On Tuesday, January 15, the Connecticut highway department will receive its first group of 1929 contract bids, according to an announcement made Tuesday by Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald. Five pieces of work are covered in the bids to be received that day and some of them serve to complete highway projects begun during the past year. Four of the contracts are directly connected with bridges and one with a grade crossing elimination.

About 1,249 feet of reinforced concrete pavement will be laid approaching and beneath the newly built railroad underpass on the Boston post road in the town of Branford. This work will entirely complete the new four lane pavement between East Haven and Branford. About 1,200 feet of grading and drainage work will be carried on in connection with the elimination of Phelps grade crossing in the town of Windham.

Three new bridges will be built under the new contracts. One contract calls for the construction of a steel truss superstructure for Pine's Bridge over the Naugatuck river in the town of Beacon Falls. New concrete arch bridges will be built over Sage's Ravine on the Salisbury-Great Barrington (Under Mountain) road in the town of Salisbury; and over Stoney Brook on East street in the town of Suffield.

In Inauguration Parade

Lieut. Gov.-elect Ernest E. Rogers and Maj. Gen. Morris B. Payne will ride in the parade which will precede the inauguration of Gov. John H. Trumbull at Hartford today (Wednesday). General Payne, a member of the governor's staff, will ride with His Excellency, while Mr. Rogers will ride in the fifth car with other incoming and retiring state officers.

MERCIER ASSEMBLY TO INSTALL OFFICERS SUNDAY

The regular business meeting of Mercier assembly No. 12, C. L. of C. was held in their rooms on Broadway, Tuesday evening. Miss Mary Hamill, president, presiding. Mrs. James Stanley, chairman of the Christman committee which sent large baskets of fruit, candies, etc., to the ex-service men who are patients at Uncas-on-Thames and the Norwich state hospital at Christmas time, read her report, and expressed her gratitude to those who assisted her in this work, especially the members of her committee and John P. Corcoran.

Miss Mary O'Neill, who has charge of the drill team reported that the drill will be ready for its first appearance at the installation of officers on Sunday the 13th.

The installation of officers will be held this coming Sunday in the hall of St. Mary's Memorial church and the new state president, Miss Margaret Crane, the state honorary president, Mrs. James Dutton and State Treasurer Lucy Murphy will be guests of the assembly on that day. The degrees will be exemplified and the drill team will make its first appearance before the assembly. A short musical program has been arranged and this will be followed by a luncheon and a social hour. The members were asked to make a special effort to attend the meeting Sunday as the officers for the year 1928 have spared no effort to make this a most enjoyable afternoon.

NORWICH TOWN

METHODIST C. E. SOCIETY HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the C. E. society of Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church was held in the vestry Monday evening. The president, Effie Ladd, presided. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Helen Haviland Potter. Following the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting by the Secretary Ruth Lathrop, the following nominations were made by the chairman of the nominating committee: Mrs. Arthur Fulton: President, Lewis E. Aldrich; vice president, Doris Rose; secretary, Ruth Lathrop; treasurer, Alice M. Brown; chairman of lookout committee, Mrs. Potter; of missionary committee, Florence M. Bennett; of prayer meeting committee, Mrs. William Weaver; of social and music committees, Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich; of flower committee, Muriel Rose and Virginia Ward. The secretary was instructed to cast one ballot for those nominated and the president declared them elected. Various reports of the work accomplished during the past year were read or given verbally by the officers. Izetta Dilette was elected an active member and Ralph Smith an associate member of the society. The society voted to give the play "Old Sweethearts" during January and to put on "The Norwich County Fair in Winter" on an evening in February. The pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter was elected superintendent of the fair and given the power to select committees.

The Priscilla club met at the parsonage Tuesday evening and the Camp Fire group is to meet this (Wednesday) evening.

ONE OF YOUNGEST MEMBERS OF GENERAL ASSEMBLY

One of the youngest members of the state legislature which convenes today (Wednesday) at Hartford is Charles N. Brush, 23, of Bozrah. Mr. Brush was the youngest member of the 1927 legislature.

Just two months after he had attained the age of 21, Mr. Brush was nominated and elected representative from the town of Bozrah in November, 1926, thereby embarking on a career which may be the nucleus for higher honors in the political filed. Besides being representative, he was elected grand juror and a registrar of the town of Bozrah in 1927. Mr. Brush has been elected every time by large majorities.

A native of Bozrah, he was born in September, 1905, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George K. Brush. His parents are staunch republicans, while he is a democrat.

He attained his education in the publi cschools of Bozrah, and later graduated from the Broadway grammar school here. He also graduated from the Norwich Free Academy, class of 1923.

Prior to his graduation from the Academy, Mr. Brush became interested in radio, then in its infancy, and since 1921 has ben actively engaged in the radio industry. Since 1925 he has been in the radio business for himself and later became an electrician, commencing business in this city. He is now engaged in both lines of businesses here.

Mr. Brush is one of the best versed radio men in this vicinity and has received offers from some of the largest radio houses in Connecticut.

In returning to the house of the general assembly, Mr. Brush will renew old acquaintances and meet new friends. He is of a pleasing disposition and ardently enthused with the political game.

NORWICH PERSONAL TAX BILLS NOT DUE YET

A misleading news item in The Bulletin stating that there would be a one dollar penalty for persons who had not paid their 1928 personal tax by Jan. 15, 1929 resulted in an annoying flood of calls, by telephone and in person, at the selectmen's office.

To all the response was made that this had nothing to do with the collection of personal taxes in Norwich and that no one need to be worried about not paying the personal tax before Jan. 15.

The news item applied to the small towns, those with population of 5,000 or less, which send out their personal tax bills on Nov. 15, giving two months in which to pay.

The personal tax bills in Norwich are not sent out until the first of February.

CHARITABLE CIRCLE HAS DELIGHTFUL SOCIAL EVENING

A delightful banquet and entertainment was enjoyed by 21 members of Charitable Circle of the King's Daughters of the United Congregational church at the Community house Tuesday evening. The event was given by the married members of the circle for the single members and was arranged for by the entertainment committee, of which Mrs. John V. Reynolds was chairman. The menu included creamed chicken in patty shells, mashed potato, peas, rolls, cranberry sauce, celery, ice cream and fancy cakes. There was an exchange of gifts, after which a programme of entertainment consisting of vocal and instrumental music was provided and games were played. The leader is Mrs. J. Herman Tubbs.

Miss Katharine Gorin, pianist-composer of New York, appeared as the artist of the evening at the January concert of Westerly Music club, Monday evening, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Michael H. Scanlon, formerly of Norwich.

EXTRA SESSION CONGRESS REGARDED AS INEVITABLE

Neither the President Nor the President-Elect Will Make Any Move Regarding Farm Relief Legislation During This Session—Senator Moses and Speaker Longworth Are Ready to Resort to Driving Tactics in Order to Get the Farm Relief Bill Through and Thus Avoid an Extra Session of Congress.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—(AP)—With definite word coming today from both the white house and Hoover headquarters that neither the president nor the president-elect would make any move regarding farm relief legislation during this meeting of congress, an extra session of the new congress was regarded as inevitable.

Information given to republican congressional leaders was that President Coolidge would not take any action which might be construed as bearing on events in the Hoover administration. Previously they had been told frankly by Mr. Hoover that he would in no way interfere with legislation pending during the remainder of the Coolidge regime.

The chief executive and the president-elect held a second conference today at the white house at which it was assumed the legislative situation was discussed, although no statement regarding the meeting was forthcoming either from Mr. Hoover or Mr. Coolidge.

It was stated at the Hoover headquarters, however, that the frequent visits of the next president to the executive offices indicated the continuity of the present and the next administrations and a close co-operation between Mr. Hoover and Mr. Coolidge.

Besides calling on the president, the president-elect had Secretary Kellogg at his headquarters for a luncheon conference and received more pleas from congressional leaders for an extra session in the early spring. These leaders included Senator Brookhart, of Iowa and a committee from the Pennsylvania republican delegation in the house which presented a formal resolution adopted by that delegation and asking for a session "as soon as possible."

Mr. Hoover has given no indication as to when he will call the new congress to Washington and it is not likely that he will do so before leaving early next week for Florida to remain away from the capitol probably until March 3, the day before the inauguration.

Despite the word that has been passed from both the white house and the Hoover camp, one group at Capitol Hill, including Senator Watson, of Indiana, prospective republican leader of the senate next session; Senator Moses, of New Hampshire and Speaker Longworth were ready to resort to driving tactics in an effort to get the pending McNary bill through now with a view of avoiding an extra session until the fall at least.

However, in the absence of support from either Mr. Coolidge or Mr. Hoover most friends of farm legislation were content to let the whole matter go over to the new congress and it seemed certain that this course would be pursued.

CONFERENCE ON ANTI-SMUGGLING IN OTTAWA

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 9—(AP)—The American delegation to the anti-smuggling conference today suggested Canadian refusal to clear liquor laden ships to the United States as a means of stemming the increasing flow of contraband, and the Canadian delegation replied by asking whether it would not be feasible for the United States to control the movement of boats engaged in liquor traffic.

In his opening statement at the conference yesterday, Rear Admiral Frederick C. Billard, head of the United States coast guard, brought up the question of refusal of clearance but the answering Canadian statement asserted that such restriction would tend to drive the export of liquor under cover and diffuse it over wider broader areas.

A joint commission appointed by the conference to study the liquor situation reported today that export of liquor from Canada to the United States was increasing and that the quantity of such liquor was having the psychological effect of making inhabitants of the United States think that authentic Canadian liquor supplies were available.

The conference adjourned after a brief session until tomorrow, when it is expected the meeting will be concluded.

TWO ROBBERS SHOT AND KILLED IN SEATTLE

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Two robbers were shot and killed in an attempt to hold up the offices of the Barto company, here today. Thomas Barto, president of the concern, was critically wounded. One of the robbers was identified by police as Robert Byrne, 21.

Barto was waiting on a customer when the robbers entered. Menacing the customers and Barto with their pistols, the men commanded "stick 'em up." One of the robbers then dropped over the railing into the cashier's cage, slugging James Dodson, a clerk, on the head as he did so.

Dazed by the blow, Dodson finally managed to get a pistol from the cashier's drawer and fired at his attacker, who was struggling with Barto for possession of his gun.

The bullet from Dodson's gun struck the robber, fatally wounding him and passing through his body, injured Barto.

Feeling the robber slump, Barto snatched the pistol from his hand and shot the other man, who was trying to hide behind the counter.

NON-STOP FLIGHT AROUND THE WORLD NEW PROJECT

PARIS, Jan. 9.—(AP)—A non-stop round-the-world flight with refueling of the plane in the air, is the latest project of the Fokker Aviation firm. The concern has been spurred to the idea by the successful sustained flight of 150 hours made by the American army plane "Question Mark."

Details of the proposed attempt have not been worked out, but the principle was virtually adopted today when the chief of the firm visited the head of its Paris bureau. The project calls for posting tank planes at various cities around the globe, these machines to meet the round-the-world plane in mid-air and accompany it for such distance as may be required for refueling.

"Paris to Paris" would be the objective of the trip.

Next June has been suggested as the time for the attempt.

JOHN W. PERRY, GRAND TITAN OF KU KLUX KLAN ACQUITTED

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 9—(AP)—John W. Perry, grand titan of the Ku Klux Klan in Rhode Island and Connecticut, early tonight was found not guilty by a jury in superior court on a charge of having committed perjury in testimony before the house militia committee of the Rhode Island general assembly last spring. The verdict was returned at 6:22 after three hours and 19 minutes of deliberation.

DUBLIN, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Official announcement was made tonight of the appointment of Michael MacWhite as minister to Washington to succeed Timothy Smiddy, recently transferred as high commissioner to London. Mr. MacWhite has been the saorstat representative at Geneva.

GIRL SHOT HERSELF IN BRISTOL POLICE STATION

BRISTOL, Conn., Jan. 9—(AP)—Whether curiosity led her to pick up a revolver in police headquarters or a desire to commit suicide, was not learned as Miss Evelyn King, 17, fought for her life tonight in Bristol hospital with a bullet wound through the abdomen. The girl came here looking for employment and was detained by police last night for breaking her parole from a reform school in Claremont, N. H.

Apparently not perturbed when told she would be sent back to Claremont, the girl was given the freedom of the station today, and she spent the long hours strumming on a ukulele given her. While alone, next to the prosecuting room, she reached into a cabinet and procured a .38-calibre revolver. The explosion of the pistol brought the chief and attendants into the room where she was unconscious in a chair, the weapon at her feet.

She was rushed to Bristol hospital and an immediate operation was ordered to save her life. The bullet passed through her body, into a partition in the room and dropped to the floor after striking a steel locker.

SPEEDING UP TARIFF REVISION HEARINGS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 9—(AP)—Speeding its tariff revision hearings to wind up work on the first schedule in three days as originally planned, the house ways and means committee today heard from a long list of farm organization representatives a recommendation for a sweeping change in duties on vegetable oils and fats.

Under the proposal, all major oils and fats now bearing varying specific and other rates of duty would be given a flat 45 per cent ad valorem rate, resulting in increases for all of the products.

The farm representatives said that domestic producers of cotton seed, flax seed, corn, hogs, beef, soya beans, peanuts and milk, fishermen on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, and a large number of independent crushers of oil materials would benefit by the increase.

They contended that the present tariff rates on oils and fats were "illogical, inadequate and ineffective," and that because of price relationship and interchangeability of the products the uniform rate was needed.

QUESTION MARK TO START EASTWARD FLIGHT FRIDAY

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9—(AP)—Leaving the scene of its record-smashing flight, the Question Mark will start for Rockwell field, San Diego, at 11 a. m. Friday and go from there to Washington, D. C., as soon as repairs have been made, it was announced here today following a conference by members of the crew.

Maj. Carl Spatz, Lieut. Roy Harris and Capt. Ira Eaker after conferring, decided to return to Washington over a southern route as soon as possible. While both refueling planes will accompany the Question Mark to Rockwell field, only Plane No. 1 will continue with it on the journey east.

Present plans, however, call for no refueling while in the air during the return trip.

The Question Mark will stop at Tucson, Ariz.; Midland, Texas; Shreveport, La., and Montgomery, Ala. This route was considered advisable under present weather conditions.

Inauguration Of New Air Lines At Miami

Four Planes Took Off Yesterday Connecting Five Countries With the United States.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 9—(AP)—Air lines connecting five countries with the United States, were inaugurated today when four big cabin planes soared away from the airport here on the maiden voyages over the new routes.

Aboard the fourth to depart was Postmaster-General Harry S. New, as a passenger to Havana. This plane was on its first trip over a 1,440 mile land and water route to its southernmost terminus at San Juan, Porto Rico.

Inauguration of the service was attended by ceremonies at the landing field of the Pan-American Airways, Inc., in which Mr. New, W. Irving Glover, second assistant postmaster-general, William P. MacCracken, Jr., assistant secretary of commerce, and Miss Amelia Earhart participated. Departure of the planes concluded a three day flying carnival at Miami airports.

The postmaster general himself loaded mail aboard the four airplanes. The first air liner took off for Havana at 8:07 a. m., bearing 306 pounds of mail. Among the seven passengers were Miss Earhart, Mr. MacCracken, James Warner Bellah, magazine writer, and Mrs. Bellah.

Another plane to Havana departed a few minutes later and was followed by the Nassau, Bahamas, air liner.

The Porto Rican plane, the "Christopher Columbus" left at 9:23 o'clock as Mr. New waved a flag from the door of the cabin with eight passengers and 215 pounds of mail. The passenger list included Mr. New, Mr. Glover, E. R. White, superintendent of foreign mails for the United States post office; Mayor E. G. Sewell, of Miami, Edgar N. Gott, president of the Keystone-Loening Aeronautical corporation; Emilio Deboy, of Havana and officials of the Pan-American Airways, Inc.

The passengers disembarked at Havana, and with Miss Earhart and Mr. MacCracken, returned to Miami today.

The new route lies over Havana, Camaguey, and Santiago, Cuba; Port Au Prince, Haiti; Santo Domingo City, Dominican Republic, and San Juan, Porto Rico. Daily service is to be maintained to Havana from Miami, while trips will be made three times weekly to the other points including Nassau. Later the new route is to be extended to include Panama via Havana and Central America.

INVESTIGATION CLEARS SENATORS BORAH AND NORRIS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—(AP)—In a spirit of indignation the senate today received a report from one of its committees branding as "false and spurious" newly discovered documents purporting to show that Senators Borah of Idaho and Norris of Nebraska, had received $100,000 each from the soviet government.

The documents constituted a new set of papers which the committee has been investigating secretly for a year and which were disclosed as part of the investigation into the Mexican documents printed in the Hearst papers a year ago. The committee at that time held the Mexican papers fraudulent.

The report on the Russian papers to the senate revived discussion of the Mexican documents and brought a demand on the floor from Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, that the investigating committee "indict" William Randolph Hearst for publication of those papers.

Senator Heflin's demand blocked a motion by Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, the chairman of the special committee, for the discharge of the committee from further work. He withdrew the motion temporarily after Heflin's attack on Mr. Hearst, who was not mentioned by the committee in its first report on the Mexican documents.

Senator Reed and the other members of the special investigating committee flayed the "peddling" of such documents when the report of the newspapers involving Senators Borah and Norris was made public. The two senators had asked that the purported Russian papers be made public after they had been informed of the secret investigation into them.

TWO BANDITS HELD UP BANK AT OWENSBORO, KY.

OWENSBORO, Ky., Jan. 9—(AP)—Two bandits, one said to have been one-armed with a machine gun, held up the West Louisville bank near here this afternoon and escaped with approximately $1,000 after wounding Hays Bratcher, a farmer. Martin O'Bryan, the cashier, told police he believed one of the robbers was a woman.

Leaving the bank with the cash, the two shouted to a group of men across the street to go back inside the building. Bratcher, one of the group, did not move, and the alleged machine gun was fired. One bullet entered his chest. He may not recover.

The bandits fled in an automobile.

JURY SELECTED FOR THE TRIAL OF NORTHCOTT

RIVERSIDE, Cal., Jan. 9.—(AP)—A jury of 12 men was accepted by both defense and prosecution this afternoon to decide the guilt or innocense of Gordon Stewart Northcott, charged with torturing and murdering three boys on his Wineville ranch.

The last woman member of the venire had been excused only a short time before the jury was accepted.

Northcott's mother, Mrs. Sarah Louisa Northcott, recently was sentenced to life in the state prison at San Quentin upon confessing she was guilty of the murders. She exonerated her son, but later repudiated her confession and charged that sch grandson, Sanford Clark alone was guilty of the crimes.

"FATTY" ARBUCKLE'S CAFE DECLARED A NUISANCE

CULVER CITY, Cal., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle, entertainer and former motion picture actor, was cited by the city council today to appear before the executive body next Monday to show cause why his cafe should not be closed under nuisance abatement proceedings.

The action followed complaints of residents who live near the place, known as "Arbuckle's Plantation Cafe," that noise and revelry every night of the week made sleep impossible.

Inaugural Ball a Brilliant Affair

Major Coolidge, Escorting Miss Trumbull, Looked Every Inch a Soldier in His New Uniform.

HARTFORD, Jan. 9—(AP)—The social beginnings of the third term of Gov. John H. Trumbull, were in the inaugural ball of the First company, Governor's Foot Guards at its armory tonight, and at which Major John Coolidge, son of President Calvin Coolidge made his first appearance in uniform of a staff officer. The commission which came to him had been signed by Gov. Trumbull immediately after the passage of an amendment to the National Guard law of the state, and was delivered to Major Coolidge when he arrived late in the day at the home of Gov. and Mrs. Trumbull in Plainville.

Major Coolidge was unable to attend the inaugural ceremonies at which were his fiancee, Miss Trumbull, her mother, and sister, Jean. He drove up from New Haven and had dinner with the governor's family, and putting on the new uniform, which other staff officers said made Major Coolidge "look every inch an officer and a mighty good looking one," escorted Miss Trumbull to the ball.

The gathering was one of the most brilliant of the Guards in recent years. The number of guests was large and the gowns of the women fetching. Mrs. Trumbull wore a chanel model of champagne satin in an exquisite shade of turquoise blue. The gown was made with a train and had as the only ornament a large emerald and crystal pin fastened at the rather long waistline.

Miss Trumbull was gowned in an imported frock of white georgette trimmed with sequins. Miss Jean Trumbull had a becoming gown of gold sequins with lace inserts.

In the ball room were thousands of pink roses and quantities of trailing green smilax against a background of billowing white and pink bunting. The ball was opened with the massing of the colors as Gov. Trumbull entered under escort of Major Alvin Waldo Hyde, the commanding officer. The Governor and Mrs. Trumbull, Major Hyde, and Major Coolidge and Miss Trumbull led the grand march.

GOV. TRUMBULL SWORN IN FOR THIRD TERM

STATE CAPITOL, Hartford, Jan. 9—(AP)—Standing in the sunlight which flooded the speaker's platform in the chamber of the house of representatives this afternoon, Gov. John H. Trumbull again swore to uphold the constitution and maintain the law for his third term. Departing a little from custom he took his oath of office from Associate Justice William M. Maltbie before he read his inaugural message while a battery of cameras, moving and still, made a film record of his act. It usually has been the way for the governor to lift his right hand after he had given his message to the general assembly, which was in joint convention to hear it.

The inauguration was with time-honored formality, dignity and display, the inaugural parade which preceded it having the color which was added by the grenadier uniforms of the Foot Guards and the blue of the National Guard, the war-time khaki having been laid aside for the first time since the World war days except that the Second company's band was still in theirs.

Not in many a year had the interior greenery decorations been so lavish nor had hospitality been so generously given to the small army of state employes who are in the capitol, for at the luncheons after the ceremonies there were long lines waiting for salads, and ices and coffee which required a corps of waiters to attend.

The general assembly moved speedily in its organization work and recessed until 2 p. m., at which time the governor's party was coming up Capitol hill to the martial airs of the bands. It was 2:38 when the senate met with the house in joint convention to receive the governor who had been waited upon by a committee consisting of Senater Leader Peasley, and Representatives Johnson and Tobin, house floor leaders of the two parties, respectively.

A line of state police marked the lane between the executive offices and the house chamber's door, and through this passed High Sheriff Dewey, of Hartford county, Gov. Trumbull, Executive Secretary E. L. Kelly, Justices Maltbie, Haines, John Richard Booth and Hinman, and the governor's staff without Major John Coolidge whose commission had been signed a short time before. Major Coolidge did not attend the day's ceremonies here. He remained at his desk in New Haven.

Lieut.-Gov. Ernest E. Rogers presiding over the convention and he shook the governor's hand in greeting as the latter took his place at the desk. The lieutenant governor had been sworn by Justice Maltbie just before the senate came downstairs and his address to the senate departed from the ordinary one of greeting and optimistic forecast of a well spent session and took the form of an historical review of the general assembly from the days of fundamental orders until its present organization in recognition of the fiftieth anniversary of the first regular session in this capitol building. The address became a document of record to be filed with the archives of the senate. It also included a chronology of the Connecticut senate. Lieut.-Gov. Rogers is a past president-general of the Sons of the American Revolution and his address will be keeping with his knowledge of the early history of the state.

Before Gov. Trumbull, as he read his address, was an audience which jammed most of the space. In a tier of seats in front of him was Mrs. Trumbull, Miss Trumbull, and Miss Jean Trumbull and the wives of staff officers who had been Mrs. Trumbull's guests at a luncheon.

The governor read his message clearly, carefully and it was easily understood in the remote parts of the chamber. The applause at its close was hearty and spontaneous as had been thatw hich had greeted his appearance.

The oath of office was next given to Dr. W. L. Higgins, of Coventry, as secretary of State. Samuel R. Spencer, of Suffield, state treasurer, and Frederick M. Salmon, state comptroller, who began his fourth term. Attorney General Ailing was in the group but he is only beginning the third year of his four year term.

SENATOR BINGHAM'S STAND ON KELLOGG ANTI-WAR PACT

The Senator Will Not Vote For the Treaty Unless It Carries an Interpretative Statement Making Entirely Clear the Rights of the U. S. in Protection of Its Property and Its Citizens in Foreign Countries—Coincides With the Attitude Taken by Senator McLean and Believes the Whole Treaty Should Be Clarified.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8— Senator Bingham today authorized the statement that he should not vote for the Kellogg treaty unless an interpretative statement by the foreign relations committee or by the senate made entirely clear the rights retained by the United States in protection of its property and its citizens in foreign countries. "This has not yet been done" said Senator Bingham. I do not believe the opinions expressed by individual senators would be recognized by any foreign tribunal but that an interpretation by either the foreign relations committee or the senate might be so recognized. I entirely agree with the attitude taken by Senator McLean and believe the whole treaty should be clarified. Unless it is I shall not vote for it." Mr. Bingham feels that it is especially necessary that the terms "self defense" are so clarified that there can be no future misunderstanding of the rights of the United States in that respect.

Apparently that view is being rapidly strengthened in the senate although early ratification without interpretation is still being predicted.

During the debate the galleries were crowded with hundreds of women members of pacifist organizations and conspicuous among the delegations was their leader, Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of one of the "peace at any price" organizations.

BORAH NOT WORRYING ABOUT A COMPROMISE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—(AP)—The Kellogg anti-war treaty drifted on the listless waves of oratory today as the senate found itself unable to reach an agreement on an interpretative resolution on the pact and the foes of the treaty prepared a final drive for such a resolution.

Hopes for an understanding which would pave the way to a vote by tomorrow or before the end of the week still were held tonight by some leaders but Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee, sponsor of the bill, dug in for a finish fight.

Confident of the votes for ratification of the treaty without reservation or interpretation Senator Borah is not worrying about a compromise.

However, a group of senate leaders anxious to get action this session on farm relief as well as on the pending cruiser construction bill are bending every effort to bring the treaty debate to a close. They are the ones hopeful of an agreement.

Meanwhile, Senator Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, today carried on the drive for an interpretation of the pact. He put forward his resolution to declare it the sense of the senate that the note of Great Britain reserving the right to defend for territories should not be considered as a reservation to the treaty.

After a long argument by the Wisconsin senator, Senators Walsh, of Massachusetts, and McKellar of Tennessee, democrats, swelled the total of democratic support for the pact. Walsh indorsed the treaty as "a forward step toward world peace but whether a large step or a tiny step the future will disclose."

Senator Blaine argued that the treaty "commits our nation to an impossible peace, unworthy of the traditions of America, and forgetful of that which made this republic possible."

COM. BYRD NAMES HARBOR IN HONOR OF FLOYD BENNETT

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—(AP)—A radio message from the Byrd South Polar expedition copyrighted by the New York Times and St. Louis Post-Dispatch announces that Commander Byrd has named the harbor he recently discovered in the Bay of Whales in honor of Floyd Bennett and the cape at the entrance to the harbor in honor of Commander John Rodgers.

Floyd Bennett, who died of pneumonia last spring while on his way to the relief of the Bremen fliers on Greenly Island, would have been Byrd's chief pilot on the present expedition had he lived.

He flew with Byrd to the North Pole in 1926 and only a broken leg kept him from accompanying the commander on his trans-Atlantic flight.

DIRIGIBLE LOS ANGELES 45 MINUTES OVERDUE

PENSACOLA, Fla., Jan. 10.—(AP)—At 12.45 o'clock eastern time this morning, the navy dirigible Los Angeles was reported from the tender Patoka to be 45 minutes overdue on her flight from Lakehurst, and no sign of the ship had been seen at that hour, according to reports from Port St. Joseph Bay, where the Patoka is anchored.

Searchlights from the Patoka were sweeping the rapidly increasing clouds in the vicinity in an effort to guide the dirigible, in case she had lost her bearings.

Some worry was felt on the tender on account of increasing south by southeast winds and cloudiness.

DEATH OF SON OF THE FOUNDER OF THE Y. M. C. A.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Howard Williams, son of the founder of the Y. M. C. A., and himself a prominent supporter of the movement, died at his home in Dickley, Kent, today. He represented his father, Sir George Williams, at the jubilee of the American of the organization in 1901.

OBITUARY

Edward Warriner Hazen

HADDAM, Conn., Jan. 9—(AP)—Edward Warriner Hazen, long connected with the advertising field and for 15 years advertising director of the Curtis Publishing Co., of Philadelphia, died here today of angina pectoris in his 69th year. He entered the advertising business in Hartford after having engaged in teaching school and working in a foundry.

He became advertising director of the Youth's Companion in New York and in 1900, joined the Curtis Publishing Co. in the same capacity. In 1917, he became a member of the state legislature and two years later served as senator from the Haddam district.

He was president of the Middlesex hospital; vice-president of the Junior Achievement, Inc., of Springfield, and member of the the Union League club of New York, Manhattan club, Commodore and Laurantian clubs of Canda, Dubsdread club of Orlando, Fla., and the Aloma club of Winter Park, Fla.

Since leaving politics in 1919, he led a retired life at his home here. One of his acts of philanthropy was the endowment of $170,000 to the Middletown Y. M. C. A. last year.

Born in Middletown, Feb. 13, 1860, he was educated in public schools here and in Hartford. He then attended Wilbraham, Mass., academy and later taught school for eight years. He left the teaching profession to become a foreman of the Benedict & Burnham Brass foundry in Waterbury, Conn., from where he later entered the advertising field.

He is survived by his widow, Helen R. Hazen; two brothers, George H. Hazen, chairman of the board of trustees of the Century Publishing Co., New York, and Josiah J. Hazen, president of the Neosho Nurseries Co., Neosho, Miss., and two sisters, Mrs. Frank H. Arnold, and Miss Lucy Hazen of Haddam.

The funeral will be held Friday at 2 p. m., from the Congregational church with interment in Haddam cemetery.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR GRAND DUKE NICHOLAS

CANNES, France, Jan. 9—(AP)—The body of Grand Duke Nicholas, former commander-in-chief of the armies of Imperial Russia, was placed in a crypt in the Russian church here today. The funeral service was attended by representatives of all the allied governments and by nearly 5,000 Russian exiles who crowded the church, the church yard and the lanes leading to the structure.

The interior of the church was ablaze of light while the personal archbishop of the grand duke intoned a three-hour service of the Russian Orthodox church. The glow from myriad candles was reflected from uniforms set off by jeweled decorations and from myriad flowers of every hue.

A dozen stalwart cossacks with drawn sabres stood inside a triple ring of candles within which the coffin rested. Overhead the church bells chimed in slow Russian cadence.

The official mourners in the church included six former Russian generals and members of the duke's family, Marshal Petain was there as representative of France, the duke of Genoa as delegates from the Italian government and Count Leonardi as personal representative of the duke's sister-in-law, Queen Eleana, of Italy.

Outside the crowd was splashed with the faded colors of old Russian uniforms, many of them worn threadbare and testifying to the strained circumstances in which the exiled adherents of the Romanoffs now exist. Every branch of the old Russian army and navy was represented in these uniforms.

REFORMISTS STRONG IN THE SALVATION ARMY

SUNBURY-ON-THAMES, England, Jan. 9—(AP)—The second session proceedings of the high council of the Salvation Army today left onlookers wondering whether, like the great political world councils held at Geneva, much may not be settled outside the council chamber in an unofficial way.

An official communique issued from international headquarters in London tonight reveals that communications from General Bramwell Booth have been received by the council and that the question has been brought to discussion of sending a deputation to see the commander-in-chief. Except for this, nothing of the proceedings was divulged in the communique.

Much curiosity was excited by the mysterious goings and comings of prominent members of the Booth family between the council chamber and a secluded Villa in the neighborhood. From the Villa telephone communication with General Bramwell Booth at Southwold was maintained. A closed red automobile made seven such journeys within as many hours, carrying always a uniformed secretary and Commissioner Catherine Booth, with piles of legal documents.

It is understood that a test of strength between the rival factions has shown a great preponderance on the side of the reformists.

BOY INSTANTLY KILLED BY GASOLINE ENGINE

BRISTOL, Conn., Jan. 9—(AP)—William Reilly, ten, was instantly killed two miles east of here by a gasoline engine late today, while walking home from school. Accompanied by John Toni, a fellow pupil, young Reilly was unaware of the approach of the engine to avoid being struck. He died of a compound fracture of the skull. Toni saw the engine in time to save himself but it bore down on his companion before he could give warning.

LARGE CROWDS ATTEND OPENING OF EXPOSITION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 9—Opening under most auspicious conditions the fourth annual Willimantic exposition, got off to a flying start at the state armory this evening. Keen interest in the show and loyal support to the Windham County Poultry, Pigeon and Small Stock association under whose auspices the exposition is staged, brought out an attendance of several hundred. Visitors from other towns are coming in numbers and they are expected to represent at least 30 per cent. of the attendance Saturday afternoon and evening.

The spacious drill shed presents an unusually attractive grouping of exhibits that are of interest to all. Sections along the walls are occupied by such exhibits as automobiles, woodwork, poultry and dog feed and remedies, etc. Placed in long rows along the shed are the hundreds of birds, pigeons, hens, ducks, turkeys, geese, guinea hens and canaries. There are also a number of dog pens and several cages where freak animals are exhibited. One of the exhibits consists of white and bronze turkeys and fine breeds of poultry entered by the Connecticut Agricultural college. Many stopped at the state trade school exhibit. This includes a brooder house built along scientific lines by the trade pupils, and actual demonstrations of work. Students are engaged during the show in erecting brick walls and copings, three feet high and doing plastering as a practical showing of their skill.

The innovation in the establishment of a household exhibition department in a suite of three rooms adjoining the drill shed met with spontaneous success. Crowds filed through the rooms which have been furnished in modern taste by The Martineau-Bacon company. In conjunction with this exhibit are two rooms equipped with the latest types of labor-saving devices operated by electricity shown by the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company. This exhibit includes an all electrical kitchen which proved a revelation to many.

INVESTIGATORS FIND ERROR IN MAZZOLA'S STATEMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 9—The investigators into the murder of Mrs. Rosario Lorella at the home of her son-in-law, Thomas Mazzola last Thursday morning believed today that they had succeeded in breaking down a new version given by Mazzola, who is held as a suspect in the case of his activities on the morning of the strangulation of his mother-in-law. In accounting for a lapse of some 40 minutes from the time he left his home, where the murder took place, until he claims he reported for work, Mazzola stated at the coroner's inquest that he had stopped to visit with Frank Russo who left later Thursday morning for New York where he set sail for Italy. The authorities have secured evidence which now tends to show an apparent fallacy in this statement. The exact nature of the evidence secured was not made known today.

A report on finger-prints taken from articles in the Mazzola tenement shortly after the discovery of the murder is momentarily expected but had not been received from Hartford today. While general belief existed that the fingerprint report would play an important part in the case especially in the success or failure of establishing guilt on the suspect, the authorities now signify that the report may not play a vital part in their investigation. It was explained that the true finger-print evidence were made on the throat of the murdered woman but such prints cannot be secured for analysis from flesh and are therefore useless in this case.

The inquest which was started last Monday by Coroner A. G. Bill of Danielson will probably be resumed on Thursday or Friday, depending on the recovery of Mrs. Thomas Mazzola, who has been suffering from shock sustained upon discovery of the lifeless body of her mother. It was thought that Mrs. Mazzola might be able to give a statement by Thursday.

Meanwhile County Detective William E Jackson and Officer Arthur Burley are running down every possible clue in the hope of establishing a motive for the murder. Mazzola continues to be confined under guard in the local cell room. As far as is known his friends have not yet succeeded in securing counsel for him.

Judge Otto B. Robinson of the Windham probate court and Arthur L. Clark, administrator of the estate of the late Anne Bolles Hibberd Freeman, have received a notice from Attorney John H. King stating that an appeal would be taken from the findings of the commissioners on the disallowed claim of Mrs. Annie Freeman Tucker of North Windham, a daughter of the deceased, to the Windham county superior court. The case is scheduled for the first Tuesday in February.

Mrs. Freeman died May 29, 1927, and by the terms of her will, she left $25 to Mrs. Tucker and the residue to her son, Herbert A. Freeman of this city. Mr. Clark was appointed administrator of the estate and claims presented to him were for $20,300 from Mrs. Tucker and $13,578.55 from Mr. Freeman. Both these claims were disallowed by Administrator Clark. The matter was placed with two commissioners, Edward L. Dennis of Scotland and John A. Kelley of this city, who were appointed by Judge Robinson. The commissioners held two sessions and disallowed the entire claim of Mrs. Tucker and allowed Freeman $160.25 plus interest for a total of $169.77 up to December, 1928. The report was filed with the probate court December 10. The administrator disallowed the claims of both heirs on the ground that the property consisting of land and a dwelling at 181 Lewiston avenue only inventoried for $6,476. Mrs. Tucker claims that at the time of the death of her father several years ago, she left her share to her mother with the understanding that at the latter's death the estate would be divided equally between herself and brother.

The women of Hampton and Scotland are to attend a series of all-day meetings to learn the construction of service wagons and the remodelling of old clothes, these meetings to be sponsored by Alice W. Billings of the Windham County Farmer's association as home demonstration agent and the assistance of the extension service of the Connecticut Agricultural college. The first of the sessions will be held in the Scotland Congregational church starting at 10:30 o'clock Thursday while the second will be held in the Hampton chapel January 17. Instructions on service-wagon making will be given at these gatherings. The sessions on the clothing project will be held in Hampton on February 7 and in Scotland on the following day.

Concluding ten years as judge of the Windham-Scotland district probate court, Otto B. Robinson this forenoon administered the oath of office to his successor, Valentine L. Murphy and relinquished to him the duties of the office. Miss Mary F. Twomey, clerk of the court, was the only witness to the brief ceremony. Retiring Judge Robinson congratulated Judge Murphy and extended his well wishes. Judge Robinson will remain at the office for a few days to close up unfinished business and to assist Judge Murphy in familiarizing himself with his new duties. Miss Twomey will be retained in her present position. Mr. Robinson stated today that he had not made any definite plans for the future. Many friends of Judge Murphy took the occasion to congratulate him today. He was elected to the office at the November elections.

DR. KEATING IS NEW COMMANDER OF SHEA POST

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 9—The reorganization of James J. Shea post, No. 19, World War Veterans, was successfully completed at a meeting of the post held in the state armory tonight. The following officers who had been nominated at a previous meeting were elected tonight: Commander, Dr. W. P. S. Keating; first vice-commander, Lester H. Blish; second vice-commander, William F. Qwens; adjutant, Albert J. Piche; assistant adjutant, Henry F. Syphes; finance officer, Edmund J. Peckham; assistant finance officer, William P. Kelley; chaplain, Oscar L. Keith; sergeant-at-arms, Walter McNichol; historian, Earle K. Hallas; state executive committeeman, Commander Keating; news officer, Roy W. Downer; membership committee, T. Frank Cunningham, Raymond Parker, Dennis F. Haggerty. The meeting was opened by District Commander E. A. Zimmerman of Storrs, head of the fourth district, comprising Tolland and Windham counties. Several visitors including district officers from Rockville, and members of Earl W. Green post, No. 52, of Coventry and Mansfield were in attendance. James J. Shea post has membership of about 50 with an objective membership of about 800. Meetings will be held on the second and fourth Thursdays of the month in the G. A. R. rooms of the town building after the next meeting, which will be held in the armory.

The Willimantic Silk Co., Inc., mills have received another shipment of looms and these are being placed on the fourth floor of the plant, indicating that nearly 100 looms will be in operation in the near future. Additional hands are being employed as new machines are installed.

Spectators at the police court session this morning were reminded of the unemployment situation figures that they had heard given during the recent national campaign when seven men, averaging about 40 years in age and some of them claiming to be skilled at certain labors were arraigned for trespassing on railroad property. The men, who have addresses in various Rhode Island and Massachusetts cities, were taken into custody by Officer Roderick Lariviere at the railroad station. Judge Frank H. Foss suspended judgment in each case and gave the men 24 hours in which to leave town. The case of Albert Trudeau, 20, of this city, charged with violation of the fishing laws, was nolled on recommendation of Prosecuting Attorney Gaucher. The charge named by Deputy Game Warden George A. Willis of Chaplin was that Trudeau was fishing through the ice on the Willimantic river.

Miss Juanita Jackson, daughter of County Detective and Mrs. William E. Jackson has taken over the interest of Mrs. Lillian Broadhurst, who has retired from part ownership of the Quality shop at 804 Main street. Mrs. Broadhurst has been affiliated with Mrs. Nellie Brown in conducting the shop for some time. Miss Jackson has been employed at the local office of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company for some years.

The personnel of the post office is suffering from an epidemic of several colds which has been apparent since the holidays. While a number of those afflicted have returned to work there are now two carriers, Clarence O. Barrows and Joseph F. Paulhus confined to their homes. Substitute Carriers William Podersky and William F. Costello are covering their routes. Major Joseph R. Morrison, clerk at the office, is also off duty with a similar ailment.

The annual meeting of St. Paul's Episcopal church was held this evening with a gratifying report from the treasurer showing that the past year had been a prosperous one for the church and a substantial reduction had been made in the debt. Reports of the officers and societies were made.

The removal of a large show window in the Church-Reed company store at the corner of Church and Main streets, attracted considerable attention today. The window was broken during the rain and wind storm early Sunday morning.

Francis C. Ahern, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Ahern returned today to his studies at Phillips-Exeter academy, Exeter, N. H., after spending the holiday recess here.

Maurice Hanna has resigned his position with Harry W. Standish, jewler, and accepted a similar one with the Smith-Leon company.

Postmaster Frank M. Smith continues to make good recovery from injuries sustained in an automobile accident in Westfield, Mass., two months ago. He now spends several hours each day at the post office and plans to assume all of his duties next week. He gets about with the use of a cane.

Mrs. W. L. Buckingham of The Ridges is winter guest of her sister, Mrs. Ridgeley Larkin in New Haven.

Alexander Todd of South Willington has purchased three tracts of land on Ash street plat from the American Land company, of Providence, R. I., according to a warranty deed filed at the office of Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton.

JEWETT CITY

SAVINGS BANK CORPORATORS RE-ELECT TWO AUDITORS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 9—The January meeting of the corporators of Jewett City Savings bank was held Wednesday afternoon. The auditors are elected at this time and J. E. Phillips and L. M. Carpenter were re-elected, with W. T. Crumb as alternate. The bank shows a gain in deposits during the year of over $136,000, and in the profit and loss surplus account over $51,000. Over $103,000 has been paid in dividends, all of which shows the fine financial status of the bank.

The annual meeting of the directors of the Jewett City Textile Novelty Co. was held Tuesday. The directors elected are: Alex and Andrew McNicol and E. E. Gilbert. The officers elected are: President and superintendent, Andrew McNicol; vice president, E. E. Gilbert; secretary, treasurer and manager, Alex McNicol.

Grappling Hooks for Engine

At a meeting of the warden and burgesses this week it was voted to equip Engine No. 1 and Chemical No. 1 of the Jewett City fire department with the necessary grappling hooks and line, to be used in cases of accidental drowning.

At the annual meeting of Pachaug Cemetery association held Tuesday in Pachaug the following officers were retained: President, Arba Browning; vice president, John Potter; secretary and treasurer, Simon Brewster Jr.; directors, Daniel L. Phillips, Joseph Roode, Victor C. Campbell, Willis C. Terry.

The meeting voted to purchase four tons of commercial fertilizer for use on the cemetery lawns. All who pass this ancient burying ground express appreciation for the work done in the beautifying the setting and surroundings. As a stimulus to later action the Lester family gave thousands of dollars, which provided for memorial gates, trees, shrubbery and a granite mausoleum. From a partly deserted, grass-grown grave yard, with crumbling walls and falling fences the cemetery has been transformed to a well kept and finely graded collection of plots and is entitled to a place among the finest burial places in the county.

The annual meeting of Dorcas Circle of The King's Daughters was held Tuesday evening at the home of Misses Mabel Wilcox and Sadie Thompson. Officers re-elected are: Leader, Miss M. A. Burdick; vice leader, Mrs. L. D. Howe; secretary, Sadie Thompson; treasurer, Miss S. K. Adams. The committees appointed are: Sick committee, Mrs. Abraham Zegeer, Mrs. N. B. Parkhurst, Mrs. J. W. Carter and Mrs A. C. Burdick, each one to have charge for three months; work, Mrs. Walter Marshall, Mrs. Edith Soule, Mrs. Ella Geer and Mrs. A. W. Harris; hospitality, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox. The annual reports showed many helpful acts performed and money spent to alleviate trouble. The tuberculosis fund, for which the seals are sold, had been used for the benefit of a sanatorium patient, who has been allowed to return home in very good health. Program, Miss Grace Olin, Mrs. E. B. Cheney, Mrs. W. H. Payne, Miss Eleanor Stetson. An entertaining program had been prepared by Miss Olin, one feature requiring much artistability. Mrs. N. B. Parkhurst took the prize in that contest and Miss S. K. Adams was awarded the two prizes for the other games. Candy and salted peanuts were passed.

When the annual meeting of Jewett City Cemetery association was held Tuesday evening at the home of Arthur M. Brown, the board of directors reelected was: A. M. Brown, A. R. Young, J. E. Phillips, G. H. Prior, F. C. Whiting, F. I. Ray, E. E. Gilbert. F. I. Ray was re-elected superintendent and G. H. Prior and R. J. Guy auditors. Messrs Ray and Prior were appointed a committee to revise the rules and regulations of the association, to post suitable notices in the cemetery and to prepare a map of the cemetery grounds. The amount of money in the working fund is $1,504.16 and in the permanent fund $14,504.94. The officers re-elected are: President, J. E. Phillips; vice president, E. E. Gilbert; secretary and treasurer, A. M. Brown.

The World Wide Guild Girls held their meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Floyd Ray in Voluntown, with ten present. The unique program was in charge of Verna Tarbox and was based on the study book Friends of Africa, and Miss Tarbox had drawn a representation of chromatic keys on a musical keyboard. The black notes when taken off had written on the back some fact given in the study book. The hostess served refreshments.

Dr. and Mrs. J. H. McLaughlin have returned after several weeks' stay at Hot Springs, Arkansas, Dr. McLaughlin being much benefited by the treatment for rheumatism.

Clarence E. Whittaker of Norwich is given due credit for a fine and speedy job just completed at the Baptist church in laying a fire-proof roof and fitting the eaves with copper gutters.

WEATHER TOO WARM FOR BIG CROP OF APPLES

Simon Brewster Jr., was busy Wednesday sorting his harvest of winter apples. With russets in the lead he has in excess of 600 bushels. Mr. Brewster says that not in ten years has the loss been so great by rotting. This fact is attributed to the warm weather of the entire fall.

Mr. Brewster, one of the leading growers in eastern Connecticut, harvested close to 2,000 bushels of 30 varieties, all sprayed fruit.

MEMBER OF SWEET FAMILY INHERITS UNUSUAL SKILL

The death of Dr. John Sweet of Hartford, told in Tuesday's Bulletin was of local interest. The late Dr. J. Byron Sweet of Jewett City was a cousin and with John Sweet was a direct descendant from the widely known family of Lebanon bone setters. Jewett City people take pride in the fact of still claiming a qualified member of the distinguished family with a future of the brightest promise. The young man is Byron Sweet, now a student in the college of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va. Inherited skill is vested in this home town young man.

FREIGHT CARS DERAILED CAUSE VEXING DELAY

On account of a derailment at Shetucket, late Tuesday evening, the boat train did not arrive at Jewett City until 8 a. m. The Bulletins were thus delayed over 2 hours in delivery. Seven cars of a freight left the iron, caused, it is stated, by a dropped brake-beam. The road was blocked all night, making necessary the rerouting of the State of Maine expresses.

Mrs. John P. Post entertained the Woman's Mission Circle of the Baptist church at her home on North Main street Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. G. H. Prior led the devotional service, reading Acts 1:1-5 and using "power" as the key word of her talk. She offered prayer, Mrs. A. M. Brown presided at the business meeting. Reports were read and a letter of appreciation for furnishings sent to Mather School, Beaufort, S. C. White Cross supplies amounting to $31 have been purchased and the Overland quota sent out. The Overseas quota will be finished at a sewing meeting. It was voted to send $1 toward the outfitting of two new missionaries. There was also a thank you from Miss Pearl Harris, a missionary at Puerta de Tierra, P. R., for the Christmas box sent to her. The program was divided into two sections. The first dealt with the history of the church in Africa from the time of the first missions established there in 1835 up to the present, and was in charge of Mrs. B. R. Gardner. The second part was prepared by Mrs. Brown and considered "Problems of Contact." There is a responsibility that business enterprise has, especially in newly opened up country like Africa, for the moral welfare of the native population. Governments are not primarily philanthropic and business enters for profits, so that the only contact which can solve this difficult problem is Christian responsibility. There were seventeen present. Those who took part were Miss Mabel H. McBroome, Mrs. R. A. Wilbur, Mrs. E. M. Gray, Mrs. Phebe Gray, Mrs. Martin Davis, Mrs. Lewis Hewitt, Mrs. S. F. Brown, Mrs. E. E. Scates, Miss Ida Foster and Mrs J. P. Post. Mrs. Post served cakes and tea, assisted by Mrs. Wilbur and Mrs. John E. Post.

group, Gov. Trumbull and his party retired, the senate went upstairs, each body approved of the records of the joint convention, considered the time it has been in session a day's work and adjourned until next week Thursday.

When the general assembly comes in next time Speaker Eddy will announce his committees and so will President Pro Tem Roy C. Wilcox in the senate. Talk about these appointments got well under way before members separated to go back to their homes and their constituents.

The general assembly in a day's work did something which while not unusual is not often done, and that was to pass a bill for a public act without sending it to a committee for a hearing. It also adopted a resolution changing the time of the organizing meeting of county delegations to the fourth Tuesday of January instead of the third because the legislature is not in the habit of sitting the third Tuesday, a fact which often complicated matters for county delegations which wish to get down to work early but could not organize at the set time.

The public act was that which gives the governor appointive power for another aide-de-camp to represent either the reserve officers' training corps or the citizens' military training camps. As no one offering objection to rule suspension the amendment to the military law went through affixing the governor signed it in the original cover without engrossment, and signed the commission of his future son-in-law, John Coolidge, before he left the capitol to give a luncheon to his staff officers at the Hartford club.

Once during the house proceedings there was a lull which seemed unaccounted for, business being stopped, it all came about through disappearance of two resolutions, which had to go to the senate. These were found under a volume of the general statutes on the speaker's desk which someone had dropped on them.

Bootleggers Use Horses

WASHINGTON, (AP)—All bootleggers do not ride in high-powered motor cars. The United States customs service in the 1928 fiscal year seized 316 horses and mules that had hauled liquor-laden conveyances.

Red Pimples on Neck and Arms Very Itchy. Healed by Cuticura.
"My neck and arms broke out with little red pimples that were very itchy and looked terrible. When I scratched them it caused the trouble to spread and the pimples scaled over. They looked so bad that I would not go out or let anybody see me. I lost much sleep.
"I tried other ointments and soaps but nothing seemed to help me and I was discouraged. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and purchased some, and after using two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and one cake of Cuticura Soap I was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Helen J. SLEW EMPLOYER AND HIS WIFE TO POSSESS AN AUTO

CANTON, Ohio, Jan. 9—(AP)—A 25-year-old farm hand, Edward Kaltenbaugh of Grove City, Pa., was held in the county jail here tonight as the confessed slayer of his employer and his wife because of a sudden impulse to posses an automobile and impress his sweetheart.

Kaltenbaugh, arrested at his home near Grove city late last night and brought here early today, signed a confession to the killings late Saturday night of John Oser, 32, well to do Canal Fulton dairyman, and his wife, Bertha, 28.

Prosecutor Henry W. Harter, Jr., said he would file murder charges against Kaltenbaugh.

CHICAGO POLICE HAVE CLUE TO LOLORDO SLAYER

CHICAGO, Jan. 9—(AP)— Pasqualino Lolordo, shot down in his home last night as he raised a wine glass to drink with three men companions, may have a distinction unique among members of the Unione Siciliano who rise to power only to die by assassins bullets—he may be avenged by the police. The police, usually met by a wall of silence, tonight had the name of one man whose assertion would clear up not only Lolordo's death but many others.

The suspect sought was Joseph Aiello, who with six brothers leads an opposing Italian faction in the Italian colony. Lolordo's widow, identified Aiello as one of the three men who shot her husband.

DIRIGIBLE LOS ANGELES ON SOUTHERN CRUISE

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 9.—(AP)—The navy dirigible Los Angeles passed to the east of Savannah at 4.50 p. m. bound southward on its 2,000 mile training cruise to Florida. It had been maintaining its schedule all day down the Atlantic coast line.

At 5.35 o'clock the dirigible passed Sapelo Island, according to word here.

Instead of proceeding direct to Miami as originally planned, however, her commander, Lieutenant Commander osendahl, advised the navy department during the day that the great craft probably would go first to St. Joseph's Bay, Fla., and moor for the night there to the mast of the tender Patoka.

OFFENSIVE AGAINST THE POINCARE CABINET

PARIS, Jan. 9—(AP)—A political offensive against the Poincare cabinet which the radical party has announced will start tomorrow when the chamber is reorganized and the time comes for discussion and interpellations today had caused more apprehension in financial than in political circles.

The bourse has shown considerable hesitation since the attack on the government was announced, but political experts tonight refused to admit that there was grave danger for the Poincare government.

FEMALE STOUL PIGEON BLINDED BY DRINK

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9—(AP)— Mrs. Thelma Sanford, who became blind following an alleged drinking party Sunday, was revealed by police today as Thelma McDaniels, who with her sister Marguerite, aided United States custom agents in Arizona and New Mexico where they investigated alleged illicit liquor traffic.

BLYMYER GUILTY OF FIRST DEGREE MURDER

YORK, Pa., Jan. 9.—(AP)—John H. Blymyer, "pow-wow" doctor and principal in the famous witchcraft trial was convicted of first degree murder with life imprisonment recommended.

The jury deliberated an hour and a half.

Blymyer other than winching and chewing his fingers received the verdict without emotion. He was still yawning. A motion which his own counsel said earlier in the day showed he was "bored."

RIVAL CITIES CONTEND FOR HISTORIC OLD SHIP

OAKLAND, Calif., (AP)—San Francisco and Oakland, which often find themselves divided by more than the four miles of bay which intervenes, are engaged in a spirited rivalry to see which city shall obtain possession of the famous old coast guard cutter Bear.

After announcement of the coast guard that the old wooden ship, which has been replaced by the steel craft Northland, would be disposed of, San Francisco supervisors inaugurated a movement to obtain an appropriation of $100,000 from the state legislature to establish a navigation school on the Bear.

Oakland, where the Bear has based during most of the years it operated in the far north, staged a mass meeting to protest against loss of the historic ship, and, sponsored by the John Jacob Astor post of Veterans of Foreign Wars, launched a proposal for the city to acquire the Bear for a museum.

The first bill introduced at the present session of congress was one by Representative Carter, Oakland, to authorize the coast guard to give the Bear to the East bay municipality.

RIP HIT HOOKEY BANISHER AT CHICAGO HIGH SCHOOL

CHICAGO, (AP)—If Peck's "Bad Boy" attended Tilden Technical High school today, he couldn't play hookey because he's ripped his trousers in a scrap.

A "rip kit" has been added to the school's repair department. When students tear their clothes, lose buttons or experience any similar schoolboy tragedy, first aid is administered.

Dean Williamson, who originated the idea, said the "rip kit" would eliminate unnecessary excuses from class.

POLICE HEAD SAYS CHICAGO NEEDS 12,000 PATROLMEN

CHICAGO, (AP)—The Chicago "copper," who must skirmish with gangsters, bombers and bandits, wants more members in his fraternity.

Police Commissioner William Russell, pointing out that Chicago has fewer policemen, proportionately, than New York, Boston, Cleveland or St. Louis, has asked Mayor Thompson for more patrolmen.

"Chicago needs 12,000 patrolmen," Russell said. About 1,700 now are available for patrol duty.

Chicago, the commissioner reported, has only one patrolman for every 609 inhabitants. Boston has one to every 483, New York one to every 367, St. Louis one to 402 and Cleveland one to every 499 persons.

War Veterans in Business

MINNEAPOLIS, (AP)—Seven years ago the Minnesota American Legion auxiliary established a workshop so a few disabled war veterans might make paper poppies. Now the shop does an annual business of $21,000, making toys and gifts as well as poppies.

Don't tender advice until you find out what kind is wanted.

Piles Disappear
No Cutting or Salves Needed
External treatments seldom banish Piles.
Nor does cutting remove the cause. The cause is inside—bad circulation. The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.
The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.
To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.
J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in hundreds of cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood Co., who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

DANIELSON

DR. BEACOM BEFORE COURT FOR BREACH OF PEACE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 9—Dr. Robert J. Beacom of East Killingly appeared before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court this morning to answer to a charge of breach of the peace, this having to do with an allegation that Dr. Beacom had threatened to kill his dog. On complaint, he was taken into custody by State Officer Elton Nolan of the Danielson barracks. After hearing what was to be said about the matter, Judge W. Fenner Woodward sentenced Dr. Beacom to serve 30 days in jail, but suspended execution of the sentence, the accused paying costs of $8.37.

Dr. Beacom, once a practicing physician in Brooklyn, N. Y., and a man of culture, was a tattered being as he appeared in the town court today. He has lived for years past in more or less obscurity in the Bear Hill section of the town, paying very little attention to the practice of his profession. Despite the fact that he was so poorly clad, his trousers being a nest of patches, he produced from one of the pockets this morning a brand new $100 bill with which to pay costs of prosecution.

Burned When Heater Backfires

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Stetson were suffering from painful burns at their home in Brooklyn today as a result of an unfortunate experience with an oil-burning heater last evening. Both are burned about the face and Mrs. Stetson also is burned on the arms.

The Stetsons, with their children, occupy the rectory of Trinity church. Early last evening, some difficulty developing with a gravity feed oil burner, Mr. and Mrs. Stetson went into the cellar to correct the situation. It appears that when the firebox door was opened there was a back flash of flame that seared their faces and hands and that hurled Mr. Stetson backward and against a post, rendering him unconscious momentarily and setting his clothing afire. It is regarded as possible that he might have burned to death had he been alone.

The injured man and woman emerged from their terrifying experience with their faces blackened as well as burned. Dr. F. P. Todd was summoned from Danielson and gave them attention. While the burns of both are severe and very painful, they are not believed to be dangerous.

County Athletic Meet

Secretary L. Edwin Hill of the Windham County Y. M. C. A. indoor athletic championship meet is to be held Saturday, Jan. 26, at the Plainfield Community house. Mr. Hill, whose office is here, will receive applications from all amateurs who are interested up to January 23.

The following classes and events are listed in the order for the day: Junior class, individuals under 110 pounds—events, 20-yard dash, running broad jump, running high jump, 160 yard relay.

Intermediate class unlimited weight under 18 years of age—events, 20-yard dash, running broad jump, running high jump, 440 yard relay.

Senior class, unlimited weight and age—events, 20-yard dash, running broad jump, running high jump, 440 yard relay, half mile, 12-pound shot-put.

Secretary Hill will gladly give additional information to all interested persons who get in touch with him at County Y. M. C. A. headquarters in the Phoenix building at Danielson.

C. of C. Committees For 1929

President E. B. Wilbur of the chamber of commerce announced his committees for the year last evening at the January meeting of the chamber of commerce. About 35 came out for the monthly supper and business session at the Attawaugan hotel. Some reports from committees were received, but the meeting was shorter than usual because of the necessity of adjourning to the Orpheum theater for the distribution of $500 in gold awards to those who helped making the holiday shopping period so much of a success.

This year's committees are as follows: Directors, Edward A. Sullivan, Attorney Harry E. Back, Moses H. Berthiaume, Jr., C. W. Young and Alfred L. Reed; entertainment, Henry A. Johnson, Sidney P. Marland, G. Rene Caron; membership, Sidney P. Marland, A. Putnam Woodward, J. Leo Bodo; grievance, Attorney Harry E. Back, Walter Anderson, F. E. Bitgood, Sidney W. Bard; transportation and parking, Attorney Harry E. Back, Francis E. Storer, O. V. Chartier; manufacturing, Walter Anderson, Herbert H. Pepler, N. Lorne Greig, John F. Gardner, H. B. Puckett; merchants, Nathan Blumenthal, Isadore Florman, Sidney P. Marland, Moses H. Berthiaume, Jr., Andrew Del Pesco; citizens, Frank O. Plummer, W. H. G. Herklots, William Sangster, Dolard Grenon, D. Fred Kenworthy.

FUNERAL

Samuel Armington

This afternoon at 2 o'clock at L. E. Kennedy's funeral home on Furnace street funeral services for Samuel Armington, veteran of the Civil war and for years resident in Attawaugan, were conducted by Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Baptist church. Delegations representing the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil war and McGregor, Woman's Relief corps, were in attendance. Burial was in the Putnam Heights cemetery. The bearers were DeForest Wells, Kenneth Warren, Herbert Lyman and Everett Colvin, representing Colonel Edward Anderson camp, Sons of Veterans.

Dr. J. C. Maslen was elected president of the Bohemian club at last evening's annual meeting. A. Putnam Woodward was re-elected secretary and treasurer. Dr. Maslen will select the members of his executive committee to serve during 1929.

Danielson noted with interest today an item sent out of Putnam to the general effect that regardless of what the newspapers may say about it, the New Haven road will have its locomotive whistles roaring and tearing as much as it deems necessary. Danielson will put that one down in the book, and remember it. There is no inclination here to protest against adequate sounding of whistles for unprotected grade crossings. There is an undercurrent of resentment over what appears to be unnecessary prolonging of the blasts, as much in the daytime as at night time. As to newspaper comments on the subject, they represent, not the opinion of a writer, but the opinion of a protesting public, which it would appear amounts to little or nothing. The public likely will be interested in knowing this.

Rev. Joseph Moussier, M. S., a former curate of St. James church at Danielson, died at St. Francis hospital in Hartford this afternoon after having been in failing health for two years and a hospital patient for the past few months. He was a native of France but came to this country when a very young man and was ordained to the priesthood in Hartford in 1900. He had about 12 years ago served two years at St. James church here and also had assignments during the years of his ministry at St. Joseph's church in Fitchburg and at Stansted, Can. and in recent years had been master of novices at LaSalette college in Hartford. More recently he had been at Bloomfield, this state, where the LaSalette order has another institution. He was 56 years of age. The priests of St. James parish with many others from various parts of Connecticut are to be in Hartford Friday at Our Lady of Sorrows church for the funeral rites at which Rt. Rev. J. J. Nilan and Bishop McAuliffe will be in attendance.

The annual Christmas party of the Fortnightly club was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. H. Smith, Broad street, with 30 members and a few guests. Also present were a number of children and all were welcomed by Mother Hubbard with her luxurious curls bobbing in every direction. Master Jack Horner decked in his Sunday clothes opened the Christmas pie by putting in his thumb and pulling out the first plum. The members following suit until the pie was empty. Later for the guests delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Smith assisted Mrs. Ina Keach, and Mrs. William T. Perkins.

Director H. H. Ellis of the State Trade school at Putnam was in Danielson on business today.

New issues of the telephone directory came through the mails to many subscribers in the Danielson division today, this being a change from the house to house distribution method that has been in vogue. All subscribers will have their new directories within the week, and they will then come into use.

L. Edwin Hill, county secretary, Danielson, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Richardson of Moosup and Attorney and Mrs. Howard C. Bradford of Putnam are the Windham county delegates who are to be in Bridgeport Saturday and Sunday for the state Y. M. C. A. convention.

In the town court this morning Joseph Fraser of Dyer street was presented to answer to the charge of keeping a place where gambling has been allowed. The place was raided by state officers Saturday night. Judge W. Fenner Woodward found Fraser guilty and imposed a sentence of 30 days in jail, which was suspended. Fraser paying costs of $8.37.

A representative of the S. N. E. Telephone company will speak at Thursday evening's meeting of the Danielson Rotary club, and show motion picture films pertaining in an entertaining manner to the telephone industry.

Our annual January clearance sale will start Friday, January 11, on millinery and dry goods. Ben Marche store, 57 Main St., Danielson, Conn.—adv.

Recently at East Killingly neighbors aided in checking a fire that was threatening the destruction of the W. H. Mason home. The damage done the property was not serious.

It will be several days, Coroner Arthur G. Bill said today, before the finding is ready in the case of Rosaria Lorella, who was found dead at her home in Willimantic under suspicious circumstances.

On some bodies of water where ice will be harvested later there was from 5 to 5 1-2 inches, it was reported this morning.

Fernando Regis remains critically ill at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, where he has been a patient for weeks, after being very badly injured when struck by an automobile, on the West Side.

Only routine business was transacted last evening at the meeting of Warden Harry E. Back and the court of burgesses. No mention was made of changes in parking regulations or of insurance for the borough police.

Today the Ladies' Benevolent society of the Westfield Congregational church was in session to do work for the Easter season. After the working period a business meeting was held.

John A. DeVere of Lynn was a visitor with friends in Danielson today.

Considerable seasonal unemployment exists in town at this time, but in no unusual amount.

PUTNAM

HIGHWAYS AND FIRE STATIONS ARE DISCUSSED

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 9—Other happenings at the meeting of the common council Tuesday evening which were brought before the body, other than those mentioned in this morning's Bulletin, were the discussions relating to the city highway department and the needed improvements at the central fire station in Union square.

Alderman Eugene Migneault, chairman of the city highway committee, informed the council of the need of new equipment in the department several months ago. Mr. Migneault felt that the department should acquire a new pair of horses to supplant the present pair which have long been in the city's service, as well as purchase new harnesses and a new dump cart for work in hauling gravel. Alderman John M. Dean, whose stand point, since his election to the common council has been modernism, disapproved of the bill for the purchase of additional horse-drawn apparatus, and thought the city would benefit to a greater extent by the motorization of the highway department. The mayor opposed Mr. Dean's recommendation, as did other members of the council. Mr. Dean said last evening that he had conducted an investigation with the officials of the town highway department and has learned that the use of the horses is still the cheapest and most economical plan, and that he withdrew his previous pleas for the purchase of gasoline-driven apparatus. At this, Alderman Frank Vadnais placed a motion before the council ordering that the highway department be instructed to purchase the much-needed equipment at the lowest possible cost. His motion was adopted by the council.

The question of destruction of hose in the central fire station, by means of acid burns, was again brought before the body and caused considerable discussion. It was voted that the fire committee inquire into the matter and submit a plan whereby a storeroom for the chemicals, needed in the department could be stored, away from the engine room.

Insurance valuations on city property were brought up by Alderman Chadwick. Mr. Chadwick reported that he had learned that several city buildings were insured for more money than their actual fire loss value. He was instructed to have the proper valuations placed on the buildings and their contents and report further progress at the forthcoming meeting of the body.

It was voted to have brush cut on the city stretch of land in the vicinity of Arch street, now being reserved for the filtration beds, that are to be constructed in the future. The growth if cleared off now will be an advantage to the construction of the beds.

Mr. Isbister, an official of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., appeared before the council with a recommendation from the public utilities commission, asking that a 24-hour gate tending shift be instituted at May street grade crossing. Mr. Isbister told the aldermen that a 24-hour service at this point would be a useless expense to the railroad, since the gatemen would be unable to know the exact location of the night freights, switching cars in the yards. He recommended to the body that an adequate solution of this problem would be to close the crossing to traffic after 10 o'clock at night, by leaving the gates down and placing lights and warning signs on them, instructing automobile traffic of the blocked passage. This matter, upon a recommendation of the mayor, was referred to the city highway committee to investigate and confer with the local railroad authorities.

Fire Chief Ralph E. Thurston's private automobile has been added to the city fire apparatus and made an official car. The chief has also a restricted parking area on Union street reserved for him, by the adoption of the new set of parking ordinances. Like Chief Thurston, Capt. of Police William Jarvis has a restricted parking space in front of the sub-police station on Main street for the use of automobiles in police work.

Again Chief Thurston brought before the common council a plea for an additional piece of fire apparatus and a new fire station. The chief commented on Mayor Richard's address, because he included no such recommendation in his annual message, asking that action be taken towards providing the city with new apparatus and quarters to supplant the present facilities which are inadequate and contrary to the requirements of modern fire protection. Mayor Richard made no remarks on the fire chief's message.

Only one request for street lights was made to the council this month, that of Orin Fairfield, who asked that the council install a street light in the vicinity of his residence on Farrows street to relieve the dark and dangerous conditions existing.

The annual meeting of the officers and directors of the Citizens National bank of this city was held in the banking house Tuesday afternoon. Following the reports of the officers and verbal accounts of activities during the year 1928, officers for the ensuing year were elected. Samuel Reynolds was re-elected president of the bank and the following were re-elected to serve another term in their present capacity as vice-presidents: Alexander Gillman, Mahlon H. Geissler and Whitman Danielson.

Arthur E. Smith, who has been cashier of the institution and its active head, since the organization of the bank four years ago, was re-elected, and James E. Murray, newly appointed assistant cashier, was elected to office for the first time. The following directors were re-elected: Victor Chapdelaine, Whitman Danielson, Louis P. Faucher, Mahlon H. Geissler, Alexander Gillman, Ethel May Goodridge, Subbo Nickoloff, Samuel Reynolds, Earl C. Rogers, Asa M. Ross, Arthur E. Smith, Charles D. Tatem, William P. Warren, John W. Whipple and Albert H. Williams.

The reports of the various officers of the institution indicated that the bank has experienced a prosperous year during 1928 and has made substantial gains over the previous year.

Secretary E. L. Beebe of the Putnam Rotary club was the speaker this noon at the weekly meeting of the organization held at the Putnam inn. Mr. Beebe is the local exchange manager of the Southern New England Telephone Co. and through his efforts the members of the club were shown two reels of motion pictures, dealing with the methods adopted by the telephone company in the transmission of voice. The films, "Now You're Talking," and "Voices Across the Seas," proved to be of unusual interest, as did Mr. Beebe's talk, the subject of which was based on telephone communication.

The finance committee of the Parent-Teacher association are now contemplating the production of a play which will be presented in the Putnam high school auditorium on Tuesday evening, Feb. 12. The association is endeavoring to raise funds to carry on the work in this community and have resorted to the promotion of a play which in the past has proved most successful. The committee appointed to direct the affair consists of Mrs. J. Dyer-Potter, chairman, assisted by Sward Sherriff, Winifred Saletzl, Wilhimena Vaughn, Leon Farrin and L. Edwin Hill of Danielson.

Mrs. Marion Mason Phresher of East Killingly and Providence, and Louis Marshall Ream, son of the late Norman B. Ream of Thompson, were married at noon in Providence today. Mr. and Mrs. Ream left immediately after the ceremony for New York city, to board an ocean liner for a six-week wedding trip abroad.

The business men and others who depend upon the prompt arrival of the morning mail train, running north over the Norwich branch to Worcester, were indignant again this morning when the combination freight and passenger train drew into Putnam at 9:15 o'clock this morning, nearly three hours late. The train, carrying New York mail, besides morning papers, for towns between New London and Worcester, was delayed by a derailment at Shetucket. Train crews from Norwich came to the assistance and the train was again started on its trip. This was the second derailing this train has encountered during the past two weeks.

Herbert J. Smith, Putnam business man and merchant, is seriously ill at his home on Sunnyside avenue. Mr. Smith's illness is said to be pneumonia. Two nurses are in attendance. His physician said today that he had passed a good night, Tuesday, and felt that Mr. Smith's condition would be marked by improvement today.

Miss Ruby Paine, formerly of this city, is reported as being seriously ill in Montreal, Canada. Miss Paine is making her home with her parents in Pawtucket, who formerly resided on Fremont street in Putnam.

The name Johnson still maintains a substantial lead over all other listings in the new telephone directories of the New London district, which found their way into the homes of the local subscribers in this district today. There are 2,300 listings in the Putnam exchange with the name Johnson appearing 40 consecutive times. The name Smith, in past years has held the lead, but now appears but 21 times in the new books.

The directories will be distributed by employes of the local exchange in the suburban districts and the mailmen have been elected to carry the new books to those living in the rural sections.

Representatives Leon A. Talbot and J. Otis Fox were in Hartford today, attending the opening session of the legislature.

GURLEYVILLE

Samual Morse and family, who have been very ill, are improving.

Osro Hanks remains seriously ill at his home on Hanks Hill.

Oliver and Doris Wood and four other stenographers from Storrs attended Parsons' theatre in Hartford Saturday afternoon.

Mr and Mrs. George Dimock were recent guests of their son, Leon Dimock, of Hartford.

The town schools were closed Monday afternoon because of a teachers' meeting.

Sunday was very rainy, but services in the church were held as usual.

SOMERS

THE LATE EVERETT P. RUSSELL AT CAPITOL WITH P. T. BARNUM

Everett P. Russell, 85, died Saturday afternoon after an illness dating from last September. Mr. Russell kept up an active interest in all about him. He was a farmer, he served in the legislature in 1879 when the present capitol was used for the first time and P. T. Barnum was a member. He was town tax collector for over 30 years resigning last fall, when, taken ill, Mr. Russell was elected deacon of Somers Congregational church in 1896 and a few years ago was made life deacon. He was held in high esteem by all and led an upright Christian life. He had been in the habit for several years of spending three months each winter in Orlando, Florida. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Mabel Russell Niles of New York and Mrs. John McLean of Somers with whom he lived. He leaves also two grandchildren.

Rev. Edwin Thomas Jones' text Sunday morning was "But Covet Earnestly the Best Gifts". He preached a fine sermon. Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Loomis who moved to town were taken into membership at the morning service by letter from the Methodist church of North Dana.

The W. C. T. U. met with Mrs. Archie Cooley Monday afternoon. Mrs. Anna Service, president of the Tolland union was the speaker.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid society is to be held this week.

Rev. Glenn W. Douglass, of Worcester, Mass., is to exchange pulpits with the local pastor, Rev. E. T. Jones, January 20th.

The son born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Irish this month is their second child. The first child is recovering from pneumonia and is being cared for by Miss Bertha Wood, a graduate nurse at the center.

The Woman's club met with Mrs. Bert D. Cooley last Thursday afternoon. The assistant hostesses were Miss Bertha Wood, Mrs. William Ody and Miss Josephine Davis. The program consisted of stunts by the members and was highly amusing.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Keery have returned from New Jersey where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hendrickson.

Miss Eliza Griffin of East Granby was a recent guest of Judge and Mrs. Ernest S. Fuller.

Mrs. M. L. Bradbury and daughter of West Stafford, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Clifton M. Ellis.

Charles Bradway of West Stafford has been visiting his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Roland E. Ellis.

Mr. and Mrs. Lacius Beardsley of New York have been visiting the former's father, Horace Beardsley.

Mr. and Mrs. George Slater are building a large sun porch built on the east side of their home, "The Maples."

In the primary department of the Sunday school, two pupils Ruth Finley and Jean Lovett had a perfect attendance record. It makes three years perfect attendance for Ruth Finley. Several in the junior department have had perfect attendance. There was a great change in the temperature from Saturday morning's zero mark to 55 degrees above the next morning.

The selectmen held their January meeting at the town clerk's office on Monday afternoon.

The library directors held their annual meeting Wednesday evening.

Miss Elsie Thayer, a teacher in Hartford high school who has been unable to attend to her school duties since September on account of an abscess of the eye, has returned to teach.

WINDHAM

The officers and committees of the C. E. society for the next six months are: President, C. Arthur Keeney; vice-president, Mrs. DeWitt Lathrop; recording secretary, Elizabeth Webster; treasurer, Carl Josephson; pianist, Earle Potter; prayer meeting committee, Mrs. Alfred Harvey, Marguerite Cook, Elizabeth Webster; social, Sarah Griggs, Earle Harvey, Mrs. Edward Smiley, Mrs. Edwin Ellison; music, Margaret Barstow, Doris Webster, Eden Cook, Helen Wood, Mrs. Homer Wood; missionary, Rev. Edward Smiley, Mrs. John Potter, Mrs. David Light, Cassius Barstow; flower, Mrs. Eden Cook, Mrs. DeWitt Lathrop, Hazel Macomber, Julia Ellison.

The H. B's held their January meeting with Mrs. F. E. Guild Monday evening. A planked steak supper was enjoyed.

The first Sunday in the New Year was a stormy one. Following a gale and downpour during the night before, there were showers during the day with thunder and lightning about 11:30. The evening was clear and colder. There were 27 present at the morning service at the Congregational church, with the celebration of the communion after the services. In the evening, there were 21 at the C. E. meeting, led by Miss Marguerite Cook. This being the monthly consecration meeting, the roll was called by the secretary, Miss Elizabeth Webster. The January business meeting was held after the service.

There were only eight present at the January meeting of the Parent-Teacher association, Monday afternoon. After the business session, Mrs. Dakin of Storrs college extension service, gave a helpful talk on Diet and Lunches for School Children. Coffee and sandwiches were served by Mrs. Homer Wood and Mrs. Edward Phillips.

BOLTON

Miss Edna Jackson of Torrington spent New Year's with Miss Ruth S. Jones.

Flu Epidemic Is Creating Record Demand For Vicks

375,000 Jars Every 24 Hours Needed to Keep the Nation Supplied with Vapor-Salve

Flu Milder But Widespread

That the public has not forgotten the lesson of 1918 is indicated by its prompt response to the warning of health authorities to combat the flu by keeping free from colds.

The demand for Vicks VapoRub, the vaporizing salve which proved so valuable during the 1918 epidemic, has already shattered by a wide margin all previous records.

Although the capacity of the Vicks laboratories has been tripled since 1918, they are once more operating night shifts to meet the national emergency.

The present output of more than 375,000 jars a day almost staggers the imagination. It means that every 60 seconds, day and night, over 3600 jars of Vicks are going out to check the nation's colds and help ward off the flu.

Mild though it is in comparison with 1918, this year's epidemic has already affected more than a million persons, and it is apparently still increasing.

GOVERNOR TRUMBULL'S MESSAGE.

In keeping with other messages that which was read to the general assembly on its opening by Governor Trumbull directed attention to conditions which prevail in the commonwealth and made suggestions for legislative action which deserve and, doubtless will get serious consideration from the legislators.

The governor is still committed to the pay-as-you-go policy and in that it is believed he has the support of the state. He makes important recommendations concerning institutions which are needed and it is to be noted that it will be possible to carry such out under the budget estimate. Such work will take care of increasing needs over a period of years and without resort to such a form of taxation as a state income tax. In declaring that he is unalterably opposed to that source of revenue he speaks for himself but unquestionably voices the sentiment of the state. He doesn't believe it necessary in the first place and he is not favorable to such a method in the second. His plea that the budget be adopted as submitted should get careful thought and considerate action. The aim to decrease taxation is in accord with popular desire, and his recommendation in that respect should be carried out.

The plea for a standardization of traffic rules and a frequent examination of drivers is in keeping with developments in motor vehicle transportation. His urge that provision be made for properly housing the motor vehicle department is probably needed but it is regretted that he did not advocate an elimination of the inequality and inconvenience that now exists by establishing branch offices in every city.

What the governor had to say concerning banking deserves thoughtful attention. He has pointed to conditions and suggested remedies which should not be disregarded, and his views upon conservation are in keeping with present day needs. As a flier the governor is naturally interested in aviation, but there is no denying the fact that this method of transportation must get proper consideration even in the present stage of development. His views upon this question are pertinent.

As might have been expected the governor gives his support to the recommended changes of the judicial council for the improvement of our judicial system. He has a good word for the work that has been accomplished by the highway department and the state will receive with gratification his statement to the effect that its policies and plans can go forward without increase in appropriation for this purpose.

In the opinion of the governor there is still need for legislation in order to clear up the situation in regard to the healing arts, and in view of what has occurred in the past and as the result of that experience this would appear to be the time to do it. Furthermore the powers of supervision and regulation of amateur boxing ought to be cleared up without added delay.

The suggestion concerning the naming of a committee to arrange for the 200th anniversary of the state comes none too soon. Such plans require time and if the observance is going to be what it should be any committee is entitled to adequate time for preparation.

The governor has not filled his message with numberless recommendations. He has called to the attention of the legislature action and changes which are believed to be needed and he even recommends that laws which are not enforceable be taken off the law books. The message is one which deals constructively with Connecticut problems. He has set forth a program that deserves to be carefully followed. He is unquestionably justified in his commendation of the work of the board of finance and control for the showing that it has made since appointed, and with close adherence to its suggestions the 1929 legislature will have reason to point to a creditable record.

The address is printed in full elsewhere in this issue and it should get a careful reading from the citizens.

RICKARD'S SUCCESSOR.

With the death of George L. Rickard boxing stands, so far as can be pictured, like a ship without a rudder. Rickard had been instrumental in bringing it to better days. It cannot be said that even under his guidance that it had been made perfect or that there was full confidence in the big matches. Nevertheless it was made exceedingly popular and in its promotion to its present situation there figured the resourceful hand of Mr. Rickard. He was able to make it pay bigger money than anyone else.

In several conspicuous instances the deceased was able to command most any price for the chance to witness the contest between some of the leading exponents of the art of self defense. He drew big money for the participants and he did not slight himself. Occasionally something went wrong but not often. He was the one big promoter that had the confidence, the nerve and the ability to swing such propositions, and even though it may seem a bit strange he appeared to have the public with him.

Now that he is gone it remains to be seen who is going to step into his shoes. There are those who have worked with him, under his direction but it is a question whether they have the initiative and the foresight and the ability to carry out his plans. They will have the advantage of the foundation that he has laid. They will be benefited by the plans which he has made. They will profit from their knowledge of his practices in the past. But realization is another thing. It is a question whether they can command the same support that he has gotten and yet there is the opportunity for them to prove that other methods or the same methods backed by others can be made just as successful. Such has frequently been the outcome in many lines of endeavor in the past and there is no reason for believing that it is going to be closed for the future. Boxing today awaits new influences.

THE KELLOGG PACT.

In connection with the Kellogg pact renouncing war it has been set forth by the advocates of the ratification of the treaty that there is no need for and ought not to be any reservations attached. They maintain that it does nothing that will conflict with our policies, including the Monroe doctrine, and therefore there is no reason for setting forth views by which other nations will consider it necessary to adopt a similar course. They have set forth their views sincerely and unquestionably believe that ratification as it stands will prove no handicap, but that it will aid in the cause of international peace. As such that attitude has had general support. It has been backed because it has meant another move toward that peace which public sentiment is unquestionably demanding.

On the other hand there are those who have made a careful study of the provisions of the treaty and believe that there should be set forth just what this country's interpretation of its meaning is, what it doesn't do as well as what it does. In this number is Senator McLean of Connecticut and he has the full support of Senator Bingham, junior senator from this state. They are by no means alone but they have pointed out what they consider the wise thing to do. Perhaps it may be looked upon as being overcautious, as anticipating things which will never develop, as borrowing needless trouble.

Nevertheless it is well that they have spoken. Their views deserve to be given quite as careful consideration as the rest. We are confident that they are not advanced for the sole purpose of obstruction or to give comfort and encouragement to obstructors. Their records in congress have indicated otherwise.

It is believed that there is merit in the treaty and that our support of it ought to be given at this time, without reservations if safety lies in that course, but otherwise by whatever necessary explanations of our views as are required.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING.

Just why we do not know, but someone has raised the question of Newfoundland getting a divorce from the British empire and becoming a part of the United States. It has been referred to by a correspondent of the London Post as a "monstrous proposal," against which "the whole British empire must sternly protest."

Possibly any such talk as may have been indulged in concerning Newfoundland leaving the British empire may have resulted from political talk on the part of some irresponsibles who sought by some such threat to gain favors which it seemed impossible to obtain in any other way. Possibly there is a feeling in Newfoundland that it ought to take such a course and come under a new flag. But there is no evidence that it represents any considerable sentiment on the part of Newfoundlanders, and most certainly there is no desire on the part of the United States to extend its possessions in that directions.

Getting away from the British empire might not be as simple an operation as the advocate of such action might suppose, but if such severence were once accomplished it would appear that Newfoundland would be at liberty to carry on alone or to join hands with any other country that might be willing to accept it.

There is every reason to believing that the correspondent of the London paper is viewing with alarm without justification. He has wrought himself up into a nervous tension and revealed his attitude in case there should be such a development but there is no occasion for it. He might better devote his time trying to improve conditions in Labrador or relieve the unemployment situation over in England. There is much more need for getting excited about those than over something which isn't threatened and has no prospect of ever existing. It is simply another one of those cases of much ado about nothing.

These are the days when it is necessary to watch the new resolutions

The man on the corner says: The only trouble with January is we are not getting what we expected.

Once more Connecticut has the general assembly in session and it should insist that its record of accomplishment be a worthy one.

Tigers are said to kill 10,000 people in India every year. But why shudder, autos kill more than twice as many in the United States in the same period.

While the president of the National Music Teachers' association claims radio is killing jazz by slow poison, it is hard to understand why the slow variety is employed.

SALTED PEANUTS

John Bolivar was a model husband, all the girls in Clara's set agreed—and it was rarely they agreed about anything, being girls and in the same set. And Clara agreed that he had only two faults, which, after all, are not many. One of the faults was that he not only liked but ate salted peanuts. The other fault was that he crunched them when he ate.

At first, this seemed like a trifle. Clara even went so far as to buy him salted peanuts on special occasions like birthdays and then suffer in silence as it is woman's lot to do. John demonstrated that it is easier to suffer than to enjoy in silence. He crunched.

It wasn't long before the irritation grew to the point where she felt she simply must speak to him about it. They were walking through the park, and he had stopped to buy the peanuts at a refreshment stand not far from the monkey cage. Salted peanuts and monkeys! There suddenly seemed to Clara to be something in common between the two. She hoped John would offer his peanuts to the minkeys. She suggested it. They strolled by the monkey cage and he tossed one or two peanuts in between the bars. But he wasn't lavish. They found a bench, and soon came the moment when Clara's impatience overflowed.

"John," she said, "I do wish you would stop that crunching."

John looked at her in astonishment. He said nothing. Obediently, he tried to eat his peanuts silently. It didn't work very well. They went home, a little put out with each other.

The next time John ate salted peanuts in Clara's presence was at a gay picnic given by the Southsiders, a club of young married folk to which they belonged. The peanuts were passed around by "Woof" Pennington, a former schoolmate of John's. John took a generous handful and stood, his back against a tree, eating them. Clara and a group of friends sat on camp stools near by. They were listening to "Woof" tell the one about the Scotchman and the silver dollar.

"John, stop that crunching," said Clara, suddenly, distinctly, publicy.

John flushed. You could see from the look on his face that the salted peanuts were turning to bitter almonds in his mouth. But he said nothing. When the peanuts were passed around again he refused them. Nor did he more than smile at the traditional niggardliness of the Scotchman.

On the way home they had their first quarrel. John began it. He couldn't see, he said, why Clara had bawled him out in front of all their friends for eating a few peanuts. She said it wasn't the peanuts, it was the noisy way he ate them. He said he couldn't see that he ate peanuts any differently from anybody else, and anyway, it ruined the taste of anything one liked to have to eat it in a guarded and unnatural manner. She said he might at least do that much for her. He said; she said; he said; she said.

The next morning they kissed and made up. He said he would never displease her again.

But John could not keep away from the salinated goobers. Apparently the more that he felt that this was the one indulgence Clara forbade him, the more he craved it. He formed a habit of taking long walks by himself after supper and always he bought and consumed with the freedom of solitude 10 cents' worth of salted peanuts, the little round kind with the skins on.

Just how he started getting into the habit of stopping by whenever he saw Mabel Carter seated on her porch swing—and she was there nearly every evening—John could not have said. But he did get the habit, and they chatted of this and that, and he found her bright, and well informed and sympathetic and he brought her peanuts and she accepted them eagerly. They sat munching their goobers like two cronies smoking an evening pipe.

This might have been going on for a month or so when Clara discovered it, as wives invariably do. She had come out after John to inform him about a telephone call. She found him on Mabel's porch, greeted Mabel a little bit too cordially, to her credit, said nothing to John.

"I love virile men—who chew their food as if they meant it," said Mabel, and Clara felt a pang.

It isn't, Clara knew, that she was ever in any real danger of losing John. Bue she had her intuitions. And nowadays, the observant "Woof" Pennington noted recently, one may always find a fresh supply of salted peanuts in the Bolivar bonbonniere.

YOUR HEALTH

HEART DISEASE IN CHILDREN RARELY CURED

(By Charles Gilmore Kerley, M. D., New York)

A great deal of effort has been and is being exerted in the care and treatment of the child with heart disease. While much may be done to relieve these patients, and to help them in the selection of an occupation, the fact remains that the disease exists; for when heart disease is once established, cure is not to be expected. Because of certain inflammatory processes that have taken place, the heart structure has been changed. The valves that regulate the passage of blood through the heart are the parts usually attacked, and they become scarred and shrunken. Endocarditis is the term used to define the acute inflammatory process, and is due to the action of certain micro-organisms that reach the heart through the blood stream.

The usual site of origin of these bacteria is from diseased teeth, diseased tonsils, adenoids and inflammatory conditions of the nose and throat that occur with grippe and the infectious diseases such as scarlet fever and measles. It is obvious that if all children who have had one or more of these disorders developed heart disease, few would escape. As it is, but few of the great family of children do acquire heart disease. Inasmuch as all children at one time or another harbor bacteria that may produce heart disease when contracted is rarely cured, it is quite essential to know whether or not there is any predisposing factor in children. Does the child in any way give us warning that he is a susceptible subject.

It is well known that certain family groups possess a diminished resistance to the tubercle bacillus and other diseases. In certain children there exists a physical state, a physiologic entity, which supplies an inherently favorable soil (and which may not be experimentally produced) for the development of infecting agencies that may cause rheumatic endocarditis. This type of endocarditis is responsible for over 90 per cent of the cases of organic heart disease in children, and the child with the inherently favorable soil is a potentially cardiac child, in that he is more vulnerable than others to the infecting micro-organisms.

A vast number of children with heart disease have come under my observation in private, hospital and in out-patient practice. It is rare that the early history of these cases was not sufficiently suggestive to stamp the subject as potentially a cardiac. Months and perhaps years before heart disease developed the child showed warning signals. The significant signs are muscle pain and stiffness, sometimes joint pains, pain in the extremities by day and often complained of by night.

The complaint repeatedly of tired legs is significant in a well child. Children who sleep restlessly, who toss much about in their sleep, have been made to rest normally by the use of medication directed to the rheumatic condition. All children who complain repeatedly of muscle and joint pains, particularly on wet and so-called damp days, stand out prominently as potentially cardiac cases. In such cases an immediate removal of the tonsils regardless of their appearance is demanded. The teeth should be passed upon by a radiologist, and there should be competent sinus attention. No one may say in looking at a tonsil that it is not diseased. The small innocent appearing buried tonsil may be badly diseased and most dangerous.

It is to be remembered, however, that removal of tonsils and adenoids, removal of infected teeth, competent attention to the nasal passages and adjoining parts, while necessary in all children, is not an absolute insurance against heart disease. In the predisposed cases rheumatism may occur, and I meet it repeatedly in those who have had the benefit of these prophylactic measures. All of which means that every child who complains of muscle or joint pain or soreness, socalled "growing pains," is in danger of heart disease, and should be taken to a physician who will carry out the necessary treatment and keep the child under observation for many months and perhaps years.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—An historical treasure trove, fit to make the mouth of any student of the World war water, still lies buried in the state department. It is the detailed minutes and other data of the conversations at Paris of the "big four," Wilson, Lloyd George, Clemenceau and Sonnino.

More than 2,000 close printed pages of American foreign correspondence in 1914-15 already have been made public by congressional dictum. Other volumes will follow soon. But they will not include these reminders of days of the "big four" deliberations. It would take assent of the other three governments as well as congressional action to get them out to the light of day.

Having once glimpsed at just one little phase of what those records contain, the Bystander fairly yearns for somebody to start an effective movement for complete publication. Who knows what controversies of long standing might be settled, what misapprehensions be brushed away if the world knew just what these great men had said to each other in those critical hours?

Bliss on Russia

Take the sample of which the Bystander has knowledge. It had to do with the Russian revolution and nicely worked out plans of Marshal Foch for a military cordon around Russia to keep the germ of Russian radicalism from straying afield.

Foch presented this in extenso to the "big four." Wilson was not convinced and summoned his own supreme war staff representative, General Bliss, as hard-bitten an old soldier as ever lived; but, also, a lifelong student of history. What, the American president inquired, did Bliss think of Foch's "cordon sanitaire" plan?

Not very much, it proves. Bliss said he would pass over its military pros and cons in favor of presenting his views on the philosophy that underlay it. And on that aspect he came down hard, in blunt cavalry fashion. He was utterly and completely against it.

If, he asserted, there was a new idea in human relations behind the Russian turmoil, all the bayonets in the world would be powerless to check or destroy it. Bayonets never in history had been victorious over ideas, he contended. If there was no new idea, why worry about the Russian affair at all? It could not prevail.

Foch's Plan Dropped

The Bystander was privileged to read a copy of what Bliss said to the "big four" within a week or two after it was said. The general was quite proud of it and sent a copy home to a friend who showed it to the writer. The matter has been mentioned in memoirs and other post-peace treaty publications; but the text of this truly amazing bit of philosophical reasoning to come from the lips of a hard-boiled professional soldier would make mighty interesting reading now. Than, either it or something else served to knock the Foch "cordon sanitaire" plan into a cocked hat. It virtually died a-borning

Little Talks on Thrift

LACK OF THRIFT CAUSE OF MOST OF LIFE'S FAILURES.

There are many failures in the world today who might have become successful men financially had they only known how to save money! During the course of their careers they have earned large sums but they have let all this money slip through their fingers from day to day. Possessed of the natural gift of making money just as their successful rivals, they lacked the one quality necessary to success—thrift.

Thrift lays permanent stones in the foundation of success.

The so-called plunger—the meteoric financier—the speculator—the gambler—many at times seem able to defy prudent practices and the principles of thrift. But such types of success seldom are permanent. Wealth gained through spectacular methods rather than through the working out of sound business practices nearly always proves transitory.

The majority of men who have built up great fortunes, though they have in many instances risen rapidly, owe their success primarily to thrift.

Thrift requires steadfastness and needed and it was the development of this characteristic that imparted the combination of courage and cautious judgment without which there can be no substantial success in money matters.

Thrift trequires steadfastness and will-power but it does not require genius or brilliant gifts of mind.

The ability to make money is, to a considerable extent, a matter of natural aptitude but the more important accomplishment of thrift can be acquired by anyone.

There is no excuse for not saving money no matter how shrewd a man may be or how keenly developed his instincts for acquiring wealth, he will never have assurance of real success unless the element of thrift is woven into all his activities.

Lack of thrift has caused more financial failures than any other cause.
(By S. W. Straus, President American Society of Thrift.)

QUEER PRODUCTS U. S. IMPORTS FROM LATIN AMERICA

Ipecac and ox-gall stones, petitgrain and divi-divi, aigrettes and sarsaparilla, buttons and bismuth, orchids and ixtle.

In connection with the tour of the president-elect much discussion of the products which Latin America sends North America has arisen. Bananas from Costa Rica have been mentioned and coffee from Brazil, nitrates from Chile, quebracho tannin wood from Argentina, and petroleum from Mexico and Venezuela. Common products have received most attention.

But what of the uncommon exports of Latin America? What of the items in the first paragraph? Why does the United States want annatto seeds, copaiba gum, castor oil, tungsten, alpaca wool, balata, tonka beans, Job's tears, molybdenum, ox-gall and kapok?

"Consider what strange experiences an American dollar has in Latin America," suggests a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"It sends brown-skinned Indians of the Venezuela coasts to the aigrette rookeries in canoes to collect the white feathers of molting mother birds. A United States dollar bill has dictated the picking of leaves from the orange trees near Yaguaron, Paraguay, and orders their distillation which releases petitgrain, an oil with the smell of orange blossoms for use in perfumes and soaps. It has prompted the shearing of alpacas by the heirs of the Incas who own the flocks; and the collection of balata sap from a type of rubber tree that grows deep in the jungle. It has sent men searching for emeralds in the ill-charted mountains of Colombia.

"A dollar and many more like it have floated a mammoth American-built dredge in the Condoto river, Colombia, where the sands yield platinum without which there would be fewer platinum rings.

"And Christmas candies! Southern areas which have never seen snow contribute to the multitudes of multicolored candles for our holiday decorations. Every hostess who lights her table and every church that illumines its altar with the candle's soft gleam is in debt to Brazil, Mexico, Colombia, Honduras, Chile or some other Latin American country.

"Vegetable waxes are obtained from the leaves and branches of certain species of palm trees and desert bushes. In 1926 Brazil exported more than 12,000,000 pounds of carnauba vegetable wax, of which the United States took 40 per cent. Cousins to carnauba that also go northward to the candle shop are the ceroxylon palm wax of Colombia and the candelilla wax of Mexico. All three of them lend a hand to modern industry, helping the candlemaker and popping up in other guises few persons could guess; phenograph records, insulation for electric wires, tailor's chalk, carbon copy paper, floor polish, shoe polish, sealing wax and dental molds. Probably these vegetable waxes do not enter into the making of the shorter candles, but they do brace the tall ones, keeping them straight and unbending.

"South and Central American trade illustrate many surprises of modern trade. When you buy a sea green or mandarin red fountain pen for somebody's Christmas present ask the clerk of what substance the barrel is made. Find out if he knows whether it is celluloid and a product of the southern cotton fields or casein and a product of the pampas.

"Casein is the solid substance of milk and it might have become cheese if it had not been hardened into casein. Milk in the form of casein, to the extent of 88,920,000 pounds, was shipped in one recent year to the United States, where a varied career awaited it. Fountain pens, earrings, 'tortoise shell' for tortoise shell rims, cigarette holders, telephone receivers, and chess men are but a few fates awaiting Argentinian casein. Aladdin rubbed a lamp; chemistry stirred a milk pail and brought forth casein wonders that give the cattle raising countries of South America an outlet for their surplus milk.

"Chicago stockyards, it is often said, use everything of a pig but its squeal. The cow countries of Argentina, Uruguay, and Brazil claim equal slaughter house efficiency. Tankage, ox-gall and gall stones—these do not figure as importantly as hides and quarters of beef, but each earns its bit for South American packers. Occasionally a steamer from Argentina passes through the Panama Canal bound for California and reports a cargo of tankage or dried cattle blood, which becomes a constituent of fertilizer for west coast farms. Ox-gall has long served as a pigment for artists, but it figures also in the druggist's pharmacopoeia. Gall stones from cattle have proved as valuable a find as Brazilian diamonds. Sao Paulo a year ago shipped to the United States 3.33 pounds of gall stones valued at $596.

"Presumably they were resold to Japan. Gall stones take a high polish, and the Japanese prize them as lucky stones.

"Each Latin American country has unusual products, often hidden in trade figures behind the blank wall labelled 'miscellaneous.' Chile exports beeswax and iodine; Bolivia, molybdenum and tungsten to harden steel, llama wool and ixtle fiber; Argentina, ostrich feathers and senna; Uruguay, grass seed and sausage casings; Paraguay, petitgrain and crude drugs; Brazil, ipecac, moss, seaweed, brazil nuts; Peru, vanadium ore, kapok for mattresses, mohair; Ecuador, annatto seeds, (for medicinal purposes) Panama hats, chestnuts and vegetable ivory (the latter is the very durable white seed of a palm tree which ought to be named the button tree because so many of its seeds become buttons on American clothes); Colombia, cascara, copal gum, balsam of Tolu, Brazil wood, ceroxylon wax; Venezuela, divi-divi, copaiba gum, angostura bark, castor oil, tonka beans, cebadilla (reported use for poison gas in World war), sarsaparilla; the Guianas, bauxite (ore for aluminum), nutmegs, citrate of lime, balata and mahogany."

Peter Rabbit Has Nothing to Say

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Say nothing if you've naught to say;
You'll find it much the wisest way.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit, hiding over in the hole in the Old Stonewall into which Reddy Fox had driven him, heard the fight between Hooty the Owl and Black Pussy the Cat over by Farmer Brown's barn. He decided right away that Farmer Brown's barn was no place for him that night. He was hungry, too. He was hungry in the extreme. You see, he hadn't had anything to eat since the night before. But now there was nothing to do but stay there in the Old Stonewall or else get back to the dear Old Briar-patch. He wished now that he had been satisfied to stay in the Old Briar-patch.

It was well toward morning when Peter got courage enough to start for home. He had been so upset by the night's adventures that he was a very nervous Rabbit as he hurried along, lippety-lippety-lip. When at last he reached the dear Old Briar-patch and popped in at the entrance to one of his private little paths he looked at once for little Mrs. Peter. Little Mrs. Peter was nowhere to be seen. Peter thumped. You know, that is the way he signals. He got no reply. He thumped again. Again he got no reply. Right away Peter became anxious. He thumped the third time, and this time he thumped hard. And this time he got a reply. It was faint, but Peter knew that it came from the other side of the dear Old Briar-patch. He knew, too, that it was Mrs. Peter who was thumping. At first he decided he would not go and look her up, so he settled himself under his favorite bramble and prepared to sulk. You see, he was very much out of sorts. He thought Mrs. Peter would come and look him up. But when he had waited and waited and Mrs. Peter had not come he began to grow curious. He began to grow very curious. It wasn't like Mrs. Peter not to come when he thumped. So curiosity got the best of him and he started to find Mrs. Peter.

He hopped along through his private little paths until he was nearly over to the other side of the dear Old Briar-patch. Looking between the bushes and brambles, he presently made out a dark mass, and beside it sat little Mrs. Peter. She appeared to be very busy. What that dark mass might be Peter couldn't think. He hurried forward. When he was where he could see clearly his eyes opened until it looked as if they would pop right out of his head. To begin with, there was a nice big bundle of hay. There had been no hay in the dear Old Briar-patch when he left it. Around it was scattered some cabbage leaves. Then Peter saw turnips and carrots and apples. He forgot everything then but his appetite and hurriedly joined little Mrs. Peter. She was just finishing the last of some oats. In fact, she picked up the last ones as Peter arrived.

"I hope you and Jumper had a good meal tonight," said Little Mrs. Peter sweetly

"I hope you and Jumper had a good meal last night," said little Mrs. Peter sweetly.

Peter said nothing. His mouth was too full. He couldn't talk and eat, too, and eating was the thing that he had most in mind just then.

"You see," continued little Mrs. Peter sweetly, "it wasn't necessary for me to go over to Farmer Brown's barn. Farmer Brown's Boy brought all these things here. I think he meant them all for me."

Peter looked at little Mrs. Peter sharply. Then he reached out for a carrot. He gave a funny little grunt, but he didn't say a word

"You know," continued little Mrs. Peter, "I have always said that if one is patient all good things will come to him. I have always said that it is foolish to take unnecessary risks. Don't you think I am right, Peter?"

Peter said nothing. You see, he had nothing to say.

Head Colds Conquered in Few Hours

Inflammation in nose, throat and bronchial tubes rapidly disappears, snuffles cease and you can breathe freely through nose again.

Opex Opens Up Stuffed Nostrils In 3 Minutes

30 Days Free Trial

It's about time that someone with brains gave to Catarrh sufferers a simple, quick and sure remedy that not only soothes and heals the inflamed catarrh soaked membrane, but also promptly destroys the vicious germs that cause this disgusting disease.

The thousands of intelligent readers who have tried in vain to find something that actually will drive away every trace of loathesome catarrh, will be glad to know that Opex can now be procured at Lee and Osgood's, who will be pleased to show you how simple it is with Opex to once and for all conquer catarrh and its stubborn symptoms

Now all you have to do is to spray thru the nostrils over the entire sore, germ infested membrane, this purifying, germ killing vapor of Opex, reaching every nook, crevice and fold in the membrane, as no other remedy can and opening up in three minutes the stuffed up passages.

It seems like a miracle, but after you use Opex a few times each day for a few days, you will find that the sore, raw, swollen, tender membrane is completely healed; sniffling and hawking have ceased and the discharge of catarrhal mucous has stopped.

It is worth a whole lot of money to get rid of stubborn catarrh and to lessen buzzing noises in the ears, but Opex, which costs so little, will send its purifying, healing, smoke-like vapor just where it will do the most good—you can actually see it going in one nostril and out the other.

Opex is sold for $1.00 by leading druggists everywhere with the distinct understanding that if you are not satisfied at the end of 30 days your money will be gladly refunded. Opex is delightful to use because of its wholesome fragrance. Keep your nostrils as clean as your teeth.

RADIATOR FOR TRUCK COSTS ARMY $1,500

WASHINGTON—(AP)—It costs as much to replace a radiator on some of the specially built army trucks as to buy new cars. A house committee hearing the war department a appropriation bill was told a radiator for a particular four-wheel drive truck would cost $1,500.

The vehicle, called a Militor truck, is used by the heavy motorized artillery. The trucks were built as special jobs on specifications prepared during the war and no longer are manufactured.

Forty-eight of the trucks, the only ones ever built, have been in use the last eight years. They are being replaced as speedily as possible.

BOY SCOUT COUNCIL HELD SUPPER MEETING

A supper meeting of the finance committee of the Norwich Council of Boy Scouts was held at 6.30 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Wauregan hotel with three New London scout officials present. The purpose of the meeting was to make preliminary preparations for a financial campaign to be put on by the local organization. No specific plans were made, but it is expected that something definite will be done at a later meeting of the organization.

At the meeting Tuesday evening Ezekial Spitz, chairman of the finance committee of the New London organization, outlined the methods of organization of such a campaign and gave other helpful advice. Mr. Spitz has been the guiding genius of New London scout campaigns in the past few years. There was a discussion of other problems in connection with the campaign, the dates of which have not been set.

The New London officials present were Scout Executive F. E. Burdick, Scout Commissioner Ernest Nibbs and Mr. Spitz. The members of the local finance committee attending the meeting were President Charles Colt of the Norwich council, Arthur L. Peale, Clyde Fitch, Rev. George W. Potter, Dr. R. R. Agnew and Scout Executive Fred J. Bielefield.

MRS. PIERETTI DENIES SHE ASKED "HUSH" MONEY

In a statement issued Wednesday evening, Mrs. Joseph Pieretti of Cedar street, this city, takes issue with certain statements made by Patrolman George McCaskey of the New London police department, at the officer's hearing in that city Tuesday in relation to charges brought against him by Miss Beatrice Periatti, Mrs. Pieretti's 17 year old daughter. Officer McCaskey was charged with misconduct by the Periatti girl and was given a hearing Tuesday before William A. Holt, New London's city manager, and the board of appeals of the New London police department. As a result of the hearing Officer McCaskey was temporarily suspended from duty.

Mrs. Pieretti brands as untrue the charge that she demanded "hush" money from him or from Mr. Lukegord of Montville. Mrs. Pieretti denied Officer McCaskey's alleged statement at his hearing that she charged Mr. Lukegord with misconduct with her daughter.

Mrs. Pieretti said that the ring Officer McCaskey stated he bought for his wife, was given by him to Miss Periatti and that it bears her initials and his initials.

BANKERS TRUST COMPANY IN PROSPEROUS CONDITION

Reports made at the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Bankers Trust company Wednesday morning at the banking house show that the bank had the largest year of business in its history in 1928. The reports also show that there were remarkable increases in all departments of the bank, especially in the Christmas club, where an increase of 100 per cent for the year was reported.

The directors for the ensuing year were re-elected as follows at the meeting: Angus Park, Timothy C. Murphy, Joseph C. Worth, William H. Oat, John R. Tarrant, James J. Donohue, David D. Disco, Abner W. Schwartz, William H Cruickshank, Louis J. Fontaine, Charles V. James, John D. McWilliams, F. Russell Smith, Flint Brayton, Michael H. Donohue.

At a subsequent meeting of the directors the following officers were re-elected: President, Angus Park; vice president, T. C. Murphy; vice president, J. C. Worth; vice president, William H. Oat; secretary and treasurer, John R. Tarrant; attorneys, Arthur M. Brown and C. V. James.

OPENING SESSION OF THE STATE SENATE

STATE CAPITOL, Hartford, Conn., Jan. 9—(AP)—The general assembly of 1929 session got away to a late start as it was 10:25 when the house was rapped to order by John H. Hill of Shelton, retiring speaker and Rep. Andrew G. Littlefield, of Lebanon, offered prayer. The senate was later in getting underway although ten o'clock had been the appointed time.

Senator Roy C. Wilcox was elected president pro tempore of the state senate receiving all the votes, 21, of the republican members present. The retiring secretary of state, Francis A. Pollotti, performed his last official duty in swearing in Senator Wilcox. J. Frederick Baker was re-elected clerk. Senator Frank S. Bergin of the tenth district who at the democratic senate caucus last night was named minority leader. Senator Charles S. O'Connor of Waterbury being absent, the minority nominee received only twelve votes. The republican senator absent was E. S. Prince, of Torrington. Secretary of State Pallotti announced at roll call that the death of Senator Prince's mother was the cause of his absence. Senator Wilcox's first official act in taking the chair was to appoint Rev. Edward P. Ayer, of Branford, chaplain of the senate. Mr. Ayer had given the invocation.

The senate opened its session with eight bunches of flowers on the desks of the seven democratic senators, the greatest floral display of the minority in years. Two punches were on the desk of Senator Joseph H. Lawlor of Waterbury.

The others that bore evidence of their admiration were Senators Goldstein, Dennis Conroy and O'Connor. Senator Weaver of New Milford the first woman member from western Connecticut in effect replaces Mrs. Merritt as the only woman in the upper body.

On resolutions, Paul G. Leopold of New Britain and Wallace Horsfall of Milford were appointed messengers. Appointments of doorkeepers were: Ad Bigelow of New Fairfield, Ray L. Harding, of Lyme, Robert M. Belch of Ashford, Linwood R. Campbell of Ellington, Fred Brown of Durham and Frank D. Hall of Canaan. Senators Milne of Norwalk, Weaver of New Milford and John F. Hart of Bridgeport were appointed to the committee on contested elections.

SPEAKER EDDY URGES ECONOMY IN HOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

HARTFORD, Jan. 9—Economy in two points—in the appropriations to be made and in the passage of new legislation—was urged upon the house today by Speaker Samuel A. Eddy of North Canaan when he addressed the assembled house immediately after taking the oath of office, which was administered by John Hill of Shelton, speaker pro tem. Speaker Eddy told the house members he hoped their term would be known for the quality rather than the quantity of the new legislation for which they would stand sponsors.

Mr. Eddy was elected speaker when he received 219 votes to 29 for John F. Tobin of Waterbury, who promptly moved to make the election unanimous.

In taking his seat, Mr. Eddy spoke as follows:

"To have been considered worthy to occupy a chair which has been so efficiently filled by a long line of distinguished citizens is an honor that I highly appreciate and accept with profound gratitude. With many misgivings as to my ability to preside acceptably over your deliberations it will, nevertheless, be my aim to act in a spirit of fairness and impartiality and I ask your support and cooperation to the end that the business of the session may proceed expeditiously and in an orderly manner. By the compliment of your votes you have elevated me to the position of presiding officer, but it is an elevation from which I look down upon you in a physical sense only and I still retain the privilege of addressing you as fellow members who have been elected to this body for the common purpose of enacting such legislation as the interests of our state, its people and its institutions in our judgment may require.

Although to borrow words so fittingly spoken by my predecessor at the last session, the roll of the speaker is, for the most part, to be a listener rather than a talker, it may not be out of place at this time for the speaker to ask you to listen for a few minutes while he makes some observations on what he thinks should be our attitude toward the business which our constituents have sent us here to transact.

"At an early date there will be submitted for our consideration the report of the commission on the revision of the statutes, a report which, following precedent, will doubtless recommend that the public acts of this session be incorporated in the revision. Let us not unnecessarily enlarge the volume the commission will present to us. While the interests of the state and of our towns, cities and boroughs, as well as interests corporate and individual, will necessarily and properly demand considerable legislation at our hands let us remember that not all the ills of humanity are curable by statute and let us not hesitate to reject where enactment does not seem clearly desirable. I am informed that the report of the revision commission will include a recommendation for the repeal of a large number of obsolete and unecessary sections of the statutes and I feel sure that if, after investigation, the recommendations prove to be well founded we shall welcome the opportunity thus to curtail the volume of our laws. The American Law Institute reports that in 1927 more than 112,000 new federal and state laws were enacted and it would seem doubtful that there be valid reason why Connecticut should contribute this year a larger number than the 327 enactments which constituted the public acts of the session of 1927, and I trust that the session of 1929 may be notable for the quality rather than the quantity of its legislation.

"The near approach of the 300th anniversary of the beginning of Connecticut may well remind us that we are the lineal successors of that little company of clear minded and far seeing and plain spoken law makers who framed the fundamental orders upon which the government of our state is based, and such reminder may well prove an inspiration to us to emulate the example set by them in the clear, simple and effective framing of legislation. Therefore let us be very careful that such additions to our statutes as we find it desirable to make be so clearly and understandably worded that the learned justices of our supreme court may not be compelled to spend valuable hours in developing subtle arguments to show what the legislature of 1929 really intended in its enactments.

"Let us not be unduly lavish in our legislation either in respect to the number of new laws sanctioned or in respect to the appropriation of the dollars of the taxpayers reposing in the purse whose strings we, for the time being control. Nor should we with lavish abandon plan to extract from the pockets of the taxpayers amounts more than are necessary economically to conduct the affairs of the state, including adequate but reasonable provision for its dependents, and a suitable, but not extravagant, apportionment of funds for the better education of our youth. In view of the remarkably wealthy condition of our state finance we shall, I am confident, approach with great caution any proposition to change materially the present fiscal policy.

"And let us bear in mind also that as the lawyers say, that time is of the essence of our contract, for by constitutional limitation our session must adjourn sine die in about five months it therefore behooves us to observe a happy mean between expeditiousness and deliberation both in committee and on the floor of the house. Much time can be saved for the deliberate consideration of important matters later in the session if a systematic effort is made to dispose of uncontested and comparatively unimportant matters at the earliest opportunity and so avoid as much as possible the inevitable congestion of the closing days.

"I am sure we shall all approach our task with a conscientious desire to serve the state to the best of our several abilities and I trust that we shall so far succeed that we may hear the voice of approval from our constituents when our task is finished and that what we do may prove to be of real and lasting value.

"Here endeth the salutatory dictum of your speaker, who, during the remainder of the session will endeavor to be a good listener."

When the house session opened this morning prayer was offered by Rev. Andrew Littlefield of Lebanon, who was a member of the body in the preceding session. At the close of the business for the day, adjournment was taken to next Thursday, Jan. 17, at 11:15 a. m.

Besides the election of Mr. Eddy as speaker, organization of the house was effected by making Albert S. Bill of West Hartford clerk and Stanley Trecelski of New Britain assistant clerk. The house organization was completed by appointment of these doorkeepers: E. A. Elliott, Newington; Ralph Beers, North Branford; Levin Clarke, Canterbury; Charles Berg, Middletown; and John M. Bowers, Tolland; and as messengers: Leo P. Flamion, Hartford; Bernard Atlas, Milford; the Rev. A. G. Littlefield, Lebanon; Roy L. Adams, Norwalk; G. W. Brakley, Woodbury, and R. D. Chapman, Westbrook.

NORWICH WIFE FOUND IN ROOM WITH PARAMOUR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 9.—Orrin Banning and Ella Kenneison were arrested here tonight charged with adultery and locked up, pending their presentation in the police court tomorrow morning. The arrest of Banning and the Kenneison woman was the result of the police of Norwich communicating with the New London authorities and requesting that Mrs. Kenneison be arrested on a charge of the abandonment of her children, as the Norwich police had information that the woman was in New London. Patrolman Frank Philopena and Policewoman Jane H. Cassidy in making a search of the rooming houses, found Mrs. Kenneison and Banning occupying a room in a Cottage street house and they were taken into custody.

TELLS ROTARIANS HOW A. P. GATHERS DAILY NEWS

The average reader of the newspapers seldom thinks of the amount of work that lies back of some little paragraph telling of an event in some distant corner of the world. The reader does not see the reporter as he is hot on the trail of the story which he may have been following for a week. They do not see him writing and sending it to some central news agency where it may be rewritten and put on the wires to the central news bureau in New York city again to be carefully considered and then despatched over leased wires to the various newspapers in the country. They do not see the number of men that handle and read over the 25 or 50 words. They get it along with other items that have come a similar way, all for the nominal sum of two or three cents which they pay for their daily paper.

The members of the Norwich Rotary club were given a glimpse behind the scenes of the art of news-gathering and distributing by that great agency, The Associated Press, in a talk given by George V. Turner, city editor of The Associated Press in New York. Mr. Turner was the speaker of the day and took for his subject, "The Gathering and Distribution of News by The Associated Press." Mr. Turner was introduced by William H. Oat, general mahager of The Norwich Bulletin, who briefly outlined the history of The Bulletin since the founding of the parent paper, the Norwich Register, about 1790. The Register was founded by a man by the name of Hubbard and two years later was turned over to his brother and the name changed to the Norwich Courier, by which it was known until 1858, when it was made into a daily under the present name. Mr. Oat also spoke of the antiquated methods of news-gathering in those early days until the advent of the telegraph and the establishment of the New England Associated Press, of which The Bulletin was one of the charter members.

The more modern methods of the gathering and distribution of news through press organizations was then taken up by Mr. Turner. In opening his talk Mr. Turner spoke of his first recollections of Norwich when he came here in 1903 as a member of the Middletown football team which incidentally was defeated by the Norwich Free Academy 11 to 0. He also spoke of his connection with the Connecticut newspapers as editor of the Associated Press news bureau at New Haven where he was in close touch with all the papers in the state.

I do not know what you people in Norwich think of the Norwich Bulletin, said Mr. Turner, but we of the Associated Press hold it in high regard. In all newspapers one of the integral parts is the news service of which the Associated Press ranks first. The Associated Press as it is generally known is a cooperative organization, its members being newspapers that gather and exchange the world's news. This news is as truthful as it is humanly possible to make it. Of course there is the human element and we all know that it is only human to err.

No one can say when the first newspaper was established but we have authentic records of a paper being put out by hand during the days of the great Roman empire. The Chinese are credited with putting out newspapers or news sheets centuries and centuries ago. Then came the first newspapers in America and the fight for the freedom of the press which was waged about the same time as the American Revolution. In those days the news gathering was slow and news traveled by stage coach and from mouth to mouth along the post roads and by the time it reached the press it was more or less garbled and incorrect. Then came the advent of the telegraph and with it the various news gathering agencies. There was the New England Associated Press, the New York Associated Press and the Western Associated Press all gathering and sending out news. The N. Y. association soon began to dominate the other associations and it was not long before the papers outside the metropolitan district were forced to take just what the N. Y. association saw fit to give, and the papers were never certain of the reliability of the news which was largely flavored with personal opinions.

Melville Stone, a pioneer of the present Associated Press, with several others saw the effect of this kind of service and set out to remedy it. The present association was the ultimate outcome. They saw the ned for a perfectly fair and unbiased news agency and they also saw the advantage of making it a cooperative organization which would eliminate any biased opinions in the news reports.

The Associated Press distributes its news to all parts of the world and likewise gathers it from all corners of the earth. In the United States it has 145,000 miles of leased wires. The country is divided into sections with headquarters in the various large news centers with the general headquarters in New York city. All the important news of the world pours into this office where it is edited and sent out to those parts of the country where it is of the greatest interest. When you read an article don't say, "Well, that's only newspaper talk," read it and in that article you will find some authority for the statement and if the person quoted is wrong then it is not the fault of the A. P.

One of the hardest propositions in the newspaper association is the presidential elections, not only on the night of the election but during the weeks preceding the election. Men from the A. P. editorial staff are assigned to the candidates and they report campaign speeches and other highlights with amazing accuracy. There is a strict path of impartiality maintained. In fact this was so strictly adhered to during the recent campaign that both Mr. Smith and Mr. Hoover wrote complimentary letters to the A. P. Then came the election itself. Over 50,000 men were engaged in gathering the returns, tabulating and giving them to the world, so that on the following morning for a few cents you knew who was elected. This is more than the government is officially certain of at the present time, that is the exact number of votes each candidate received.

The cost of this great service to the public is about $8,000,000 per year and the cost is proportionately borne by the member papers. It is a great organization and is growing by leaps and bounds.

At the conclusion of his talk, Mr. Turner was given a rising vote of thanks.

The business session of the meeting was presided over by President Edward L. Jewett and Flint Brayton was the song leader. Two new members were given the right hand of Rotary fellowship.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

Hartford Girl is Happy Now

The quick, easy way those ailments of children, such as headaches, feverishness, biliousness, coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy, etc., simply vanish with the first few doses of California Fig Syrup, is always a surprise to those who use this fine old medicine for the first time.

Weak, puny, restless and cross children never fail to pick up weight and gain strength and energy under its gentle influence. It stimulates the appetite, regulates the stomach and bowels and gives these organs tone and strength so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

A well-known Connecticut mother, Mrs. Wm. H. Sneyd, 61 Buckingham St., Hartford, says: "Dorothy is rosy-cheeked, bright-eyed and happy now; but we had a lot of trouble with her. Her stomach and bowels seemed to be weak. She suffered from constipation and biliousness until she was fretful and peevish most of the time. Then we gave her some California Fig Syrup and her trouble stopped quick. We kept on giving it to her and soon she was well and strong."

Be sure to ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name so you'll get the genuine, endorsed by physicians for over 50 years.

DUNHAM STREET HUOSE DAMAGED BY FIRE

Considerable damage was done to the two story dwelling at No. 15 Dunham street by fire early Wednesday morning. The roof was destroyed, household effects in the attic, where the fire started, were damaged and there was also damage by water on the lower floors. The fire was discovered by Frank Mader, a tenant. Mr. Mader ran to the station of Engine No. 6, nearby, and notified the company, which responded, with Engine 5, Squad A, Acting Chief Henry K. Taft and Acting Deputy Chief Dennis J. Brennan. The companies distinguished the blaze after a stiff battle of an hour and a half. The cause is unknown.

NORTH MAIN STREET WOMAN PAYS $200 FINE

Mrs. Nellie Walenda of No. 556 North Main street paid a fine of $200 and costs in the city court Wednesday morning. She and her husband, were arrested for violation of the liquor law at their home Dec. 31 and the following day in court a continuance was granted to Jan. 5. On that day Mrs. Walenda pleaded guilty to the charge and upon her request was given until Jan. 8 to raise the money. The charge against her husband was nolled. She did not produce the money in court Tuesday morning and was later arrested and locked up. In court Wednesday morning Mrs. Walenda was given a jail sentence of 30 days suspended, in addition to the fine.

Rescued Deer at Cove

Lewis Patridge and Samuel Caswell of Poquetanuck rescued a young deer from the icy waters in Poquetanuck Cove about 8 o'clock Tuesday morning.

SPELL THESE AND COLLECT A MEDAL

NEW YORK—(AP)—Let's have a spelling bee.

Recently Hollywood announced that xylotrihydroxygluparic was an oil taken from peanut shells to expedite development of panchromatic film.

Now Everett F. Davis of the Virginia Polytechnic institute has one. It long has been known that plants grew badly around the base of a walnut tree. The reason, says Mr. Davis, is pentahydroxyalphanapthaquinone — a toxic substance localized in the vicinity of walnut roots. If the word is too long to handle, use juglone, derived from Juglans the botanical name of the walnut.

PLAINFIELD NOSES OUT COLORED GIANTS IN TIGHT ENCOUNTER

(Special to The Bulletin.

PLAINFIELD, Jan. 9.—With two minutes to go Plainfield came through with the one basket to take a fast and mighty interesting game from the Philadelphia Colored Giants, 39-37 here tonight. Notwithstanding a terrific onslaught by the colored lads in the last few minutes to play Plainfield kept up their offensive and with a pretty goal by Kasper they put the game on ice.

Mingled comedy and good fast floor work by the Giants had the crowd on edge throughout and although their passing had Plainfield somewhat bewildered at times the latter kept calling in with undying spirit and won the nip and tuck affair in a blaze of glory. As was expected the floor work and passing of the Giants' diminutive forward, Berthards, had the crowd in an uproar and added a touch of comedy to the game.

First one team took the lead and then the other. The farthest either team pulled away from the other was at the end of the first half when the colored lads led by a 24-16 score. Coming into the second half Plainfield took the offensive and gradually worked the score along until Tisdale dropped one in to tie. The duskies pulled up again and tied but just couldn't seem to get a point ahead.

The Giants relied much on their stalwart center, Cooper, to obtain an opening that his team might get clear enough to shoot.

"Pop" Williams, the football star, played forward in place of Brusso and turned in a mighty fine game. His playing together with the team with which he had never played was commendable. Plainfield certainly worked hard to win and were happily rewarded. The Giants, needless to say, is one of the fastest teams in the country and to get a trimming is a token of another excellent team opposing them.

In spots there was some roughness but on a whole it was a very interesting encounter and Plainfield can chalk up another win and a somewhat glorious one.

The Plainfield Buddies won over the fast traveling Black and White Collegians of Woodstock, in another nip and tuck affair which presaged the type of the main event. Until the second half neither team had an advantage but the college lads weakened under the onslaught of the Buddies and the latter gradually drew away to earner another win, 24-18.

Springfield Beats Wesleyan

MIDDLETOWN, Jan. 9—(AP)—Springfield college opened a scoring punch in the second half of its basketball game against Wesleyan tonight, to tally 27 points and win out 39 to 23 in a whirlwind finish. Wesleyan was hard pressed to hold its early lead, gained against the second string Springfield forward line. Geesman, a rangy center, broke up the morale of the Wesleyan quintet with his defensive play to allow Cameron, his teammate to swamp the visitors' goal with 18 points.

RACING CARS MUST HAVE TWO SEATS UNDER NEW RULE

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—(AP)—They set the calendar back eight years in American automobile racing today by ordering the two-man car back into the picture at the annual 500-mile races at Indianapolis.

Effective in 1930 by order of the contest board of the American Automobile association, the old twin-seated racer, with lean power but with far more color, will replace the tiny machines that since 1922 have unnually demolished speed records at the Indianapolis Motor speedway.

The decision brings victory to automobile manufacturers, most of whom have been crowded from the motor racing limelight. The builders, in the opinion of Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, chairman of the A. A. A. contest board and president of the Indianapolis Motor speedway, will deliver "in the near future" with two-man cars capable of equaling if not bettering the marks of 120 miles an hour and faster, established by the smaller racers.

One of the major benefits expected under the move is an ultimate increase in the number of drivers qualified to compete in headline events. The main source of supply was eliminated with the advent of the smaller machines, in that mechanics, many of whom were capable drivers under the old system, no longer were available.

The change will mean an increase in the size of the engine from the present class of 91 1-2 cubic inches piston displacement to a maximum of 366 cubic inches, the equivalent of the European six-litre class.

Competing cars must weigh at least 1,750 pounds, must have two independently operated systems of brakes, one system effective on all four wheels, and must not be less than 31 inches across the base of the seat.

In another decision of far-reaching importance, the board ruled that hereafter anyone contesting for the world's speed crown on a straightaway course will not be required to have a reverse gear in his car.

This brings the International Sports commission of Europe into accord with the A. A. A. on the point.

The board made a concession to the dirt track racers by permitting them to eliminate reverse mechanisms. It held, however, that "all big league speedway racing cars" still will be required to have a reverse.

Drivers seeking credit for new record for any distance between one and ten miles will have to beat the existing record by at least two miles an hour under a resolution the board will present before the Sportive Commission Internationale at a meeting in Paris in March.

This move is the outgrowth of the successful try for a new mark by Ray Keech at Daytona Beach, Florida, April 22, 1928. Keech topped the record held by Malcolm Campbell of England, only by five one-hundredths of a second. Keech was clocked at 207.552 miles an hour.

The Indianapolis 500-mile race hereafter will be known as the Grand Prize of America. A permanent challenge trophy, commemorative of the place the premier American speedway event has in auto racing annals, was authorized, effective this year.

RECOMMEND PLAYER-WRITERS BE BARRED FROM DAVIS CUP

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—(AP)—Members of future American Davis cup or Wightman cup teams, will be prohibited from writing tennis articles for newspapers and magazines or giving interviews, if the recommendation of the executive committee is approved at the annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis association in Boston, February 8-9.

The recommendation, growing out of the experience with Big Bill Tilden prior to the Davis cup challenge round last summer, is aimed at removing any possibility of propriety or amateur rule violation in the journalistic activities of members of international teams.

Challenges have been filed by the United States for both the Davis cup and Wightman cup matches this year. The Davis cup challenge to France provides for preliminary competition on the American zone. The Wightman cup matches with England, for women, will be played here.

Possibility of splitting the American zone into North and South American sub-divisions is under consideration by the tennis associations of Argentina, Australia, Canada and Japan, and as well as the United States.

Representatives of France, England, and the United States will meet in London to consider revision of the present regulations governing the date and place of the inter-zone Davis cup tie. It is the proposal of the United States that if the winners cannot agree between themselves the event be held in the country of the Davis cup championship nation.

Samuel H. Collom, of Philadelphia, has been nominated for a second term as president of the U. S. L. T. A. The other nominations were: Louis B. Dalley, New York, for vice president; James C. Stewart, Chicago, for secretary, and Louis J. Carruthers, New York, for treasurer.

AUTHORITY OF METROPOLITAN A. A. U. IS CHALLENGED

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—(AP)—Describing as "unfair to our American athletes" the plan of Paavo Nurmi to remain indefinitely in this country, training for the 1932 Olympics, Charles L. Ornstein of Washington, D. C., a member of the board of governors of the Amateur Athletic union, today challenged the right of the Metropolitan A. A. U., to register the famous Finnish runner without authority from the national body.

Ornstein, in a telegram to Daniel J. Ferris, national secretary, questioned the policy as well as the authority of local officials in registering Nurmi under the same conditions as an American athlete.

Ferris explained that under international athletic law, athletes resident for a month or more in a foreign country automatically come under the jurisdiction of the national governing body of that country. He asserted the registration of Nurmi was referred to the Metropolitan A. A. U. because Nurmi now resides in New York and is subject, therefore, to local jurisdiction. Ferris said he considered proper action had been taken and would notify Ornstein to this effect.

Ornstein criticized conditions which have permitted Willie Ritola, another Finnish star, to live and compete in the United States but represent his native country in the Olympics, as he did in 1924 and 1928. He voiced objection to Nurmi following a similar course.

WHITTEMORE REACHES SEMI FINALS AT PINEHURST

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 9—(AP)—Parker Whittemore, of Brookline Mass., advanced to the semi-finals of the annual Pinehurst mid-January golf tournament today when he downed Fred Wolstenholme, Philadelphia, 8 and 7. Whittemore won the yesterday's qualifying round.

The Bay state linksman outplayed the Philadelphian almost from the start. He stood six up at the turn having gone out in 37.

R. E. Hewitt Swope, Philadelphia, had a stiff battle with J. B. Blackburn, Pittsburgh. Swope won 5 and R. J. D. Chapman, Greenwich, Conn., defeated William O'Brien, Detroit, 6 and 5, while Norman Maxwell, Philadelphia, downed R. J. Breed, Boston, 7 and 6.

DAN WILLIAMS LEADS QUALIFIERS AT LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9—(AP)—Ninety amateur and professional golfers, survivors of a great army of more than 300 that swarmed over six courses in thi ssection from dawn until dark today successfully scaled the 36 hole qualifying barrier of the $10,000 Los Angeles open.

At the head of the successful forces was Dan Williams, professional of Shackamazon, N. J., who bested old man par by one stroke in his two trips oxer the Fox Hills Country club course. Williams turned in a 72 for his morning round, and a 69 later in the day for an aggregate of 141.

DAN CARROLL MAKES SWEEPING DENIAL OF CHARGES MADE BY FUCHS

BOSTON, Jan. 9—(AP)—Dan Carroll, restaurant owner and manager of boxers, went before the Boston finance commission today and told his version of what happened on the night of Nov. 23 in the hotel room of Emil Fuchs, president of the Boston Braves. Carroll's testimony was a complete denial of Fuchs' charges that William G. Lynch, a Boston councilman, had asked Fuchs that night for $5,000 each for 13 councillors before the Sunday sports bill would be passed.

Carroll's story, told in no uncertain fashion, was only part of more or less sensational testimony that brought gasps of surprise from the several hundred spectators who have followed the proceedings since the first day. As usual the hall was filled to capacity and the crowd stayed to the end, thoroughly enjoying every bit of the nearing.

In addition to Carroll's story, the commission heard Councilman Robert G. Wilson, Jr., characterize Fuchs and Charles F. Adams, vice-president of the Braves, as two "unprincipled, money-mad men" who had "lied so obviously that nobody believed them." Wilson was named by Adams as the man who he thought called him on the telephone and said that a bloc of councilmen would hold up the Sunday sports bill unless they were paid.

Wilson, in denying that he ever called Adams on the telephone, demanded that the commission "brand these men for what they are—a pair of unscrupulous falsifiers." The councilman further called Adams a "despicable liar who is a blight to the name he gets by on."

Carroll's testimony contradicted virtually every point brought up by Fuchs when he made his charges on the first day of the hearing. Carroll said that he and Lynch went to the Hotel Copley Plaza on the night of Nov. 23 at Fuchs' request. When they entered Fuchs' suite, Fuchs and Edmund Cunningham, secretary of the Braves, were the only persons there and shortly afterward Cunningham left the parlor and went into an adjoining bedroom, closing the door as he went.

Then, said Carroll, Fuchs asked Lynch how old he was. Lynch replied that he was 36, whereupon Fuchs remarked that he had a "long time ahead of him." Carroll then testified that Fuchs said:

"If you are against this bill, you'll suffer defeat, in public and private life, just like anybody who is against it will be defeated. Take Senator Bilodeau. We got even with him."

Bilodeau, an opponent of Sunday sports, was defeated for re-election to the state senate.

Carroll then quoted Fuchs as saying: "Charlie Adams will see that you are licked because he has a lot of influence. He'll get the newspapers against you. He's a big advertiser and if the papers won't do what he wants, he'll withdraw his advertising."

Carroll said that Lynch then went up to Fuchs and threatened to strike him, saying: "You * * * fool, I'll punch you on the mouth." Carroll declared that he had to step between Lynch and Fuchs to prevent the former from using his fists.

Then Fuchs became agitated and started to apologize, he said. "I've had hard luck since I came here," Carroll quoted Fuchs as saying. "I had $500,000 and now my stock in the Braves is in hock down at the Atlantic National."

Fuchs related a number of incidents which caused him to worry, Carroll told the commission. Among these were a row between Jack Slattery, former manager of the Braves, and Rogers Hornsby, who succeeded him; the rumor that Hornsby was a member of the Ku Klux Klan which Fuchs was quoted as saying, kept many people away from Braves field; the fact that concrete bleachers which Fuchs erected at a cost of $60,000 enabled players to hit home runs "like pancakes" and which he later had to move back several feet; and the fact that the Boston college football team transferred its home games from Braves field to Fenway park.

During this recital, Fuchs was agitated, Carroll declared, and kept apologizing to Lynch.

When the commission asked him whether mention of a bribe was made during the conversation, Carroll was emphatic in replying in the negative. He said that neither Fuchs nor Lynch had mentioned the subject of a bribe. Nothing was said of a "bloc" either by Fuchs or Lynch, Carroll said.

Carroll said that later Cunningham came into the room with Burt Whitman, a sports editor, and that Lynch and Fuchs had resumed their seats. The conversation followed general lines and no mention of a bribe was made during that period. Carroll was asked whether Fuchs had said to Whitman: "This is funny. It would be comical if it weren't pathetic." Fuchs had said that he used those words to Whitman, and Whitman, himself, had testified that he heard Fuchs say it. Carroll denied, however, that Fuchs had said it.

Carroll also testified that in August of last year Fuchs told him that Lynch was opposed to Sunday sports and that when Carroll asked him about it, Lynch replied: "Tell him he's crazy. I'm with it and I'll do anything for him."

In December, sometime after the meeting in the Copley Plaza, Carroll said, Fuchs again told him he had learned that Lynch was against the bill. Lynch's reply to this was: "Haven't I told him, I'm for it. Must I wear a placard saying: 'I'm for Sunday sports'?"

WAR EXPECTED BETWEEN A. A. U. AND THE COLLEGES

CHICAGO, Jan. 9—(AP)—What is expected to precipitate a war between the National Amateur Athletic union and colleges and universities over control of amateur sports broke out today when Northwestern university announced it would henceforth schedule athletic meets with teams not subject to A. A. U. control.

The controversy between the A. A. U. and Northwestern was caused when the former organization refused to sanction a swimming meet between Northwestern and the Chicago Athletic association because the purple team competed in meets unauthorized by the A. A. U. last summer. The meet scheduled for tonight, was called off by the I. A. A.

Kenneth L. "Tug" Wilson, director of athletics at Northwestern, countered by breaking off relations with the A. A. U. In a statement he said that Northwestern university does not acknowledge that the A. A. U. has supreme control over swimming and other sports."

Wilson hinted he would take up the matter with Major John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the Big Ten, and that other members of the conference and other colleges in the middle west may dissolve relations with the A. A. U.

SWETONIC WILL WEAR PIRATES COLORS NEXT YEAR

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 9—(AP)—Steve Swetonic, a product of the Pittsburgh sandlots and a star of the mound squad of the Indianapolis club of the American association last season, has been obtained by the Pittsburgh National League club, it was announced tonight.

Clyde Barnhart, veteran outfielder, a pitcher to be delivered later and an undisclosed amount of cash were given in exchange.

Swetonicv is 25 and bats and throws right handed. He won 19 games and lost 8 for Indianapolis last year and was the hero of the junior world series, which Indianapolis won from Rochester by annexing five out of six games. Steve won three of them.

GREENLEAF TAKES TWO BLOCKS FROM HOPPE

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—(AP)—Ralph Greenleaf, former pocket billiard champion, again won two blocks today from Willie Hoppe, one-time balkline ruler, in their special handicap pocket billiard match. Greenleaf increased his total to 755 points against 242 for Hoppe at the end of the 6th block. Greenleaf is playing for 1,500 points to Hoppe's 1,200.

The pocket billiard expert took this afternoon's block 126 to 26 in 7 innings and equalled the feat tonight by running up 130 points in four innings while Hoppe got only 27. In tonight's block Greenleaf had a high run of 108. His best in the afternoon was 34 while Hoppe's high mark was 14.

PROVIDENCE KEEPS ARROWS OUT OF HOCKEY LEAGUE

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9—(AP)—The Providence Reds prevented the Philadelphia Arrows from regaining first place in the Canadian-American Ice Hockey league tonight shutting out the locals 3 to 0.

Johnny Gagnon, former Holy Cross football and baseball star, played a spectacular game for Providence, scoring the first goal in less than five minutes after the contest started. Clever passing and all-around team work featured the play of the Reds.

TEXANS WANT PENAL FARMS CENTRALIZED

AUSTIN, Tex.—(AP)—Citizens of Texas, aroused by outrages committed by fugitives from state prison farms, are clamoring for centralization of the penal system through legislative action this winter.

Many convicts escape in Texas, because freedom tempts them as they work at the 11 prison farms. Ten or more prisoners band together now and then, throw off their bonds and run away. So common an occurrence is a prison break in the vicinity of the farms that the residents keep shot guns at hand for protection.

While the weakness of the present system have been known many years, it was only in the last few months that a demand for reform became statewide. The movement began last July when one guard was killed and three others were wounded in a prison break. Gov. Dan Moody and the state prison commission assumed leadership of the movement by preparing a legislative program.

FINE TRIBUTES PAID TO RICKARD'S MEMORY AS HE IS LAID AT REST

By Brian Bell
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—(AP)—Tex Rickard was buried today after funeral services in a crepe-draped Madison Square Garden he leaves behind as a monument to his vision. After brief and simple services, in marked contrast to the spectacular things in which the sports promoter dealt in life, his body was interred in a cemetery where his first wife and a child rest.

A crowd of 10,000 sat in awed silence in the seats whose occupants in other days and nights have alternately cheered or hurled jeers and boos at referees and athletes.

The hush was profound as an organ played, a quartet sang and two clergymen and two laymen paid tribute to the memory of Rickard, "a man without meanness in his heart."

Every branch of sport was represented in the throng. Scores of charities Rickard had aided were there to add their tribute.

Available seats in the huge garden were filled when the doors were closed at 1.30 o'clock after thousands had passed in double lines past the bier in a seemingly endless procession. Many, after passing the palm covered and flower banked resting place of the casket on the lower floor, went to the seats on the mezzanine set aside for the public and awaited the funeral hour.

Draped in black and purple mourning the garden awaited the final passage from it of its builder. There was no scraping of chairs, little craning of necks and practically no exchange of whispers as an organ, installed for the funeral, boomed forth the stately notes of "Lead Kindly Light."

One thousand seats were set aside on the main floor for "friends." This space was dotted with boxers—friends indeed of the man they were honoring. From obscure preliminary fighters to men who have reached the heights of fame or stand on the threshold they sat in solemn dignity, one here with a discolored eye and another there with a cut lip, all were thinking, perhaps, as a promoter who had come 1,000 miles to attend the funeral said: "Those boys have lost their best friend."

As the organ continued to play a requiem, the honorary pall bearers, two score in number, entered. This group included the Madison Square Garden corporation directors. Men who loom big in the affairs of business, well known figures in boxing, hockey, the stage and sports writers.

The Rev. George Cales Moor, D. D., pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church and a friend of Rickard, started the service.

A quartet sang "Nearer My God to Thee" and the Rev. Cranston Brenton, D. D., of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, was introduced. Dr. Brenton explained that he was representing Bishop William T. Manning, who was sick. Bishop Manning was assisted by Rickard in raising funds for the sports bay in the cathedral. The speaker referred to Bishop Manning's regret that he could not add his tribute in person and declared that the ideal of religion is closely akin to the ideal of sportsmanship.

"Indeed," he said, "a well played game is comparable to a well ordered sermon." Closing his brief eulogy, he said, of Rickard, "he fought a good fight and gave happiness and pleasure to thousands."

The quartet sang Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar" and Gustav Hartman, city court judge, spoke in behalf of the municipality. "He loved humanity," was Judge Hartmann's text. "Thousands were beneficiaries of his bounty and will mourn his passing."

Dudley Field Malone paid tribute to the man he called "Tex" throughout his brief address. "A day of gloom can not be a memorial to Tex," he said.

Dr. Moor closed with a brief eulogy in which he spoke of Rickard as a man without meanness. "A counsellor without conceit." Who had "sympathy without selfishness" and "religion without restraint." His final tribute was: "He had one of the world's great hearts."

"Taps" sounded and a band played Chopin's funeral march as the great crowd stood with bowed heads.

Those inside the garden remained until the body was removed but another great crowd lined 50th street all the way to Fifth avenue. As the 50 automobiles in the funeral procession moved up the avenue the streets were lined with other crowds.

At the cemetery the casket was opened again and members of the garden staff looked at their former chief for the last time. Mrs. Rickard was escorted by Jack Dempsey and Walter Fields to give a final caress and the casket was lowered into the earth.

Dr. Moor asked the pall-bearers and others grouped about the grave to join in reciting the Lord's prayer and the last service for Tex Rickard was said.

At the cemetery, as at the garden, men from all walks of life were there to pay respectful tribute to the memory of Tex Rickard. The "big business men" Rickard had interested in his boxing shows, whose names mean much in money and prestige, rubbed elbows with individuals who call each other "Kid" and "Buddy". And in many cases do not know if they have any other names.

They used different language to express their appreciation of the sports promoter but perhaps the "kids" and "buddies" were most expressive.

"He was a good guy," they said.

"Pass me a Lucky - I pass up the sweets." Johnny Farrell

Johnny Farrell, National Open Golf Champion, 1928

WHEN fattening sweets tempt and you dread extra weight, light a Lucky instead. No discomfort, no trouble—just a common sense method of retaining a slender figure.

The finest tobaccos are skilfully blended to make Lucky Strike. Then, "It's Toasted." This secret process brings out every essence in the tobaccos and produces a flavor which makes Lucky Strike a delightful alternative when you crave fattening sweets—there is no interference with a natural appetite for healthful foods. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

At the same time toasting removes impurities. That's why 20,679 physicians are on record that Lucky Strike is less irritating than other cigarettes. That's why prominent athletes have testified that Luckies steady their nerves and do not impair their physical condition. No wonder that this was discovered long ago by many men, who pride themselves on keeping trim and fit, who love the "pep" that comes with health and vigor.

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say:—

"REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD OF A SWEET."

A past oracle's jewel was presented Neighbor Jennie Law. Oracle Minnie Young presented gold pieces to each of the installing officers.

POULTRY ASSOCIATION SPENT $1,000 IN PREMIUMS

South County Poultry and Pet Stock association held its eighteenth annual meeting at Caledonian hall Tuesday evening. William J. Collins was re-elected president. Harry Pellett was elected superintendent of the hall for the next annual exhibit which will probably be held in the state armory around Thanksgiving time.

The reports showed that the association went through a successful year, but expenditures were heavy for the last annual show. More than $1,000 was expended in premiums. The matter of holding a conference between various poultry associations of the state as to the holding of shows next year was discussed. The idea is to arrange dates so that they will not conflict, and exhibition coops hired might be transferred from one place to another at a great saving to the associations. After the meeting the members went to a local restaurant for a turkey supper. The other officers chosen were: Donald Chappell, Charles H. Gavitt, Mrs. Thomas E. Robinson, Stuart Cruickshank, vice presidents; Tom Thorp, secretary; Earl Wills, treasurer; George L. Stillman, chairman, Harry Pellett, James Tetlow, Louis D. Steadman, J. Ernest Young, Sampson Spry, H. P. Clark, executive committee; Mrs. T. E. Robinson and Fred Simons, auditors.

Mrs. Eleanor Lucy, past department president and her staff Conductor Bertha Pollard and Color Bearers Jessie Goodman, Pauline Reisers, R. Carrie Chapman and Marie Frances of Mystic conducted the work. The following officers were installed:

President, Bertha Stapleton; senior vice president, Cora Fuller; junior vice president, Bertha Burnham; secretary, Alida Chappell; treasurer, Hattie J. Coon; chaplain, Anna Merriss; conductor, Mildred Collins; guard, Grace Worthington; assistant conductor, Gertrude Roche; assistant guard, Grace Smith; patriotic instructor, Sarah Vredenburg; press correspondent, Carrie Dawley; first color bearer, Mattie Ecclestine; second color bearer, Evelyn Macdonald; third color bearer, Hazel Lenard; fourth color bearer, Kathleen Freeman; musician Mabelle Brown. The president, in behalf of the corps, presented Mrs. Lucy a gift, Mrs. Macdonald a gold piece. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served.

SENIORS TO REPEAT GOLDSMITH COMEDY

In Senior Dramatics at Westerly high school this year the play previously given will be repeated. "She Stoops to Conquer," a comedy in five acts, by Oliver Goldsmith, has been chosen as the play to be given two evenings in February, in High School hall. The principal roles in the comedy will be played by two casts, but the minor characters will be taken by the same students at both presentations. The play will be directed by Miss Jane B. Stanton, dramatics instructor.

Junior Prom Committee

Everett Green, Frank Acolina, James Fredericks, Miles Coulbourn, Robert Roan, Mario Albamonti, Gertrude Sologon, Eleanor Ruisi and Minnie Feliccetti of the junior class of Westerly high school were appointed a committee to make arrangements for the annual Junior prom, to be held in February.

Gibson-Dayon

In Pawcatuck, Friday, Jan. 4th, Elleanor M. Dayon, of 24 Wilford court, Pawcatuck, became the bride of Archibald Gibson of 31 Summer street Westerly. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Luther G. Coburn of St. Michael's church, Pawcatuck.

Bridge Party Held In Spite of Cold!

Don't despair some day your social calendar is full, and you awake with a miserable cold. Be rid of it by noon! You can, if you know the secret; a simple compound that soon settles any cold, yes, even one that has reached deep in the throat or lungs.

The smallest druggist has this wonderful tablet. Pape's Cold Compound is what they call it. Harmless, but it drives away colds quicker than all the dosing with drugs that make the head ring. Don't go to a party red-nosed and with watery eyes; get this quick relief for 35c at any drugstore.

Because the experience and suggestions gained from a million Super-Six owners led to the 64 improvements now introduced, the new Hudson is to be known as the Greater Hudson.

It is to this vast army of experts that this invitation to examine and drive the car and place upon it their appraisal is made. So emphatically does the Greater Hudson answer their wishes that we leave to them the verdict of its beauty, appearance, performance and value.

No car has ever held greater prestige from the standpoint of value. No car has been regarded as being better on the road or having such a satisfactory motor. In the Greater Hudson you will find that in these as well as other particulars a higher standard is set. No group of owners is better qualified to judge values. None know so well what smoothness and reliability—easy driving and easy riding means. So what they say of the Greater Hudson will be authoritative and conclusive. It is their judgment that we now invite.

What the Portrait Sees

Oh, I'm the ghost of a dim old past,
Of another generation;
I've lived my life, I've danced and loved,
I've watched a changing Nation.
I lived in the days when skirts were long,
And petticoats rippled and billowed;
When a lady's hair was her crowning joy
As at night 'twas brushed and pillowed.

Yes, I've lived and laughed and had my day,
Both staid and sentimental;
I spent my youth when girls were thought
To be very temperamental.
We wore our dresses tight to chin,
No arms nor legs were showing;
Our charms were hid from young men's eyes,
And they were all unknowing.

And now I'm laid upon the shelf,
With hours of meditation.
I watch the young folks flirt and dance,
And show no agitation,
When divers legs go flying past,
And bobbed heads go careening.
What's past is past and what's to come
Has now no special meaning.
And when the girls go hopping off
Across the broad Atlantic
I'd like to say—"Well, let 'em fly,"
For fame they are so frantic.
My days and nights are passed in peace
With no outside distraction;
Folks come and go—and go and come,
For I still have attraction.

—Iva H. Drew, in Concord Daily Monitor.

When Love Is Kind

When Love is kind,
Cheerful and free,
Love's sure to find
Welcome from me.
But when Love brings
Heartache or pang,
Tears and such things,—
Love may go hang!

If Love can sigh
For one alone,
Well pleased am I
To be that one;
But should I see
Love given to rove
To two or three,
Then,—good-bye, Love!

Love must, in short,
Keep fond and true
Through good report
And evil, too.
Else, here I swear,
Young Love may go,
For aught I care,
To Jericho!

—By Thomas Moore.

Stude—I couldn't find out a thing professor—they're so darn secretive.—Life.

New Patient—And is your treatment completely successful?

Nerve Specialist—My dear sir, it's so successful that only last week one of my patients tried to borrow five hundred dollars from me.—Boston Transcript.

Little Simpson—He called me a liar, and, big as he was, I knocked him sprawling.

Wife—With your fist?

Little Simpson—No, with my car.—Black and Blue Jay.

Wife—I think the cook is improving, don't you?

Hub—Improving? Why, at dinner tonight everything was bad but the coffee.

Wife—I know, but usually that's bad, too.—Exchange.

"I'd like a holiday this afternoon sir. My grandmother is dead, sir."

"But didn't I give you an afternoon off a month ago because your grandmother was dead?"

"Yes, sir—she is still dead, sir."—Sydney Bulletin.

Mr. Charles Schwab asked a colored porter who had often attended him the average tip he received and was told: "One dollar, sah." When Mr. Schwab was about to leave he handed the man that amount, whereupon the porter was profuse in his gratitude "Thank you, sah, thank you!" he said with a low bow. "You are the only gentleman what ever comes up to the average."—Boston Transcript.

Having kept the records of tens of thousands of students in the University of Chicago for 35 years, Frederick J. In his first class, beginner's French, Burney's classmates were young enough to be his grandchildren.

The lightning hazard to government flyers has become so pronounced that the Daniel Guggenheim fund for the promotion of aeronautics has announced that a widespread investigation of the subject will be conducted in the near future in conjunction with the army air corps, the navy air service and the aeronautics branch of the department of commerce. The danger of the proximity of a highly charged cloud to the airman is twofold. There is the lightning hazard and there are wind gusts, both vertical and horizontal, which makes it almost impossible for even the skilled pilot to control his plane. Balloons seem to be particularly susceptible to the lightning menace and it was early suggested that helium gas, being non-inflammable, might be used instead of hydrogen, which is inflammable. Airplanes likewise have their share of lightning tragedies, notably that in which Lieutenant Carranza, Mexican good-will flyer, recently lost his life.

Patronize These Well Known Concerns

LET THE NORWICH GLASS COMPANY REPAIR THOSE BREAKS

The Norwich Glass company at 5 Bath street stands ready at all times to go to the rescue of people who unfortunately break windows at their homes. Accidents which cause breaking of glass in furniture as well as windows are happening all the time. Some people put off repairing these broken pieces and allow them to spoil.

A broken pane of glass in a new house, or in an old house, may cause hundreds of times its value in damage if it is not immediately repaired. Picture a home with expensive furniture. A window is broken and the owner sticks in a piece of cardboard and says: "I'll fix that Saturday or Sunday, when I get time." A day passes and the sun shines. Everything is rosy that day. The family retires and during the night a storm comes up. Rain soon soaks up the cardboard and it falls from the window. Then the rain begins its work of destruction in earnest. Of course the family may realize the danger and rush downstairs immediately and repair the broken cardboard. However some expensive article has been ruined a curtain, shade, or drape torn. And all this because a glass that could cost perhaps from 50 cents to a dollar, plus a little work, was not immediately replaced.

The Norwich Glass company has glass for every purpose, and also repairs and resilvers mirrors. Why put up with a blurry old mirror when a few dollars will make it new again?

If anything in this article applies to your particular case, or if you have any problem in glass fitting to be solved, drop in and see us or call 2463 Norwich and tell us about it. We are at your service.

RICKER'S PHARMACY IS A FRIEND IN NEED FOR HUNDREDS

At this season of the year, when there is usually more than the regular amount of colds and sickness, it is at least pleasant to know that the drug store, the friend next to the doctor, stands but a few short steps from your door.

To the hundreds of people on the West Side, Ricker's Drug Store is that friend. Sickness comes suddenly and a doctor is called. Immediate medical attention is recommended. At once a member of the family is sent out for medicine. Then Ricker's Drug Store stands as a friend in need. It is not necessary to travel far from home and waste many precious minutes. A few steps take you to Ricker's store, where two registered pharmacists are on hand to take your prescription and compound it immediately. Thus the much-needed medicine is soon brought back to the home and the work of restoring the sick to good health begins almost immediately.

Besides the modern and efficient prescription department, Ricker's Drug Store also carries complete lines of prepared medicines, candy, tobacco and various other needed articles.

Another popular feature of Ricker's store is the soda fountain. At all seasons of the year this fountain is cared for by employes of the store and patrons are certain of securing immediate service.

If you have not had the habit of dropping into Ricker's Drug Store for your medical needs, pay us a visit the next time you are in need of any of the articles which we carry. We feel sure that you will be pleased with our service and thus become another supporter of the neighborhood drug store—the friend in need when friends are needed the most—and when big downtown stores are too far away to respond to the urgent call of immediate service.

NUTMEG CLUB BEVERAGES ARE ALWAYS PLEASANT

At this season of the year most families in Norwich are doing considerable entertaining. Liquid refreshments, a sparkling glass of ginger ale, are a necessary thing to make these parties a success. Why should any Norwich host or hostess find themselves without the necessary beverages when the season of entertaining is at its height?

Call 2212-2 and ask the company to put you on its list of patrons who are now enjoying daily or weekly service. This service may be provided at times most convenient to you. If you need a case of soda each week, delivery can be made on that basis. More orders may also be added as needed.

Water is a good drink but there are times when water does not seem to hit the spot. That is the time when Nutmeg club beverages stand up and shout "Here we are!" These sparkling beverages have the "just right" flavor that seems to get at that dry spot and stop that craving for something to drink—but not water.

GOV. TRUMBULL'S INAUGURAL ADDRESS

HARTFORD, Jan. 9—(AP)—The text of Gov. John H. Trumbull's inaugural address, delivered to the new general assembly yesterday, follows:

Mr. President, Mr. Speaker and Members of the General Assembly:

It has been my firm conviction that the most important function of the governor of this state is to be the presiding director of a large and complex business organization. For the past four years, both in the administration of the state's affairs and in my recommendations to the legislature, I have put this idea uppermost, with the thought that in the elimination of waste, the installation of modern methods of accountancy, the centralization of responsibility on the part of all disbursing agencies, a more careful supervision of the budget, and a wholesale reduction of unnecessary overhead, our whole financial and governmental structure would be necessarily strengthened.

In this conception of one of the most important functions of the state, the legislature has been an essential factor. Without the intelligent cooperation of the legislature, the administrative branch of the government is helpless to secure any substantial reform in fiscal policy.

I feel, therefore, that this, my third message to a general assembly, must commence with an expression of real appreciation that through the ample cooperation of the two general assemblies preceding you, we have been able to go a long way toward translating these ideas into results. I am grateful for the confidence with which these legislatures have placed at the disposal of the administration instrumentalities whereby these changes could be brought about, and I am gratified at being able to report that the results sought for, have been, in large measure, accomplished.

In a special message to the general assembly in 1927, I suggested the advisability of adopting methods whereby the state might, to its advantage, avail itself of many of the modern methods of finance which are approved by the best business practice and experience. I emphasized the problem of our budget, and the precautions which should be taken in connection with capital expenditures, the need of a balance sheet to show completely the actual financial condition of the entire state government. And in particular I recommended a law whereby the functions of the state board of finance and the board of control might be coordinated. The legislature did enact such a law and you are all familiar with the improved financial structure of the state government, resulting from this legislation.

It is highly gratifying to report that after 18 months the accomplishments of the department of finance and control have exceeded all reasonable expectations. The change has been amply justified, and while, of necessity, the board has had to devote considerable time to organization and investigation, the work is now well in hand, and we may look forward for even greater accomplishments in the future.

There will be submitted to you by the board of finance and control the budget for the next biennium. For the first time in the history of the state a budget based on exhaustive research, investigation and study is being submitted to you. As I have suggested on another occasion, in the matter of long range planning of capital expenditures, we should provide for determination of the needs of new construction of any kind over a period of years, the conversion of the needs so determined into terms of dollars, and the incorporating of them in work programs and budget estimates. This has been the aim of the state board of finance and control. There will be submitted to you in the budget projects for capital expenditure approximating seven million dollars. Chief among them will be the recommendation for an appropriation to increase the institutional facilities for the mentally sick by building a third hospital for the insane in Fairfield county. The need of this additional institution in that thickly populated section of the state has been long apparent.

Another recommendation for capital expenditure will be the purchase of the site and the erection of a state office building. At the present time the state's central administrative offices are distributed throughout different buildings. This is a result of the rapid growth of the state's business, whereby the capitol building itself has become inadequate to accommodate the departments. For instance, the practice of issuing motor vehicle registrations from the capitol, resulting as it does in periodical congestion of practically the entire building, is not desirable, and this condition grows increasingly objectionable as the number of registrations continues to advance. The need for such a building is apparent, I believe, to all of us.

Other capital expenditures recommended will be for the Connecticut state hospital, Mansfield state training school, and tuberculosis sanitaria. I am able to assure you that the need of these institutions has been thoroughly investigated, and that they have been included in the budget only after the most careful deliberation and research. I earnestly recommend for your approval, and I hope that you will adopt, the budget in substantially the form in which it has been recommended.

While I am on the topic of state finances, may I again repeat my oft-stated conviction that the "pay as you go" policy is as sound a principle for the state as for any other business institution. Because of the improved financial structure of the state government we are more than ever well able to provide for capital expenditures out of current revenue, after allowance for maintenance and operating expenses. There is absolutely no need, and I am thoroughly opposed, to the issuance of bonds, except in the event of an unforeseen emergency. No such emergency is now apparent.

The suggestion of a state income tax has lately been given considerable publicity. I am unalterably opposed to this source of revenue, not only because the method, based as it is on the income of individuals, is apt to serve as an invitation to extravagance on the part of the taxing power, but because it is repugnant to and violates all of our conceptions in Connecticut of a fiscal program. Our aim is not to increase the tax burden, but rather to decrease it wherever possible, and in this regard, when you have completed your deliberations and have carefully considered the budget, you will share with me in the opinion that we may, with propriety, decrease the state tax on towns by at least $250,000, and I so recommend.

Duties of the Executive.

Because of existing statutes creating the governor an ex-officio officer of many boards, the possibility exists that he may find himself in an embarrassing and inconsistent position. In our scheme of operations, various boards consider their needs, pass on them, and in turn recommend them to the board of finance and control. Consider, then, if you will, the governor on the one hand sitting as a member of the board of some institution which has in mind requesting the board of finance and control to recommend a large appropriation. It means the approval of the particular board, and in due course is presented for consideration by the board of finance and control, of which board the governor is likewise a member, and chairman.

As I have said at the outset of this message, I believe the most important function of the governor is to be the presiding director of a large and complex business organization. Consistent with that belief, I deem it my more important function to preside at meetings of the board of finance and control, and therefore feel that it would be wise to relieve the governor from membership on those boards where he might be called upon to act in this dual capacity.

Motor Vehicles

The importance of adequate and progressive legislation relative to the subject of motor vehicles is well understood. Our personal experience and the press of the state and nation daily bring to our minds the mass of problems arising from this outstanding development in our economic and social life.

The commissioner of motor vehicles will bring to your attention various regulatory matters that have been based upon careful study of traffic conditions and accident statistics. They will merit a very careful consideration by you. I desire to bring to your attention two suggestions for your consideration that may assist in lessening accident and enhancing the element of safety.

It seems to me that there should be a standardization of traffic rules, applicable to the entire state. Automobile traffic today is being regulated in areas of five, six or seven square miles, with no two areas agreeing on any one set of rules. The automobile is just as much an interstate vehicle as the steam railroad and it should be regulated as such, that is, by the state rather than by local authorities. At present, no two cities agree whether one may turn right against the red light, or whether one may cross in front or around a traffic signal. These and numerous other differences, in the regulatory measures must inevitably lead to confusion. Such a situation is not conducive to clear thinking on the part of the driver or the pedestrian.

Too much attention cannot be given to the supervision of qualifications for the operating of a motor vehicle. Under our present statute a licensed operator satisfies the requirements of the law by merely forwarding his application for renewal to the department of motor vehicles. Thousands of opeartors of motor vehicles have been renewing their licenses for 10, 15 and 20 years, although during that time they may have acquired any kind of mental or physical defect, rendering them absolutely unfit to drive an automobile. I believe that all licensed operators should be re-examined at least once every three years. The cost of the re-examination might well be borne by the applicant and I am convinced that such a re-examination will take from our highways operators who are now a menace to the public at large because of physical or mental impairment.

In considering the various regulatory matters it would be well for you to take into account the magnitude of the task of administering and enforcing such laws and the imperative need of providing physical equipment and funds for this important work. Among other needs, provision should be made, without delay, for adequate housing of the Motor Vehicle Department.

Banking

The problems incident to the supervision of state chartered banks become each year more numerous and complicated. The growth of these institutions has been phenomenal, but healthy.

Our banking laws are broad enough to provide for the legitimate expansion of the activities of our banks, but sufficiently rigid to insure sound banking practices. The banking department has maintained strict and constructive supervision over the institutions under its jurisdiction, which has tended to promote the adoption of uniformly high standards and up-to-date methods. The plane of banking in this state has been raised to a high level. Under our laws, there is no distinction between state banks and trust companies, as both enjoy full banking and trust powers. For many years these institutions have operated under the independent unit banking system and are prohibited by law from operating branch offices. They have been highly successful, under this system, and without going into a discussion of the advantage and disadvantage of branch banking, I feel that any change in our present system should come only after the most careful deliberation and study.

For some time past it has been the custom of the state to grant special charters to corporations, including in their powers the right to act in a fiduciary capacity. Although a number of such corporations are now in existence, as they have not been confused with banking institutions, as they have not been recognized, nor thought of as trust companies within the meaning of our laws. However, the possibility exists, that one or all of such corporations may be one means or another so designate themselves that the implication is carried to the public that it enjoys banking powers together with the fiduciary powers defined in its charter. Should such a happen, and companies specially chartered by the General Assembly, were to be known as, and discharge the functions of trust companies, the intent of the present banking laws would be defeated.

I earnestly urge that the General Assembly carefully inquire into this matter, and that such action be taken as appears necessary and proper to clarify and remedy the situation so as to definitely establish the status of any corporation having the right to act in a fiduciary capacity, but enjoying no general banking powers. Such action is necessary to relieve the apprehension that exists on the part of regularly organized state bank and trust companies, and national banks doing business in Connecticut.

I would further urge that the practice of granting fiduciary powers to specially chartered corporations be discontinued, unless such corporation carry full banking powers. In other words, the right to act in a fiduciary capacity should be restricted to banks and trust companies. While recognizing the power of the General Assembly to grant bank charters, if it sees fit, I feel that the policy of the state, which has been followed so successfully for many years, of referring all such applications to the banking commission, should be continued.

It is the duty of the bank commissioner to administer existing laws relating to the sale of securities. Connecticut has no conventional blue sky law or general securities act, but has an act regulating the sale of mining or oil securities and a law requiring investment companies to be licensed by the bank commissioner. Each year vast sums of money are lost by our citizens through the purchase of fraudulent and worthless securities, and it seems to me to be the duty of the state to protect its people so far as it is possible to do so, from making investments in securities of this type. Too many lives have been sacrificed and homes wrecked through the placing of the savings of a lifetime in questionable enterprises.

Our present laws, though limited in scope, have been administered effectively, but they are inadequate and do not in all cases allow us to reach promoters and unscrupulous salesmen who, by high-pressure salesmanship and unfair methods induce our citizens to purchase worthless securities. I believe that the General Assembly should study this problem and enact laws designed to eliminate fraud, so that it will be possible to deal directly and effectively with any individual or corporation offering securities of questionable value to our citizens. From my study of the situation, I am of the opinion that a strong fraud law will be more effective than legislation of the conventional blue sky type, requiring registration of securities. In your study of this problem, you will have the able assistance of the bank commissioner, and I am sure his services will be always at your command.

Department of Attorney General

In my last inaugural message, I strongly urged that the attorney general's office be made a department of state with provisions for adequate equipment, both legal and clerical, and that the department be charged with the providing of such legal service to the various departments as may, from time to time, be required. The legislature acted favorably upon my recommendation and the department has been gradually developed to meet the entire needs of the state. The extent of development necessary should be determined only by the amount of service called upon to be rendered, and this, of necessity, can be determined only by ascertaining what the actual needs are.

I recommend that the course of development which has been pursued be continued until the department is able to meet all the demands made upon it, and to that end that adequate provisions be made for this development.

I am still firmly of the belief that all legal matters pertaining to the state and its various departments should be directly referrable to the attorney general, or, in other words, that all matters of a legal nature should be under his direct supervision.

In that connection, I have had it in mind for some time to suggest the possibility that even the work of the various state's attorneys might well be centralized under the attorney general, in the interest of economy, efficiency and uniformity of procedure. In examining the expenses and salaries incident to the state's attorneys' offices for the last fiscal year, amounting to over $200,000, it is of interest to note that by far the largest portion of this sum is chargeable to expenses which obviously could be lessened by a central administration. It seems, also, that the division of the work of the state's attorneys and their assistants is based, to some extent at least, upon arbitrary county lines, without regard to local differences in the number and character of prosecutions. Such a condition necessarily produces differences in the care with which and the means by which cases are prepared, and the manner in which they are presented, by the several prosecutors. The results are neither uniform or satisfactory, in all instances. There will be other considerations, both for and against such a change which will doubtless be commended to your attention, should you wish to consider legislation of this character. I can only say at this time that the suggestion seems in line with the policy of eliminating unnecessary effort and of fairly distributing an important function of the state.

Law Enforcement

Two years ago I said in my message to the general assembly that I did not feel "that the administration of law and the maintenance of order ever properly involves a question of policy. The only right policy of a state founded on law is to enforce the law, and the only wrong policy is the failure to so act. The safety and well-being of all citizens depends materially upon the suppression and adequate punishment of criminal offenses in so far as the resources of the state and the limitations of human ability permit, it is, however, obvious that neither disrespect for the law nor the difficulties attendant on its enforcement are lessened by keeping alive statutory crimes which have become archaic, either because they no longer meet modern conditions or because they no longer represent the will of the electorate. The legislature has a solemn obligation to provide for the repeal of all such statutes. Only in so far as our laws represent the wishes of the law abiding majority will they merit the wholesome respect which is essential to their proper enforcement."

I am still of the same opinion, and cannot add anything to these sentiments to more clearly express my thoughts on law enforcement.

Interstate Water Rights

Prior to the last session of the general assembly, it had come to the attention of the chief executive that the commonwealth of Massachusetts had passed a special act authorizing the diversion of the waters of the Ware and Swift rivers for the purpose of adding to the water supply of the metropolitan district, which includes the city of Boston and some twenty adjoining towns. The Ware and Swift rivers forming as they do in part the Chicopee river, are tributary waters of the Connecticut river, an interstate stream. I brought this matter to the attention of the last general assembly, and a special act was passed placing in the hands of the attorney general, with the approval of the governor, the duty of protecting the interests of the state and the waters of interstate streams. During 1927, work was commenced by the commonwealth of Massachusetts in the construction of aqueducts and tunnels preparatory to the diversion of these two rivers, and permits were requested from the war department for the authorization of these diversions by the secretary of war. The granting of these permits was actively opposed by the state of Connecticut and resulted in the War river permit being withheld by the war department pending the outcome of court proceedings concerning this diversion. The application as to the Swift river is still pending before the war department.

In January, 1928, the attorney general, with the approval of the governor, brought a bill in equity to the supreme court of the United States, seeking to restrain the commonwealth of Massachusetts from diverting any of the waters of the tributaries of the Connecticut river. This case is still pending in that court. The legal principles involved in this court action include the protection of the public health, the rights and property interests of the large number of riparian owners along the Connecticut river, the navigability of the river and the sovereign rights of the state to preserve the natural resources of the state for the use of its people. These principles affect not only the Connecticut river, but every other river in Connecticut which flows into our state from a neighboring state, and are of vital interest to our people in the future development of the communities bordering on these streams, as well as the interests of riparian owners.

The preparation of a case of this magnitude involves an exceptional amount of engineering and legal research. While a considerable proportion of this work has already been done, there is necessarily a great deal more which will have to be completed before the case is ready for trial. The state has engaged experienced and capable engineers and the attorney general's office has retained eminent counsel to assist in the preparation of the legal phases of the case. This has become a matter of national importance, involving as it does questions of state rights and questions involving the use of interstate streams, which are becoming more and more important in all sections of the country. The prepare properly this case and develop it to its utmost will require considerable expenditures, and adequate funds should be appropriated for prosecuting it to a successful conclusion.

State Water Commission

It is a source of considerable gratification that the work of the state water commission has progressed rapidly and that there exists a strong public sentiment in support of the work undertaken. This support comes, not only from the people at large, but has been tangibly manifested by those responsible for the government of the cities and towns of the state, as well as the representatives of industry.

Tremendous strides have been made in the correction of pollution in the waterways by state institutions. Great progress has been made in the problems tending domestic sewage and industrial waste.

When the state water commission was created, not any of the existing laws bearing on the subject of public waterways and their pollution were rescinded. As a result, there is an overlapping of functions between this and other state departments, more particularly the department of health, and while the relations of these departments are of the most harmonious nature and each cooperate with the other, the fact remains that inter-department friction, with consequences detrimental to the transaction of public business may result.

I recommend that such laws which are inconsistent or may cause an overlapping of functions be rescinded so there may be no confusion in the carrying out of the functions of the various departments.

Conservation.

The people of Connecticut are taking a new and lively interest in protection of the state's natural resources. This is fortunate, for it insures an intelligent and constructive program of the protection and development of those resources upon which we are increasingly dependent for our economic independence, our happiness and our wealth.

Until comparatively recent years, our forests have been neglected and cut-over lands have been left to grow into almost worthless sprout land, instead of being reforested with valuable timber. Today Connecticut is setting a fine example by clearing areas of these neglected lands and planting them systematically and scientifically so that eventually they will be productive of merchantable lumber.

The fresh water supply of the state, of vital importance to the increasing demand of the rapidly growing population has been grossly polluted in many places. This evil has been growing for generations and has been cumulative in its effect. We are now making a determined effort to conserve and clean our fresh water supply in time to provide for the new demand which is already in sight.

The feathered and fur-bearing life of the woods and the edible fish life of the ponds, lakes, streams and rivers have suffered tremendously due to the density of population. This valuable life, so important to nature's balance, must be preserved and adequately protected by state sanctuaries for the benefit of the farmer, sportsman and all lovers of outdoor recreation.

The commercial fishes of the sound and the migratory fishes, such as the shad and smelt that enter our streams and rivers each spring to spawn, have likewise received the attention of the state. Their habits have been studied, and great strides have been made to increase their numbers.

The program of reforestation and the conservation of our natural resources is worthy of your liberal support and merits financial assistance to accomplish its effectiveness.

Aviation.

Two years ago in my message to the general assembly, I said it was becoming increasingly obvious that aeronautic communication was to play a large part in our economic situation. Since that time aviation had developed tremendously, but even more especially has been the change in the attitude of the public towards it as an economic factor in the future of transportation.

Two years ago the total investment in airports in this state was not in excess of $200,000 and that was confined to one municipality and one private development. Today the investment represents the sum of two and one-half millions dollars. There are three municipal developments and six private enterprises. To illustrate the public appreciation of the airport, the city of Hartford has, within the past year, appropriated one and one-half million dollars for the protection, extension and development of Brainard field.

Several other municipalities and other private enterprises have made substantial beginnings on various programs of development, and still other programs are being retarded because of problems that can be met only by complete cooperation and assistance of the legislature. For example, in a number of instances, the only available and practicable site for the development of an airport is outside of the corporate limits of the municipality interested, and under the present law, that fact would prove a complete bar to the desired development.

I believe and I recommend that such cities or towns be authorized to carry out such projects, even to the extent of condemning land to be used for the purpose. In other instances, the only available site is crossed or cut up by secondary and tertiary roadways. Some means should be devised to simplify and expedite the closing or removal of such roads, in proper cases.

Frequently the development of airports is handicapped because of the existence either in the area or adjacent to it, of hazardous objects such as tall trees, telephone and telegraph cables. As time goes on and more airports are developed this problem will become more serious. In order to have the approachways cleared of all possible obstacles, the Department of Aviation should have the power to cause their removal very much in the manner as the Public Utilities Commission may order the elimination of grade crossings. The element of safety must at all times have our concern and all things possible to safeguard lives and property must be undertaken. Several regulatory measures could, with propriety, be adopted, such as empowering municipalities to zone the territory surrounding the airport in order that clear approaches may be guaranteed.

I have said above, that aeronautic communication is playing a large part in our economic situation. By way of example, let me say that the industries of the state two years ago produced aircraft accessories to the value of not more than $500,000; yet during the past year the products of this new industry have increased to approximately $3,000,000.

It is elementary and needless to point out that as the industry expands, airports are as essential as docks and piers to the steamships and right-of-ways to the railroads.

Since the adjournment of the last General Assembly, the state has procured an option on a tract of land at Groton, Connecticut. This area lends itself admirably to the development of an airport. I consider it of most importance that an appropriation be made in order to enable the state exercise its option and to purchase the land. Last summer it was used for the National Guard Air Squadron as a training base, and while it is of prime importance in the field of aviation, it is also considered as a purchase of land from the investment standpoint very desirable.

Highway Department.

Constantly increasing travel by roadway has made the work of the Highway Department of the greatest importance to the state. Both in the carrying out of an intelligent long range program of construction and in the maintenance of roadways already in use, this department has been conspicuously successful. The results have merited and have received, the sympathetic cooperation of previous legislatures, and the enthusiastic approval of those whose business and pleasure are directly affected by good roads.

It is a matter for congratulation, also that the program of this department can go forward without increase in the appropriation for this purpose. As a result of careful planning and economic administration, I believe we have reached the peak of expenditure for new road construction, and that the program as planned will keep pace with the increased use of our highways.

Healing Arts

Matters affecting the administration of the state board of healing arts have, during the past few years, been brought prominently to public attention. It has become increasingly apparent that the present law is inadequate to care for some of the problems which have arisen, and are likely to arise. It is obvious that the law should be clear in its statement of the prerequisites for practice in any of the healing arts, that the facilities for examination of applicants should be ample to insure properly trained and competent practitioners, and that persons improperly licensed or practicing, and those who have secured licenses by fraud, should be subjected to appropriate disciplinary, or criminal prosecution, upon the recommendation of the state board.

Specifically, it seems necessary to clarify the statute with respect to educational prerequisites for the licensing of chiropractors so that the law shall definitely provide for three years' instruction before a license can be secured. The present law can be satisfied by completion of a three-year course in a reputable college in a time less than three years.

Specifically, also, provisions such as the recording of licenses should apply uniformly to all branches of the healing arts.

The situation as to the board of eclectic examiners has been a distinct embarrassment, not only to the governor, but to the profession, for the reason that it has ben found difficult if not impossible to secure accredited eclectic physicians who are willing to act on such a board. The state board should have some general powers which would permit it to appoint a special board of examiners in such cases, or to proceed independently if occasion demanded.

In dealing with persons improperly licensed or practicing, or persons who have secured licenses unlawfully, the state board of healing arts should have broad disciplinary powers, including the authority to summarily revoke licenses for cause.

There should also be authority vested in the attorney general to prosecute such offenders upon the recommendation of the state board.

Judicial Council

In accordance with Chapter 190 of the Public Acts of 1927, the judicial council, created by that act, has rendered its biennial report to the governor upon the work of the various branches of the judicial system, together with recommendations in connection therewith. The report and recommendations are the result of painstaking study and represent many hours of exhaustive deliberation and research. They treat of such matters as an improvement in the selection of jurors; the suspension of sentences in criminal cases; the special handling of petty violations of motor vehicle laws; the simplification of appellate procedure, and various enactments looking to expediting litigation and lightening its cost, both to the state and to the individual; additional procedural reforms, and many other topics that are of greatest public concern. The report is too voluminous to be dealt with in detail in this message, but I shall take occasion at a later date to transmit it to you. I believe that the council's recommendations are calculated to make our judicial system a more effective instrument of justice, and as such they merit and will, I am sure, receive, your earnest consideration.

Clerk of Bills

Many of my predecessors, including Governors Woodruff, Lilley and Baldwin have recommended that the office of the clerk of bills should be permanent. I concur in this opinion.

It seems to me that this office might properly function between sessions as a clearing house for past and prospective legislation. It would be, in my judgment, for the public interest, to increase the duties of the clerk of bills so that he may prepare indices to our legislative journals and public acts, and may also annotate the general statutes. He might well be available for consultation in the drafting and preparation of bills to be presented to the legislature.

It is obvious that such a work would materially lessen the labors of the revisors of our general statutes, and would do much toward the elimination of inconsistencies in future revisions.

I recommend that this receive your serious consideration, and that you will approve of a measure that will increase the duties of the clerk of bills so that the office may be on a permanent basis.

Athletics

My attention has been directed to a situation existing in the field of sports that seems to require remedial legislation.

Amateur boxing matches are too frequently conducted for gain by irresponsible persons who are not concerned with the welfare and physical condition of the contestants. Frequently the boxers are not physically fit, or are unevenly matched, and many are too young to engage in such a contest. As a result, many injuries, and more than one death, have been reported.

Under existing laws there is no supervision over such contests, and it seems proper to consider legislation whereby the athletic commission shall

BULL REACTION RESUMED COMPLETE CONTROL OF MARKET YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—(AP)—With fears of an increase in the New York Federal Reserve bank's rediscount rate this week definitely on the wane, the bull party resumed control of the stock market in vigorous fashion today, marking up more than a score of important issues from 3 to more than 14 points.

The operations for the advance were stimulated by a drop in the call money rate to 6 per cent which came at a time when bankers have been predicting that there would be few dips below 7 per cent for some time to come. Funds came in from the interior and Canada in some volume today, including a $2,000,000 gold shipment from the Dominion.

Possibility of a rise in the New York rediscount rate appeared more remote, when it was reported in banking circles that the New York banks have paid off some $200,000,000 of their indebtedness at the reserve bank. The New York institutions placed some $600,000,000 into the stock market over the year end when interior banks and corporations were withdrawing their funds. Since that time, however, it is estimated that they have called loans amounting to about $500,000,000.

The federal reserve brokers loans compilation, to be issued after the close of the market tomorrow, is anxiously awaited in the hope that it will snow a substantial reduction. Wall street also awaits the action of the Bank of England tomorrow with some trepidation. If the bank raises its rediscount rate, a rise in the New York rate in the not far distant future will be regarded as a practical certainty.

Bankers were inclined to the opinion today, however, that the New York Reserve bank will await the results of the increases in its bankers acceptance rates, and that a jump in its rediscount rate would be preceded by increases in the rates of the four reserve banks still on a 4 1-2 rate.

The day's news was notably bullish. The steel trade reviews reported a marked acceleration in activity, with Chicago mills running at 87 per cent of capacity, and the average for U. S. Steel Corp. mills, 86 per cent. F. W. Woolworth increased its dividend rate from $5 to $6 annually, and Archer Daniels Midland declared a 100 per cent stock dividend in addition to raising its annual rate from $3 to $4. In the petroleum industry, Standard of New Jersey arranged to acquire Beacon Oil, and here was a rumor that Superior and Louisiana would merge.

Steel shares were prominent in the upturn. U. S. Steel forged ahead 6 points, in anticipation that its unfilled tonnage report tomorrow will be particularly favorable. Bethlehem, Colorado Fuel and Iron and Vanadium also forged ahead. A. M. Byers moved up on granting of rights.

Motors also took a definite turn for the better, with the General Motors old stock mounting more than 9 points to 204 3-4 on its last day of trading. Only the new stock will be traded in beginning tomorrow. The old reached a peak of 224 3-4 last year. Chrysler, Studebaker, Packard and Pierce Arrow issues also forged ahead.

Merchandising shares made the most striking gains, led by National Bellas Hess, which made an extreme gain of more than 14 points. May Department stores gained nearly 8 points. Coppers also showed renewed strength. Curtiss and Wright Aeros made extreme gains of about 6 points.

General American Tank Car touched a new peak at 102, up more than 6 points, in expectation of a 4 per cent dividend declaration in addition to the regular cash dividend at the Jan. 25 meeting, and as a result of new buying amusement shares were strong, particularly Loews. There were unconfirmed rumors of a merger with Fox, although the buying was largely attributed to improved earnings.

Sinclair Oil encountered good buying on reports that dividend will be resumed after a 5-year lapse at the next meeting. Superior and Louisiana improved on merger talk, but Beacon encountered selling on the announcement of acquisition by Standard of New Jersey.

Radio made an extreme gain of about 12 points, but lost half of it. Case Threshing sold off 35 points at one time, while Archer Daniels Midland and Woolworth encountered "selling on the good news" of the dividend actions. National Lead yielded 4 points. The commodity markets were generally firm. Cotton overcame early heaviness and closed with most positions substantially higher on bullish reports from dry goods markets, although trading was dull. Wheat was strong on reports that the weather had damaged the winter crop, and corn improved as storms hampered the movement to the markets.

Foreign exchanges were quiet, with sterling slightly firmer, although a number of European currencies eased.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—(AP)—Several large railroad equipment orders and inquiries were reported today. Missouri Pacific placed orders totaling $1,124,000, split between St. Louis Car company and American Car & Foundry company. Illinois Central is inquiring for 1,500 coal cars, 200 flat cars and 15 switching engines. Union Pacific is reported in market for 25 coaches, 25 baggage cars and five horse express cars.

Jesse R. Taylor, formerly treasurer of American Tobacco company, has been elected a vice president of United Cigar Stores Co. He was formerly a vice-president and acting president of United.

Sales of Melville Shoe corporation of New York in 1928 increased to $22,436,557 from $17,798,943 in 1927.

Sales of the G. R. Kinney company of New York chain stores totaled $19,227,802 in 1928, compared to $17,667,077 in 1927.

Standard Commercial Tobacco Company, Inc., of New York announces sale of tobacco, involving $1,000,000 to the Italian government tobacco monopoly.

Wall street understands directors of Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation will take action this quarter on resumption of dividends on the common stock after a lapse of five years.

Treasury Balance

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—(AP)—Treasury receipts for January 7 were $6,474,857.21; expenditures $15,013,752.30; balance $279,399,891.81.

COTTON

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—(AP)—Cotton futures closed very steady, 16 to 21 points higher. Spot steady; middling 20.25.

Calf Is Well Tailed

WHITEBIRD, Idaho, (AP)—A three-tailed calf was born on the George Wyckoff ranch near here. Two tails are on the right shoulder and the other where a tail should be. Otherwise the animal is normal.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN EASTERN CONN.

During the first week in 1929 there were five building permits granted by Acting Fire Marshal Henry R. Taft. The estimated cost of the construction work outlined in the permits is approximately $4300. The permits include one for the remodeling of the store at the corner of Main street and Broadway formerly occupied by George Engler. Work on this store has been started by Contractor P. F. Sweeney who is doing the work for Harry M. Land owner of the property. Mr. Sweeney also is remodeling the store at 21 Broadway which is to be occupied by the Western Union Telegraph Co. A new front and general repairing of the floors and walls are included in the work.

The permits issued during the past week are as follows:

To Oscar H. Main to erect a frame shed to cover one storage bin for sand and gravel on Hamilton avenue. The shed will be 15x20 feet. The estimated cost is $100.

To Rosaire Perrone to erect a single car garage at 107 Palmer St. The garage will be of frame construction, 10x18 feet. The estimated cost is $100.

To P. F. Sweeney to alter and extend the buildings and lumber sheds at the new dock for H. F. and A. J. Dawley. The estimated cost is $1,000.

To P. F. Sweeney to alter the corner store in the Wauregan hotel building at the corner of Main and Broadway for Harry M. Land. The present front of the store will be removed and an entirely new front installed. Alterations to the interior will also be made. The estimated cost is $2400

To P. F. Sweeney to alter present store at 21 Broadway for Harry M. Land. The front of the store will be set back to the present small window On the interior the walls will be replastered, partitions built and the floors repaired. The work is being done for the Western Union Telegraph Co., and the estimated cost is $776.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the first week in 1929 there were seven sales of real estate in Norwich, an increase of three sales over the first week of 1928. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $39,000 and $24,200.

In New London during the past week there were eight sales of real estate as compared to four sales for the corresponding week in 1928. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $88,482 and $31,950.

New London

Arthur H. Beckwith, Lester street, has taken the permit for the erection of another house on Beckman street, making two houses which Mr. Beckwith now has under construction on the same street. The owner's plans call for a frame dwelling to be arranged for one family.

Plans have been prepared for a garage to be erected at 3 Converse street for Joseph Mark. The construction work will be done by day labor. The garage will be designed for three cars.

The contract has been awarded for a house to be built on Plant street for Michael Steinberg. From private plans, the house will be arranged for one family. The cost will be about $7,000.

Alterations are being made by R. Romeo at 802-804 1-2 Bank street. The floor will be lowered and interior changes made. The owner will have charge of the construction work.

The sum of $3,000 has already been subscribed toward a fund of $5,000 needed for the construction of a church here for the Catholic Syrian Roman parish, which is now holding church services in the home of the Rev. Anthony Aneed, 17 Home street. Nemur Gorra and Abraham Maloof are trustees of the church.

Cottrell, 3rd, and Edwin Watts, on Fort road, near Napatree Point; R. A. Sherman & Sons Co., contractors.

TURKEY POOL SAYS IT GETS THE BEST PRICES

MADILL, Okla., (AP) — Marshall county farmers, who have formed a pool to market turkeys, assert they receive better prices than growers who deal alone with buyers.

For the Thanksgiving trade, they say, a pool of 4,100 birds brought 5 cents a pound above the current market. The pool members called for bids from several firms.

Another pool of 4,100 fowls was offered for the Christmas-New Year demand, and despite the break in prices it sold for 2 cents more than the prevailing rate.

Only two days were required for assembling the flocks and delivering them.

"PREXY'S" BIRTHDAY IS HOLIDAY OCCASION

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan — (AP) — His own birthday is made by Edgar D. Lee an occasion for giving rather than receiving gifts.

He is president of Christian college at Columbia, a girls' school, and the Sunday nearest January 26 —the anniversary of his birth—he gives the students a holiday from their regular discipline.

The 1929 "celebration" will be Jan. 27, when no student will be required to attend Sunday school or church, and every girl will be permitted to sleep as late as she wishes.

"Prexy" will be 49 years old that day.

BRITISH START EFFORT TO BETTER ROAD SYSTEM

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—(AP)—Great Britain's roads are assuming more of a national character and are coming under more centralized control, according to the report of the administration of the road fund for 1928 received by the department of commerce from London.

Main routes are being made out of country lanes, weak bridges are everywhere being strengthened, and new roads and by-pass roads are being planned with a view to the growth of towns and villages. In the last year, standardized lighting for all road vehicles was established.

The huge increase in the volume of traffic during recent years has brought an entirely new classification of the roads of Great Britain, as is seen by the census being taken by the ministry of transport over the current year.

BIG METEOR HITS IN RUSSIAN FOREST

VILUISK, Siberia, Jan. 9—(AP)—A large pear-shaped meteor with a long trail, half red and half green, is reported to have been sighted from the village of Suntar.

It burst with a loud explosion and is reported to have caused considerable devastation in a forest near the village.

CONNECTICUT RECTOR HAS PREACHED 67 YEARS

HADDAM, Conn., Jan. 9—(AP)—For more than three score years the Rev. William C. Knowles, rector of the Protestant Episcopal church in the countryside village of Ponset, has preached the gospel. For half a century he has worn the same cassock in his services.

Mr. Knowles recently observed the 67th anniversary of his entrance into the ministry. Among those who worshipped with him were children of early parishioners and descendants of the settlers of Haddam and Killingworth townships, the histories of which he has written.

Beginning in 1861, Mr. Knowles was a lay reader and clergyman to the residents of Killingsworth, a town adjoining Ponset, before he was ordained 54 years ago. He recently observed his 89th birthday anniversary.

In addition to writing local histories, he has prepared a map showing the location of homes of the earliest white settlers in the towns.

TOOTH ILLS COMMON TO THE EARLY INDIANS

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 9—(AP)—The argument that eating rough foods keeps teeth in good condition may be proved fallacious.

Skeletons of 200 Indians, all between 600 and 1,000 years old, are under inspection by Alton K. Fisher of the Milwaukee public museum. The bones were excavated to determine if uncooked food gave the natives perfect teeth.

Evidence of numerous diseases of the teeth have caused a refutation of a popular theory. Mr. Fisher has found that Wisconsin Indians suffered from pyorrhea, abscesses, decayed teeth and a variety of infections.

ASHEVILLE TO GET ENKA RAYON MILLS

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Jan. 9—(AP)—Described as the largest factory of its kind in the world, the $10,000,000 Enka Rayon Mills, a Dutch manufacturing concern coming to this city, is expected to add 50,000 persons to Asheville's population.

The establishment represents an initial investment of about $35,000,000 in buildings and equipment and will employ 5,000 men.

Presumably, the plant will make rayon from cotton linters, the short hairs left on the cotton seed after the fibre is removed and which formerly was a waste product. On the whole, the linter supply is well used up annually in rayon manufacture and many plants are using wood pulp.

Governor Trumbull's Inaugural Address

have powers of supervision and regulation appropriate to the situation.

National Guard.

The national guard of this state has consistently maintained a commendable progress in all branches. Today it is in an excellent state of training, and its effectiveness as a force in promoting the security of this state and nation is well recognized.

The degree to which our national guard will continue to maintain its high standard depends upon the liberal support which is extended to it. For some time past it has been apparent that there was a real need for larger training areas. Recognizing this need, the state has acquired an option on a tract of 2000 acres in the vicinity of Eastern Point, not far from the present National Guard summer training camp at Niantic. It is believed, and I concur in the belief that this land is essential for the development and training of certain units of the National Guard which are equipped with heavy field pieces. No area is now available for the proper training of these units. I recommend that an appropriation be made to purchase this tract.

Three Hundredth Anniversary Of The Settlement Of Connecticut.

In a few years Connecticut will celebrate the three hundredth anniversary of its settlement as a colony. It is proposed that suitable plans be made for the proper observance and celebration of the occasion. I am heartily in accord with any proposal that will have for its object a proper commemoration of this historic event. In order that plans may be well considered, time is of the essence, and I recommend that a commission be appointed at this general assembly, the duties of which will be to consider and make plans for a proper observance.

Conclusion.

It is hardly necessary for me to add that the recommendations in this message are intended only as a guide to your actions, and do not in any way constitute an attempt to impose the will of the administrative branch of the state government upon the general assembly. The message of the governor serves the practical purpose of bringing up to date those members of the legislature who have, for a year and a half or longer, been out of close touch with the affairs of the state.

It may be that my own intimate contact with the problems which I have outlined will have resulted in a certain lack of perspective which it will be your function to supply.

It is more than conceivable that many of the foregoing proposals will create honest differences of opinion. The final judgment in such cases rests wholly with the general assembly, and with that judgment and the knowledge of your sympathetic and intelligent co-operation, the administration will be more than content.

Announces Candidacy For President Of Mexico

JEROME MILLER, WASH. D.C.

Jose Vasconcelos, former secretary of public education of Mexico, who has announced his candidacy for the Presidency of Mexico for the period of 1930 to 1936. Vasconcelos has already begun his campaign, and is being supported by the intellectual and wealthy classes of his country. He has just returned to Mexico after a long tour of South America, Europe and the United States, where he studied the form of government and politics.

CALIFORNIA-HAWAII PLANE IS COMPLETELY OVERHAULED

LUKE FIELD, Hawaii, Jan. 9—(AP)—The army Fokker transport plane, made famous by Lieuts. Lester J. Maitland and Albert Hegenberger in their flight from California to Hawaii a year and a half ago, has undergone its first overhauling since its epic flight.

It will be returned to its home station at Wheeler field near Honolulu after test flights of the overhauled plane are completed. The famous plane is serving as a unit in the U. S. Army squadron protecting American interests in the far western outpost of Hawaii.

GREAT GAS CLOUD IS SEEN IN SPACE

ITHACA, N. Y., Jan. 9—(AP)—A vast cloud of gas, lying in space in the northern heavens near the constellation Cassiopeia's Chair, has been found by S. L. Boothroyd, professor in charge of the Fuertes Observatory of Cornell university.

The observations were made while working at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory at Victoria, B. C.

Although the cloud is invisible even through telescopes, the spectroscope not only revealed its presence, but showed its composition, which is calcium gas. Calcium is the mineral that makes bones hard.

Many Seek Compensation

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The applications made to the government for World war compensation total 3,291,934.

Seeks the Oldest Horse

DES MOINES, (AP)—Iowa's department of agriculture wants to find the oldest horse in the state. Last year a 30 year old stallion was discovered.

LEGAL NOTICES

AT A PROBATE COURT HELD AT Killingly, within and for the district of Killingly, on the 2nd day of January, A. D., 1929.
Present, SABIN S. RUSSELL, Judge.
Estate of Michael Gavin, an incompetent person, of Killingly, in said district, deceased.
The Conservator having exhibited his account with said estate to this Court for allowance, it is Ordered, That the 12th day of January, A. D., 1929, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the Probate Office in Killingly, be, and the same is, assigned for a hearing on the allowance of said account, and this Court directs the Conservator to give notice thereof by publishing this order in some newspaper having a circulation in said District, and by posting a copy of this order on the public sign-post in the town where the deceased last dwelt, and return make to this Court.
Attest, SABIN S. RUSSELL, Judge.
Certified from Record.
SABIN S. RUSSELL, Judge.

AT A PROBATE COURT HELD AT Killingly, within and for the District of Killingly, on the 2nd day of January, A. D., 1929.
Present, SABIN S. RUSSELL, Judge.
Estate of Michael Gavin, late of Killingly, in said District, deceased.
Upon the application of Louis E. Kennedy praying that an instrument, purporting to be the last will and testament of the said deceased, be admitted to probate, as appears by said application on file,
Ordered, That said application be heard and determined at the Probate Office in Killingly, in said District, on the 12th day of January, A. D. 1929, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and that said Louis E. WARRENVILLE

Shaney-Bilts Wedding

Miss Anna Bilts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bilts, was united in marriage with Stanley J. Shaney of Reading, Pa., at Warrenville Baptist church at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The bride was dressed in white and wore a long veil. The attendants were Misses Irene and Helen Bilts, sisters of the bride, and Charles Miskin and Andrew Shaney. Rev. E. B. Verney performed the ceremony. There was a reception at the home of the bride's parents and a shower and reception at Knowlton Memorial hall Saturday night. The hall was artistically decorated. The newlyweds received many presents. Mr. and Mrs. Shaney will reside in Bridgeport.

Mrs. Norman Baker is visiting relatives in New York.

William Torillo, who has been visiting his parents here, returned to New Jersey Sunday.

There was a teachers' meeting at Storrs Monday afternoon.

On account of the storm the attendance at the Baptist church Sunday was small and the session of Sunday school was omitted. Rev. E. B. Verney preached from the text, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help," and spoke of the lessons which we can learn by a study of the works of God in nature.

Announcement was made that a fine Bible will be given the Sunday school pupil who has the best attendance record for the next six months.

COPP ESTATE LEASES NEW LONDON PROPERTY TO SCHULTE INC., NEW YORK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 9—Catherine B. Copp and others have released the lease of Abraham C. and Samuel N. Schnee, Bridgeport, of the premises 68-70 State street, occupied by the Liberty restaurant and I. Grann, women's apparel. The Copp estate leased the property, July 1, 1924 to June 30, 1974 to S. Kresge, also granting a privilege of renewal for 49 years. The Kresge interests later transferred the lease to the Messrs. Schnee. With the release today of the Schnee lease, the Copp estate leased the premises to Schult, Inc., of New York, operators of chain stores. The new lease is from Jan. 1, 1929 to June 30, 1974 for aggregate rental of $364,000, payable in equal monthly installments. A privilege of renewal is given for 49 years, dating from June 30, 1974. In the event of renewal it is agreed the aggregate rental for the additional 49 years will be $490,000.

The building and land have been leased from Catherine B., Julia, William, Belton A. and Joseph A. Copp of Groton, Judge Christopher L. Avery, Mary J. Main, Rachel and Betsy B. Larrabee, Groton; Belton A. Copp, Jr., of Memphis, Tenn.; Emily A. Burrows of Poquonoc Bridge and Belton A. Copp, Jr., of Memphis, executor under the will of Daniel N. Copp.

The lease gives the Schulte-United, Inc., the privilege of razing the present structure and erecting a new one in its place.

It is believed that the youth was waiting an opportunity to force entrance to one of the stores when discovered by the officer.

MRS. FITCH L. COMSTOCK DIES ON NEW JERSEY VISIT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 9—Mrs. Ella Gardner Comstock, of 121 Broad street widow of former City Treasurer Fitch L. Comstock, died suddenly today at the residence of her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. George M. Culver, 125 Glenwood avenue, Jersey City, N. J. Mrs. Comstock, who was of advanced years is survived, other than by her daughter, by a son, Ira M. Comstock of this city, who had been summoned to the bedside of his mother earlier in the week. Mrs. Comstock went to Jersey City several weeks ago to visit her daughter and while there she contracted the illness that terminated in her death.

DAVID CLARK INJURED—STRUCK BY GROTON TRUCK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 9—David Clark, colored, about 50, was struck by an automobile this evening and he is now a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, suffering from possible internal injuries. Clark was on Main street, corner of Church, and had mailed a letter and was struck while returning to the east side of the street. As he left the letter box and stepped into the street an automobile was approaching from the north and Clark hesitated, as though confused. He suddenly started for the opposite side just as a truck driven by Cornelius Squadrito, 18, of 175 Broad street, Groton, and traveling in the opposite direction was about to pass. Squadrito saw Clark and applied his brakes, at the same time heading the truck for the sidewalk in an effort to avoid striking the pedestrian. Squadrito was not successful, for the truck hit Clark and hurled him to the pavement. Besides the possible internal injuries, Clark suffered lacerations and bruises.

William Mossbroker, for many years superintendent of Hillside home, the city's poor farm, has made application for the place again. It is probable that a change in the head of the home will be made next month. Mossbroker, while in charge of the home, proved to be a competent official and resigned to engage in the contracting business. The present incumbent, Martin Kane, has been requested to resign, but refuses to do so, demanding that he either be discharged or retained.

Dr. James R. Linsley is confined to his home, the Thames club, by a severe attack of grip.

Another tax warrant was issued today, this time against Dudley St. C. Donnelly and Mildred E. Donnelly, husband and wife. The warrant calls for the sale of real estate on the former United States Housing corporation plot, April 4, at 9 a. m. It is claimed that Mr. and Mrs. Donnelly owe the city $294.38, which amount represents the assessment of levies of 1922-1927, inclusive.

Edward Hickey, Waterford farm hand, was arrested this evening for intoxication, his 39th time taken into custody, mostly for intoxication. He was arrested in Waterford by Constable Peabody and will be in Waterford town court Friday. He is being held a prisoner at police headquarters.

Patrolman John Foley was unable to report for duty tonight, being ill at his home on Huntington street.

AGED MONTVILLE MAN HAS WANDERED FROM HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 9—The authorities of Montville this evening requested the New London police to be on the lookout for an aged resident of that town, who, it was believed, had come to this city. The man sought is Martin Church, 85, and was described as wearing overalls and felt boots

CATHOLIC MEN PLANNING HOLY NAME DEMONSTRATION

The coming Sunday is to be observed as Holy Name Sunday by the men of St. Mary's Star of the Sea parish. They will receive communion in a body at the 8 o'clock mass, after which they will hear an address by the eloquent speaker and noted writer and scholar, Rev. James M. Gillis, C. S. P., of New York, editor of the high-grade magazine, The Catholic World. He is well known throughout the country as a lecturer on religious and educational subjects, and his sermons and discourses are frequently heard over the Paulist radio station WLWL, of New York. Father Gillis will address the men after breakfast at the Mohican hotel. Plans have been completed for the observance of Holy Name Sunday. The men will receive holy communion in a body at the 8 o'clock mass in St. Mary's church. Last year, on the occasion of this same feast, nearly 1,200 men approached the altar. It is expected that there will be many more communicants this year. It was announced Sunday from the pulpit that besides the regular hours for confessions on Saturday, the confessors will receive the men on Friday afternoon and evening, and also at other hours by appointment. Confessions will be heard in English, French, Italian and German. According to the plans made known, there will be no procession of the men before mass. As they arrive at the church they will go at once to the places reserved for them. After mass they will march in procession to the Mohican hotel for breakfast.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Conn. College Concert

The Society of Ancient Instruments, founded by Henri Casadesus, will appear in New London under the auspices of Connecticut college, Thursday, Jan. 17, as one of the points in the 1929 itinerary, thus affording an opportunity for music lovers to hear music from a bygone age played in exactly the same manner as it was in those times. Such a program is stimulating mentally as well as emotionally for it gives the listener a glimpse into the history of musical art. Everywhere music exists in some form by all races in all climes as the expression of emotion, amusement, even discipline. Music is a primary impulse common to all mankind. Appreciation and enjoyment of this most beautiful discovery is likewise a universal trait but there are certain circumstances under which the noblest forms of musical art may be more thoroughly understood—by study and by listening, for music seems to possess for many a sort of superstitious mystery and so it is well to know something about its history, its development and its traditions which are no better displayed than in concerts such as those given by the Society of Ancient Instruments which, of necessity, are devoted entirely to instrumental pieces. The ensemble consists of but five players performing on five stringed instruments, common two to three centuries ago and present a repertory of most fascinating compositions from that period.

Palace Theatre

The Palace theatre, starting today, offers the first of their Greater Palace Shows in the form of more impressive and far more expensive entertainment. But since this policy was promised when the Alfred Gottesman Enterprises reassumed control of the theatre it merely follows their own announcement.

The vaudeville bill carries two separate and distinct headliners. The first being "The Riot of Rhythm," a dance cycle of amusement featuring the Six Fast Steppers. Many and various types of dance acts have played the Palace in the past year or two, but it is safe to say that few will recall a finer stage and better dancing combination than this "Riot of Rhythm."

The second headliner is a condensed musical farce entitled "Oh Mama" and combines real comedy with catchy songs. "Oh Mama" was first seen about two years ago as a large and impressive musical comedy production on Broadway. Last year it toured the eastern states playing full week engagements. Now its producers have "boiled" it down to regulation vaudeville time and retained from the original cast a group of clever and capable entertainers who will make you wish you could see more of this type of act.

The hokum and heavy comedy end of the bill will be in the hands of Grindel and Ester, who will offer "A Study in Thinology," which may, or may not, interest the women folks who are constantly talking about diets. At any rate, comedy is their dish and they serve it as good, old-fashioned hokum of the first order.

Yvonne & Co., are a decidedly different combination and their act is entitled "Artistic Athletics," which is a proper description for what they will offer Norwich theatre-goers.

Buddy Webber is one of those youngsters who possess natural stage talent and ability and while he comes from a family of church people he just represents the modern type of youth who must have his fling—and how? But as an entertainer he is par excellent.

The silver sheet will produce, for your enjoyment, Adolphe Menjou in his latest film success, "His Private Life." To those of you who know Menjou, little can be said, because you well know his ability and charm as screen entertainer, but even if you don't know Menjou you will go home and tell the neighbors about this picture.

Beautiful Kathryn Carver, now Mrs. Menjou in real life, plays the leading lady to Beau Brummel Menjou and if this picture don't provoke a laugh a minute out of your system, then you can really say that you were cheated, or else you have misplaced your usual sense of humor.

No use to tell you about the story, better wait until you see it on the screen.

DR. ANDREW J. SULLIVAN OPENS DENTAL OFFICE IN NORWICH

After graduating from Tufts Dental college at Boston in 1928 with the degree of D.M.D., Andrew J. Sullivan, son of Andrew Sullivan of Joseph street has returned to Norwich and opened a dental office in the Thayer building. Dr. Sullivan is a Norwich boy and has lived here practically his entire life, attending St. Mary's school and going one year to Norwich Free Academy before entering Williston academy in 1920. After three years at Williston he was graduated and then took a pre-dental course at Tufts, entering Tufts Dental college in 1924 from which he was graduated in June, 1928.

DR. A. J. SULLIVAN

Mr. Sullivan has a thorough practical knowledge of dentistry as well as the theory of dentistry, having been associated with the dental clinics of the various hospitals in and around Boston during his vacations. Tufts also conducts large dental clinics at the college and patients numbering 6,000 to 8,000 every year come to these clinics for treatment. The dental school is affiliated with the various hospitals in Boston and in his sophomore year Dr. Sullivan attended the dental clinic at Waverly hospital and in his junior year was at the Roxbury hospital. In his senior year he was at the Boston City hospital, besides being appointed to the staff of the Boston dispensary, where he did night work.

Broadway Theatre

Here are those young screen favorites—May McAvoy and Conrad Nagle in one of their most delightful vehicles—May as an amateur crook who boards a yacht in company with a sheik bandit to steal some jewels; Conrad as the owner of the boat, who knocks out the sheik and is knocked out, if in another manner, by the lady herself.

The action of "Caught in the Fog" takes place on the yacht which is boarded by a couple of masquerading ancient crooks, and by two of the funniest detectives ever, Mack Swain, who was such a wow in Chaplin's "Gold Rush," and Hugh Herbert, clever as writer and comedian.

Fog descends on the marooned boat, and then the "dirty work" begins, the gems fly with quicker-than-the-eye speed, from crook to crook, the detectives do their hilarious stuff, and everybody suspects everybody else.

Confronted by the young owner of the boat, May has explained that she is making her first excursion into thievery. This has necessitated her explaining to later arrivals that the owner, who has pardoned her, is her husband and fellow-servant. The supposed husband wallops the sheik bandit who is responsible for the girl's dereliction, and everything winds up in a whirl of cops, cutters, gats, getaways and congratulations that make "Caught in the Fog" one of the most refreshingly entertaining comedy-dramas of the season. It is well directed, well filmed and acted with evident gusto by an experienced cast. You'll like it.

Breed Theatre.

A real live outdoor motion picture that is packed with thrills from the opening flash to the last flicker is promised by Ken Maynard in his latest First National western feature, "The Glorious Trail," which is scheduled for the Breed theatre on Fride.

Ken has built an enviable reputation for daring and ability in his previous pictures, but from advance reports "The Glorious Trail" outstrits and out-thrills anything he has made to date. The theme of the story concerns the perils and hardships encountered in stringing the first telegraph wires that connected the East with the West. Marion Jackson, the author, has taken this historical feat as the basis of her story, which is an original written especially for Ken.

"The Glorious Trail" was made in three different states — California, Montana and Wyoming. The picture was started in California, then part of it taken in Montana and the Indian sequences "shot" in Wyoming where an entire tribe of the Sioux nation was used. The soldiers and field artillery equipment were taken from Fort Russell near the Sioux Indian reservation in Wyoming.

In the supporting cast are Gladys McConnell, Frank Hagney, Les Bates, James Bradbury, Jr., Billy Franey and Chief Yowlache. Albert Rogell directed.

COLCHESTER

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Kopp were in New London Monday to attend the funeral of Mr Kopp's sister-in-law Mrs. Augustus Kopp.

George Gilmore of Westchester Center was in the village Tuesday. Mr. Gilmore returned recently from a week's visit with relatives in Providence.

Miss Leora E. Adams left Tuesday afternoon to continue her studies at Lasell seminary, Auburndale, Mass., having spent the vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Adams.

Wonderful for Piles

Suffered for Years; Says There's Only One Remedy

John O'Leary, Buffalo, for 14 years Supervisor of the Second Ward, wants to pass the good word along.

"Take it from me," says Mr. O'Leary "when you suffer torment with piles for many years as I did, and tried all kinds of remedies without any success, you'll be glad to say a good word for the only remedy that is any good."

"Peterson's Ointment rid me of piles so quickly that I was astonished. I felt somewhat peeved, however, to think that I had suffered so many years before knowing what a wonderful remedy Peterson's Ointment is. Let me thank you from the bottom of my heart."—John O'Leary.

Any live druggist will tell you about Peterson's Ointment—a big box for 35 cents. Use it for old sores, ulcers itching eczema, rashes, burns, bruises, chafing and all skin diseases—there is nothing better.

SEEK BETTER PROTECTION FOR TROLLEY PASSENGERS AT SQUARE

A movement to secure better protection for trolley passengers alighting from and boarding trolley cars at Franklin square was started Wednesday evening by the members of the Norwich League of Women Voters at a meeting held with their president, Miss Alif Stevens, at Pinehurst. According to Miss Stevens, complaints have been received from trolley patrons that they are often in danger while boarding or alighting from trolley cars in the square. Heavy automobile traffic is responsible for the danger in which trolley patrons are often placed, they claim.

When this matter came up at the meeting, one suggestion was made that it might be possible to route traffic through Bath street when trolley cars arrive in the square to discharge and receive passengers. The members of the league are to confer with the board of police commissioners in regard to the matter.

Another local problem that was discussed at the meeting was the annoyance that is caused small children at Mohegan park by older boys. It was suggested that a police officer might be detailed to park duty to see that the smaller children are not molested. Mrs. A. H. Chase and Mrs. Witter K. Tingley were named a committee to confer with the police commissioners on this matter.

A feature of the meeting was a talk by Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman on local problems. A social hour followed and refreshments were served by the hostess. The attendance numbered about 34.

CITY CLUB MUSIC DEPT. ADDRESSED BY CHARLES DYER

The members of the music department of the Woman's City club held their monthly meeting at the club rooms in the Wauregan hotel Tuesday evening. Miss Rosalie Bennett and Miss Harriet R. Trumbull reported current events. One of the outstanding things mentioned was the $3,000 prize composition, America, won by Ernest Block. The prize was offered by Musical America Magazine. It is a symphony in three parts, closing with a hymn to be sung by a chorus. In December it was given in New York and all through the west to the Pacific coast. The second movement will be heard over the radio Saturday evening from 8 to 9 o'clock, played by the National orchestra, Dr. Damroch, conductor. The composer was born in Switzerland and is a naturalized citizen of this country.

The chorus singing of the English boys was given special mention, as they gave it at the Christmas oratorial. The college women visiting choirs in New York, Mt. Holyoke and Wellesley was also spoken of. There has been a rapid development lately of public interest in orchestral music and less interest in the soloists who appear with the orchestras. At the close of the current events period, Miss Annie Taft played the hymn, America, which closes Mr. Block's symphony.

A special treat of the evening was the reminiscences of Charles J. Dyer. He spoke of his early memory of hearing Nordica sing at Worcester. After the concert he met her. Many years later when he was studying in London he was introduced to her after a concert and she wondered why he didn't speak to her, as she remembered him when he met her as a young man in Worcester. This friendship proved to be lifelong.

Mr. Dyer's first teacher abroad was William Shakespeare of London. There he met Brahms and Joachim. At Paris he studied with Sbrigila, who gave him his first interest in oratorical. While staying with English friends at Lake Garda in Switzerland, he answered the gate when the bells were not working and became, in this way, acquainted with Madam Thode, Frau Wagner's daughter. Later he met Frau Wagner, which led to a friendship that has continued to this day.

As a young man studying at Bayreuth he was at the house when a fan was received by Nordica from Madame Wagner. It had ivory sticks with Madame Nordica's initials in diamonds and the word "Elsa" worked in the lace of the fan. The last time Mr. Dyer visited Baden-Baden with Henry J. LaFontaine, they often met Challapin and saw the series of operas from the Wagner box. Among his early reminiscences were short stories of Schumann-Heinke, Olive Frenstadt, Dr. Muck, the Schumann sisters and many other celebrities. Mr. Dyer added much to the pleasure of the evening with his informal talk. The club gave him a standing vote of thanks.

NORWICH DRIVER LOSES LICENSE FOR YEAR

A list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor was given out on Wednesday at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. The department statement advised people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of these drivers operating motor vehicles.

CONN. FARMERS GOING TO TARIFF CONFERENCE

Never in the history of New England has there been a time when the prospects of receiving adequate tariff protection for agricultural products were as bright as they are today is the belief of Commissioner of Agriculture S. McLean Buckingham, in a statement sent out calling attention to the mass meeting at the Hotel Bridgeway in Springfield on January 14th at 11.00 a. m. to consider the tariff schedules he urges every farmer and every agricultural organization to be represented and fight for an adequate tariff.

The Connecticut Department of Agriculture believes that a new pathway is opening for New England agriculture. An opportunity will be afforded at the meeting for every farmer to express his views on farm relief through the channels of a protective tariff. If agricultural organizations and farmers are unable to be represented in person a letter expressing their opinion of the present tariff schedules or any changes that should be made would be of material benefit in this New England wide cause.

SURPRISE SHOWER FOR MRS. STANLEY HENSCHEL

A shower in honor of Mrs. Stanley Henschel was held recently at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Herman A. Bruckner, No. 96 Washington street. Mrs. Henschel, who has just returned from her wedding trip, was ushered into the dining room and surprised with a kitchen shower. The dining room was prettily decorated in pink and the table center piece was a beautiful pink cluster of pink roses tied with pink ribbon. There were about 40 guests present. Mrs. Henschel received numerous beautiful gifts.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Wm. Dernison, Mrs. Henry Dembo and Mrs. Rudolph Henschel. Seven tables of bridge were played and the prizes were won by Mrs. Lucy Davenport, Mrs. Michael Cohen, Mrs. Casper Graff and Mrs. William Dernison. During the evening recitations were given by Misses Peggy and Frances Bruckner.

HEALTH OFFICIALS PLAN AN ATTACK ON INFLUENZA

Public Health Officials and Scientists Have Mobilized in Washington—Committees on Epidemiology, Prevention and Research are to Summarize Deliberations and Report Them in a Form Which May Be Distributed to the Public For Information—Dr. C. H. Bigelow, State Health Officer of Massachusetts, Declared That in His Opinion No Influenza Epidemic Existed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10— (AP) — Public health officials and scientists from all over the United States mobilized here today for an attack on influenza which for weeks has been spreading over the country.

They gathered, however, without the presence of the commander-in-chief, Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming, who asked for the mobilization only after the highest afflicted with the disease had become unable to be on hand when the session began.

At the outset of the meeting, Assistant Surgeon General Draper, presiding for Dr. Cumming, appointed committees on epidemiology, prevention and research, to summarize the deliberations and report them in a form which may be distributed to the public for information.

While public health officials for several weeks have been issuing reports on the prevalence of the disease in many parts of the country, the session was only a few hours old when Dr. C. H. Bigelow, state health officer of Massachusetts, startled the conference with the announcement that in his opinion no influenza epidemic existed.

He declared that he was tired of reading newspaper accounts about the supposed epidemic, and said that crowds and courts, which have been closed, are nothing more than reports of the panic of the nation.

Dr. Cumming in a message read to the session reiterated a recent warning by the public health service that a more severe epidemic might follow the present outbreak.

"Notwithstanding the present comparatively mild form of the prevalent disease," the message said, "we are not justified in failing to take cognizance of the possibility that a more severe type of influenza with a higher rate of mortality may follow in the weeks or months to come, when the degree of our knowledge may be a determining factor in the lives of countless individuals."

Dr. Edwin O. Jordan of the University of Chicago, a member of a committee which has been investigating influenza and pneumonia for the past ten years, praised efforts of the public health service to obtain information about influenza. He said the studies made by public health officials of the 1918 epidemic were the first complete reports that had been available.

One salient fact which was brought out by this study, he said, was that an attack of influenza apparently did not render the victim immune to later attacks. This, he added, was shown by the large number of persons who were attacked in both the 1918 and the 1920 epidemics.

Dr. A. M. Stimson, chief of the public health service's scientific research division, outlined the plan of the health officials for a nation-wide study of the present outbreak. He said $25,000 had been allotted for the study contemplated.

GIRL RECOVERING FROM SELF-INFLICTED WOUND

BRISTOL, Conn., Jan. 10—(AP)—Following an operation for the removal of bullets today, Evelyn King, 17, of Claremont, N. H., was resting comfortably at the Bristol hospital but her condition is still critical after having shot herself through the abdomen with a police revolver yesterday. Her act at first believed accidental, was declared an attempt to commit suicide.

She said today that a picture found in her hands after she shot herself was that of Edward Johnson, a factory worker here who informed her that she could find employment in this city. He has not visited her nor inquired of her condition today.

The girl was detained by police Tuesday night upon information received from Manchester that she was wanted there for breaking her parole from an industrial school. Before shooting herself with a gun obtained from a cabinet, she told police she received good treatment at the school and was willing to go back.

While at the industrial school, she said, she had learned to play the piano and was going to take violin lessons.

TO STUDY LIQUIDATION OF REPARATIONS PROBLEM

PARIS, Jan. 10—(AP)—The European experts, including four members of the old Dawes committee, were today appointed by the reparations commission to form a new body to study final liquidation of the reparations problem.

Sir Josiah Stamp of Great Britain, Luc Francqui of Belgium, Dr. Alberto Pirelli of Italy, and Jean V. Parmentier of France, all of whom worked with Owen D. Young of the United States five years ago, will collaborate with him again in case he also should come back to the problem as is anticipated here.

The reparations commission delayed its decision to make the official announcement of the names until the last minute hoping to receive the names of the American experts so as to nominate them at the same time. In the absence of word from Washington, it was decided to ratify the selections of the participating European countries and to name the Americans later.

PREMIER POINCARE IS REPULSING OPPONENTS

PARIS, Jan. 10—(AP)—When the smoke cleared after the first day's battle in parliament against the present cabinet, Raymond Poincare, prime minister, was holding the fort and had most of the honors of the war. Although the opposition attacked steadily, it was either repulsed outright or driven back by counter-attacks led by the energetic premier.

Early in the engagement M. Poincare made it plain that he intended to remain in power if possible and that only an adverse vote would cause him to resume his ministry.

"The government desires the widest possible discussion of its foreign and internal policies," he said. "It wants to know whether the parliament wishes it to remain or go. But so far as the government is concerned, it has the firm intention of remaining in office until pending questions have been settled."

COLLEGE PROFESSORS TO BLAME FOR LOW SALARIES

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 10—(AP)—A committee of Yale professors finds that college professors are themselves responsible for their own low salaries, because their habit of increasing the number of teachers as rapidly as new funds become available to the colleges in back, prevent any considerable increase of the average salary of the members.

In the report, "incomes and living costs of a university faculty" the committee finds that this policy is not only the chief cause of low salaries, but also of deterioration in the quality of the teaching profession.

Stating that the average salary of the teachers is essentially a quotient, obtained by dividing the money available for the university salary budget by the number of teachers, the report declares that no amount of increase in university endowment or income can raise the salary scale if the number of teachers increases at an equal rate.

GUILTY OF SHORTAGE IN THE WEIGHT OF COAL

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 10—(AP)—William M. Burroughs, 51, prominent coal dealer of Newtown and president of the Newtown chamber of commerce, escaped a jail term when Judge Samuel C. Shaw in criminal common pleas court today found him guilty of a shortage in weight in a delivery of coal, but was fined a total of $150 and costs of $61.15. Previously Burroughs had been fined $50 and costs and sentenced to sixty days in jail by a justice of peace in Newtown.

He was arrested on August 28 last, by State Police Officer William H. Tripp when a load of coal he sold was found to be 485 pounds under the 3,000 pounds supposed to be delivered.

Burroughs at the trial before Judge Shaw declared that he was unable to weigh the shipment because his scales had been buried under a slide of coal from one of the bins but that he filled the bags to the top, expecting that in so doing he was bringing them to the required weight of 100 pounds each.

George T. Rassmessen, also of Newtown, who was arrested at the same time for delivering coal without an accompanying weight slip, was fined $25 without costs.

LOS ANGELES RESUMES HER FLORIDA CRUISE

PORT ST. JOE, Fla., Jan. 10—(AP)—The navy dirigible Los Angeles resumed her Florida cruise late today and taking a southwesterly course from the tender Patoka in St. Joseph's bay here, slipped out of sight behind the clouds.

The dirigible was bearing out into the Gulf of Mexico. But before leaving the mooring mast, Lieutenant Commander Rosendahl said the craft would pick a route taking it over a number of Florida cities before returning to the Patoka tomorrow.

The Los Angeles arrived at the Patoka at 11:30 o'clock this morning after bucking a southerly wind all night as she was turned from her course to Miami, Fla., to cross the peninsula and seek a mooring in St. Joseph's bay.

The commander said the ship was delayed by the force of the south wind and visibility was poor. There was fog and rain fell at times. At 1,000 feet altitude he was able to make 55 knots an hour.

The weather was greatly improved late today.

FORGED MEXICAN AND RUSSIAN DOCUMENTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10— (AP) — Tales of the mysterious disappearance of state documents and their equally mysterious recovery today formed another chapter for the long record on Capitol hill involving Mexican documents and Russian documents, now branded as forgeries, in which the names of United States senators appeared freely as purported recipients of rich sums of money.

Testimony taken before a senate committee which investigated the subject showed an account by a state department official who told of the disappearance and subsequent recovery of 200 or more papers belonging to the American embassy in Mexico City. They were turned over, the testimony said, by George Barr Baker, a former newspaperman, but where Mr. Baker got them was not made clear.

RESUME INVESTIGATION OF PUBLIC POWER UTILITIES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—(AP)—The federal trade commission, after a lapse of several months, today resumed its investigation of the publicity activities of public power utilities and received testimony from Leon C. Bradley, former director of the Alabama Public Utilities information bureau, that the bureau was operated by power companies in Alabama at an annual expense of between $15,000 and $18,000 and annually.

He reviewed the work of the bureau over the four-year period between 1922 and 1926, and said that no effort had been made by the bureau to circulate its publicity in the schools or to have changes made in text books used in the Alabama schools.

A NEW CORPORATION BY J. P. MORGAN & CO.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(AP)—Organization of the United corporation for the purpose of acquiring certain minority stock holdings in the United Gas Improvement company, Public Service corporation of New Jersey and the Mohawk Hudson Power corporation, held by the organizers and the American Superpower corporation, was announced today by J. P. Morgan & company.

Directors of American Superpower corporation today unanimously voted to exchange its holdings of Public Service corporation of New Jersey and United Gas Improvement company for securities of the United corporation.

With the new corporation holding only a minority interest in the three public utility properties, no physical merger of them is contemplated, but the bankers apparently intend to build may develop into an actual consolidation at some later time. Associated with J. P. Morgan & company in the new corporation are Drexel & company and Bonbright & company.

The United Gas Improvement corporation, having no funded debt and capitalized at $300,000,000 of common stock of $50 par value, of which nearly $200,000,000 are outstanding, controls gas and electric utilities, mainly along the Atlantic seaboard, and has large investments in affiliated or independent companies. A wholly owned subsidiary operates the Philadelphia Gas works under lease, and has acquired the Philadelphia Electric company.

The company has a large interest in Northeastern Power corporation, and in the Public Service corporation of New Jersey and Mohawk Hudson Power company. It also controls Day & Zimmerman, Inc., a contracting firm, and the Connecticut Gas & Coke Securities company. In recent months the company is reported to have been negotiating for a merger of the St. Regis Paper company, Northeastern Power, Mohawk Hudson Power, Rochester Empire Power and Buffalo, Niagara & Eastern Power.

INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC IN BERLIN, GERMANY

BERLIN, Jan. 10—(AP)—An epidemic of influenza, though in a mild form, has begun to worry Berlin. An estimate today said that one out of every fifteen inhabitants of the city was suffering from the malady. Hospitals and private clinics were being taxed to treat patients. Staffs of hospitals themselves had been depleted through illness. The death rate has been comparatively low.

RECEPTION BY PRESIDENT AND MRS. COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—(AP)—President and Mrs. Coolidge tonight held their annual reception to members of congress, the first white house social function of the New Year.

But two events remain on the social calendar at the executive mansion for the season—the annual speakers' dinner, in honor of Speaker Longworth, January 17 and the Army and Navy reception, January 24.

$17,304,000 DECREASE IN LOANS TO BROKERS AND DEALERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10— (AP) — Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York Federal Reserve member banks for the week ending Jan. 9, were announced by the Federal Reserve board today, as $5,312,799,000, representing a decrease of $17,304,000 as compared with the preceding week.

The loans for the week ending Jan. 11, 1928, were $3,819,573,000.

FALL FROM THIRD STORY RESULTED IN DEATH

DANBURY, Jan. 10—(AP)—Thomas Halpin, a hatter who fell from a third story window to the roof of an adjacent building on Tuesday, died tonight in the Danbury hospital of internal injuries. He had suffered from asthma and it is believed he lost his balance when he went to a window for fresh air.

Differing Views Of Tariff On Gypsum

New York and New England Interests Clashed at Hearing.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—(AP)—New York and New England gypsum interests came to grips today at the house ways and means committee hearings on tariff revision and led to questioning by democrats as to just what constituted republican tariff protection.

Gypsum, a product obtained from rock which is used largely in the manufacture of wall plaster, was the subject of the controversy when the committee began a two-day hearing on the earths, earthenware and glassware schedule.

H. W. Rippey of Rochester, N. Y., representing domestic gypsum producers, argued that imported crude gypsum, now duty free, was entering the United States in such large quantities that New York producers were threatened with being driven out of the market. He suggested a duty of $3 a ton on crude and $3.50 a ton on crushed gypsum, the latter now coming in under a $1.40 duty, to enable domestic producers to compete with foreign concerns.

Sewell L. Avery, president of the United States Gypsum Co., appearing for manufacturers who have gypsum quarries in Nova Scotia, contended that native gypsum was denied New England plants because of high freight rates and that the imports of the crude product from the Canadian province, free of duty, were essential to the growing development of the New England industry. He wanted the $1.40 rate on the crushed article maintained.

Asked by Representative Garner, Texas, ranking democrat on the committee, if the New England manufacturers preferred the imported article to the domestic, Avery said they were users of both, but that the Nova Scotian product was needed to meet expansion in the trade.

CONFERENCE ON LIQUOR SMUGGLING HAS CLOSED

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 10—(AP)—A final statement issued today after the close of the international conference on liquor smuggling said American delegates had expressed belief that no appreciable results would be obtained except by Canada refusing exportation permits for goods contraband in the United States.

Rear Admiral Billard, head of the United States coast guard at the opening of the conference yesterday had suggested Canadian refusal to clear liquor boats as a means of checking smuggling. In reply the Canadian delegation had asked if it was not possible for the United States government, either under present or amended laws, to control the movement of liquor craft.

Admiral Billard tonight was enroute to Washington to report upon the result of the informal conference.

"The administrative officials of the United States, members of the American delegation to the conference," the statement said, "expressed themselves as firmly convinced that no further or additional regulatory provision made by Canada, short of a refusal to issue documents permitting exportation, would have much, if any, better success than have those which have been tried out since the anti-smuggling treaty between the two countries was signed in 1924."

BELIEVES SERUM WILL BE FOUND TO CURE THE FLU

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—(AP)—Dr. M. J. Rosenau, professor of preventative medicine at Harvard and a member of the committee of scientists, who recently announced discovery of a new pneumonia serum, said today that the committee will meet here immediately after the conference on influenza called by the public health service.

At the same time Dr. Rosenau declared that in his opinion, "nobody ever died of influenza," but that deaths attributed to this disease were in reality due to pneumonia.

He expressed confidence that the stimulus which the present conference will give to study of influenza, coupled with work of the committee, will lead eventually to a specific cure for the disease, probably a serum.

RECOVER MINK COAT STOLEN A YEAR AGO

BOSTON, Jan. 10—(AP)—A mink coat valued at $6,000 which was lost at a party given in the home of the socially prominent Francis Lee Higginson in the Back Bay nearly a year ago has been returned to Mrs. T. Morris Murray through a detective agency, she announced today.

She said the coat appeared to be the same wrap although it had been badly worn. On the night of the party Mrs. Murray discovered that her garment was missing but that a coat of inferior value had been left in its place. Those attending the party were persons prominent in society and all were questioned in the investigation which followed. The detective agency gave her no particulars, Mrs. Murray said.

MISSING DARTMOUTH MAN HAD WIRED FOR MONEY

WEST HAVEN, Jan. 10—(AP)—Officials of the West Haven bank late today notified the family of William H. Cox, Dartmouth college freshman missing from college since last Saturday, that the youth wired the bank from Washington, D. C., for money, from his savings account. A brother will leave tonight to bring him back home. Cox left home here Saturday morning to return to college. Anxiety was felt for him when his baggage was received at Hanover and he failed to put in an appearance.

$312,000 U.S. Notes Found in Deposit Box

Found in Montreal by Francis Phillips, Son of Late New York Sewer Contractor.

MONTREAL, Jan. 10—(AP)—A packet of $312,000 United States treasury notes was found today when a safe deposit box rented by Francis Phillips, son of the late John M. Phillips, New York sewer contractor, was opened in the presence of a notary.

Representatives of the state of New York and of the Phillips estate witnessed the opening of the box in the Montreal Safe Deposit Co., following an order issued in superior court today by Justice Surveyer.

The opening of the box ended a legal struggle begun by the state of New York last July shortly after the death of the wealthy contractor in Atlantic City, N. J., while under indictment on Queens sewer fraud charges. At the time the deposit box was located by New York authorities it was reported to have contained $3,000,000.

MANY NOTABLES READY FOR LOS ANGELES OPEN

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Jan. 10—(AP) — Soldiers of the fairways, 130 of them, gathered from far and wide by this major golfing battle, stacked iron and wood today, resting until the start tomorrow morning of the three-day drive of the $10,000 Los Angeles open. A few, however, ventured out on neighboring courses to put finishing touches to their games.

Among those who will put the "big money" chase under way are to be found such colorful figures as Walter Hagen, the reigning British open champion; Leo Diegel, recently crowned national professional king; MacDonald Smith of Great Neck, Long Island, who will be defending the Los Angeles open title, and Horton Smith, the youthful "pretender" to the professional golfing throne, from Joplin, Mo.

Then there is "Wee" Bobbie Cruickshank of Purchase, N. Y., who annexed the open honors and money two years back, while the winner of the first Los Angeles open, Harry Cooper, now of Buffalo, will try to repeat.

But the list is not complete without mention of Tommy Armour of Washington, D. C., former national open king; Cyril Walker of Detroit, also an ex-open title holder; Al Espinosa, the warthy little Chicagoan who placed in the money in all of the western tournaments leading up to the $10,000 open; Johnny Rodgers of Denver, Colo., whom many describe as the greatest iron and wood shot in the country when at his best, and Johnny Golden, the sturdy Paterson, N. J., winner of the recent La Jolla open.

FATALLY BURNED HERSELF BECAUSE SHE FEARED ILLNESS

TALLAPOOSA, Ga., Jan. 10—(AP)—Fear of a further prolongation of the illness from which she had been suffering for three months is assigned as the motive that prompted Mrs. Julius Pitts, aged resident here, to burn herself fatally today, on a self-constructed funeral pyre.

Before lapsing into unconsciousness Mrs. Pitts cried that "she had tried to end it all."

Pitts, the woman's half blind 70 year old husband, said he was attracted to his wife's bedroom by sounds of a crackling fire followed by her screams. He said he found her surrounded by flaming rubbish, her night garments ablaze. Pitts was burned about the arms as he tried to save her.

Pitts said for the past several weeks his wife had been despondent over the condition of her health and was in constant fear of being bedridden. Two days ago, he said, she asked him to buy her a poison lotion so she could kill herself.

LIQUOR RAID PRISONERS WAIVED EXAMINATION

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 10—(AP)—Five men arrested by federal agents in a sweeping raid on liquor establishments in Meriden yesterday, waived examination before U. S. Commissioner Robert H. Alcorn today and were bound over to the February term of district court, which will be held in this city.

The five are Alphonse Mauri, his brother, Stephen A. Minery, Fred Weitzel, and Samuel Christian. Bonds for the first two were set at $1,000 each and $500 for the others.

Charles Mauri appeared before Commissioner Alcorn several days after his place had been raided on New Year's eve, and waived examination. While before the commissioner, prohibition agents were preparing a warrant for a second raid on his place.

Yesterday Mauri was fined $300 and given a suspended of 30 days in jail when brought before Judge Thomas in federal court in Hartford. When he reached home he learned that the federal agents had visited his place again and he was placed under arrest.

SOLDIERS TO HAVE MORE RATION ALLOWANCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—(AP)—The doughboy must be properly fed. High officers of the army feel he isn't getting what is due him from the new 50 cent daily ration allowance, and are going to see that he gets full value of the 15 cent increase for the ration which went into effect last year.

Orders went out today from the war department that all officers with troops below the grade of major must take a course in mess-management, starting not later than March 1, with "the army cook" as text book. This instruction is intended to equip officers with sufficient knowledge to see that their men are being nourished properly on the new mess allowance.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS INJURED IN BUS AND TRUCK COLLISION

LOWELL, Mass., Jan. 10—(AP)—Four Nashua, N. H., high school girls were injured, one seriously tonight, when a Boston and Maine Transportation company bus and a truck owned by the E. L. Ryan Iron Works, Inc., of Allston, collided on a curve here. Miss Helen Staponen, 17, is in Memorial hospital, Nashua, with a broken spine, broken left leg and other injuries. Others injured were Miss Antoinette Theroux, 17, laceration of lip and abrasion of right eye; Miss Janet Tinker, 17, abrasions of face and Miss Elizabeth Young, 17, facial cuts.

EXTRA SESSION CONGRESS ABOUT MIDDLE OF APRIL

Forecast Made by Chairman Hawley of the House Ways and Means Committee After a Lengthy Conference With President-Elect Hoover—Predicts Farm Relief and Tariff Legislation Will Be Enacted by July 4th—Hopes For a Vote on the Kellogg Anti-War Treaty This Week Are Diminishing.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—(AP)—An extra session of congress, to be called about the middle of April and to put through farm relief and the tariff legislation by July 4 was forecast late today by Chairman Hawley of the house ways and means committee, after a lengthy conference with President-elect Hoover.

Representative Treadway of Massachusetts, ranking republican on the ways and means committee, also called on Mr. Hoover to emphasize the necessity of an extra session of congress to enact revision of tariff schedules. He told the president-elect that there would be no time at this session to carry out this work in a thorough manner and urged him to call the extra session as soon as possible after March 4.

Treadway urged Mr. Hoover to retain Secretary Whiting in his present position as secretary of commerce in the next administration.

An echo of the recent election and the victory of Mr. Hoover in the so-called "Solid South" state of Virginia was brought to him by C. Bascom Slemp, former republican representative from that state. Slemp urged Mr. Hoover to take steps to have the republican party consolidate the gains it made in Virginia during the last campaign with the objective of the election of a republican governor this year.

MANY SIDED QUARREL OVER KELLOGG TREATY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—(AP)—Hopes for a vote on the Kellogg anti-war treaty this week had almost flickered out tonight when new conferences looking to an agreement on the controversy over an interpretative resolution or report on the pact failed.

The treaty now is involved in a many sided quarrel, involving among other things the dispute over farm relief and an extra session. While Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee, in charge of the anti-war document, is ready to ask an agreement for limitation of debate little hope of a vote on ratification before next week is held by the leaders.

Among those fighting the treaty in behalf of an interpretation are a number of the senators most anxious to get to the pending cruiser construction bill and also to farm relief. On the other hand some of the strongest treaty advocates are in no hurry to get to the cruiser bill and want to defer farm relief to an extra session.

With little hope of a compromise in sight the debate took on vigor today as Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, outstanding foe of the pact, shot question after question at the speakers. Once or twice he and Senator Borah, his former ally in the battle against league of nations crossed swords but these skirmishes were brief.

Once again democratic speakers lined up behind the pact and once more reverberations roared from the republican side for an interpretative declaration to the treaty so highly regarded by President Coolidge. Senators Barkley, of Kentucky, and Ransdell of Louisiana offered democratic indorsement of the pact without reservation. Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, renewed the cannonading from the republican side for some form of interpretation of the pact. He was willing to accept the proposed report of the foreign relations committee as a declaration of America's position under the treaty.

Peace negotiations were revived when Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, the author of the interpretative resolution, proposed at the outset of debate today that an agreement be sought for a vote on the pact. Senator Borah replied he hoped the agreement could be reached.

Later Senators Borah, Moses, and Reed conferred but after some bickering the discussions were abandoned and the fight resumed in earnest on the floor.

Under questioning Senator Borah insisted that the treaty could not affect efforts of any nation to seek by peaceful methods a readjustment of their boundaries.

EMPLOYE OF U. S. COURT ATTEMPTED SUICIDE

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(AP)—The attempted suicide in the federal building today of an employe of the United States district court, who had just promised the federal attorney to "tell everything" of his connection with David Steinhardt, fugitive lawyer under indictment for embezzlement, precipitated an investigation of the entire bankruptcy situation.

Max Pinner, 35, attached to the clerk's office of the district court, said to be a relative of Steinhardt and to have received large checks from him, cut his throat with a penknife while being taken to Federal Attorney Charles H. Tuttle's office for questioning. His condition is not serious.

Attorney Tuttle placed a guard at Pinner's apartment to see that nothing was removed and announced that a sweeping investigation of the entire bankruptcy situation would start tomorrow.

Steinhardt was indicted today, charged with misappropriation of more than $500,000 entrusted to him for investment and embezzlement of at least $50,000 of court funds while a receiver in bankruptcy.

A warrant was issued for the arrest of Merrill E. Gates, Jr., bankruptcy receiver accused of being short in the accounts of the J. Harold Rapp estate.

STRICKEN WHILE AT WORK; DIED WITHIN FEW MINUTES

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 10—(AP)—David J. Stephens, an executive of a piano player company, was stricken while at work today and died within a few minutes. He was to have driven to his home in Boston, Mass., tomorrow with his son to pass the week end. He received a telegram from his wife this morning arranging for him to motor back with his son, who was coming to Syracuse. The executive's death was without warning. He was sixty years old. He came to Syracuse from Boston last April.

STATE GRANGE STRONG FOR PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 10—(AP)—A stern and vigorous stand on prohibition was taken by the Connecticut State Grange in its closing session today, when resolutions were adopted to ask the general assembly for enactment of a law similar to the Michigan habitual criminal act; revision of the state liquor laws to hold the buyer equally liable with the seller of liquor; and third, a law correcting what the grange terms neglect of the school system to teach the harmful effects of alcoholic liquors.

FOURTH EARL OF HOWE DIED AT HIS LONDON HOME

LONDON, Jan. 10—(AP)—Richard George Penn Curzon, the fourth Earl of Howe, died at his home here tonight. His death creates a vacancy in parliament as his heir, Viscount Curzon, now goes to the house of lords, is at present a member of the house of commons.

Throughout his life Earl Howe maintained a close friendship with the British royal house. He was a former treasurer of the royal household, and was lord chamberlain to H. M. Queen Alexandra 1903 to 1925, and lord in waiting from 1895 to 1903.

He was born April 28, 1861, and was married three times.

RESERVE AIR MAIL PILOT FORCED DOWN AT WEBSTER

HARTFORD, Jan. 10—(AP)—Word was received by John Wheelock, district manager of Colonial Air Transport, Inc., at Hartford, that Lieut. Charles L. Wright, reserve air mail pilot, had been forced down at Webster, Mass., on his way from Boston to Hartford, because of fog. It was reported that the landing was made without damage.

Lieut. Carl A. Dixon, also a reserve air mail pilot of the Colonial Air Transport, took off from Brainard field in a reserve mail ship for New York, carrying two pouches of mail from Hartford. The Boston mail will be put on a train at Worcester for New York.

WOMAN STRUCK ON HEAD WITH BUTT OF REVOLVER

LYNN, Mass., Jan. 10—(AP)—Miss Minnie Kudera, 30, of Carnes street, received a wound which required three stitches to close when struck on the head with what she thinks was the butt of a revolver by a young man late tonight. The youth dragged her into an area way and was about to rob her when two men who were putting up an automobile in the same place gave chase.

The assailant outdistanced them but when John Culliton, 25, attempted to head him off the youth fired a shot which went through Culliton's overcoat. He was not overtaken.

SALVATION ARMY TO ASK RETIREMENT OF GEN. BOOTH

SUNBURY-ON-THAMES, Jan. 10—(AP)—Members of the high council of the Salvation Army started to mark time tonight while a deputation of seven councillors prepared to visit Gen. Bramwell Booth with a proposal that he voluntarily retire from active duty. This proposal was framed at a session of the council which ended at noon, adjournment being taken until Saturday when the reply of the commander is expected.

It was emphasized that by retirement from active duty General Booth would not be deprived of the honors and dignities of his office.

PEN OF BIRDS VALUED AT $25,000 AT THREAD CITY SHOW

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 10—Crowds flocked to the Willimantic exposition again tonight for the second evening of the four-day run of the great attraction. One of the big features tonight was the pen of ten prize hens owned by George Lowery of Willington which broke the world's egg-laying contest last year. The hens are White Leghorns. Their arrival was delayed until today but they will now be on display until the closing of the show. Mr. Lowery's exhibit includes a hen which broke a leg during the last few days of th Connecticut Agricultural college 1928 egg-laying contest. A local surgeon put the leg in a plaster cast and the hen continued running up a record score of eggs which brought the world's records to the pen and honor to the owner. The pen came here from the Boston poultry show. The hens are valued at $25,000.

The children and many grown-ups attending the show are making a pet of Jerry, the educated Rhode Island Red cockerel. Jerry stands on a pedestal and eats grain from the hands of the visitors. This beautiful bird is one of the attractions of the Wirthmore Feed Co. booth.

A. L. Anthony, Mansfield poultryman, scores heavily with a display of a pen of five Rhode Island Reds and a similar pen of White Leghorns at either end of a space in which are two trays of uniformly large eggs. There are white eggs from the Leghorns and brown eggs from the Reds. In the center is a small brooder filled with baby chicks hatched last Sunday.

The luxurious 1929 model automobiles exhibited draw their share of attention and salesmen report business as brisk. Many stop to see a display of a model of the new window metal screen to be manufactured by Willimantic's "baby" industry, the Willimantic Metal Screen, Inc. J. M. Trombley, the inventor, and his son, Keith Trombley, are handling the display.

This evening a deep sea fishing film loaned by the federal government was shown. The judging of poultry exhibits got under way today in charge of Judge Howard Rich of Springfield, Mass. Judge Birch of Danielson also arrived today to start the judging of dogs, although but few of these had been entered up to today.

ATTYS. HARVEY AND KING ARE RETAINED BY MAZZOLA

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 10—Today's developments in the investigation into the murder of Mrs. Rosaria Lorella came in the form of two announcements. The first of these was that Thomas Mazzola, held on orders of the coroner as a suspect in the slaying, had secured Attorneys Samuel B. Harvey and William A. King as counsel. Following this a statement was made by the authorities that material progress had been made in the investigation and that a "number" of new witnesses had been secured. It is expected that these witnesses will be summoned to testify when the inquest being conducted by Coroner Arthur G. Bill is resumed. The inquest was continued from last Monday to await the recovery of Mrs. Thomas Mazzola, who has been suffering from shock.

THOMAS MAZZOLA
Held as Suspect in Murder of Mrs. Rosaria Lorella

Both attorneys retained as counsel for Mazzola have been identified with murder trials. Attorney King, who was formerly attorney-general of the state, was defense counsel for Leonard Cline, who was tried for the shooting of his friend, Wilfred P. Irwin, in Mansfield over two years ago. The charge of murder was amended to manslaughter. The court imposed a sentence of one year in jail and a fine of $1,000. Attorney Harvey was special state's attorney in the prosecution of Roland G. Larkin and Albert J. Raymond, alleged Worcester "ice-box" bandits now serving sentences at the state prison for the murder of State Policeman Nelson at Pomfret.

Windham high school will be affiliated with the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, according to a vote of the town school committee. The committee also named Supt. of Schools Egbert A. Case as a delegate to the National Superintendents' association convention at Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 24-28. These matters were taken up at the January meeting of the school committee at which Secretary Case presented charts noting the cost of operating high and grammar schools in the state during the years 1926-27. The charts indicated that the local schools cost less than schools of any other town of corresponding population with Windham. A report was given on the work of three members of the class of 1928 of Windham high, now freshmen at Yale university, showing that their work exceeded the average of the class with an average marking for the fall term of 74. The local honor students are W. O. Glowacki, 89; J. H. Krug, 88, and R. B. Kennedy, 76. The board voted that owing to regulations governing the situation, an extension of the school bus service to accommodate three children of a family in the Jerusalem district who attend the Windham Center school could not be granted.

The present list of members of the reorganized James J. Post, No. 13, American Legion, which sprung into new life at a meeting held Wednesday night, follows: Dr. W. P. S. Keating, Lester H. Blish, William F. Owens, Albert J. Piche, Edmund J. Peckham, Oscar L. Keith, Walter McNickle, Earle K. Haling, Roy W. Downer, Henry F. Sypher, William P. Kelley, T. Frank Cunningham, Raymond A. FUNERALS

Abraham L. Robarge

A high mass of requiem was solemnized in St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock this morning for Abraham L. Robarge with Rev. Francis Duch as the celebrant. Mrs. Henry Mathieu rendered solos, accompanied by Mrs. E. R. Portelance, church organist. Burial was in the family plot at St. Joseph's cemetery, where Rev. Father Duch read a committal prayer. The bearers were: Grant Bombria, Raoul Larivière, Francis White, Fred Delude, Philip Chabot and Eugene Liberty. Arrangements were in charge of Killourey Brothers.

Thomas Johnson

The funeral of Thomas Johnson was held with services conducted at 62 Church street at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon by Rev. David Winslow Lovett of the Baptist church. Burial was in the Johnson plot of the Willimantic cemetery. The bearers were John Johnson, Thomas P. Foley, Dr. E. E. Gorton and J. F. Doonan. The J. C. Lincoln Co. had charge of the arrangements.

Mrs. Kate Esther Fuller

Funeral services for Mrs. Kate Esther Fuller were held at the late home in Columbia at 1 o'clock this afternoon with Rev. J. W. Deeter of Gilead officiating. Burial was in the new cemetery at Columbia. The bearers were: William P. Robertson, J Harris Miniken, Aubrey E. Winter and David Fuller, nephews of the deceased. Arrangements were in charge of Avery & VanZandt.

Several guests at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Leonard, which took place in Stonington, Jan. 9, 1879, called at the home of the couple, 200 Prospect street, Wednesday, to offer congratulations on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of the ceremony. Visitors came from Stonington, Mystic, Norwich, Wauregan, Hartford, New Britain, Massachusetts and this city. Mrs. Elmer B. Stone of New Britain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard, and their daughter-in-law, Mrs. G. S. B. Leonard, of Mystic were in charge of the reception. Among the visitors was John H. Tillinghast of Stonington, who was Mr. Leonard's best man. Mr. and Mrs. Leonard have two children, Mrs. Stone and Dr. G. S. B. Leonard, both of whom were born in this city. Mrs. Leonard's maiden name was Miss Minnie Brewster. Mr. Leonard is widely known here and at one time was chief of the volunteer fire department.

The five personal tax enumerators of the town of Windham have filed their returns for 1928 with Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton. The workers enrolled a total of 6,425 persons between the ages of 21 and 60 years, 3,426 of the number being women and 2,999 men. There were 789 of the number on record as exempt from payment of the personal tax, 448 of these listed as ex-soldiers or sailors who served during the World war. This deduction leaves 5,723 persons liable to the tax payment. Mrs. Lucy J. Lynch of the first district enumerated 1,103 persons; Romeo Benoit, second district, 2,002; Armand Perreault, third district, 1,396, and Robert O. Snow of the fourth district, 1,237. Joseph Simpson, who covered the Windham district, enrolled 687 persons.

Officers elected at the annual meeting of St. Paul's Episcopal church held Wednesday evening were: Senior warden, Dr. Louis I. Mason; junior warden, Herbert Dawson; clerk, William S. Johnston; vestryman, Emil Bernet; auditors, F. M. Lincoln and B. C. Hallock; delegates to the diocesan convention, Dr. L. I. Mason and Herbert Dawson; alternates, Emil Bernet and W. S. Johnston; delegates to the archdeaconry, W. E. Higgins and Emil Bernet; alternates, Walter S. Barnes and J. W. Litterick. W. E. Higgins was commended on his excellent service, being unanimously re-elected as treasurer for another term.

OBITUARY

Thomas Lucas

Thomas Lucas died at his home, 64 Chapman street, this morning after a two months' illness. He leaves his wife; two daughters, Mary and Eva Lucas of this city; one sister residing in Europe, and three brothers, Max and Charles Lucas of this city and Safford Lucas of Europe.

TOXIC WAR GAS USED ON PINEAPPLE PESTS

HONOLULU, Jan. 10 — (AP) — Chloropicrin, a toxic gas used by the United States army during the world war, is to be used in experiments seeking to increase Hawaiian pineapple production by parasite control.

Tests already indicate that toxic war gas destroys the nematodes which stunt pineapple growth by attacking roots of the young plants and at the same time stimulates the plants themselves, acting as a fertilizer. Nematodes nest in the soil and reproduce some five hundred times a month.

JEWETT CITY

METHODIST PASTOR INVITED TO RETURN FOR SIXTH YEAR

The fourth quarterly conference of Jewett City Methodist church was held Wednesday evening in the vestry by District Superintendent Rev. M. E. Genter, of Norwich. The meeting opened with a brief devotional service led by the pastor. Mr. Genter spoke briefly on Isaiah the prophet and his vision of service. The pastor read his report of the year's work which revealed progress in many ways. Special services were noted, such as the visit of Wesleyan University Male quartet and Gospel team, the harvest festival and Rally day, the Dudley Bible Crusaders, the students' service in December and the watchnight meetings. There were two deaths noted—Joseph G. Robertson and George W. Wright.

L. D. Howe, W. P. Robertson and A. C. Burdick were confirmed as trustees. Reports were given by Sunday school Supt. R. W. Robertson, Mrs. M. H. Bartlett, Pres. W. F. M. S., Mrs. A. C. Burdick, Ladies' Aid society, Mrs. L. D. Howe, Gardner class and Rev. J. W. Carter, Men's class. Gifts were made during the year to White Cross, Students' fund, Boston university, Deaconess' work. Local preachers' licenses were renewed for one year to Christine E. Burdick, now assistant pastor, Presbyterian church, Saranac Lake, N. Y., and David Carter, Wesleyan university. Delwyn Martin, of Dudley Bible Institute, was granted a local preacher's license after passing successfully his examination in the doctrines and rules of the Methodist church. It was noted that four young people have become local preachers during the last six years. Rev. Mr. Genter gave information about the recent conference of district superintendents and bishops in Evanston, Ill.

It was voted unanimously by rising vote to invite the present pastor, Rev. J. W. Carter to remain for another year. This will be the first time in the history of Jewett City Methodism that a pastor has served six years. Revs. M. T. Braley and Samuel Thatcher each served five.

Snow Disappeared

Early risers Thursday morning saw the ground at 4:30 a. m. covered with a light fluffy snow-fall that measured 4 inches. Turning to rain with the mercury above 40, it had disappeared at sunrise. The blanket was spread between midnight and 4 a. m.

There is more to admire than the tall steel spar of the new Fisk Tire flagpole, when it is known that the ball on top is lignumvitae. The big turbine water wheels of the perpendicular type are operated on a steel shaft which rests upon, at its lower bearing, a "step" made of a large block of lignumvitae. From one of these that has been taken from service, the flagpole ball is fashioned.

Red Cross Board Meets

The first meeting of the newly elected board of Jewett City chapter of the American Red Cross was held Wednesday evening. The officers are: Chapter chairman, Miss M. A. Burdick; vice chairman, D. L. Phillips; secretary, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, executive, Mrs. J. H. Tracy; treasurer, Miss Margaret Driscoll. The board members are: Miss May R. Driscoll, Mrs. F. I. Ray, Mrs. A. H. Anthony, Dr. G. H. Jennings, Mrs. E. B Cheney, Miss Rosanna DeJardines, Mrs. F. E. Robinson, Mrs. Edith Soule Miss Bertha E. Lewis, and Miss Catherine Barnett. The chairman of committees appointed were: Home service chairman, Dr. G. H. Jennings; secretary, Miss Catherine Barnett; nursing committee, Mrs. William Broadfoot; publicity, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox; Junior Red Cross, Mrs. Edith Soule and Miss May R. Driscoll; first aid, Miss Margery Leyden; life saving, P. W. Chase; disaster relief, Mrs. Walter Richardson; Travelers' Aid, Miss Catherine Barnett; production committee, Mrs. F. I. Ray and Mrs. Alice Anthony; auditors W. T. Crumb and Thomas Barnett. It was voted that the district nurse, Mrs. Broadfoot, Miss Leyden, Mrs. Richardson and P. W. Chase be invited to attend the board meetings as voting members. It was reported that a letter and three cards had been received from the Canal Zone, where the Christmas bags were sent.

The Women's Missionary society of the Congregational church met Tuesday afternoon at Mrs. Abraham Zegeer's home. The president, Mrs. F. E. Robinson presided. The officers elected were: President Miss S. K. Adams; vice president, Mrs. F. E. Robinson; secretary, Mrs. C. D. Wolf and treasurer, Miss Helen Hull. The annual reports were read and the remainder of the time was spent socially. Mrs. Zegeer was assisted by her daughter Olga and Adeline Jaskiewicz in serving tea, fancy cookies, tea cakes and candied grapefruit. Mrs. F. E. Robinson has served as the very efficient president for a number of years, and was given a rising vote of appreciation.

Pupils in the seventh and eighth grades at Riverside grammar school are enthused over a magazine subscription contest which will cover only one week and means a substantial contribution to the school, also, in return for their work. They have two colors as badges and each day the superintendent will wear in his coat lapel the color of the winning side for the previous day. The side which is beaten at the end of the week gives a three-ring circus performance.

DANIELSON

MANY KILLINGLY PEOPLE ILL WITH GRIP AND COLDS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 10—The nation-wide affliction variously called influenza, grip and what not, is getting in its work in the town of Killingly. Scores of people are confined to their homes by illness, yet very few persons are reported as other than "comfortably ill". Locally, the wave of sickness has in the great majority of cases taken the form of severe colds, with body lameness and in some cases a little temperature. It is picking its victims out of all walks of life. Few organizations have escaped having their personnel taken out of active work. Dozens are away from their work in the mills, store forces are depleted and a number of teachers in Killingly's schools are ill, as also are a considerable number of pupils. It was remarked today that it would appear that those engaged with indoor occupations seem more subject to attack than those who are working out doors, though no group is immune.

In the schools substitute teachers are on duty in place of the regular teachers who are ill. Supt. W. E. Parker said today that every precaution is being taken to prevent a general spread of illness through the schools. As soon as a pupil shows any indication of illness, the pupil is immediately excused and allowed to go home. Though such a large number are ill, no apprehension is felt over the situation here, for mildness is the rule apparently all of the cases and recoveries are reasonably prompt.

FUNERAL.

Frederick S. Porter.

This afternoon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Joseph Scott, in Goodyear, funeral services for Frederick S. Porter, near-centenarian veteran of the Civil war, were conducted by Rev. Charles A. Downs of that place. During the service Mrs. Joseph Breen and Miss Nancy Whittaker sang Beautiful Home, and Abide With Me. Burial was in the South cemetery in Brooklyn, of which town Mr. Porter was a resident for about half a century. The bearers were DeForest Wells, Jr., Kenneth Warren and Harry Scott and Everett Scott, the two latter grandsons of Mr. Porter. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Legue to Head Gun Club.

Henry I. Lague was elected president of the Danielson Rod and Gun club at the annual meeting at the Danielson inn last evening. Other officers selected for the ensuing year are John T. Ashworth, vice president; Louis S. Ingalls, secretary-treasurer; board of directors, Harold B. Atwood, Dr. F. P. Todd, George Kent, Armand Monsault, Charles W. Hale, Henry Dagne and Joseph Miller; delegates to the state convention, Charles Rapp, L. S. Ingalls, Dana Shippee.

The delegates to the state convention will urge the introduction of bills at the present session of the legislature providing heavier penalties for snaring and use of poison materials in taking game.

In the immediate future, the club will undertake a membership drive. It will also give consideration at its February meeting to the proposal that the annual dues be reduced.

A county-wide drive for new members of the American Legion will get underway in the immediate future in connection with a similar drive in Tolland county. Only the city of Willimantic is excluded in this county. The drive is sponsored by E. A. Zimmerman, district commander. This effort to increase the membership of eastern Connecticut posts will continue until May 18. In local territory it follows close upon a membership campaign that Leo J. L'Homme post of Danielson has been conducting, and with a good measure of success.

C. Rene Caron, head of a special committee of the chamber of commerce, has announced that arrangements have been completed for the painting of the name "Danielson" on the roof of the Main street plant of Powdrell and Alexander as a guide to aviators. The cost of the work is to be $110. Of this amount $50 has been appropriated by the chamber of commerce. The remainder will be obtained, it is believed, from other sources.

Committees selected to arrange for the junior promenade to be held at Killingly high school on January 25 are as follows: Decoration, Mildred Misek, Robert Princeton, Ruth Mellor, Thomas Day; refreshments, Janet Kennedy, Eugene Shippee, Loretta Mullen, Frederick Arnold; invitations, Florence Ellison, Sheldon Ennis; orchestra, Florence Ellison, Dorothy Lafrope; patronesses, Phyllis Kenworthy, Gladding Hutchins; advertising, Francis Hammett, Henry Ricewasser, Frederick Arnold; tickets, Edward Nelson.

When members of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., meet next week Thursday afternoon at the parish house of the Westfield Congregational church, Miss Florence Crofut of Hartford will be the speaker. Her subject will be A Great American Shrine. Miss Crofut formerly was a resident of Danielson. The hostesses are to be Mrs. E. H. Keech, Miss Adah Danielson, Mrs. Cunneen, Mrs. Henry Paine, Mrs. R. C. Spencer and Mrs. Naylor.

An inter-church basketball league will start playing a schedule of games two weeks from next Saturday. The teams are to represent the Westfield Congregational church, the Baptist church, St. Alban's church and the Dayville Congregational church. Two series are to be played. The winners of the series will meet in a post-season championship game to determine the winner of the trophy that is to be offered, this to be presented at a banquet at the end of the season. Arrangements for the league season have been worked out by C. Clinton Cleveland, representing the Baptist church, J. Wayne Haskell, representing the Westfield Congregational church, Hubert Taylor, representing St. Alban's church and Norman Brewster, representing the Dayville Congregational church.

Commencing Jan. 12, our retail store will be open Saturday afternoons. Powdrell and Alexander.—adv.

Miss Mildred Burton has been visiting for a few days with friends in Taunton.

Friday afternoon of this week members of the Roundabout club are to be entertained by Mrs. N. A. Witter at her home on Mechanic street.

Earl Wood is ill with the grip at his home on Cottage street.

New officers of Brooklyn grange are to be installed jointly with new officers of Putnam, Senexet and Quinnatisset at the armory in Putnam on Monday evening, January 21, by Charles M. Gardner, high priest of Deborah.

Today brought close to another inch of rain and another set back for the ice crop. Today's storm brought snow in the very early morning hours and slippery conditions on streets and highways, causing many starting out for work to fall.

Legislators from this section of the state who prefer to travel back and forth between their homes and the state capitol in Hartford by train will have an opportunity to use the legislative train that is to be put on next week, leaving Putnam at 9.15 on session days.

Rev. Antheleme Mollard, M. S., Rev. Joseph A. Demers, M. S., and Rev. Joseph Bergin, M. S., of Danielson and Rev. Ignatius Kost of Dayville will be in Hartford Friday to attend the funeral of Rev. Joseph Moussier, M. S., formerly a curate of St. James' parish.

There was large attendance at the Westfield Congregational church this evening for the Church Family night and annual meeting.

It is expected that Robert McPhail, famous Dartmouth football captain and quarterback, will again coach the Pomfret school football team next fall.

A considerable amount of the new post and cable fencing that is to be built is in place on the Danielson-Brooklyn highway.

James E. Manush of Fall River is visiting with friends in Danielson for a few days.

Miss Katherine D. Aylward was in New London today attending a conference of telephone officials and employes.

One who keeps a record of such things asserts that the snowfall in this territory so far this season is just a little less than two inches.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Stetson of Brooklyn, who were burned Tuesday evening by a back flash from a heater in their home, were reported today as progressing toward recovery from their injuries.

About 45 persons continue their studies at the night school being held several evenings each week at the high school building. The sessions will continue until early spring.

Miss Jeanette LaRoche of Webster is visiting with friends in Danielson for a few days.

PUTNAM

INFANT BOY LEFT ON THOMPSON DOORSTEP

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 10—An infant boy about 6 weeks old was found about 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening on the steps of the home of E. S. Backus in Thompson, dressed in the best of infant attire awaiting to be taken into some person's affections. The baby had been abandoned by the parents of the child and had been on the veranda of the Backus home for several minutes before Mr. Backus accidentally discovered him when he opened the front door to fasten a noisy shutter. He took the child in and reported the incident to Deputy Sheriff Alexander Maitland, and the town selectmen. Later the baby was taken to the Day Kimball hospital for further care.

The baby was said by the hospital officials today, to be about six weeks old. He is of a dark complexion, possessing dark brown eyes, black hair and fetching dimples in his cheeks. Indications are that the parents of the infant are not destitute since the boy was dressed in beautiful clothes. Mr. Backus told the Bulletin this morning that a neighbor, who happened to pass his home about the time the baby was left on his doorstep, reported seeing a car draw onto the highway out of the darkness and immediately attain a high rate of speed in the direction of Webster. Mr. Backus was of the opinion that the parents of the child were occupants of the car and had waited in suspense for several minutes to see their child taken into its foster home, and then sped on, satisfied that it was safe in his care.

State officers of Danielson barracks were today heading an investigation, attempting to locate the parents of the child.

The abandoning of the Thompson baby recalls to mind, a case of the same nature which occurred in Putnam a few weeks ago, when a child was reported to have been deserted by its parents at the home of David Gothereau in the Manahansett section of the city. An investigation by Putnam police, assisted by state officers of Danielson, revealed that the mother of the child, Miss Anna Kelly of Willimantic, who was unmarried, left the infant at the Gothereau home for parental care. She claimed Arthur Gothereau was the father of her baby.

A long sentence to the county jail in Brooklyn seems to be the desire of many wanderers of the highway whose ambitions are play and not work. Examples of this are being displayed daily in the local police court. This morning Thomas Lesard and Frank Dupre, both of Willimantic were arraigned before Judge Macdonald on charges of intoxication. Their pleas of guilty were accepted by the judge, who inquired of them as to what brands of post prohibition "stuff" brought them into court. The prisoners answered, "denatured." "Ten days apiece and costs," returned Judge Macdonald. The sentence was accepted in a cheery manner by the defendants, but apparently was too short, since Lesard begged that Judge Macdonald make their stay in Brooklyn jail at least thirty days. The youthful judge remained firm and his sentence intact, and the boys went away to spend a fortnight in the county jail.

Mrs. ictoria Barboto of this city died Wednesday morning at the Day Kimball hospital following an illness of a few days. Mrs. Barboto is a native of Italy, but has lived in this country for several years. She was 33 years of age. Her husband Louis Barboto and two children survive her.

A series of motion pictures released by the Bell telephone system are now being shown in school in this vicinity through the courtesy of Manager E. L. Beebe of the Putnam telephone exchange. The films show the evolution of the modern telephone and also methods and powers employed by the Bell system to transmit telephone messages by wireless telephony across the Atlantic ocean. The pictures are accompanied by a fifteen minute talk on the subjects of the motion pictures by Manager Beebe. Showings were given at the Putnam Rotary club, and Tourtellotte Memorial high school in North Grosvenordale Wednesday, Killingly high school and the Danielson Rotary club, Thursday afternoon and evening, and will be shown at Putnam high school and Plainfield high school, Friday, Jan. 11 and at St. Mary's parochial school in this city on Monday, Jan. 14.

The commercial employes of the Danielson and Putnam telephone exchange gathered at the home of Exchange Manager E. L. Beebe, at 4 Whittemore street, Wednesday evening where a farewell party was tendered Miss Effie Danielson, cashier of the local office, who is soon to resign her position. Mr. and Mrs. Beebe entertained their guests with showings of the motion pictures. During the evening a buffet lunch was served by the hostess. The employes of the commercial departments presented Miss Danielson a combination electric perculator and toaster as a token of their esteem. Her position will be taken by Miss Irene Johnson, at present assistant cashier at the Putnam exchange, while Miss Anita Peloquin of North Grosvenordale will assume Miss Johnson's duties as assistant cashier.

Herbert J. Smith of Sunnyside avenue, who is ill at his home with pneumonia was reported as having passed a comfortable night, Wednesday and is making a rapid recovery.

John M. Dean, of Mechanics street and Leo J. Deslile of Woodstock avenue, are in New York this week attending the annual automobile show, that is now in progress in the metropolis.

The session of superior court, criminal side, scheduled to have been held at Putnam today was adjourned until Friday morning at 11 o'clock, by Judge Jennings, when announcement was made that several cases, had been cleared from the docket.

In regards to the prolonged blasts being given by locomotives at grade crossings on the New Haven division of the New Haven road, there comes an additional bit of information from a Putnam railroad official this morning which will prove to be of especial interest to many in Putnam and Danielson. In recent years, the increased use of closed automobiles, has tended to shut off from the ears of drivers the sound of the warning bells at grade crossings, and perhaps is responsible for the huge number of fatilities occurring daily at the intersections of the railroad and traversed highways. This led to the interstate commerce commission and the American Railway association, at a recent conference to adopt the additional blasts of the whistle code in view of eliminating tragedies at the crossings.

The monthly meeting of the town school committee was held last evening at the law offices of Torrey and Geissler. The board voted to appoint Supt. of Schools Leon M. Farrin, to procure the services of a speaker for the graduation exercises to be held in June. The name of Rev. Horace F. Holton of Brockton, Mass., has been submitted and it is believed Rev. Holton will be engaged. The board also approved of a bill to authorize Supt. Farrin to attend the national conference of school superintendents to be held in the near future.

Mrs. Minnie Gannon Macdonald, newly elected member of the board took office last evening, fulfilling the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. Jane E. Warner. J. Dyer Potter, elected to the board last fall, to take the position left vacant by the death of Attorney Charles L. Torrey was called on another business engagement, and was unable to sit with the board at the January meeting. Future meetings of the school board will be held on the first Wednesday of the month, instead of the first Monday, as has been the custom in the past.

The Opportunity room, which has been conducted by Mrs. Beatrice Wilbur, at the Israel Putnam school, for special classes, is to be discontinued at once, according to an order passed last evening at the January meeting of the school committee.

Mrs. Wilbur, who has been in charge of the room for the past three years has resigned her post and has left for Johnson, Vt., where she has accepted a position as dean of girls at the Johnson Normal school.

From snow to rain, to sunshine, was the routine sent here today by the weatherman. During the early morning hours about one inch of snow covered the ground with indications that the storm would abide, but a sudden raise in the temperature changed the flakes to rain, which fell incessantly until late afternoon, when Old Sol peeped through the clouds, to predominate for about two hours this afternoon and drp up the streets. The mercury climbed steadily upward this afternoon until it reached the fifty mark.

Representatives Leon A. Talbot and J. Otis Fox and their wives were in Hartford last evening attending the inaugural ball tendered in honor of Governor John H. Trumbull. The affair was held at the state armory.

MAN AND WIFE STUDY SLEEPING SICKNESS

HAMBURG, Jan. 10 —(AP)— Professor F. K. Kleine, bacteriologist and director of the Institute for Infectious Diseases in Berlin, has sailed for a two years' stay in Africa to study sleeping sickness.

The spread of this disease has increased because a number of varieties of the Tsetse fly hitherto considered immune, have become infected.

Professor Kleine is accompanied by his wife, who is also his scientific collaborator.

AN EXTRA SESSION.

From the prediction of Chairman Hawley of the house ways and means committee a special session of congress in the spring seems likely.

There is nothing to indicate that Mr. Hoover wants a special session of congress on his hands at the opening of his administration. That he will be forced to keep his promise relative to such a session seems not improbable. Everything rests with the present session of congress. If it would deal with the farm problem and enact such legislation as is needed in that direction, there would be no need for a special session. Failing to do that, and that seems to be indicated now, there will be nothing else for Mr. Hoover to do but call a special session for that would be in accord with the assurance he gave in his St. Louis speech during the campaign, and he can be depended upon to carry that out.

Efforts to get the present congress to meet the situation by doing something have not been productive of results. There are those who have urged that nothing be done in order that there may be a special session for the purpose of taking up the tariff and farm relief at the same time. It has been strengthened by the demands which have been made for a revision of the tariff in accord with present day needs. The tariff is of as great value to the farming industry as to any other and it will be advantageous to have tariff changes affecting the farmers and farm relief legislation move along at the same time, although they could be accomplished quite as successfully separately.

From before election a special session of the 71st congress has been dependent upon the 70th congress, and despite the presentation of farm bills there has been no eagerness to have them adopted. Although the farmers have been stressing the importance of relief they are quoted as wanting nothing done at this time.

Mr. Hoover has made no statement concerning his intentions recently. He recognizes the situation and understands what is being forced upon him. There is unquestionably need for tariff revision soon but it is fully apparent that the calling of a special session hinges upon the failure of this congress to adopt farm legislation. That it what is now indicated.

MACHINE BEYOND CONTROL.

What results from placing entire reliance upon someone else and so operating an automobile that it is not under control at what is known to be a dangerous place is well illustrated in the case of the Massachusetts driver who approached a railroad crossing at such a rate of speed that he could not stop his machine when the crossing tender waved a red lantern to warn him of the approach of a train.

He applied his brakes and did all that was possible at that time to check his car. It was not to be controlled because of the speed he was making even though he was about to cross a railroad track. The result is that when he did get his machine halted it was on the tracks, the train was coming rapidly and only by seconds was he able to escape himself by jumping from his seat. The car was crushed and carried 250 feet down the track.

Just how he can attach any blame to anyone except himself is difficult to see. He was not a stranger there. He was planning on taking the crossing at high speed, so much so that he was not able to respond to the tender's warning without placing himself on the threshold of eternity. We have reason to believe that he will have greater respect for railroad crossings in the future. There have been just as good reasons why he should have profited from the experiences of others in the past but he apparently totally ignored them and demanded a personal touch. Not all those who have done the same had the good fortune to escape. He may become a stronger advocate than ever for the elimination of crossings but he will do more for his followmen if he keeps before them his experience in not having his machine under control with a railroad crossing ahead.

THE BETTER WAY.

Following the announcement of the decision of the supreme court of Michigan in upholding the action of the lower court in sentencing Mrs. Nina Miller to prison for life because she was a fourth offender, Governor Green of that state is quoted as saying that it could not be expected that she would actually pass the remainder of her life behind prison walls. Furthermore he declared that it must be assumed that she will pay a reasonable penalty for her offense, a deliberate, repeated violation of the dry law.

Just what this means is not entirely clear. Governor Green is declared to have been one of the enthusiastic advocates of the habitual criminal law now in force in Michigan and under which Mrs. Miller has been sentenced. Governor Green will not be in the chief executive's chair of that state forever so there is no assurance that he contemplates giving a pardon to Mrs. Miller, although his statement may mean that whoever is governor must take a reasonable view and give her a pardon in time.

On the other hand there is the probability that the law under which she has been sentenced will be changed. Sentiment in that direction has developed since convictions have been gained because persons selling liquor are regarded as felons. This it is contended was not contemplated when the law was adopted. That it can be made to apply to liquor law violations has created a demand for a change in the law, exempting such cases from its provisions. If that is done through legislative enactment and none in the future are going to be sentenced to life imprisonment for breaking the liquor law it would be only fair that after a reasonable penalty a pardon should be granted to Mrs. Miller.

And yet, if that is to be the course, it should apply to all others. There is no reason why any exception should be made of Mrs. Miller while Fred Palm is also serving a life sentence because he had a half pint of liquor. Whatever course is adopted all must be treated alike and the most sensible solution lies in the modification of that provision of the habitual criminal law which terms a liquor law violation as a felony. That is preferable to the uncertainties and inequalities of the pardoning power.

DEALING WITH CRIMINALS.

New York has a state crime commission and in connection with its inquiry into conditions it has found that "more than 50 per cent. of the prisoners received at one institution in New York during a two-month period were either non-residents of the state or of the counties from which they were committed." As the result of this observation the suggestion is advanced that a good arrangement would be to have each state become responsible for the care of its citizens when they commit crimes in other states.

Such a plan would be highly pleasing to the criminal class especially if their states happened to be especially lenient in the placing of penalties and particularly liberal in passing out probation and suspended sentences. We can see however where there would be all kinds of difficulties encountered in establishing the identity of such individuals and in getting the respective states to acknowledge their runaways. There would be endless complications without any more satisfactory results than at the present time.

The feeling however is not dissimilar from that taken by this country in sending back to their native lands those who have come here and become charges upon this country for any one of many reasons. Deportation goes on but it goes on slowly and at large expense. It would be the same way in having the offenders moved about from the state where they got into trouble to the state where they were born and where punishment might be expected to be carried out. Perhaps New York would find that it would not be relieved of as great a burden as it thinks. The effect might be that of a boomerang.

In fact it doesn't appear that the state in which a person was born has anything to do with the conduct of a person who may have spent the greater part of his life elsewhere, or who might have encountered conditions which were the cause of his undoing in the state of his adoption or temporary residence. Keeping an oversight of all residents of a state wherever they might be would be no small police job. However, New York's crime committee might find that there would be no small police job. However, New York's crime commission might find that there would be some improvement if there should be proper prosecution of criminals and an abandonment of that practice of ordering them out of cities and states to prey upon other communities.

AIRPLANE VS. DIRIGIBLE

It was inevitable that a controversy would be started as the result of the performance of the Question Mark. That plane has exceeded anything that has as yet made a test of the time it can remain in the air. It has outdone both the heavier than air machines and the lighter than air dirigibles. It thus holds a record.

But that record is regarded as one which can easily be exceeded by dirigibles provided they have the advantage of refueling in the air the same as the airplane. This is pointed out by Lieutenant Commander Rosendahl, who has stated that dirigibles flying more than 100 hours had sufficient fuel left when they landed to have more than exceeded the 150 hours made by the Question Mark.

Furthermore it is his belief that the Los Angeles could remain aloft for two weeks without refueling under conditions which prevailed when the Question Mark was making its test, and there might be no limit if refueling was resorted to.

There is a marked difference in regard to what may be expected of an airplane which must maintain itself in the air by the operation of its motors and the dirigible which is kept aloft by gas and simply propelled by the motors. It could hardly be expected that the Question Mark's performance would stand in a contest with any kind of aircraft, but it is nevertheless a fact that up to the present time there has been no aircraft, of any type which has remained longer in the air than it has. It can not be denied that honor. What others can and ought to do remains to be demonstrated, and such can be expected in due time.

Those who are asking what snow looks like have plenty of time ahead to ask the same question about bare ground.

THE FURNACE DAMPER

Dot was dressing and her joy approached a plane of ecstasy because she had achieved both an invitation to the Philmore Teagues' for bridge and Bob's consent to take advantage of it.

She patted her cheeks serenely with a powder puff and called over one shoulder, "Oh, Bob, oo-hoo, don't forget to turn the damper off." The rumbling of coal in the basement was his only reply. She turned toward the mirror, whispering proudly to her reflection, "It is something to be invited to the Philmore Teagues!" Then again toward the doorway, "Oo-hoo, Bob, don't forget the damper." Echoes of footsteps on the stairs announced Bob's approach. Dot hastened to the door.

"Bob, dear, did you turn the damper?"

"Oh, Twinkles, cut the comedy." Bob was plainly put out. "You know very well I always turn that darned thing off."

"I know you think you do," Dot corrected. "But there was last Tuesday night, for instance."

"Forget it." Tartly. "I know I did tonight, and I know why I know. That ought to be sufficient." Dot said no more just then, but she thought to herself, "If I get the chance, it won't come amiss for me to slip down to the cellar and make sure."

She did not, however, get the chance, for Bob was in a hurry to depart. So she decided to take his word on the matter and drop the subject from her mind. But on the way to the party she was again moved to uncomfortable speculations. What if he had not turned the damper? Almost anything could happen. The house might catch on fire. But——if she allowed herself to become a slave to such conjectures the evening would be positively ruined. Bob turned from the wheel of the car and appeared to divine her thoughts.

"If you're still fretting over that damper, Twinkles, cut it out," he said. "Lately, when I turn it off, I put my fountain pen in the upper left hand pocket of my vest. I never have to go back and look. All I do is to feel for my pen."

Dot heaved a sigh of relief. They drifted easily into the social atmosphere at the Philmore Teagues'. They were on the last round at the second table when Dot noticed Bob wiggling one hand nervously around inside of his coat. He was frowning, too, and she detected a danger signal in his look. Suddenly he slapped his cards down on the table and, to the amazement of the people round about, began a frenzied search through his vest pockets. Dot ignited to the occasion.

"Bob!" Her voice was an echo of dismay.

His face was twitching.

"Good heavens!" he gasped. "My pen is gone!"

Murmuring incoherent apologies and explanations, Bob and Dot fled for their wraps, made an undignified exit from the party, and left in their wake a broken bridge game and an astonished little company of people. Above the whir of their automobile engine came a wail from Dot.

"That's the way the Petersons lost everything they had. He forgot to turn the damper off, and when they got back there was nothing there but a pile of ashes."

Bob stepped on the accelerator a little harder. There was a rending shriek and a fire engine cut in on the avenue just ahead of them. Nothing now from Dot but sobs. Like the wind they flew in the wake of the maddening gong. Somewhere beyond a gulf of frightful suspense and dinning noise the fire engine passed out of hearing.

"Look!" cried Bob and brought his machine to a sudden standstill. Dot opened her eyes and found, not a pile of ashes, but their bungalow, safe, secure and sound.

"Then it didn't!" she gasped.

"It seems not," groaned Bob. Later in the basement they discovered the damper turned securely off.

"I knew it," fumed Bob, "and I knew I knew it, but, hang it all, where's the pen?" It was Dot who unraveled the mystery. She brought a garment of wearing apparel from the wardrobe and pointed to the upper left-hand pocket, from which protruded the missing pen.

"My gosh!" groaned Bob. "I forgot I changed my vest after I came up out of the cellar."—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

HOME INVADED IN BEHALF OF CHILDREN'S HEALTH

By J. F. Rogers, M. D., U. S. Bureau of Education.

"The teaching of health ought to, and will, in some more civilized age and country, be held a necessary element in the school course of the child, just as necessary as reading, writing or arithmetic. For after all, it is the most necessary of that technical education of which we hear so much, namely, the technic or art of keeping alive and well." So wrote the Rev. Charles Kingsley, the author of "Water Babies," a half century ago. His prophecy is being fulfilled, and we are at least partly "more civilized," for our schools are doing much for the preservation and improvement of the health of the children in their care.

The school cannot, however, do as much along this line as it might without the thorough understanding and cooperation of the home. It can teach the child how to read and write and cypher without the help of the parents, but when it comes to instruction in cleanliness, clothing, feeding, resting, etc., we have invaded the home, and must be met half way by sympathetic and willing parents if results are to be forthcoming. We can examine children physically in school, but if we get defects corrected we must have the consent of the home. School health work is thus a joint undertaking. It is true that many a home has been made more healthful through the lessons in hygiene carried directly from school, but this is by no means the rule.

School health work needs also the understanding and cooperation of the taxpayer, for our school buildings need to be made healthful and our playgrounds ample if they are not already so. While most of the health activities center in the regular teachers and the janitor, there may be need of special workers who must be paid for.

School health work has for its object the reduction of the 50,000 deaths that occur annually among children of school age, and a diminution of the 200,000,000 school days lost by children on account of illness. It has in view the prevention of much sickness and premature death in later life.

But it means much more, for it endeavors to put the child in his best possible condition, so that he can profit most by his schooling and can pursue the business of life with more pleasure and profit, whether in the shop or on the farm, as plumber or stenographer, teacher or parent.

Whether we can or cannot measure results of health work by the almighty dollar, it pays, for it adds length and capacity for service to our human existence.

Dangerous Stomach Catarrh
Often Mistaken for Indigestion. Watch These Symptoms.

Thousands of people have Catarrh of the Stomach and don't know it. They treat it as indigestion. Yet coated tongue, bad breath, sour burning stomach, rumbling, bitter eructations and gas are all common symptoms of dangerous Gastric Catarrh.

In this disease, a coating of phlegm covers the mucous membrane lining of the stomach, so that digestive fluids cannot mix with and digest the food. This condition soon breeds deadly disease in the fermented, unassimilated food. The blood is polluted and carries the infection throughout the body. Gastric ulcers are apt to form and deadly cancer may develop.

Pepsin pills, soda mints and artificial digestants should never be used in such cases. Instead, right after meals, take a teaspoonful or two tablets of pure Bisurated Magnesia in a glass of hot water. This will wash away the mucous, draw the blood to the stomach, neutralize acidity, prevent sourness, gas and fermentation and permit natural, easy, painless digestion. The whole stomach is cleansed, strengthened and sweetened. Be sure to get genuine Bisurated Magnesia which is especially prepared for this purpose. Any good druggist can supply you, and it is safe, easy and pleasant to use.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Auto Registration and Taxes

Mr. Editor: Referring to your recent editorial on issuing motor vehicle registrations in Waterbury and other articles appearing in Bulletin, it appears that the commissioner would like a new building at perhaps enormous cost and more clerks. Now if matter were handled in either of two ways we would not need a new building in Hartford and might even dispense with a high-priced commissioner and his car and devote the money to development of some of our much-needed dirt roads before we are all gray headed from plowing through the mud.

First method: Centralized. License plates are issued in alphabetical numbers. Now it seems a physical impossibility to issue 260,000 plates in the last few days of the year, even with many clerks. Department as is can handle say 26,000 with present branch offices. Have the plates in A series expire Dec. 2, B series Dec. 3, Z series Dec. 27. Make the using of old plates after expiring date punishable the same as now. First of year all would have to be the same. I do not think many people willfully try to dodge getting their plates. Allow the Hartford office to issue plates to all early applicants the same as now. A little head work and the number in each class could be averaged leaving the X Y Z series for the new cars of the coming year or later registrations.

Second method: Decentralized. This talk of tax dodge is good but if more attention were given to waste dodging we could have more and better roads although I am strong for the tax on automobiles to be devoted to building some real roads and not used as part of the regular town taxes. Now if the above method don't suit, let's fire the commissioner and have only a chief filing clerk at Hartford office and have the town clerks handle the issuing of the plates. There would be no tax dodging. Perhaps the commissioner thinks the town clerks are not capable. If not, put some in that are. Most town clerk offices have ample room for an extra card filing case or two without any new buildings. All applications to be made in duplicate, one forwarded to Hartford with number of plates issued, other filed in town office. Compensation to town clerk to be so much per set of plates plus postage. Let town clerks issue by mail as well as deliver on personal application. If this did not handle the situation O. K. without congestion try the a-x method above with town clerks. Many now go to town office to get their applications sworn to and could get plates at same time.

No Legion Dance

Mr. Editor: Owing to the fact that a great many of the citizens and merchants of Norwich are under the mistaken impression hat a dance to be held in Norwich for which tickets are being sold, is under the auspices of the American Legion and have criticised the legion for the manner in which the tickets are being sold, I wish to take this opportunity to correct that impression by stating that the legion is not running a dance at present and is not connected in any way with any organization that is.

The legion is sponsoring a musical comedy to be given near the same date but that is an entirely different proposition.

The legion stands for service to community, state and nation and Robert O. Fletcher Post, No. 4, A. L. has always tried to live up to this principle

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—The navy never had a four-star admiral bossing its affairs who looked and acted the old seadog more consistently than does Admiral Charles Frederick Hughes of Bath, Me., chief of naval operations.

Incidentally, desk life in Washington has failed to bend his quarterdeck complex completely to political exigency. His eye of steely, deep-sea blue, his cheeks, sun and wind enameled long ago to a permanent ruddy hue, his massive once blond but now gray tinged mustache, rolling in Viking-like proportions athwart a face invariably turned four-square to every man or issue, all mark him for what he is, a sea-going sailor of parts, not just a desk admiral.

A Hurry Call.

So it fell out that when Representative Updike got a hurry family call home to Indianapolis—it proved to be a double call in fact, for it was twins, girl and boy—and used his naval committee membership leverage to requisition navy air transportation, there was a hitch.

Air Secretary Warner approved. The trip was planned with Commander Brown volunteering as pilot to get in needed air hours, but Admiral Hughes disapproved under regulations. Updike and the disapproval reached the air station about the same time. The station commander being more used to congressional ways than the admiral, perhaps, Updike won out and was duly flipped to Indianapolis in time for the great event.

Orders of the high admiral had been disregarded in this process. That could not happen to Admiral Hughes without a loud repercussion being heard in the land. It didn't. Commander Brown got back to find a court of inquiry order facing him. "How come? In effect, was what the autocrat of the quarter-deck wanted to know. Orders are orders in the navy Admiral Hughes has devoted his life to, and politics are something else again.

Wound Up Happily.

Secretary Wilbur finally squelched the whole business. The fact that Assistant Secretary Warner, in charge of naval aviation had approved the the flight originally had some bearing. It all wound up happily enough with everybody congratulating Updike who needed it. He is one of the mighty few sitting republican members to have lost his seat to a democrat in the late voting unpleasantness.

The incident also served to disclose a peculiar twist of navy regulations which probably would have licked the admiral anyhow. They authorize commandants of independent air stations to sanction flights within limits without reference to higher authority. And it also appears that the naval air secretary has no power to authorize flights at all. He has to apply to the chief of operations.

Stories That Recall Others

Not Included

Mother was telling of some place she had taken the older boy when he was quite small. Three-year-old Billy piped up: "Was I there, too, mother?"

He was told he was not as he wasn't even born.

His eyes filled with tears, and his lips puckered as he said: "That's just it, you never take me any place."

Thinking and Saying is Different

Even very small girls have their quarrels and following one of them this little girl came home to her mother much exercised over their little difficulty.

"Mother, I think Lou is a cat," the one little girl said, probably echoing a term she had heard older people use.

"Oh, you mustn't say such things," her mother reprimanded, "you mustn't say things like that about your little playmates. Lots of times we may think things we shouldn't say."

"Well, then, I think Lou is a cat," was the reply.

BABY TOURIST'S JAUNTS INCLUDE SCORE OF STATES

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(AP)—Edna Mae Howard might give many travelers intimate details of almost any place of her "See America" program, but first she must learn to talk and to walk.

Edna Mae is five months old, but most of the hours of that span have been spent in motoring over 10,000 miles of highway in 21 states of the union.

During her motoring career, the tiny girl, with these facts to include in any travelogue she may see fit to make in future years:

She has been below sea level and more than 9,000 feet above it; she has traveled the border of Mexico and that of British Columbia; she has been within 200 feet of the snow caps in the Rocky mountains; has slept in the deserts of New Mexico and Arizona and near the tops of the Cascade and Cumberland mountains, as well as on the banks of the Mississippi river.

She has traveled the full length of the Columbia gorge between Washington and Oregon; has been in flooded areas, in cloudbursts, in sand storms. She has seen torrid temperatures where the thermometer soared over 100 and has shivered in regions where the mercury dropped below the freezing point.

The population of the United States will reach 175,000,000 by 1975, and after that will remain almost stationary, one statistician predicts.

Smile Conservation

I had some smile left over; I had donned it for a dame
I met the other afternoon as down the street I came.
The remnant, good as new, was spent upon an old-time foe
Who oft had lain awake of nights and planned to work me woe.
Since then, he's shown a change of heart as though he thought perhaps
I might be 'most as decent as a lot of other chaps!

I had some smile left over when I'd kissed Herself goodby
One morning as I left my home. It chanced to catch the eye
Of Neighbor Jones' baby as she romped about their lawn—
Since then that child has been my friend; and nearby every dawn
As down the avenue I swing she waves and speaks to me—
The friendliness of Jones, these days, is wonderful to see!

I find a scrap of unused smile a mighty useful thing!
While there is still a bit of it, some pleasure it may bring.
It's very smallest fragment will propel its tidings on
And carry peace and hope and joy till all of it is gone.

So don't be in a hurry to remove it from your face—
A smile will do its bit till it has vanished, every trace!

She was born Aug. 22, 1832, at Poquonoc Bridge, the daughter of Noyes and Caroline Perkins. She was the oldest member of the Noank Baptist church.

She is survived by two sons, County Commissioner Charles H. Smith and William C. Smith, both of Noank.

Preparing For Annual Meeting

According to the new by-laws the annual meeting and roll call of the First Baptist church of Bozrah and Leffingwell will be held Monday evening, Jan. 10. At 6:30 a supper will be served, followed by reports of the several organizations, the election of officers and the roll call.

STATE AUDUBON SECRETARY ADDRESSES NORWICH PUPILS

Miss Frances A. Hurd, from South Norwalk, field secretary of the State Audubon society, is in Norwich, and during Thursday spoke to the pupils at the new Samuel Huntington school, Norwich Town. This (Friday) morning Miss Hurd will visit schools in the Central district. In the afternoon at 3 o'clock she is to speak at Park church parish house for the Woman's Federation. Her topic will be "Our Winter Birds" and she will explain what the state is doing for the protection of the birds. During her visits to the schools Miss Hurd organizes junior Audubon societies.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Miss Frances A. Hurd, of South Norwalk, field secretary of the state Audubon society, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace S. Allis, of Broadway.

Members of the Colonial Dames have been invited to a luncheon at the Hartford Golf club Saturday, to meet Mrs. Lemar.

The Aftermath Auction club met Thursday evening with Mrs. E. Edward Driscoll, of Washington street, Mrs. James J. Donohue winning the prize.

Miss Irene Weir, the New York artist, formerly of Norwich Art school, will be entertained during her week end visit by the Misses Lucas. Saturday afternoon Miss Amy L. Cogswell, of Lincoln avenue, president of the Art association, is giving a small reception, that former pupils may welcome Miss Weir.

The Wednesday supper-bridge club was entertained by Mrs. Albert S. Comstock, of Lincoln avenue, the prize winners being Mrs. Leonard P. Church and Arthur M. Thomson.

For the sixth season, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Lee, of Williams street, are at Hotel Soreno, St. Petersburg, Florida.

Judge and Mrs. Allyn L. Brown attended the governor's ball at Hartford Wednesday night.

Mrs. Edgar H. Allen, of Elmwood avenue, was hostess to the Thursday sewing club, the usual supper following. lowing.

Mrs. Helena M. P. Church, Mrs. Olive R. Roberts, Miss Lucille L. Howard, Joseph T. Hynd and Robert A. Gray sang in "Stabat Mater," at New London early in the week.

Mrs. E. Allen Bidwell and Mrs. Herbert B. Cary were luncheon guests Wednesday of Mrs. Katherine Bishop Persons, of Willimantic, later going for bridge to the home of Mrs. Albert L. French, when Mrs. Cary won second prize.

"DECIBEL" NEW TERM FOR TELEPHONE UNIT MEASURE

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 —(AP)— The new word "decibel" is announced by the Bell Telephone Laboratories as a unit of measure.

It replaces the sign which used to mean "one mile of standard cable." Telephone wires have developed so many new factors of transmission that length alone is said no longer to be an adequate measure.

Hence "decibel," the derivation of which is "deci," meaning one-tenth, and "bel" from the name of Alexander Graham Bell.

A diplomatic woman is one who is able to keep the same hired girl for three consecutive weeks.

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS EXPECT STATE AND NATL. OFFICERS HERE

There is a field for considerable work in the Norwich school system for a visiting teacher, declared Superintendent E. J. Graham when questioned Thursday about this new line of activity which is to be taken up according to a vote of the school board at its meeting earlier in the week.

The matter of securing a visiting teacher is something that was talked of by the school board two years ago, said Mr. Graham, and received new consideration after a meeting about a year ago when a visiting teacher in the schools of Greenwich spoke before a meeting at the Wauregan hotel, describing the beneficial results that had followed this line of work in the Greenwich schools. The visiting teacher is a kind of social worker, functioning between the class room and the home in order to correct cases of pupils who are not showing a proper interest in their school work. This condition in the pupil may be manifested in truancy, by indifference in the class room and consequent retarded progress in school. By consultation with the home the visiting nurse will learn of the pupil's home condition, his companionships, his reading, his habits out of school and other influences on his life, in some one or more of which may be found the underlying cause for his lack of interest and his consequent retarded condition and demoralizing attitude towards school work. The work of the visiting teacher is on the mental side rather than the physical side, and it is expected that the employment of a visiting teacher for the balance of this school year will be a demonstration of the value of this work.

It will not be possible to use any of the teachers now in the Norwich school system for this work as it requires a trained worker in this line, who will probably be secured through the Commonwealth fund in New York which is organized to give this special training. The salary for such a worker would probably be from $1,200 to $1,800, it is believed.

Women of the city who are interested in child welfare work have been advocates of the employment of a visiting teacher.

More work for maladjusted children is now being done in the school system, as there are special classes at the Bishop school and at the Elizabeth street school and another special class is to be formed as soon as a teacher can be secured.

INSTRUCTIVE TALK TO LIONS BY ATTORNEY

The weekly luncheon meeting of the Norwich Lions club was held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel and in the absence of President Kopland K. Markoff, the meeting was called to order by Abner W. Schwartz, who was scheduled to preside for the day. The guests included Mayor Lee Roy Robbins. Lion Joseph Schwartz of New London was heard in vocal solos accompanied by Hugh Kinder, a guest. Prof. Kinder also sang several vocal solos.

Secretary Walter H. Pilcher of the Norwich chamber of commerce was the five minute speaker. Mr. Pilcher spoke of the need of a larger water main in Shetucket street and urged the club to take up the matter of securing a larger pipe for that street. On recommendation of Mr. Pilcher the club voted to invite T. Alfred Fleming, head of the National Fireways Council, to address them in relation to fire prevention.

Attorney Morris Lubchansky of New London was the speaker of the day and his topic was "The Force of the Operation of the Law". In his talk Mr. Lubchansky traced the law system from its origin in Bible times to the present day laws.

Attorney Lubchansky also spoke of the national spirit which makes possible the upholding of the principles which the constitution guarantees. Mr. Lubchansky was given a rising vote of thanks for his interesting talk. The meeting closed with the Lions roar and the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

HANOVER CONG'L. CHURCH ANNUAL MEETING, ROLL CALL

Following the old established custom of the Hanover Congregational church, the annual meeting and roll call of the church opened at 6 o'clock, Wednesday evening in the Parish house, with a supper served by the Ladies' guild. This social hour was enjoyed by some 90 members and friends, who appreciate the value of this coming together as a family. To the guild they were all indebted as usual for a very delicious menu.

At 7:45 the company was called to order in the church for the business meeting and roll call. Rev. Dwight C. Stone as minister, presided, opening the meeting with a brief devotional service.

William S. Lee, clerk of the church, was unfortunately absent from the meeting, on account of illness. William G. Park served as clerk pro tem, reading the minutes of the last meeting and calling the roll of membership. The first name on the list was Pratt A. Allen, who joined this church in 1864 and is its oldest member in terms of years. Responses were given by a large proportion of the members, giving evidence of the real spirit back of all success in life.

Reports from all the organizations of the church were listened to with earnest attention. It was quite clear that in many lines of endeavor the church had worked together in doing a good work. Considerable thought had been expended in trying to solve some of the pressing needs of the community and church life and also in making relationship to the outside world more intelligent and real to all the people. The keynote of the meeting seemed to be the hope that even more could be accomplished next year if all co-operated.

The report of the nominating committee and the election of officers, with few changes, completed the business of the evening.

After the singing of "Blest Be the Tie" and the benediction by the minister, the annual meeting adjourned.

SUIT TO COLLECT ON A PROMISSORY NOTE

In a suit brought in the superior court in which Barnet Davidson, now or formerly of this city, is defendant, the Uncas-Merchants National bank is the plaintiff suing to collect a promissory note for $14,000 on which it is claimed there is now due the sum of $13,500. The suit is returnable in February.

According to the writ drawn up, the note was dated May 23, 1928, and was executed and delivered to the bank by Davidson and Aaron Gordon. On July 5, 1928, the bank demanded payment, but the defendants have failed to meet the demand.

Administrator of Estate

The Thames National bank has been named as administrator of the estate of the late Mrs. Katherine Hubbard at a hearing held in probate court before Judge Nelson J. Ayling. The bank has qualified for the appointment through its trust officer, George R. Fellows, and the appraisers named are Arthur E. Story and Annie McNamara.

Civil Service Examinations

The United States civil service commission announces that an open competitive general clerical examination will be held in Norwich, Conn., this being a special one, to obtain eligibles to fill four permanent vacancies at $1,200 or $1,260 a year, and four temporary vacancies at $1,200 a year. These vacancies are in government offices in Hartford and New Haven.

Full information concerning this examination and the required application blank, form 2374, may be obtained from the secretary of the board of civil service examiners in the Norwich post office.

POULTRYMEN HOLD THEIR BANQUET IN WILLIMANTIC

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 11—The fourth annual poultrymen and business men's banquet under the auspices of the Windham County poultry, pigeon and small stock association in conjunction with the annual Willimantic exposition was held at the Nathan Hale hotel tonight at 9 o'clock with about 150 in attendance. Daniel D. Cavanaugh, general superintendent of the exposition, was toastmaster and the welcome on behalf of the community was extended by Earl J. Arnold, executive secretary of the chamber of commerce and superintendent of exhibits at the exposition.

The keynote of the talks was a furtherance of mutuality among poultrymen and cooperation between the business men of Willimantic and Connecticut Agricultural college. Remarks were made by Prof. David Warner of C. A. C., Storrs, Judge Howard S. Rich, of Springfield, Robert Quait of Newton, N. J., Dr. Mason of Boston, Frank Perry of the Wirthmore Feed company, Dr. J. W. Richards, Trenton, N. J., Miss Emma Lowry, daughter of George Lowry of Willington, owner of the world champion egg laying pen, Samuel Ayer, New York representative of the Reliable Poultry journal of Akron, Ohio, Fred Glover, Stafford Springs, Walter R. King of the Jordan Hardware company, George H. Gurley of the Willimantic Trust company, James H. Hurley, chairman of the Merchants bureau of the Willimantic chamber of commerce, Samuel Wallace, Clinton, Iowa, A. L. Anthony and Mrs. Anthony of Mansfield, E. A. Buck, Jr., of Westford, Charles Risley of Manchester, Frank Pendleton, treasurer of the exposition, G. E. Loiselle of the Norwich Bulletin, W. A. Smith of Newark, N. J., Stuart Capewell, of Winthrop, Mass., and Robert Robertson of Philadelphia.

Mr. Quait outlined a plan proposed by Prof. Warner of the C. A. C. poultry department to hold a series of so-called poultry clinic at Storrs, where the poultryman of this section would receive first hand advice from noted experts on poultry diseases as to their prevention and cure

PETITIONS TO CHANGE NAMES OF CITY STREETS

Petitions to be circulated by members of the Woman's City club in an effort to clear up the names of certain streets in the city that are almost similar in spelling to others was left with them by Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, who spoke before the civic committee of the club on the subject Wednesday morning at the Wauregan hotel. Mr. Robbins' purpose in addressing the club members was with the idea of enlisting their services in the matter.

The petitions to be circulated reads as follows:

To the honorable court of common council of the city of Norwich, Conn.:

Because there are some streets and avenues in the town of Norwich bearing the same or similar names causing much confusion in the delivery of mail, telegrams, parcels and the response of firemen and policemen, the location of residents by visitors and the transportation of business, therefore, we the undersigned, respectfully petition that the name of ——— be changed to ———

It was explained by the mayor that a petition is to be circulated among the residents of the streets, which are to be changed, and a new name for the street is to be chosen by them. The petitions will be presented to the court of common council, and a public heading held later for the benefit of the citizens, who may wish to voice their opinions on proposed changes in the names of city streets. The common council has the authority to change the names of city streets, without the consent of residents thereon, but the administration does not wish to impose an undesired change upon residents of any particular street.

SKIDDING AUTO WRECKED ON STONINGTON ROAD

A big sedan owned by Eugene Goodwin of 16 Broadway, Mystic, and driven by his son, Ralston, 20, who was accompanied by Francis Holly, 25, also of Mystic, skidded about 1:30 Thursday morning at Oxecoxset Creek, on the Stonington-Westerly highway, crashing into a fence, pole and stone wall. The machine was completely wrecked and both men received severe cuts about the face and body for which they were attended at the office of Dr. W. T. Veal in Stonington.

The men were returning from attending the first annual dinner of the Westerly Boat club at Elm Tree inn in Pawcatuck and the road was slippery with snow.

The machine knocked down eight wooden and four iron posts of the highway fence, ripping the fence rails down for 60 feet, and moving the pole which it hit three feet. All four wheels of the car were crushed, the body was badly damaged by hitting the pole, and parts of the car were scattered for long distances along the road.

ABOUT 12 PER CENT. VIOLATE PERSONAL USE TICKET PLEDGE

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 10—(AP)—The tabulation by the Yale Athletic association of checking of signatures from several thousand spectators at the Yale-Harvard football game here last November, showed in an announcement today that about 12 per cent. of the cases constituted violation of the personal use pledge. Practically all of the cases, the report shows, were purely technical violations such as a straight exchange of tickets with another alumnus to effect a more convenient seating arrangement.

No action will be brought in the case of those alumni who actually were present at the game but did not actually occupy the identical seats originally allotted. The ticket committee has under consideration the withholding of ticket privileges for a period of at least two years in the cases of those who clearly made no attempt to fulfill the signed personal use agreement. The number of these cases is 16.

Harold F. Woodcock, general manager of the Yale university athletic association, in a statement said that the signatures taken at the Harvard-Yale football game at the bowl last fall have been checked with the signatures on the ticket applications. It has been found, he said, that the very great majority of the applicants cooperated fully with the Yale alumni football ticket committee and the Yale athletic association in the necessary regulation which provides that the applicant agrees personally to occupy one of the seats allotted to him.

Several thousand signatures were taken from ticket holders and in cases where the signatures did not check with those on the ticket applicaiton forms, letters were written for an explanation of the circumstances.

Celtics Beat Trojans

The Celtics beat the newly organized Trojans basketball team Thursday at Christ church gym, 40 to 26, in a well-played game. The Trojans played well but the Celtics proved just a little bit too good. Dugas, G. Lambert and Chinky played best for the winners and Wonnacott and Atcheson did good work for the losers. The Trojans will play the Pioneers at Christ church gym next week.

The program at Ellington grange meeting this week was in charge of the retiring officers and included a discussion, "Employment of Rural-Minded Teachers in Country Schools," by H. L. Hamilton and A. L. Young.

May Be In Hoover Cabinet

Rep. Franklin W. Fort, of New Jersey, one of the "Food Relief Hoover Men," who is mentioned as a possible candidate for a place in the cabinet of President-elect Hoover. It is generally understood, however, that Representative Fort's ambition is to be Governor of his State. He has just been made a member of the House Committee on Rules, taking the place of Senator Burton, of Ohio.

Stop Bad Breath

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gentle purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

Olive Tablets bring no griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c, 60c. All druggists.

AFTER OPERATION

"I was three times under an operation and I was very weak and nervous and could not eat. I suffered for ten years. I learned about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and my husband bought me a bottle. I felt a little better and he bought me two more. I had the Compound in my home for two years and took it all the time. Now I feel strong and can do anything."—Mrs. A. Michalk, 5443 Mitchell Ave., Detroit, Michigan.

SHARKEY-STRIBLING BOUT MAY NOT BE STAGED BY GARDEN INTERESTS

(By Edward J. Neil, Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(AP)—Two of the strongest institutions in the boxing world, Jack Dempsey and the Madison Square Garden corporation, struggled mainly today with problems willed them by the late Tex Rickard.

But of it all came the very definite probability that there would be no heavyweight match between Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling in Miami Beach under the direction of Rickard's successors. With the day, too, died any chance that Dempsey would step into the garden to take over the post left vacant by the death of his firm friend and advisor.

The Old Manassa Mauler promised a definite decision on the comeback campaign for the heavyweight championship Rickard had planned for him. But when the time came Dempsey could only say that he did not know. That he was too busy caring for the welfare of the promoter's widow and child to think of his own affairs, that he must wind up the business ventures he and Rickard had together before making any decision.

"I'm going back to Miami Beach directly to pick up those negotiations with the people with whom Tex was interested and with whom he desired me to become interested and after I have become thoroughly familiar with the details of the proposed business arrangements I will come to a decision," he said.

"Should the Madison Square Garden people decide to stage the Sharkey-Stribling boxing match at Miami Beach on Feb. 27 and I can be of any assistance to them it will be a pleasure for me to render that assistance so that Mrs. Rickard and her baby may benefit from such arrangements."

While Dempsey told newspapermen in his hotel suite that the Madison Square Garden directorate had made no effort to interest him in the management of the boxing business, the heads of the Garden attempted to decide the standing of the bout Rickard had planned as the high light of the winter season, the forerunner of an outdoor campaign he hoped would break all records with Dempsey again a active competition.

The outcome of that was a decision to search all available records of the late promoter, and to question tomorrow all those who had any part in the making of the match to determine how far plans had progressed. If William F. Carey, first vice president and treasurer of the corporation, and Col. John S. Hammond, acting general manager find that the legal contracts have been entered into with the fighters, the bout will take place as per schedule.

"If we have to go through with the fight we will," was the attitude of Carey, most influential of the stockholders in the Garden and generally accepted now as Rickard's successor. "We want to anyway but we must go ahead on a business like basis."

Although neither Carey nor Hammond would discuss the point in open forum, the Garden management believes that both Sharkey and Stribling should box in Miami Beach for a percentage of the receipts. Rickard, before his death, said he guaranteed Sharkey $100,000 and Stribling $40,000 for the match. Carey does not believe that contracts to that effect have been signed, although they were drawn up and forwarded to Rickard in the south. If they were signed, then the match will be staged on the original basis.

Carey was vehement in his declaration that the Garden directors want to conduct the bout, "but under a business like arrangement." They realize that the match is the first test of Garden strength since the promoter's death, but the ways of Rickard must not necessary be the ways of his successors.

"If the fight takes place," Carey said, "We want Dempsey's help. We need him and hope he'll take an active part in putting the show over."

RICKARD'S ESTATE WILL BE OVER A MILLION

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(AP)—Tex Rickard left an estate valued at "over a million dollars" Jack Dempsey revealed today after a conference with lawyers handling the promoter's affairs. He said that the will when read tomorrow would reveal bequests to Rickard's widow, infant daughter and his mother.

Dempsey said that the will will provide $50,000 in cash and all Rickard's personal property for the widow, an adequate bequest for his aged mother with the rest of the estate, when several minor bequests are taken care of, going into a trust fund for the young daughter, Maxine.

ARMORY FIVE PROTESTS ROUGHNESS OF CRONIN

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 10—It looked tonight as though the Southern New England basketball league will be disrupted because of too much Jack Cronin. The great Cronin, former Boston college star and member of the Providence Steam Roller, professional football team the past fall, has roughhoused at least part of the league into a turmoil by introducing football tactics, deliberate slugging and generally unfair playing and persistent and flagrant violations of the playing rules. Either Cronin, who has been playing with the Headquarters company team of Putnam, gets out of the league or the Armory five of Danielson does, and very likely other teams.

Tonight's tense situation grows out of a Harvup Cronin created by his unfair manner of playing at the Armory here Tuesday evening and again in the game between the Armory five of Danielson and the Headquarters company team at Putnam last night, when the party nearly ended in a general row.

Both games have been protested by the management of the Armory five. Cronin made himself unpopular here Tuesday night within two minutes after taking the floor. He used his weight and football skill to crash around like a young locomotive, knocking down Red Lague of the Armory five three times in less than that number of minutes. Lague is at least 50 pounds lighter than Cronin. That started rough playing by both teams. Headquarters finally winning out 24 to 17. Cronin had to be warned several times, but cooled down and was allowed to remain in the game.

Through the assurance that Cronin would play basketball, and not football, the teams met again at Putnam last night, the promises proved empty ones. Cronin's playing became so objectionable and so unfair and so much in violation of the rules toward the middle of the first half that Capt. Gale of the Armory five notified the referee that the Danielson team would continue playing under protest. Despite this, the playing grew rougher. Finally, in a scrimmage for the ball between Barrett, Danielson, and Weiss, Putnam, Weiss was thrown to the floor, and in a flash Cronin is said to have slugged Barrett from the rear. That started a turmoil that came near ending in a general row.

Manager G. Rene Caron of the Danielson team has protested both games to President Folgerson and Secretary L. Hector Lucier. President Folgerson is said to have agreed that there is little use in trying to continue the league if such playing as Cronin has been indulging in is to be allowed. "No more Cronin or no more league" is the ultimatum from the Armory five, in so far as it is concerned.

The league is made up of, in addition to the teams figuring in this affair the Slater five of Webster, Black and White Collegians of Woodstock, Company C of Willimantic and a Plainfield team.

ALEX TOURAIN, FORMER PUTNAM BOY, WINS AGAIN

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 10—(AP)—Only one of seven boxers from Passaic and Newark, N. J., was returned a winner tonight in the weekly amateur card of the Independent Boxing association, featured by nine New Haven victories. Joe Sabatini, New Haven, and Artie Parker, Newark, furnished the fireworks, the local boy winning at the end of three torrid rounds. Summaries:

Jimmy Brey, New Haven, defeated Bernard Flood, New Britain, 3-116.

Tim Murphy, Passaic, N. J., knocked out Eddie Mack, New Haven, 1-118.

Fred Ionnucci, New Haven, defeated George Grant, New Haven, 3-115.

Carmen Knapp, New Haven, defeated Nick Delino, Passaic, 3-130.

Louis Richetelli, New Haven, defeated Stanley Pulaski, New Haven, 3-145.

Jimmy Feledic, Westport, defeated Charlie Cocuzza, Passaic, 3-135.

Mark Wallace, New Haven, scored technical knockout over Joe Ryan, New Britain, 1-197.

Jack Dillon, New Haven, defeated George Hadden, New Britain, 3-118.

Jack Beasley, New Haven, knocked out Jock Wallace, Passaic, 2-170.

Alex Tourain, New Haven, defeated Sammy Binder, Newark, 3-140.

Joe Sabatini, New Haven, defeated Artie Parker, Newark, 3-125.

Buddy Howard, New Haven, scored technical knockout over Eddie Rapp, Passaic, 2-180.

NEW LONDON ALL STARS WANT GAME IN NORWICH

The All Stars of New London are arranging a schedule of games and would like to play some of the faster teams in Norwich. The New London club is made up of the best players on various teams of the New London Y. M. C. A. City league and all are former high school or college players.

The All Stars desire to play most of their games away from home as the league would interfere with a game in New London. As the players on the All Stars are still playing in the league, they can not play on either Wednesday or Saturday unless the game is arranged a week in advance. However, the quintet can play on any other days and hopes to arrange several games with fast teams.

The five is composed of such men as: Seixas, former star player in New York high school circles; Farnham, ex-Wesleyan man; Mortenson, a star at Carolina; Kaplan, another New York luminary, and Trude and Montgomery, both former Chapman Tech athletes. The lineup may also include Graves, former Florida star and Jack Conway, coach of Tech and ex-captain of the University of Vermont.

Teams desiring games should get in touch with H. W. Montgomery at the New London Y. M. C. A.

Aggie Frosh Open Season Tonight.

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Jan. 10—Collegiate Prep of New Haven will face the Connecticut Aggie freshman basketball quintet here tomorrow evening in the first contest of the year for the Nutmeg yearlings. The contest will open up a ten game schedule for the frosh that includes meetings with Yale, Holy Cross, Brown, Springfield and Rhode Island.

National Hockey League

At Ottawa: New York Rangers, 9; Ottawa, 3.

At New York: New York Americans, 2; Toronto, 0.

At Detroit: Detroit Cougars, 4; Pittsburgh Pirates, 1.

At Montreal: Boston, 4; Les Canadiens, 2.

At Chicago: Montreal Maroons, 1; Chicago, 1 (overtime tie).

Canadian-American Hockey

At Providence: Providence, 1; New Haven, 1.

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

The Academy meeting Putnam just now would be enough but when it opens the league schedule, well, then, it ought to be quite an interesting game.

Naugatuck High dropped its second game of the year to Yale freshmen Wednesday night. Naugy was Eastern champs last year but the Foleymen are not going so well right now, losing to another team of New Haven, Commercial High school, last week.

Only four personal fouls were called on Windham in the Bulkeley game, comes word from Willimantic. Windham is undefeated against scholastic competition.

Stonington High, a league member, meets Tourtellotte High of North Grosvenordale, this state, tonight at Stonington. This is Stonington's second start of the campaign. Bill O'Brien's boys lost to the Stonington Iron Men in December. Stonington opens its league schedule next Friday with Putnam. In the preliminary contest tonight Stonington High girls play Plainfield High misses.

Putnam High is furnishing the league openings for about every club in the league. Tonight with the Academy, tomorrow night with Windham at Willimantic Y, and next Friday with Stoningtoon. There's only Chapman Tech to be figured.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

They're going to use white gloves in the Honohina-Adonis fight at Hartford tonight.

This is the first time east of Chicago this has been done.

Adonis is the Eddie Adonis who was here for about a month last spring, working out at the Duwell club.

That's probably why they don't get going in stride until February.

JANUARY 11

25 Years Ago

Norwich lost a weird basketball game to New London, 10 to 7. Willimantic won from Putnam, 49 to 14. A meeting of the Eastern Connecticut basketball league yesterday decided that beginning today a new season will be started, that is, the second half schedule of the league will be put into operation. New London won the first half championship with Norwich second. The respective percentages were .733 and .500. It was also decided to move the baskets 15 inches from the wall. Referees chosen are P. J. F. Sullivan, Jack Tighe, Louis Dondero and Charles Kingberger.

Yankees to train in Jacksonville, Florida. Major and minor leagues to hold series of meetings in New York in near future. Eddie Shevlin, champion welterweight of the navy, has been signed to meet Johnny Bashan, champion welter of England.

Another Gibbons-Dempsey bout is slated to take place in June. Young Leonard of Wallingford, who has made an excellent record in and about Hartford, is located in Norwich for a few days and is open to engagements. Owen Bush, new manager of the Indianapolis American association team said he would take Hod Eller, former Cincinnati pitcher, on the spring training trip. He thinks he will pitch again.

1 Year Ago

Rogers Hornsby traded to Boston Braves by New York Giants for Catcher Frank Hogan and Outfielder James Welch. No cash was involved. Crescents even up series with Danielson Towners, 28 to 16. Nothing startling in list of boxers named by Tex Rickard. Plainfield Pros meet Pitton A. C. of Boston tonight. Hornsby refuses to believe he is traded. Judge Fuchs, president of the Braves, is elated. Plainfield High beats Stonington High, 24 to 21. Dolly Stark to be named National league umpire. High school coaches to hold league conference today at Academy.

INDIANS TAKE LEAD IN CAN-AM LOOP, BEATING BOSTON, 3-1

BOSTON, Jan. 10—(AP)—The Springfield Indians jumped to the top of the Canadian-American Hockey league here tonight by defeating Boston, 3 to 1, for the first time this season. Roy Goldsworthy was the chief factor in the Indians' victory, scoring twice. Cawkell netted the other Springfield tally.

The Boston score resulted from one of the freakiest plays seen here in many a day. Waite tried to break through the Springfield defense alone and when he was tripped he slid into the cage, with the puck undr him.

KINGSTON, R. The Academy's basketball season opens tonight at Putnam when the Wildcats play the inaugural game with Putnam high in the new five-team Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island Interscholastic conference. Putnam and Windham are the additions to the old three-team affair, these teams being added just a year ago this time but are now entering upon their first court campaign together. There are seven teams in active membership in the league but Westerly and Bulkeley of New London, the remaining schools, have no basketball teams.

Putnam Has Good Record

Putnam has a creditable record to date, losing but one game. Coach Lauriston F. Noyes seems to have a worthy successor to his undefeated football team. Putnam's lone defeat was to Burrillville High by one point, which only Wednesday night fell before the Noyesmen, 36 to 13.

This will only be the third basketball meeting of these two schools. In 1927, the Academy's first season at the court game, the teams broke even in their two-game series, Putnam winning a one-point decision at Putnam and the Academy coming out ahead by 12 points here. Both of these games, needless to say, were hard-fought and another stiff battle is looked for this evening.

The Academy enters upon its third year of basketball with Courtland C. Whitney at the helm for the second season in succession. "Whit," last year, turned out a strong finisher, one that through a brilliant spurt after mid-February, won its last seven games, getting an 11-11 break on the campaign. Previous to that, however, the team played miserable basketball at times, and therefore could not receive as much recognition for their late work as would otherwise have been the case. There were some who thought this fact was caused by a late opening, meeting teams in the first month that had five or six games under their belt. Last year, the Academy opened Jan. 7, this year the 11th.

N. F. A. Has One Veteran

Putnam tonight will have a big advantage on the Red and White, both in teamwork and in veterans. Aime (Buck) LaCroix, the captain, is the only letterman from the 1928 quintet. Buck was a guard last year and a good one and he is back at his old post again this season. Jim Kelly, his running mate and the captain of that team, Les Pingree, center, and Lloyd Jarvis and Joe Viau, forwards, are all gone. Buck, however, will have a lot of boys, who lack high school experience, but who have played a lot on amateur fives in the city. The most probable lineup to start tonight finds, Fat Stevens and Red Fagan at the forwards, Howard Dickerman at center and "Gink" Barber and LaCroix in the backcourt. Stevens and Fagan are former Y Emp stars while Dickerman has played with several Y junior teams and Barber with the Y Seniors.

Berghinzo On Shelf

"Chet" Berghinzo, star football player and captain-elect of the eleven, was being groomed for the center post until he sprained his ankle and now has it in a cast. He will probably be out for two or three weeks. Berghinzo looked like a real prospect to many and his return to warfare is being looked for to by N. F. A. supporters.

A preliminary game will start about 8 o'clock and a large number is expected to make the trip from this city.

FIVE TEAMS IN THE RACE AS LEAGUE SEASON STARTS

The opening of the Interscholastic basketball league race tonight finds five well-matched teams in the struggle for 1929. The Academy-Putnam game sets off the fireworks this evening while the Windham-Putnam tilt tomorrow evening finishes the first week.

By the end of next week, all five quintets, Windham, Chapman Tech, Stonington, Putnam and N. F. A., will have had their league baptismal.

There is no favorite as the race starts. Windham, champion of eastern Connecticut last year, playing outside the league, has been going great to date, losing but one game and that to an amateur team of Willimantic. In beating Bulkeley High of Hartford Wednesday, Windham gave strong indications that she will be reckoned with throughout the season.

Chapman Tech, champion of the old three and sometimes two-team league, for the past seven out of eight years, has lost, but once also, that to her Alumni, while winning eight games. Tech will put up a stiff fight as she has nearly a month's experience already this campaign.

Stonington played in and out basketball last year, but was able to beat the Academy twice and finish second in the league. This year Stonington has played one game and lost it, to an independent team. However, Bill O'Brien, although he hasn't too many veterans, should put out a scrappy outfit that has a real chance of finishing around the top.

Putnam, one of the principals tonight, is doing very well this year, losing but once to Burrillville, which team was soundly trounced in the return meeting. Putnam had a fine football team and, flushed with thoughts of the grid campaign, will go quite a ways before admitting defeat in the basketball race. Putnam is the favorite tonight to beat the Academy.

The Academy, although with only one veteran, nevertheless has a lot of youngsters who know quite a bit about the game and the Wildcats may be classed as the dark horse of the race. Coach Courtland C. Whitney has about as few veterans upon which to build as is possible and the least number of tried material in the league upon which to build, but Academy supporters are keeping mum and nursing a hunch that things will be all right.

It's going to be quite an honor to win this first championship of the new circuit and some fine basketball should be on exhibition before that task is finished.

PERCY WILLIAMS TO COMPETE IN MILLROSE GAME, FEB. 9

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 10—(AP)—Percy Williams, Canadian holder of the Olympic sprint crown, will make his indoor racing debut at the Millrose games in New York, Feb. 9, with the aid of Mel Sheppard, one-time American Olympic star and now the Millrose coach.

The crack Canadian girls' Olympic relay team is entered with the Hamilton Central collegiate relay squad in the Millrose games.

AGGIE QUINTET READY FOR NEW HAMPSHIRE GAME

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Jan. 10—Final scrimmage of the week was held this afternoon in the camp of the Connecticut Aggies as the team tapered off for the annual New Hampshire university contest for this Saturday evening in the Hawley armory. The fray will be the second on the list and the first real test for the Nutmeggers since the Wildcats have always presented the Aggies with a stiff evening of entertainment. Last winter the Blue and White took the northerners into camp on a trip to Durham but the outcome of the contest this year is of a dubious nature. Little is known of New Hampshire's comparative strength.

Although the Aggies saw much scrimmaging all week, most of it was played in a form not used much at Storrs. The man to man type of defense was used to prepare for the game Saturday since the quintet from Durham presented last year a dual style of playing. One half of the game was played with the five man defensive which is the form used by the Aggies for some time, but the other half New Hampshire surprised the Nutmeggers in changing to the man to man game. This week Coach Alexander spent half the time in training his charges on that style of play. The Aggies used the man to man play in the past but not to any great extent, and, only when necessary, in the last minutes of a game.

In today's scrimmage the varsity were keenly contested by a second quintet made up of Darrow and Glennon, forwards; Matzkin, center and Flydal and Dall, guards. Hyman and McCombe were alternated at the forwards as were Dragat and Fisher in the guard positions. The varsity consisted of Captain Ryan and Lamoureux, forwards; Chubbuck, center; and Osterling and Duffy, guards. The contest was a close and fast battle with the varsity winning by a scant margin.

COURTLAND C. WHITNEY
Coach

The Nutmeg mentor will in all probability start the first string combination against New Hampshire with the anticipation of a hard game. The reserves will also see much action by virtue of their outstanding play this afternoon.

NURMI STARTS AMERICAN CAMPAIGN AT BROOKLYN

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(AP)—Paavo Nurmi, the "Phantom Finn," will start his second American track and field campaign at the Brooklyn college games, Saturday, January 19. Nurmi's entry in the 5,000 yard invitation race was received by meet officials today.

The meet is to be held at the Thirteenth Regiment armory, Brooklyn.

With Nurmi's entry, the 5,000 yard event will become the most important on the meet program. Nurmi reported that he was in excellent condition and ready to meet the stiffest competition. The field is to be limited to six. Among those invited to meet the Flying Finn will be Leo Lermond, Boston A. A. star; Ove Anderson, one of Nurmi's countryman now living here, and Frank Titterton, of the Millrose A. A., national 10 and 15 mile champion.

Announcement also was made of the entry of Sam Martin, Boston A. A., in the Brooklyn college thousand in which Phil Edwards, New York university Negro flash, is the outstanding favorite.

CARROLL'S BOXERS NOT TO BE BARRED IN BAY STATE

BOSTON, Jan. 10—(AP)—A denial that the boxing stable of John F. Carroll, one of the witnesses who testified on the so-called Sunday baseball bribe investigation had been, or was to be barred from participation in any bouts at the Boston Garden, was made today in a statement issued by General Manager Sheldon Fairbanks.

During one of the hearings, witnesses testified to the finance commission that Charles F. Adams, vice president of the Boston Braves and owner of the Boston Bruins hockey club, had caused Carroll's fighters to be barred from the garden and that he later rescinded this action against them.

TWO FAST GAMES AT Y GYM ON SATURDAY NIGHT

As a preliminary to the Y Seniors-Middletown Y game Saturday night at the Y gym, the Y Emps will tackle the fast Baltic Bantams quintet. The Emps have been materially weakened by the loss of several men to the Academy team but Coach Conklin expects to reorganize the five and present a formidable lineup tomorrow evening.

In the main game, the Seniors will be getting a taste of what to expect in the state Y chase. Middletown annually boasts a strong team and is always a strong contender for the title, which the local boys have their eyes on for 1929.

VOIGT AND SOMMERS WIN PRO-AMATEUR AT MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 10—(AP)—George Voigt, Douglastown, N. Y., amateur, paired with Norman Sommers, Fort Lauderdale professional, to win the Bayshore pro-amateur tournament with a best ball score of 66 here today. Voigt had an individual score of 69 while he and his partner chalked up a low ball score of 32 for the outbound trip and 34 coming back.

Gene Sarazen, winner last week of the Miami open tournament, with C. A. Roberts, Miami amateur, tied for second with a team score of 67. They split honors with George Smith, New York, and Fred Howe, Miami.

The match was a warming up affair for many of the pros and amateurs who will enter the Miami open tomorrow.

RALPH GREENLEAF WIDENS GAP OVER WILLIE HOPPE

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(AP)—Ralph Greenleaf, former world's pocket billiards champion, further widened his lead over Willie Hoppe, ex-king of the balkline game, taking both of today's blocks in their special pocket billiards match. The totals now stand: Greenleaf, 1,010; Hoppe, 349. Greenleaf is playing 1,500 points to Hoppe's 1,200.

Greenleaf won the afternoon block, 126 to 67 in nine innings. Greenleaf's best cluster was 56; Hoppe's, 24.

Tonight Greenleaf won 125 to 40 in 17 innings. His high run was 37; Hoppe's, 12.

LYNCH DENIES CHARGES AND LABELS FUCHS A BLACKMAILER RACKETEER

BOSTON, Jan. 10—(AP)—Complete denial of bribery charges made by Emil Fuchs, president of the Boston Braves, was made today by City Councilman William G. Lynch, when he appeared before the Boston finance commission which is investigating the charges.

Lynch voiced a counter charge, declaring that Fuchs was "on record as a blackmailer, blackjacker and racketeer, and that he was using this method to force the city council to push through the order permitting Sunday baseball."

Lynch's testimony brought an end to the public hearings by the commission into the charge by Fuchs that Lynch had solicited a bribe of $5,000 for each of thirteen members of a bloc of councilmen. His statement concerning Fuchs was the result of a question put to him by the commission in which he was asked whether he had an opinion as to why Fuchs brought such a charge.

Lynch replied that within the last week he had investigated Fuchs in New York city. He then made his accusation and added that the record he referred to was in the office of John Hawley Clark, Jr., assistant U. S. district attorney in New York city.

Following this statement, Lynch's counsel, Joseph P. Walsh, promised to bring the record before the commission during its private consideration of the case.

Lynch's accusation was the high spot in his testimony during which he denied, point by point, the testimony given by Fuchs. His testimony concerning a meeting at the Hotel Copley Plaza, at which Fuchs said, Lynch sought the bribe, was substantially the same as that given yesterday by Dan Carroll, boxing promoter, who was present at the meeting in Fuchs' room.

He said that Fuchs accused him of "holding him up" and that he (Fuchs) would put an end to Lynch's political career if he opposed the Sunday sports bill. Lynch said that Fuchs "opened up with as fine a blast as I ever heard."

He quoted Fuchs as saying, on the matter of Lynch's political career: "It looks like it's about ended if you go against the bill. We fixed Bilodeau in Boston and we fixed Whalen in New York when he was running for alderman."

Lynch thought Fuchs was "either drunk or crazy," he told the commission. "I lost my head and called him all sorts of names," Lynch testified. "I was going to punch him on the mouth, but Carroll stepped in and saved him."

He denied that he ever mentioned a bribe to Fuchs "or anybody else." He said there was no talk of a bloc, with the exception of a statement by Fuchs that Lynch was leading a "bloc of nine members" against the bill.

Later, Lynch said, Fuchs told him he had been misinformed and apologized. Fuchs followed this apology, the councilman said, by telling Carroll and Lynch of various matters that caused him to worry.

"These things are driving me crazy," Lynch quoted Fuchs as saying.

Lynch denied that, during the conference with Fuchs, he had spoken of members of the council in a derogatory manner, as Fuchs testified before the commission. Fuchs had said Lynch called one of the councillors "a poor slob."

Lynch declared that when he and Carroll left Fuchs later that night, Fuchs had a friendly attitude toward him and invited him to visit the Braves' camp at St. Petersburg, Fla., in the spring. He also extended this invitation to Carroll, Lynch said.

The councilman testified that he had learned that Lynch was opposed to the bill. Lynch replied, he testified, that he was in favor of the bill and would vote for it.

He also said that during the November election campaign he had erected two signs at his automobile service station on which were the words: "Vote for Sunday baseball. He declared that, as democratic committeeman in his ward, he had engaged four extra checkers at the polls and that he instructed them to ask the voters for "votes for Al Smith and Sunday baseball."

Lynch was asked by the commission whether he believed a rumor that Fuchs was making the bribery charges to hold up Charles F. Adams, vice president of the Braves, for $100,000. This had been referred to by Carroll yesterday, but was excluded from the testimony. Lynch told the commission he never believed the rumor.

The councilman, the only witness of the day, concluded his testimony by accusing Fuchs of being a blackmailer.

The finance commission announced that it was examining the bank accounts of the Boston Braves and would also examine those of Fuchs and Adams. Further hearings may be held, the commission said, if additional testimony is deemed necessary. Walsh asked that Edmund P. Cunningham, secretary of the Braves, be recalled for questioning about the Outdoor Recreation league, an organization which campaigned for Sunday base ball. He was told that the activities of the league were now being investigated by the attorney general's department and would not be considered further by the commission.

Councilman Lynch also asked that Fuchs be recalled, but the commission declined to consider the request.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

DODGE BROTHERS SIX

EVER SINCE the first Dodge Brothers car made its notable appearance some 13 years ago, the name of Dodge Brothers has enjoyed commanding prestige.

Hence, in acquiring the Dodge Brothers Corporation, and in undertaking to plan, produce and protect the future products which will bear the Dodge name, we are mindful of our profound personal obligation to the vast Dodge Brothers public and the host of Dodge Brothers dealers throughout the world.

It is our sole aim to add so consistently and conspicuously to the present acclaim of Dodge that every Dodge owner and every Dodge dealer will feel even greater pride and will have cause for even greater satisfaction.

We are utilizing every one of the elements of progressive engineering, scientific manufacturing and outstanding value which have contributed to the success of all other Chrysler-built cars and to the general and rapid progress of the Chrysler Corporation.

We have embodied such evident value, such surpassing performance, such engineering supremacy and so much of originality, beauty and luxury that by every comparison, the value of Dodge Brothers cars will remain unchallenged.

The new Dodge Brothers Six furnishes unassailable evidence of the unlimited capabilities of the great forces of the Chrysler Corporation when marshalled to full strength in any enterprise.

From an engineering standpoint, this new Dodge Brothers Six is a supreme achievement by a group of engineers whose scientific accomplishments have revolutionized automobile design.

We believe that in performance, in new measures of comfort, in long-lived excellence, and in persistent and inherent value it surpasses every previous conception of what a car at this price could possible be.

In the higher-price field, the new Chrysler-built Dodge Senior has already won preference among the buyers of large, fine cars.

It marks a notable advance in style, in performance, in luxurious comfort and in its wealth of refinements.

We are proud to be the creators and sponsors of these two fine cars—the new Dodge Brothers Six and the new Dodge Senior—and present them in the sincere conviction that they offer the high values, dependability and distinction which a discriminating public expects always of Dodge Brothers.

WESTERLY

STATE, COUNTY AND TOWN HONOR MAURICE W. FLYNN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 10—Attended by state, county and town officials, funeral services were held Thursday morning for Maurice Walter Flynn, for years a Westerly councilman and assemblyman. Besides numerous relatives and friends from Westerly there attended relatives from New York, Newport and Attleboro, Mass. There was also present a delegation from Narragansett council, No. 21, Knights of Columbus, of Westerly.

The funeral was held at 8:45 from his home, 15 Summer street. A high mass of requiem was celebrated at 10:15 o'clock at the Church of the Immaculate Conception by Rev. J. F. Vincent, S. M. At the offertory Martin H. Spellman sang Rosewig's "Ave Maria," and following the mass Thomas V. Clancy sang "Calvary."

Burial was at St. Michael's new cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Father Vincent. The bearers were Andrew J. Martin, George A. Dolan, Edward Sawyer, William Ledward, Timothy J. Connors and John J. Dunn.

Mr. Flynn was a political leader in Westerly for a decade. He served on the town council from 1909 to 1919, and was president of that body for five years. In 1919 and 1920, he represented Westerly in the Rhode Island senate. Active and personal interest was taken by Senator Flynn in every project where he thought the welfare of the town of Westerly was involved.

OBITUARY

Earl Lewis Palmer

Earl Lewis Palmer, 44, died Wednesday night at the Westerly hospital from double pneumonia. He was taken to the hospital Saturday last.

He was born in Voluntown, Conn., Nov., 18, 1884, the son of William H. and the late Mary Palmer. He came to Westerly when a young man. He learned his trade at the Atwood Machine Co. in Stonington, and later worked about town. The past two years he had been employed by Samuel Nardone. He was in charge of the steam shovel that did the excavating on Union street. He was a member of Mystic lodge of Odd Fellows, of the Modern Woodmen of America, and of the South County Rod and Gun club; also an active member of the R. I. Ones of the Westerly fire department and held the office of treasurer in the company at the time of his death. Besides his father, William H. Palmer, and his step-mother, Mary E. Palmer, both of Voluntown, he is survived by his wife, Mary Elizabeth Palmer, of 29 John street, and a son, Thomas William Palmer, also of Westerly.

Mrs. James H. Diggett

Angie Leotta Burdick, 29, wife of James Henry Diggett, and a former resident of Charlestown, died Wednesday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Fred Boyington, Jr., in Fairview Park. She had been in ill health for the past nine months. She was born in Charlestown, March 22, 1899, the daughter of Thomas C. and Sarah F. Burdick. She lived there until her marriage Nov. 29, 1916, after which she went with her husband to reside in Killingly, Conn. She came here to visit her sister about four months ago. Besides her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Pauline Frances Diggett; two sisters, Mrs. Fred Boyington, Jr., of Westerly and Mrs. Fred Morse of Killingly, and five brothers, Lester Burdick, Westerly; Anger Burdick, Providence; Norman Burdick, Ashaway, and Durwood and Elmer Burdick, Killingly.

Thomas Frazier

Thomas Frazier, 70, who for the past seven years had made his home with his son, Albert Frazier, at 86 Elm street, died Thursday morning at the Westerly hospital. He had been in failing health for some time, but became seriously ill only two days ago, when he was taken to the hospital. Death was caused by double pneumonia. He was a native of Canada, but came to this country in his youth and spent the greater part of his life in Massachusetts. He came here from Chelsea, Mass.

When the Washington County Medical society held its annual meeting, Wednesday, at the Elm Tree Inn, Dr. John W. Helfrich was elected president. The other officers elected were: Dr. Charles P. Crandall, first vice-president; Dr. Richard O. B. Shea, second; Dr. John Champlin, Jr., secretary and treasurer; Dr. Samuel C. Webster, auditor; Dr. John E. Ruisi, members of board of censors for three years. Dr. William Thompson was elected to membership in the society. An address was made by Dr. Burgess of Providence on "Pneumonia." Dr. Burgess came as a substitute for Dr. Girber of Providence, who was scheduled to talk on "X-Ray," but was unable to come because of illness.

Paul Jennings of Pawtucket, formerly of Westerly, was a motor visitor in town Thursday afternoon, to visit his daughter, Miss Florence Jennings, R. N., who is caring for Mrs. Horace Vose.

Frank E. Cook of Quincy, Mass., was guest of Westerly relatives and friends the first of the week, having visited his daughter over the holidays in Washington, D. C., and with his son, Harry F. Cook, a director of physical training for Standard Oil Pump manufacturers, in Springfield, Mass.

Pawcatuck lodge, No. 90, A. F. and A. M., of Pawcatuck, Robert Vennard, master, held a stated communication Thursday night in the Masonic rooms, the first regular meeting held since the annual meeting and election in December.

Andrew Green, a patient for the past six weeks at Westerly hospital, where he has been treated for blood poisoning, is reported as much improved after a recent set-back.

Dr. Edward Daugherity, D. D. S., a former Westerly boy now in New York, attended the first annual banquet Wednesday evening of the Westerly Boat club at Elm Tree Inn.

John DeFanti of the Vars Pharmacy was confined to his home by illness Thursday.

How can you say that you have great will power if you have never had occasion to test it?

PAZO For PILES

PROGRESS COMES BY WORKING WITH NATURE.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

Says one of those bright western newspaper boys in a recent "skit" in his daily "cyclone:"

"Nature doubtless is grand, but it wasn't a very brilliant scheme to put most of the vitamines in things you don't like."

This was meant as a bit of humorous irony. There are two or three solid nuggets of golden truth concealed in it, nevertheless. Maybe there're worth sorting out and looking over.

A vitamine, as I understand it is highly elusive something contained in various food substances which isn't protein and isn't fat and isn't fibre, but is more absolutely essential to the transforming of these substances into vital life than the substances themselves.

So far as I've heard nobody has thus far succeeded in sifting or straining or dissolving a vitamine out of its maerma, and getting it into a powder or an extract. It seems to be something like electricity; we know what it does, but we have very little idea of what it is.

Perhaps it would be more accurate to say that we know what it doesn't do, when it isn't there to do it. In other words we know that the lack of vitamines results in various ails and ills, while their assured presence produces stalwart health. We don't really know vitamines when we meet them, but we're apt to be mighty lonesome not to say sick without them.

Such data as the chemist and dieticians and physiologists have been able to gather indicate that they are present in some foods and notably absent in some others. As we must have them in order to insure health, we must eat with fair regularity those vegetables and foods in which they abound. That is where the point of the "colyumist's" joke comes in.

Why, since they are so essential to good health, does nature put them into foods one doesn't like? Foods that he has to force himself to eat, rather against the remonstrances of his taste and the pleadings of his palate?

Now, asking that question isn't merely indulging in a cheap and easy form of wit. It really is the putting of a tremendously vital conundrum up to that same Nature.

For her inclosure of vitamines in such things as spinach and castor-oil is in no sense exceptional, as regards her way of doing things. She makes the attainment of health dependent on our eating things we don't like. She also makes the attainment of strength dependent upon our doing hard work, and our attainment of fame upon our doing horrible preliminary drudgery, and our attainment of wealth upon our gripping daily struggles with circumstances and competition etc.

She makes the winning of success in almost every line dependent upon our doing things we don't want to.

We can't even get to the top of a mountain without climbing the steens, and scaling the clifts, and tearing the hide off our fingers in precarious rocky hand-holds.

According to a one-time popular prairie moralist, "Life is just one—thing after another." And the "things" it consists of are mostly things we don't like or don't want to do.

Life is far from being the poet's dream of "one grand, sweet song." It is, rather, at least for such as desire to make the most of its possibilities one incessant grind.

So far as we can judge, Nature isn't so desirous of affording self-gratification as she is of enforcing self-denial. She isn't paying any such wages for the "easy snap" as for hard work. She isn't providing flowery beds of ease to float us into our respectively desired heavens, but instead, is deliberately making our Jordans mighty hard roads to travel.

And, as you and I had nothing to say about her arrangements in the first place, we have very little to say about them, now, other than to accept them and make a try for the blue ribbon, or reject them and join the aspirants for the booby prize.

It seems to be only a dietary regulation but a constitutional requirement of life that we shall want things we don't hanker after and do things we must emphatically don't want to.

It may strike a whole lot of us, like that western paragrapher, that this isn't a very brilliant scheme. The essential point to keep in mind is, that whether we think so or not, we can't alter the situation. The scheme isn't of our making, and isn't open to our amendment. Our only hope of getting anywhere is to fit ourselves into it as obediently as we can.

And right there is where is written the true indictment of what some of its partisans call "modernization." That word seems to be a a sort of slogan with a certain class. They want to "modernize" their plants; they want to "modernize" their methods of living; they want to "modernize" life itself and, sometimes, seem to think they can "modernize" nature.

The most conservative of us can readily admit that there is much to be said in praise of modernism, so-called. It represents a phase of human activity which has brought about many improvements in the details of existence, and has wonderfully enlarged our knowledge of some of nature's ways. So long as it confines itself to probing into the one-time mysteries, learning of the one-time secrets, and solving the one-time puzzles of nature, it is all to the good. But when it attempts to alter her laws, to steal her rewards, to escape her punishments, it over-reaches itself and prepares its own doom.

Just at present, it would seem as if the one idea of the race was to live with less work, with greater comfort, and in softer luxury. The aim is to get a living without hard work; to do less and loaf more; to get something for nothing, or, at least, for very little. In other words, to over-ride or undermine nature; make her do things our way, instead of finding out and following her way.

And the end of such a course, steadily persisted in, is destruction.

"Per astra ad astra" is an old Latin phrase which means, in idiomatic English, that it's a rough road to the stars. Or, more freely paraphrased, that success must be sought through hardship. It isn't any less true in these times of sedans and airships than it was in the days of Seneca and Cicero.

A service of spinach greens or a lettuce salad isn't to many of us anything like as tempting as a feast of roast goose, with sage and onion stuffing. But, if the spinach contains essential vitamines and the goose doesn't, we'll have to eat the greens and pretend we like 'em. A stiff dose of quinine and whiskey is hardly as delightful to the palate as a glass of Tokay or a bumper of Veuve Cliquot. But, if the quinine is the medicine our case calls for, we'll have to swallow it, willy-nilly.

It would certainly be pleasant if we could all get healthy and wealthy and wise, without having to earn our health and our wealth and our wisdom. That is, it seems so to many of us.

The difficulty is, that what seems pleasant to us isn't the guiding motive of the universe. We may—and sometimes do—think ourselves wiser than Old Stepmother Nature. The stubborn fact remains that, think as we may, what she says goes.

She puts her vitamines into yarbs that we don't savor. She puts success on a pinnacle up which we must struggle and strain. At the door of every day's drudgery she posts, the sign: "If you want your dinner, you must first earn it."

Modern youth, especially, seems to regard this warning as old-fogyish, and to feel confident that it can beat nature at her own game, and have an endlessly merry dance without paying the piper. Many even of those old enough to know better are cherishing a like delusion.

"Experience keeps a hard school, but fools will learn in no other." Too bad; but that is just another of nature's enactments. The worst of it is that they—the fools—have usually lost the best half of their lives and slurred over their most promising opportunities before Experience has succeeded in birching their bumptiousness out of them. Then they grumble because at middle age they have to begin all over again.

High living has turned their stomachs against the simple dinner of vitamine-yielding herbs; frantic chasing of will-o'-the-wisps has dulled their vision for simpler trails; the deceitful champagne of the night before has given them the crunching headache of the morning after.

Whereupon they rail at their fate and snivel over their hard luck.

By all means let's have Progress—with a capital P. But why, in the name of all that's common-sensible, can't its breezy heralds see that pogress backwards or sideways is neither desirable nor effective? When the state road curves around a hill it isn't progress to leave it and try to drive your car up the cliff, even though that way seems shorter. Sometimes the longest way round is the shortest way home. True progress can be made only on roads which nature has made accessible; never by defying her or seeking to outwit her.

Running past a "Stop!" sign in traffic frequently results in inconvenience to the chance-taking driver.

But joy-riding past one of nature's "Stop!" signals means something a good deal worse than a hawling out or a fine in court. THE FARMER.

WESTMINISTER

BAND OF MERCY MEMBERS NOW NUMBER OVER SIXTY

The Westminster Band of Mercy held its annual business meeting, Jan. 5, at the home of Mrs. Oscar Hubbard. Officers elected were: President, Miss Clara Green; vice-president, Miss Frances Newton; social committee, Miss Edith Stahlberg, Louise Soderburg and Violet Helstrom; refreshment committee, Victor MacClord, Elwood Hubbard, Alice Bingham, Beatrice Newton. Five new members were enrolled making a total membership of 63. The pledge, "I will try to be kind to living creatures and protect them from cruel usage," is the slogan of each member. Following the business session, refreshments were served by Mrs. Hubbard and a social hour was enjoyed.

Shot Big Gray Fox

Andrew Colburn shot a gray fox last week, which Mr. Colburn says is the largest gray fox he ever saw. The pelt measures 4 feet 2 inches from tip to tip.

The heavy rain and high temperature followed by zero weather has put dirt roads in a deplorable condition for travel. Those who ventured out with their cars Sunday broke through and left deep ruts in the road, which when frozen, are a menace to safety.

Hound and Deer Drowned

Frank Condon of Plainfield lost a valuable fox hound recently. Mr. Condon with three of his dogs was following a fox in South Santerbury when a deer ran across the path. The dogs gave chase and the deer ran out on the ice of the Quinebaug river. The dogs returned at Mr. Condon's call except one which, with the deer, had broken through the ice. Both were drowned. Mr. Condon said the dog had never before followed a deer.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sutton and little daughter, who have been guests at Elm Orchard farm, have returned to their home in South Norwalk.

Church Windows Broken

Some time during Saturday night, several panes of glass were broken in the windows of the Congregational church. That the damage was done mischievously is evident from stones found inside the church.

Word has reached here that Mrs. Jessie Mead, formerly of Westminster, is seriously ill with pneumonia at the home of her daughter in Brooklyn N. Y.

Henry Graff, who has been a patient in St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, is at home and is recovering slowly from injuries received when thrown from his horse, Christmas day.

A writer on aeronautics in 1786 advised balloon ascents for convalescents, because of the purity of the air and the restfulness of the voyage.

MINISTER AND HIS WIFE REACH 48TH ANNIVERSARY

Rev. and Mrs. George H. Wright informally observed the 48th anniversary of their marriage Wednesday at their home in the village. Rev. Mr. Wright was a former pastor of the Gales Ferry church and returned here to make his home, on retiring from the active ministry. The event was observed with gifts of money and a plant from the Woman's Home Missionary society, of which Mrs. Wright is president and with calls from friends and neighbors who presented various gifts, including an anniversary cake. Mr. Wright is improving from a recent illness.

Dudley C. Perkins, representative from the town of Ledyard, left Tuesday for Hartford, to attend the caucus preceding the opening of the general assembly Wednesday.

William Nott of Groton, called recently at the home of his relatives, Mrs. Harmon L. Perkins.

The January meeting of the Home Missionary society, of the M. E. church, was held Tuesday afternoon with Mrs R. Irving Hurlbutt at Woodlawn farm. The session opened with the hymn, Nearer, My God to Thee, with Mrs. Rufus W. Hurlbutt at the piano. Mrs Jerome Greer presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. George H. Wright. The devotions were conducted by Miss Alice Satterlee. Fifteen members were present at roll call by Mrs Dudley C. Perkins and a report was given by the treasurer, Mrs. Courtland E. Colver. Plans for a supper to be given by the society in connection with a play by the girls of Queen Esther Circle, were discussed and these committees appointed: Soliciting, Mrs. R. I Hurlbutt, Mrs. Josephine A. Birch; tables, Mrs. Colver, Mrs. R W. Hurlbutt, Mrs. C. Alton Chapman; kitchen department, Mrs. Morton Crawford, Mrs. Emil Gunuskey, Mrs. Andrew P. Miller. Under the item of visitation it was voted to invite Mrs. Robert Ritgood, president of the New England Conference W. H. M. S. of New London, to speak at a session of the auxiliary. Mrs. Colver was appointed to arrange for a date. The passing of the recording secretary, Mrs. Fanny A. Molthrop since the last meeting, was spoken of with deep regret by the members. Mrs. R. Irving Hurlbutt was appointed a nominating committee to fill the office, Mrs. D. C. Perkins having acted as substitute during Mrs. Molthrop's illness.

The wedding anniversary of Rev. and Mrs. George H. Wright was announced and arrangements were made to observe the date, Mrs. Wright being president of the auxiliary. A short program, arranged by Mrs. C. Alton Chapman, followed the business session. Selections from the study book, Youth and the New America, on the chapter, Bread or Roses, were given by Mrs. Henry W. Hurlbutt. The Mission Enigmas were conducted by Mrs. Emil Gunuskey, who presented delicious apples, daintily wrapped in red and white paper, as favors with the numbers. Sandwiches, cakes, wafers and tea were served by the hostess during the social hour.

OBITUARY

Paul C. Allen

Mr. and Mrs. William D. Allen with their son, Orville D. Allen and daughter, Miss Gertrude of Long Cove, attended the funeral of their son, Pau. Crosby Allen, of Saybrook, at the Congregational chapel in that place Tuesday afternoon at 2:30. Mr. Allen had been ill with pneumonia at his home in Saybrook for several weeks and this being followed by tuberculosis, he entered the Leonard Home at Essex, where he died at 11:30 on Sunday morning. Mr. Allen, who formerly resided here, is survived by his wife and parents, with a brother and sister, of Long Cove. Burial was at Riverview cemetery in Saybrook.

Local attendants at the rendition of Rossini's Stabat Mater, at the First Congregational church in New London, Sunday afternoon, were Mr and Mrs Walter M. Buckingham, Mr and Mrs Courtland E. Colver and daughters Misses Helen and Margaret, Mrs. Eugene LaFontaine and daughter, Miss Grace A. Chapman, Mrs. Jerome Greer and Miss Alice Satterlee.

John Crandall, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence M. Crandall, who has been a patient at the Lawrence and Memorial hospital in New London since New Year's eve, returned to his home here Tuesday.

OCCUM

LOSING TEAM PROVIDES SUNSHINE CLASS FEAST

Following the Bible reading contest, the Sunshine class held their semi-annual banquet at the home of Mrs. Joseph Hargraeves captain of the losing team, Tuesday evening. The dining room was artistically decorated, the colors being pink and black. The china was in harmony with the decorations. In the center of the table stood a large dish of fruit; at each end were pink candlesticks. The favors were small rose leaf cups filled with assorted nuts. Covers were laid for 19; 17 members and two guests.

At 7:30, all remained standing while grace was said by Mrs. Charles Perkins, followed by all repeating the class motto. A rousing cheer was given the winners, after which all sat down to enjoy the following menu: Grapefruit, fried haddock with potatoes, roast stuffed turkey, boiled onions, mashed potato, mashed turnip, beets, cranberry sauce, celery, rolls, tea and coffee, individual fancy ice cream cakes, served by the losing team, assisted by Mrs. Fred Laycock and Mrs. C. Oldham.

Entertainment for the evening was furnished by the winners, with Mrs. Louis Barton as captain, assisted by Miss Alma Boutilier at the piano. The colored troupe marched in and the costumes and makeup caused so much laughter that it was some time before they could carry on their program. A song by Mrs. Cole, with banjo-uke accompaniment; solo, Sonny Boy by Mrs. Louis Erlbeck; solo, Mrs. Boutilier as Snowdrop; short humorous sketch by Miss Lily Hargraeves as Bones and Mrs. Louis Barton as Sunshine, followed by the Bowery dance Mrs. Henry Benker as interlocutor came forward with a pleasing selection. Mrs. Hassler as Sambo made a big hit. Jokes were sprung on the different members, causing no end of laughter. Later, games were played, prizes going to Mrs. Maccey and Mrs. Harry Holdridge.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Peter and Mrs. Peter Take to the Ground.

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Who has a snug and safe retreat
Has naught to fear from snow and sleet.
—Peter Rabbit.

It had begun to snow again. Peter and little Mrs. Peter, sitting in the dear Old Briar-patch, heard the first hard little grains come sifting down through the bushes.

"I don't like the sound," said Peter. "Some snow storms I don't mind, but when the snow is in hard little grains I always look for a bad storm."

"Rough Brother North Wind is beginning to blow, too," said little Mrs. Peter. "I hope it won't be too bad a storm."

They sat side by side under their favorite bramble. The snow came down faster and faster. I hissed through the bushes. Rough Brother North Wind blew harder and harder. The air was bitter cold. There was no doubt that "I don't like the sound," said Peter

they were in for a bad storm. They sat snuggled close together, with their ears laid back. They had sat that way through many a storm. But at last Peter moved. "We can't stand this any longer, my dear," said he. "There is no sense in standing it. We may as well use the old house in the middle of the dear Old Briar-patch. Then it can snow all it wants to, and Rough Brother North Wind can blow all he wants to. We will be snug and warm just the same."

Peter led the way and little Mrs. Peter followed right at his heels. The old house in the middle of the dear Old Briar-patch was simply a hole in the ground. It had once been the home of Johnny Chuck's grandfather. Peter and Mrs. Peter had used it now and then ever since they had been living in the dear Old Briar-patch. It was some time now since they had used it and the mouth of it was pretty well filled with dead leaves over which the snow had piled. Peter soon dug the snow and leaves out, and in they went.

They shook the snow out of their coats. In there it was dry and warm. For a while they sat close up to the entrance, looking out. The storm increased. Routh Brother North Wind roared and howled.

"I'm sorry," said Peter, "for those who haven't as snug a place as we have. I am not fond of going underground, but at a time like this there is nothing like it. There will be little hunting by anybody until this storm is over. As we cannot go out and as there is no food in here, the best thing we can do is to sleep. If you want to go down, my dear, to old Mr. Chuck's bedroom and sleep there, I'll take a nap here in the hall. If we should have any visitors they cannot get past me without waking me."

"I think I'll stay here with you a while, Peter," said little Mrs. Peter, who was very timid. "I don't think you need worry about any visitors. If we have any it will be after the storm, and not during it. I cannot think of any one who would even try to get into the dear Old Briar-patch excepting Shadow the Weasel, and Shadow won't be out this weather. He is one who knows when he is well off. He probably is curled up snug and warm somewhere, and there he'll stay. So there really isn't anything to be afraid of. But I like company, Peter. You know you have been away so much that I have been alone a great deal. So, if you don't mind, I'm going to take my nap right here beside you."

Peter didn't mind at all, and he said so. In fact, it rather pleased him to have little Mrs. Peter right there. So Peter and Mrs. Peter listened for a while to the howling of the storm, then their eyes closed, and in a few minutes they were fast asleep. Outside the storm howled and roared, but Peter and little Mrs. Peter didn't even know it.

GRANGE INSTALLATION BY WESTERLY OFFICIALS

Installation at Ledyard grange was held in Grange hall Friday evening. The installation was performed by Mr. and Mrs. C. Palmer Chapman, of Westerly, R. I., both having been officers of the national grange. The installation was very impressive being one of the best ever put on in Grange hall. There was a large attendance to witness the fine work the meeting before public. The following officers were installed: Master, Carl H. Holdridge; overseer, Frederick Doolittle; steward, Avery Main; assistant steward, Richard Burton; chaplain, Billings T. Avery; treasurer, Samuel E. Holdridge; secretary, Andrew M. Avery; lecturer, Barbara Holdridge; gate keeper, Paul Holdridge; Ceres, Bernice Doolittle; Flora, Sarah Gallup; Pomona, Virginia Tubbs; lady assistant steward, Grace Main. Refreshments were served at the close.

Billings T. Avery and Samuel E. Holdridge, chairman and secretary, respectively of Ledyard town school committee, attended a luncheon at Chapman Tech, New London, Tuesday, together with the mayor and city council of New London and school officers of some adjoining towns. After the luncheon an inspection was made of the different departments in the school.

The annual meeting of Ledyard Ecclesiastical society was held in the Bill library building, Monday afternoon. William I. Allyn was moderator and S. E. Holdridge, clerk. The report of the treasurer and other society officers were heard and accepted. These showed the church to be in a flourishing condition. Mrs. Sarah Gallup, Mrs. Goldie Avery, Carl H. Holdridge, Mrs. Barbara Holdridge and Mrs. Marguerite Holdridge were voted in as members of the society. The following officers were elected all being re-elections: William I. Allyn, Billings T. Avery, Charles A. Gray, society officers; Joseph A. Clark, collector; Samuel E. Holdridge, clerk and treasurer.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrie H. Poole of Brooklyn, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Poole and daughter Madeline, of College Point, Long Island, N. Y., were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Delano Sheldon.

William I. Allyn and Frederick W. Burton have been appointed appraisers of the estate of Sarah A. Sheldon, late of Ledyard.

Delano Sheldon has purchased a new pair of horses, harnesses and team wagon from a Norwich party. Mr. Sheldon who moved here from Massachusetts last year, expects to farm on quite a large scale.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray D. Holdridge have moved into their new house, formerly the Church Hill school house. Mr. Holdridge purchased it after his house was burned last summer and has made great changes in this building. An addition has been built with a cellar dug, hard wood floors have been laid, partitions erected, making several rooms, the building shingled on the outside, making a very presentable appearance. New doors and windows with a large porch make it a very attractive bungalo.

Nelsen Schlegel preached in the Congregational church Sunday morning. The attendance was not huge, owing to the very stormy morning. Mrs. Barbara Holdridge was leader of the C. E. meeting Sunday evening.

Miss Faith McCracken, of Hartford will address the Ledyard C. E. society Sunday evening next, Jan. 13 at the Congregational church. Her lecture will be on Africa. Miss McCracken is an interesting and gifted speaker. The five future meetings of the local society will be a study on the Black Treasure.

EAGLEVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Goodman and children of East Hampton and Charles Sweet, of Manchester, were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Warren.

Mrs. Emil Landen and Mrs. Edward Landen spent Tuesday in Willimantic.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Converse were recent visitors with friends in Somers.

Mrs. George E. Adams and Mrs. Richard Hamer attended the meeting of Social Corner Club No. 1 at Willimantic Wednesday.

Sheriff and Mrs. F. O. Vinton left Saturday for a trip to Haiti and other places in that vicinity. They expect to be away about three weeks.

Alfred Johnson spent Monday in Hartford.

Religious services were omitted Sunday due to stormy weather.

Mrs. Irving Price returned home Sunday after spending a few weeks with her daughter in Southbridge, Mass.

STOCK MARKET OPENED STRONG, BUT NERVOUSNESS CROPPED OUT LATER

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(AP)—Developments tending to strengthen the belief that the New York federal reserve bank would not increase its rediscount rate today gave impetus to operations for the advance on the stock market today, and scores of issues were pushed up from 2 to more than 11 points. Further nervousness cropped out toward the close, however, and heavy profit taking reduced or cancelled most gains.

As had been foreshadowed in the morning by the retention of a 4-1-2 per cent. rate by the Bank of England, the New York federal reserve directors, meeting after the close, left its 5 per cent. rate unchanged. Call money renewed at 6 per cent., for the first time since Nov. 15, and held at that rate all day.

The federal reserve reports after the close, however, were not particularly cheerful. While a substantial reduction in the brokerage loan total had been looked for as result of the stock liquidation late last week and early this, the reserve compilation disclosed a decline of only $17,304,000, leaving the total only about $80,000,000 under the peak figure of Dec. 5 and about $1,500,000,000 above the total a year ago.

The federal reserve disclosed that the New York banks, which put about $600,000,000 in brokers loans over the year end, had withdrawn more than $350,000,000 from the market, but that this had been largely offset by corporations, individuals, and out of town banks.

The reserve bank also revealed a further loss of gold through earmarking of about $20,000,000 during the week, presumably for the bank of France, which more than offset $23,000,000 in imports from Canada.

The outstanding development in the day's news was the unexpectedly large increase of nearly 304,000 tons in the unfilled orders of the U. S. Steel company during December, despite the unusually brisk mill activity of that month. This carried the total of unfilled orders up to the highest level since last March, and was the largest monthly increase since December, 1927.

Merchandising, chemical, tobacco and steel shares were prominent in the upswing. National Bellas Hess mounted more than 11 points, while Allied Chemical and American Machine and Foundry made extreme gains of about 10 points each, but lost much of their gains. Radio sold up 9 points, then lost more than half its gain.

The increase in U. S. Steel's unfilled orders had been largely discounted yesterday, and the stock turned heavy in "selling on the good news." Some of the independent steels, notably Crucible and Central Alloy, forged ahead. General Motors and Chrysler turned heavy at the close, and Pierce Arrow issues encountered realizing. Hupp, however, was well supported.

Eisenlohr, which is reputed to have harbored a short interest, was again pushed up 3 points, and several other tobacco stocks made like gains. Stromberg Carburetor advanced more than 5 points on announcement of a large airplane carburetor program and Stewart Warner made a like gain as it for 1-split-up was rumored.

Certo touched $3 on declaration of $3 1-3 per cent. stock dividend.

Western Union and Mathieson Alkali made gains of more than 6 points each. In the rails, St. Paul preferred touched 61 1-4, the highest price since the reorganization, and Pere Marquette climbed 5 points.

American Express fell more than 9 points and National Tea lost 8, while General American Tank Car, Commercial Solvents, Greene Cananea and Commercial Investment Trust sagged 3 to 5 points.

The commodity markets were quiet and generally steady, although sugar refiners announced a 10-point drop in the price of granulated effective tomorrow, making the price 5.05 cents a pound. Wheat was again firm on reports of weather damage. Cotton was dull with price changes negligible.

Foreign exchanges were marked by firmness of European currencies, while the Canadian dollar again sagged slightly, and Japanese yen dropped 10 points to 45.45 cents.

METROPOLITAN CHAIN STORES INC.

206-210 MAIN STREET

You Will Want To Visit Our Soda Fountain

Stop there for a delightful shoppers' lunch. Tasty food, served petizingly, at moderate prices. Stop there for a cool drink when you are thirsty—or for a hot chocolate or coffee if you are cold.

Everything at our Fountain will tell you why Metropolitan Fountain service is famous wherever it is found.

The Items Here Are Only Part of the Assortment

Only a few of the many bargains Metropolitan offers for tomorrow's opening Sale are to be found on this page. We couldn't tell you all we have in one or two more extra pages. But those who have come to us know what amazing values we have—and they are here, not only at the opening, but day in and day out in this international institution.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

Many an old timer of the west will recognize the incidents shown in "The Glorious Trail," Ken Maynard's latest Charles R. Rogers' production for First National Pictures now showing at the Breed Theatre.

"The Glorious Trail" was written after many weeks of diligent research by Marion Jackson, author of the story. She has incorporated the high lights and facts of the stringing of the first telegraph wires in the west. The hardships, skill and daring of the pioneers have all been carefully blended into making the film one of the finest pictures Ken has ever appeared in.

In order to get actual, realistic atmosphere, Ken and his company journey to Montana and Wyoming in order to get the 1,000 Sioux Indians seen in the picture.

Supporting Maynard are Gladys McConnell, Billy Franey, Frank Hagney, James Bradbury, Jr., and Chief Yowlache. Albert Rogell directed.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The New Dodge Brothers Six

A new car, representing progressive principles of engineering design coupled with the ruggedness and dependability that characterizes Dodge Brothers products, is offered in the Dodge Brothers six introduced to the nation simultaneously with the New York automobile show. Eight body types in unique attractive color combinations are offered.

The cars are a striking answer as to how Walter P. Chrysler intends to increase Dodge Brothers prestige, for they incorporate features at a price that only the uniting of such tremendous facilities could produce. Body types available include the 5-passenger phaeton, roadster with rumble seat, 5-passenger sedan, 5-passenger de luxe sedan, 5-passenger brougham, 4-passenger Victoria, 2-passenger business coupe and de luxe coupe with rumble seat. Prices are to be announced when the car is first displayed and production is under way on a record breaking scale to insure prompt deliveries.

"It was our aim to add so conspicuously to the present acclaim of the Dodge name that every Dodge owner will feel even greater pride in these latest creations," said Mr. Chrysler, in connection with the new car announcement. "We ask only that the public examine and test the car in every way from the standpoint of beauty, originality, luxury and performance."

From the radiator emblem, the Dodge Brothers original interlaced triangles with wings added, to the clean cut enameled housing that conceals the gasoline tank, there is a touch of artistic finality about the car. A distinctive general appearance features the Mono-piece body construction. Sweeping graceful lines are accentuated by the modern narrow radiator profile, and the molding that encircles the body and tapers across the cowl, and along the center hood hinge. Exterior hardware parts including lamps, bumpers, radiator shell, hub caps and door handles are chromium plated, insuring a lustrous non-tarnish finish. Heavy steel fenders are of the exclusive Dodge one-piece design with artistic beading along the center. The chrome-plated lamp tie-rod and cowl bars are curved to harmonize with the general lines of the car. The radiator cap is of unique wing design.

The Mono-piece body construction, an exclusive feature of all models, provides rigidity and balance which only this design can give. The body is so mounted on the chassis that the passenger load rides close to the ground. Sidesway is eliminated and safety is promoted, yet the interiors have been enlarged to afford maximum vision and room for every passenger. All possible body joints in the Mono-piece body have been eliminated. Felt insulation between the body and frame is further protection against vibration. Grueling road tests have proven the bodies as tight and firm after long usage as when new.

All doors are unusually wide, permitting easy entrance or exit, and adjustable rubber buffers are built in the door sills to insure quiet closing to prevent squeaks or rattles. The doors are mounted on heavy hinges and fit in latches that insure positive lock.

Inside coach work gives the impression of custom built design, with mohair upholstery in blue or tan shades trimmed in broadlace. Seat cushions are wide and deep, tilted at the proper angles for riding comfort. Rear seat compartments are fitted with a smoking set on the right side, and a vanity case on the left. Arm rests are provided in the rear compartments of the de luxe sedan, Victoria and brougham. Butler silver finished interior fitments are in ornamental leaf pattern, executed into harmonious designs so that door handles, dome lights and other interior hardware conform with the nicety of fine jewelry. The polished plate glass in all closed models slides in specially constructed felt channels, preventing all vibrations and rattles.

Metropolitan Chain Store to Re-open.

The Metropolitan Chain store of 206 Main street, will re-open tomorrow (January 12th), after having closed since Christmas.

The closing of the store shortly after its opening on December 14, was a surprise to the many who had been there at the opening. It was explained by Captain W. W. Carroll, the manager of the store, that the closing was occasioned by the desire to make the store complete in every respect.

Although the main part of the store was entirely complete and none of the essential structural work remained to be done when the store opened, much of the fine finish which characterize Metropolitan stores was lacking and it was felt that a short closing down would permit this to be done most effectively.

The officials of the store had been working day and night during the early part of December in order that it might be available to the people of Norwich and vicinity during the Christmas season and this was accomplished although the store was not quite in the finished condition in which they would have liked to see it.

Moreover, although the store was thoroughly stocked with gift items for Christmas and many other pieces of desirable merchandise, the rush of time prevented the complete showing of general merchandise that the Metropolitan shows.

The store will be quite complete and a fine piece of retail architecture and the stock will be a credit to the community it serves when it is opened tomorrow, it was stated.

The management again expressed its thanks to those local contractors whose fine work and untiring energy had enabled them to build the fine store they did and open it in such a short time.

The members of the Metropolitan staff, all of whom come from Norwich and vicinity have been thoroughly trained in the Metropolitan system which enables them to serve with unusual efficiency and which reflects in their politeness and smiling courtesy the training they have received at home and from the management of the store.

Conn. College Concert

The Society of Ancient Instruments, founded by Henri Casadesus in 1901 at the insistance of the great French composer, Saint-Saens, will give one of their unique concerts in Bulkeley auditorium, New London, next Thursday evening thus affording an opportunity for music lovers to see and hear instruments from a long-ago era. Four of the instruments played by the members of this society belong to the viol family, the fifth is the clavecin, or harpsichord. Viol is the generic English name of the bowed stringed instruments which succeeded the mediaeval fiddle and preceded the violin. Invented in the fifteenth century, it passed out of general use in the eighteenth century. It differs from the modern type in many points, the most striking being in the shape and number of strings. The viol was made in four principal sizes —treble (discant), tenor (viola de braccio), bass (viola da gamba), and double-bass (violone), the last being still in use. These instruments are tuned in fourths and thirds instead of in fifths as their successors. The tone is rather penetrating than powerful, less gratifying in quality and flexibility than the violin and cello which accounts mainly for their general disuse.

The five instruments employed by the Society of Ancient Instruments are viola d'amore, quinton, viola da gamba, bass viol and harpsichord. This constitutes a combination capable of performing adequately the elegant music of the 17th and 18th centuries and obviously incapable of performance on modern instruments or with present-day ensembles of violin, viola, cello, bass and piano. To nineteenth century ears, the music issuing from these old instruments has a peculiar charm while for the student, together and musician, it has a remarkable interest and fascination entirely lacking in combinations now to be heard on the concert platforms.

Palace Theatre.

Norwich theatre-goers who attended the Palace theatre yesterday witnessed one of the season's outstanding shows when a marvelous lineup of big time vaudeville plus a corking good picture was presented to them.

The tremendous vaudeville bill carried two separate headliners. Al Butts and his California Peaches brings to the Palace an act that was assembled in Los Angeles and has played its way clear across the continent with marked success. The six specialty girls that this act carries are all beautiful misses possessing a wealth of talent and personality. Just as it has made a hit wherever it has played, so it will chalk up another bull's eye in Norwich. The second headliner was "Oh, Mama" a condensed musical farce written around a real plot and cleverly executed by a talented cast of five artists. The songs are catchy and will be whistled about town for the next few weeks.

Yvonne and Co. of two offered "Artistic Athletics" a novelty fit to grace any vaudeville bill in the country. Morton and Sally offered their own conception of "Songs" but they sell them effectively enough to warrant several earned encores. Grindel and Ester held up the hokum comedy end of the show with a hilarious laugh provoking skit called "Study in Pantomology."

"His Private Life," which opened at the Palace theatre, is a typical Adolphe Menjou success. Here again we see Menjou cast as the sophisticated Parisian boulevardier character which lifted him to the pinnacle of screen fame.

Menjou's return to the screen after a well earned vacation, which incidentally marked the marriage of the star to his leading lady, Kathryn Carver, is celebrated by Paramount by giving film fans two hours of solid, pleasing entertainment. The story is from the pen of Ernest Vajda and Keene Thompson, well known playwrights, who have provided previous Menjou material. They have written a story that gives Menjou every opportunity for admirable characterization of the type that fans delight in seeing him.

As stated before, Menjou essays the role of the round-the-town man. He tells a friend that he is through with women, but promptly falls for the first one he sees. It proves a hard conquest, and Menjou suffers more discouragement than encouragement in winning the lady fair. However, he is spurred on because he has really fallen in love with the young woman and his love finally is not to be denied, but in the interim many laughs and pleasant excitement contribute to the entertainment.

Miss Carver, as the young lady who spurns the boulevardier, gives a refreshing performance. Margaret Livingston, who plays a prominent part as the "other woman," is superb, and Eugene Pallette as the jealous husband gives cause for many laughs.

Americanization Round Table

The Americanization committee of the civics department of the Woman's City club is to hold its round table on January 16, at 8.00 p. m. in the club room. Miss Mary F. Potter, of the division of adult education of the state board of education, in a talk entitled, "Connecticut's Illiterate Mothers," will describe work that may be done, in teaching English to groups of foreign born mothers in their homes. Papers read by pupils of the night school will add to the interest of the meeting.

MINNESOTA FATHERS HEAD SCHOOL CLUBS

DULUTH, Minn.—(AP)—When a woman takes a man's job nowadays it's feminism; when a man takes a woman's job, at least in this case it's parental interest.

For there are 92 men presidents of Parent-Teachers' associations in Minnesota.

Mrs. A. A. Mendenhall, president of the Minnesota Congress of Parents and Teachers, explains it by saying the fathers have "discarded their cloak of irresponsibility toward school children."

She intends to change the slogan of the congress from "An understanding parents is the greatest need of every child" to "Two understanding parents are the greatest need of every child."

An Egyptologist says that Egyptians set up tall obelisks, like Cleopatra's Needle, by building a temporary embankment with a deep pit in the middle, dragging the monument to the edge of the pit, and tipping it over to stand in place on firm ground.

PHYSICIAN AT NEW LONDON SPEEDED TO CHILD ILL ON BARGE IN HARBOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 10—Henry Magnusson, master of the barge Mary McAllister, owned by the Blue Line Transportation company, went to police headquarters early this morning and requested medical attention for his little daughter, 2, who was seriously ill aboard the barge at anchor off Fort Trumbull. A physician was summoned and the United States Coast Guard officials, when informed of the desire of the police to furnish medical aid to a patient in the harbor, ordered a launch speed to the city pier, where the chief petty officer in charge of the shore patrol and the physician were taken to the boat. The child was prescribed for and there was a noticeable improvement in her condition later in the day.

A stranger was arrested at the union station this afternoon by sergeant McGrath, New Haven railroad policeman, charged with vagrancy and train riding. He will be in court tomorrow. Another fellow, found drunk on Potter street, was arrested by Patrolman Dennis Murphy.

SCHOOL BOARD ORDERS SUPT. TO HIRE SECRETARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 10—A meeting of the board of school visitors was held this afternoon at the Mariners Savings bank. Only matters of regular business came up, excepting that Warren A. Hanson, superintendent of schools, was authorized and empowered to secure clerical assistance for his office. This was due to the recent dismissal of Miss Frances C. Mitchell, Superintendent Hanson's secretary because of having had suit brought against her for certain financial transactions. Miss Mitchell's successor will be named at an early date. It is known that Supt. Hanson will make a recommendation for a permanent secretary within a short time.

LOCATING RELATIVES OF HARRY ANDERSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 10— Relatives of Harry Anderson, who died from suffocation at the Hotel Wintrop last night as the result of having set fire to the bedding of the room he occupied, being found after he had become unconscious, will probably claim the body. It was ascertained today that Anderson has a sister residing at 1227 41st street, Brooklyn, N. Y., and she has been informed of her brother's death. Two brothers also reside in Portland, Me. R. C. STEWART IS SENT TO NEW JERSEY REFORMATORY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan 10— Reginald C. Stewart, 25, a former resident of this city, has been sentenced to the New Jersey State Reformatory, having pleaded guilty to two indictments charging him with obtaining money under false pretense. He got $41 each from two ministers claiming that he was an Episcopal and was anxious to secure funds with which to prepare for the ministry. He claimed to be a salesman employed by General Motors. Both ministers, Rev. Francis Magill Sherlock, rector of All Saints' Episcopal church, and Rev. Paul F. Hoffman, rector of Christ Episcopal church and former rector of Seabury Memorial church in Groton, were present when Stewart was sentenced. Judge Stein read Stewart's previous record, showing he has served a year on Welfare Island, New York, for a similar offense and that he had been arrested in Washington. The court also declared Stewart is wanted in Columbus, O., for similar offenses.

BANNING AND MRS. KENNERSON PLEAD GUILTY IN CITY COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 10—Orrin Banning, 57, a widower and laborer, and Mrs. Ella Kennerson, 37, of Norwich, were tried in the police court this morning charged with adultery, but the complaint was amended to that of lascivious carriage. Both Banning and Mrs. Kennerson pleaded guilty and a fine of $50 and three months in jail was imposed, but execution of the sentences was suspended six months and the man and woman were placed in the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. This afternoon an officer of the Norwich department came to New London and escorted Mrs. Kennerson back to that city where tomorrow morning she will be presented in the Norwich city court for she recently abandoned her children. Mrs. Kennerson recently deserted her children and the Norwich police obtained information that led them to believe that she was residing in this city. Last night a request was made of the New London police to make a search for the woman and if found to arrest her. Patrolman Frank Philopena and Policewoman Jane H. Cassidy were assigned to the case. Information was obtained by Officer Philopena and Policewoman Cassidy that led them to a local rooming house, and there they found the couple living as man and wife. Their arrest resulted.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Houseboats are unfailingly intriguing dwelling places. Whether it is the humble barge of inland waters or the gorgeous yacht of the millionaire, we like to read about it, and harbor a sneaking hankering to be aboard, landlords and landlubberly cares cast to the four winds.

It is a houseboat of the plutocratic type that serves as locale for the exciting, uproarious thief-and-Cupid chase of "Caught in the Fog," the Warner Bros. production starring those prime favorites, May McAvoy and Conrad Nagle, and now showing at the Broadway theatre.

The story has its beginning in the fact that underpaid yacht tenders have struck for more wages and left the fleet unguarded in certain waters off the coast of Florida. The Vickers' parents have sent their son, Bob, who is, of course, Conrad, to secure jewels that have been left on the boat. Bob arrives just after a sheik bandit, played with vigor by Charles Gerrard, and his amateur confederate, May McAvoy, have clambered on deck, with the intention of purloining the gems themselves.

The tangle begins when after a rough and tumble fight with the sheik, he escapes, leaving May in the presence of Bob, who at once accepts the little lady's cock-and-bull story, and exonerates her.

Now appear an aged couple, who say that they are friends of the Vickers, and come at their suggestion to take charge of the boat. May, nonplussed for a moment, explains that she is the maid, and that Bob is not only steward but her husband. While the two "servants" are showing the old couple to their quarters two of the funniest detectives that ever walked the boards or flitted across the silver screen, enter the picture—Swain and Herbert.

Then starts such a juggling of the stolen goods as would bewilder the cleverest of sleight-of-hand performers. Each person aboard the yacht suspects the other, and to make matters more unsolvable a dense fog settles over the water, and the lot of them are in for it for the night. One of the most baffling and amusing screen comedies of the season is "Caught in the Fog."

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The disturbance that was central over eastern Iowa Wednesday night has moved rapidly east northeastward to northern New England. It has been attended by general precipitation except from the lower lake region eastward to the Maine coast where snow fell. High pressure prevails over eastern Newfoundland and southward and southeastward over the Atlantic ocean. The weather will remain fair Friday with temperature lower. Colder weather, however, will overspread the Atlantic states during Saturday.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook—Fresh winds diminishing and becoming southwest and fair weather Friday.

Sandy Hook to Hateras—Fresh northwest and diminishing and becoming fresh southwest and fair weather Friday.

Forecast

For New England—Fair and colder Friday probably followed by light snow Friday night or Saturday morning; colder Saturday.

Observations

The Bulletin's observations show the following changes in temperature and barometric changes Thursday:

GREENEVILLE

HELD BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR PHILIP BELLEVEAU

In honor of the seventeenth birthday of their son, Philip, Mr. and Mrs. A. Belleveau of North Main street, held a party Thursday evening at which twenty of Mr. Belleveau's friends were in attendance. Games were played during the evening and piano and vocal solos were rendered. Refreshments, consisting of assorted sandwiches, fancy cakes, cookies, ice cream, wafers and chocolate were served. The dining room was prettily decorated in red and white. Mr. Belleveau was the recipient of many gifts, especially a gold watch. Guests were present from Jewett City, New London and the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Casey have returned to Providence after spending a few days with relatives on North Main street.

Weekly Card Party.

The weekly card party of St. Mary's Memorial church was held Wednesday evening in the assembly hall of the parish with forty tables of whist and pinochle in play. The first prize in pinochle was awarded to John Keeley with 7320, while Cornelius J. Downes was second with 7490. First prize in whist went to Miss Celine Bowen with a score of 52 with Miss Agnes Dennis second with a score of 51. The scorers for the evening were John Crowe for whist and Edward Riordan for pinochle. Joseph was in charge of the sale of tickets. The parties, which are being conducted weekly during the winter months are used to help defray expenses of charitable work in the parish.

Mrs. William Murray of Prospect street attended the grange convention at Bridgeport Wednesday.

ICE CRIPPLED TRAFFIC ON ROAD BEYOND COLCHESTER

Motor drivers who dread the Colchester to Hartford highway in slippery weather found their fears fully realized in the early hours of Thursday morning after a storm that combined sleet and rain which froze as it fell.

Between Norwich and Colchester conditions were not so bad but north of Colchester machines skidded and slid off the slippery surface of the road but without any serious accidents.

At one hill about two miles north of Colchester there was a complete tie-up of traffic about 7 o'clock Thursday morning. There was no possibility of getting either up or down the hill and motorists who arrived there had to wait until the hill was sanded by highway department employes or take a long and rough detour. At one time there were 14 machines stalled on this hill, four of them trucks and ten pleasure cars. One of the trucks, which was loaded with sea food for the Hartford market, partially overturned, scattering clams and oysters over the surface of the road for a considerable distance.

MOTHER CHARGED WITH ABANDONING HER CHILDREN

Mrs. Ella Kennerson, 27, of this city given a suspended three months jail sentence in the New London police court, Thursday morning, on a statutory charge, was brought to Norwich after the court session by Officer Patrick Murphy of the local police department. She will be presented in the city court Friday morning on a charge of abandoning her children. She has given bonds of $500 for her appearance in court.

Orrin Banning, 57, of Cottage street, New London, who was arrested with Mrs. Kennerson by the New London police Wednesday night, when they were found occupying a room together, was also given a three months suspended jail sentence in the New London police court. In each case $50 fines were meted out.

The woman lives in the West Side section of this city.

PROTECTION ON STREETS DURING SLIDING SEASON

Police will guard several streets in the city during the sliding season, that children may enjoy this annual sport without fear of accident. The city recreation commission and the board of police commissioners have reached an agreement where such police protection will be afforded.

When conditions warrant there will be police supervised sliding as follows:

Union street, Boswell avenue, from 7th to North Main streets, Peck street, and Fox Hill between 7 and 9 p. m. Perkins avenue between 4 and 5.30 o'clock afternoons.

Solitude does not relieve some people of bad company.

FORECASTS MUCH WORK IN LOCAL SCHOOLS FOR VISITING TEACHER

Eugene Carver, Somerville, Mass., commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Mrs. Bessie Hankin, Revere, Mass., national president of the auxiliary to the V. F. W., are expected to come to Norwich Saturday evening, as guests of Hourigan post, No. 594, and Hourigan post auxiliary, at their joint installation. The installation is to be held at the V. F. W. rooms in the Olympic building, Water street, starting at 8 o'clock.

Department Commander James Daley of Hartford and Department President Helen Shanahan of Waterbury will install the post and auxiliary officers, who are as follows:

Hourigan post—Commander, Louis S. Hull; senior vice-commander, Joseph Eccles; junior vice-commander, John Evans; chaplain, Albert Turner; officer of the day, P. C. Edward Street; adjutant, George Nadolny; quartermaster, Cornelius Hoelck; post advocate, P. C. Herbert F. Burdick.

Hourigan post auxiliary—President, Mrs. Agnes Peloquin; senior vice-president, Mrs. Bertha Piper; junior vice-president, Mrs. Emma Cavanaugh; chaplain, Mrs. Antonio Woodworth; treasurer, Mrs. Mary Hull. The auxiliary appointive officers will be named Saturday evening.

The officers and members of all veteran organizations in the city will be welcomed as guests at the installation, which will be followed by dancing and a social hour.

Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, President Joseph C. Worth of the Norwich chamber of commerce, Secretary Walter H. Pilcher of the chamber of commerce and the commanders of Sedgwick post, No. 1, G. A. R., the Sons of Veterans, Griswold camp, No. 6, U. S. W. V., and Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, have been invited by Hourigan post to attend, as guests, the post's dance to be held at the Wauregan hotel this month. Thumm's orchestra will furnish the dance programme and there will be other entertainment in addition to the dancing. The post officers will give a demonstration ceremony of the presentation of the flag. Commander Louis Hull is chairman of the general committee in charge of the dance arrangements.

TO HAVE EXHIBITION OF IRENE WEIR PAINTINGS

An exhibition of the work of Irene Weir, B. F. A., Yale university, will be held in the Converse Art gallery, from January 12-20, inclusive. It is under the auspices of the Norwich Art association, and the evening of the twelfth will be a private view for association members, after which the public will be invited to see it between the hours of 9-4 on school days, and 2-4 on Sundays. Entrance will be through the Slater Memorial Museum.

Miss Weir was the first director of the Norwich Art school. She now directs the School of Design and Liberal Arts in New York city, and is one of the directors of the Art Alliance of America, and a member of Women Painters and Sculptors, the Salons of America and the Society of Independent Artists. She is a writer and lecturer on the Fine Arts, and will give a talk to the association on Saturday evening on The Modernist's Point of View. The talk will be illustrated, which is decidedly modernistic in trend, both in the oil paintings, the vigorous drawings, and the sketches in brilliant water-color. There is also a series of interesting etchings. There is great variety in the work, and the exhibit will be of especial interest to Norwich, not only on account of Miss Weir's standing, but because it is the first exhibition of the kind that has been shown here.

The following is an excerpt from the Revue Modern, Paris, July, 1925: Endowed with the strong spirit of organization, Mlle. Weir has shown a talent whose creative originality is served by a technique worthy of the masters. The classic culture of the artist does not exclude a tendency towards reasonable modernism.

The colorful manner of Mlle. Weor is one of rare suppleness perfectly rendering the impressions of the artist. Her personality manifests itself with a vigor rarely found among women painters. One finds in her drawing solidity which leaves nothing to chance and which underlies precision of form and relief of volume. In the richness of the palette all the shades in color harmony seem so natural that one scarcely feels the effort. These are the qualities which make the name of Mlle. Irene Weir, an artist worthy to represent American painting.

Norwich Man Won Second Prize.

Thomas Nagle of Hebron won first prize and Herbert Wheeler of Norwich second prize, in the old time fiddlers' contest held at Lebanon January 4th. Thirteen old time players, 50 years of age or over, took part in the contest.

TAFTVILLE

Mrs. Rose Dorron is moving to a house on South A street.

The members of the Basketry club held their weekly meeting Thursday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Ponemah Wheel club was held Tuesday evening at the clubhouse on Norwich avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Rene Roberts of South A street have had as guests this week, Mrs. Robert's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Beaudoin of Montreal, Canada, it being the first time in 20 years that mother and daughter have met. Mr. and Mrs. Beaudoin have now gone to New Bedford, Mass., where they will visit another daughter before returning to their home in Montreal.

When some of the old timers of the village read in the Bulletin that it was just 25 years ago that the ice on the Shetucket river was 24 inches thick, they recalled that at that time horse racing on the river was the king sport of the season. The track extended from the Ponemah Mills dam to Banker's Island, and every Saturday afternoon while the ice lasted, the horses competed for the grand prize. One of the popular horses in that day was "Joe Mulligan" who won most of the races and who made the most money for his owners.

FUNERAL.
Merton Lois Davis.

The funeral of Marion Lois Davis, aged 14 months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Davis was held from the home of her parents on North B street Thursday afternoon with a service conducted by Rev. Omer T. Mandjer at Sacred Heart church at 3.30 o'clock. The child had been taken ill suddenly Tuesday evening and died about noon on Wednesday. Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery on the Old Canterbury turnpike. George G. Grant was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Edith Schofield of Hunters road has been elected vice president of the Girls Friendly society of St. Andrews church.

Men employed by the outside department of the Ponemah mills were busy Thursday clearing up the gutters which had clogged up during the day's rainstorm.

Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson and family who have been residing on Norwich avenue have moved to Jewett City where Mr. Thompson has accepted a position with one of the mills.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Joly are to move to a house on South B street.

The job of installing the new boiler at the Taftville Congregational church has been completed and is in use. The work was in charge of John Morton.

Walter S. Grant has been confined to his home on the Old Canterbury turnpike by an attack of the grippe

Mrs. Emma Beaver was in charge of the ticket sale, Mrs. Ethel Hoelck was the scorer for pinochle and Miss Mary Connell the scorer at whist.

SKIDDED INTO POLE ON LAUREL HILL AVE.

About 8 o'clock Thursday morning a Durant sedan owned by the Union Taxi Co., and operated by John Edwards of this city, received a broken front bumper and damaged radiator when it skidded into a telegraph pole on Laurel Hill avenue, near the Moose home. The icy highway caused the machine to skid.

Merchants' Bureau To Elect.

A change in the officers of the Merchants' bureau of the Norwich chamber of commerce is expected to take place at its annual meeting Friday evening, Jan. 11, at 6.15 o'clock. Cyril E. Fitch, it is understood will be chosen president, succeeding Abner W. Schwartz, and Glen Merithew is expected to be elected vice president. The principal business to come before the meeting is the election of officers and the preparing of the budget for the ensuing year.

ENJOYABLE RECEPTION FOR UNITED CHURCH MEMBERS

A reception for the members of the United Congregational church parish was held Thursday evening in the church social rooms by the executive council of the church. The Sodalitas, one of the church societies, under the leadership of Mrs. Eugene Saunders, had made the room most attractive with trees and greens and Mrs. Arthur M. Thompson and her committee added homelike touches by the draperies, softened by candlelight. The Brotherhood members, under the direction of their president, Harold E. Robbins, ushered the guests to each receiving group, all being most cordially welcomed by Rev. and Mrs. Alexander H. Abbott, the deacons, trustees and several other members of the church.

Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr., Mrs. Ozias Dodge and Mrs. William H. Oat assisted and Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard, with members of the Philathea society, served punch, ice cream and cake during the evening. An orchestra under the leadership of George Guile provided a delightful concert programme.

HERBERT LUCAS IN FLORIDA FOR THE WINTER

Herbert W. Lucas of this city has arrived in Miami, Fla., to spend several months there until warm weather again invites him to return to the north. He made the trip on the steamer Cherokee of the Clyde line and he writes from Miami that the thermometer was around 80 while he was sitting in the park listening to the band. On the way down he spent one day in Charleston and one in Jacksonville.

Of present conditions he writes: I found living very cheap, rents very cheap, room $3 per week, apartments $25 and $35 a month, and food very cheap. I found things in general very quiet, real estate nearly dead, and business has been terribly dull all fall. Tourists are beginning to come in very slowly and I think they will not be here much until after the races on the 16th.

POLAR EXPLORATIONS MAKE C. A. R. MEETING SUBJECT

The January meeting of Gen. Ebenezer Huntington society, Children of the American Revolution, was held on Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of Nancy Greenman, Broad street, the junior president, Dorothy Prentice, presiding. The meeting opened with the usual exercises followed by the reports of the officers and chairmen of the committees. It was voted to give $5 to the sewing school conducted by Mrs. Robert W. Otis as part of the Americanization work for the year.

The topic of the afternoon was the Frozen Wastes, contrasting the polar expeditions of former days with Col. Byrd's splendidly equipped expedition of the present day. An account was read of the ship Resolute being brought into New London harbor in 1855. This was one of the five ships sent out from England in search of Sir John Franklin. This boat was caught in an ice pack and abandoned, but was finally found and brought to New London.

At a later date, about 1876 or 77, Richard York, a Norwich boy, went on a voyage on the Florence. He brought back with him specimens of flowers, which he gathered on the east and west coasts of Greenland, a model of a Kayak, a leather tobacco pouch and some walrus teeth, with good examples of the scrimshaw work. These were all exhibited.

Col. Byrd's expedition was then taken up and an account of what was in the kit bag of the men was read as it appeared in The Bulletin a few days ago and the loss of a number of dogs and the hurried return of one of the men to get some more. The radio service of the expedition was mentioned and various other interesting topics.

Refreshments were served. The hostesses of the afternoon were Mrs. Charles D. Greenman, Mrs. Percival W. Chapman, Mrs. Walter E. Gilbert, Mrs. Harold Carpenter and Mrs. Myles E. Standish.

SAVE A LIFE SOCIETY GAINING MEMBERS HERE

The membership of the New London County Save a Life society has nearly doubled since the first of January and new members are now coming in fast. Within a few days an office will be opened on West Main street, it is stated by those interested in the work, and a number two office at New London shortly. This society is a member of the National Safety Council and will soon place its own patrols upon the streets and highways of New London county so as to make the streets and highways safer for the men, women and children who walk or ride upon them. There will also be a patrol of parks so as to make them safer for the little children and others who are in them. This society also stands for the protection and preservation of all animal life and for safety, at work, on the street, and in the home.

Sued in Common Pleas Court.

On a claim that $101.27 has been due from him since Jan. 3, 1929, Byron Frink of this city is made defendant in a suit brought for $200 damages in the common pleas court by Harry L. Sherman and Michael Cecarelli, both of this city.

NORWICH TOWN

MRS. REUBEN PALMER ROSE DIES IN HER 90TH YEAR

Following an illness of about two weeks, the long and useful life of Mary Emily Stanton, 89, widow of Reuben Palmer Rose, came to a close Thursday morning at eleven o'clock. Mrs. Rose had been unusually active all her life and although in advanced years was around her home, which during her latter years was on Huntington avenue, until just after Christmas. She contracted a severe cold which developed into bronchitis. She was born in Montville May 2nd, 1840, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Stanton. The latter before her marriage, was Miss Johnson. In the town of Montville, April, 1858, she was united in marriage with Reuben P. Rose and they remained there for two years. For three years Mr. and Mrs. Rose were located on the Leffingwell farm, in Leffingwell. Later they lived for four years on the John Post farm on Wauwecus Hill. During this period they purchased a portion of this farm, five acres, at the top of the hill. Here they built their home and farm buildings, where they remained for many years, until moving to Norwich Town about 20 years ago, to a location at 146 West Town street, now the property of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mara. When Mr. Rose's health failed several years ago, their last change was to the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Bushnell, where they occupied the upper tenement at 32 Huntington avenue.

Mrs. Rose is survived by her eldest son, Frank R. Rose of Wauwecus Hill, and two grandsons, Prof. Francis H. Rose of Philippine Islands, at present located in Chicago, and Harold T. Rose of Norwich Town, also a half-sister, Mrs. Charles Eddy, of Webster, Mass. She leaves six great grandchildren, Elnor Virginia Rose, of Philippine Islands and Doris E., Muriel B., Clayton S., Thelma M., and Ernest E. Rose, of Norwich Town.

A daughter Minnie at the age of six months, died in 1876, and another daughter, Marietta Rose Bushnell passed away in September, 1923. The youngest son, Ernest E. Rose, well known Norwich musician, for a few years organist at the First Baptist church, also organist at Jordan Baptist church, died suddenly a number of years ago. When a young woman Mrs. Rose with her husband united with Leffingwell Baptist church, later transferring their membership to Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church. During the time their son Ernest was organist at the First Baptist church they took letters to that church, again in late years for the second time, uniting with the Norwich Town M. E. church. In this church, Mrs. Rose with her daughter Mrs. Bushnell, manifested active and constant interest. She gave of her time for the welfare of this church; also was a liberal contributor to its maintenance. She presented a large sum for the girls' dormitory at Central Philippine college, where Prof. and Mrs. Francis H. Rose are members of the faculty.

LIMIT DEBATE ON KELLOGG PACT BLOCKED IN SENATE

Senator Borah Proposed 30 Minute Limit For Each Senator After 3 o'clock Today—Senator Moses Objected Until He Could Confer With Those Seeking Some Form of Interpretation on the Treaty—Previously Senator Reed of Missouri Had Assailed the Treaty For More Than Two Hours.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—An agreement to limit debate on the Kellogg anti-war treaty was blocked in the senate today after the veteran James Reed of Missouri had lashed out with his threatened attack on the pact, which he described as a "Trojan horse."

For more than two hours the fiery Missourian talked on the "treaty of words" on "maudlin sentimentalists" and "pacifists" and concluded before a crowded chamber and galleries with an appeal that the senate assure some form of construction on the pact which he held necessary to protect long-asserted American rights.

Pacing up and down the center aisle as he warned that the treaty would lead to the League of Nations, Senator Reed turned repeatedly to look at his old ally in the battle against the league, Senator Borah of Idaho, who is sponsoring the treaty.

When he had concluded, Senator Borah arose to ask that debate on the treaty be limited to 30 minutes for each senator after 3 o'clock tomorrow. There appeared to be no opposition but as the necessary unanimous approval was about to be given Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, objected until he could confer with those seeking some form of an interpretation on the pact.

Senator Reed in his speech assailed Secretary Kellogg for his insistence that no interpretation of any sort be placed upon the treaty and tonight senators Moses, Reed, and others favoring an interpretation appeared to be holding out in a last effort to get some manner of compromise which would place in the record the views expressed on the floor by treaty advocates that the pact did not affect America's Monroe doctrine and her right of self-defense.

Once once was Senator Reed interrupted and then by Senator Borah after the Missourian had declared that Borah "practically admitted that the treaty was nothing but a gesture of good will."

"When the senator gets through there won't be that left," remarked the Idahoan.

"Well, Secretary Kellogg won't listen," Reed continued. "He sets up his own opinion as final so there is nothing to do but debate this to the end. The secretary of state is not the watchman of this country."

Explaining that he did not intend to filibuster, Senator Reed concentrated his appeal for a note of interpretation. He suggested that, if nothing else, the foreign relations committee incorporate in a report the views expressed by Chairman Borah on America's position under the treaty.

Referring to the pact as a "Trojan horse," Reed said "they have put inside it the doctrine of the right of balance of power in Europe." "They have put into it," he added, "the right of every nation signing it to be controlled by the Locarno treaty and the League of Nations."

He said that Secretary Kellogg had deliberately made no reference to America's Monroe Doctrine in the treaty correspondence and was using this as his "ace in the hole."

Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa, took up the debate late in the day, placing himself solidly behind the pact. Among other things, he believed this would be a step toward bringing about the recognition of the Russian government which he indorsed.

Calling attention that Russia had signed the anti-war treaty along with the other world powers, Senator Brookhart declared that if the senate ratified the pact it will constitute American recognition of the Russian government. He also saw hopes in the treaty for bringing about disarmament.

DIRIGIBLE LOS ANGELES WEATHER-BOUND LAST NIGHT

PORT ST. JOE, Fla., Jan. 11—(AP)—The navy dirigible Los Angeles, was weather-bound tonight, moored to the mast of the tender Patoka, here, and may be forced by unsettled conditions to abandon her intended cruise to Miami, Fla., and return to the hangar in Lakehurst, N. J.

Forecasts for tomorrow and the next few days are unfavorable for continuation of the Florida cruise, Lieutenant Commander Rosendahl said, and he may leave tomorrow about noon for the return trip to Lakehurst. The return to the hangar in New Jersey, however, was contingent upon weather conditions there, since they were reported unfavorable today. In case the Lakehurst weather does not improve, the commander said he would stand by the Patoka.

A disturbance, created by a low pressure area in the Gulf of Mexico, was causing shifting winds, regarded by Commander Rosendahl as possibly dangerous. He encountered the effects of the storm last night as the huge dirigible was nosing her way toward Miami, and had to return to the Patoka.

The weather did not improve here today, and Commander Rosendahl said that if the wind velocity increased, he would cut loose from the Patoka's mast and drift about the vicinity until the wind subsided.

CADHOUSE PROPRIETOR SHOT BY ANGRY FATHER

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 11—(AP)—An aftermath of a high school dance at a roadhouse near here last fall at which liquor is alleged to have been served to approximately 75 Camden high school students, came today when Alex Hardin, 25, proprietor of the roadhouse, was shot and critically wounded by F. E. Sullivan, father of a 15-year-old girl who attended the party.

Sullivan encountered Hardin in an alley and opened fire with a pistol. He surrendered to police immediately afterward. Hardin, shot four times, is in a critical condition at a hospital here and attendants expressed little hope for his recovery.

Hardin is under $5,000 bond for appearance before the Ouachita county grand jury to answer to a charge of giving intoxicating liquor to minors.

The liquor charge grew out of a lengthy investigation of the party last fall during which many students of the high school were questioned. Five girls and one girl, Sullivan's daughter, were placed under $110 bond for appearance before the grand jury as witnesses against Hardin.

PLAN GENERAL OFFENSIVE AGAINST APACHE INDIANS

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Jan. 11—(AP)—Alarm spread along the border facing the Apache frontier today, as no word had been received from Francisco Villanueva, Mexican cattleman, and the 20 scouts who accompanied him into the Sierra Madre mountains in search of an outlaw band of Indians who two years ago carried away his son.

A general offensive against the Apaches, who it is feared, may have surprised the Fimbres band when they were forced from their mountain strongholds by heavy snows, is planned by soldiers and soldiers along the border here.

STAY OF EXECUTION FOR MRS. ADA BONNER LEBOUEF

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 11—(AP)—Mrs. Ada Bonner Lebouef and Dr. Thomas E. Dreher, sentenced to die on the gallows tomorrow at Franklin, were granted a 15 day stay of execution by the Louisiana supreme court today.

The supreme court denied a plea for the appointment of a lunacy commission to determine the present sanity of the slayer of James P. Lebouef, the woman's husband, but granted the stay of execution to permit defense attorneys to file an application for a rehearing.

U. S. HAS SUPPRESSED NOVEL, "THE WELL OF LONELINESS"

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—Speculation in literary circles as to the attitude authorities here would take toward "The Well of Loneliness," a novel by Miss Radclyffe Hall which was suppressed in England as obscene, ended today when 800 copies of the sixth edition were seized at the offices of the American publishers, Covici-Friede.

Donald Friede, of the publishing firm, said tonight that John S. Sumner, secretary of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, entered the office with four policemen and made the seizure on a warrant signed by Chief Magistrate William McAdoo. All copies of the book at a department store were also confiscated, he said.

Friede said that Sumner bought a copy of the novel, a month ago, and was told by the publishers that they were ready to appear at any time in a test case, but that Sumner preferred after waiting a month to act without warning. Hearing on the case will be held Jan. 22.

"The Well of Loneliness" became a "cause celebre" in London last November when it was tried in police court on obscenity charges. The court ordered the book destroyed.

BODIES OF TWO WOMEN AND MAN FOUND IN APARTMENT

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—The bodies of two women and a man, believed to have been dead since New Year's eve, were found today in a gas-filled apartment on the top floor of a house in the mid-town section.

An employe of a gas company, repairing a gas stove in a vacant apartment next to that of Miss Mamie Clark, 50, which was the only other apartment on the top floor, detected the odor of gas. He called a patrolman and they broke into the apartment. They found the bodies of Miss Clark, Miss Nora O'Donnell, 40, who lived with her, and Joseph Brendel, 38, all of New York. Three burners were open on the gas range in the kitchen and two burners were open on a chandelier in the bedroom.

Occupants of the house, non of whom had noticed the odor of gas, said they had not seen or heard the two women since New Year's eve, when a party was held in the apartment. Police were undecided whether the gas jets were opened purposely or by accident.

DIED IN BALCONY SEAT AT MADISON SQUARE GARDEN

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—Jack F. Appdale, well known as an animal trainer and former amateur athlete, died tonight after climbing to a balcony seat at Madison Square Garden to watch the fights. He was 56 years old.

As Appdale was about to take his seat in the balcony he collapsed. He was taken to a side room where he died before a physician arrived. An ambulance surgeon said death was caused by heart disease.

Appdale for many years trained animals for circuses, having been connected with Barnum & Bailey, Ringling Brothers, Hagenback's and other circuses. During his youth he competed in numerous 600-yard dashes held by amateur organizations.

MIDDLETOWN MAN HAS MYSTERIOUSLY DISAPPEARED

HARTFORD, Jan. 11 (AP)—The Russell Manufacturing company, Middletown, has asked the state police to solve one of the most baffling cases of mysterious disappearances that the department has ever faced. Harold Wyman, sales promotion manager of that company, well known in Middletown and in the middle west where from the firm's Chicago office he directed the business in that region for several years, has vanished, and so far every effort to get track of him has failed. The fact that no reason for his disappearance can be found lends to the difficulty of solving the mystery.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Jan. 11—(AP)—Queen Marie is ill with a slight cold. Her doctor says she will be fully recovered within a few days.

LONDON, Jan. 11—(AP)—British official quarters expressed the hope tonight that reported accession by Amanullah Khan, king of Afghanistan, to tribal leaders insistence that he abandon his westernization program would completely pacify that troubled country.

BERLIN, Jan. 11—(AP)—A strenuous program of flying for the giant dirigible, Graf Zeppelin, to include two trips to America in June and July, and thereafter a possible trip around the world, is outlined in a tentative schedule by Dr. Hugo Eckener, the Zeppelin's master, to a Tageblatt interviewer.

BELGRADE, (by telephone to Vienna,) Jan. 11—(AP)—News of the dismissal of several hundred officials and employes attached to the Skupstina, or Jugoslavian parliament, was accepted here as indication that that body will remain suspended under the new dictatorship of King Alexander for a long time, perhaps indefinitely.

ALLAHABAD, British India, Jan. 11—(AP)—Sirdar Mahomed Sarwar Khan, an Afghan prince, son of Ayub Khan, has been lodged in the European jail here. The arrest was made under orders from the government of India and it was believed that it was a precaution to prevent undue activities against the Afghan government from this side of the border.

FIGHT FOR CONTROL OF THE SALVATION ARMY

SOUTHWOLD, Eng., Jan. 11—(AP)—The scene in the drama which is being built around the fight for control of the Salvation Army shifted today from Sunbury-on-Thames to the secluded retreat of General Bramwell Booth at Southwold.

Here occurred a succession of events culminating in a fruitless visit by the sick commander's sister, leader of the Army's reform element, the facing of the general on his bed by the deputation seeking his retirement as their leader, and the announcement later that he would answer their request on Monday.

Early in the forenoon the deputation of seven high Salvation Army officials, who spent last night at an inn at Ipswich with the resolution of the high council, asking retirement of the aged commander-in-chief in their keeping, made their first trip to Southwold Villa, where for months the Booth family has sought to preserve its incognito and escape public curiosity.

But the deputation was not to fulfil its errand so soon; they had not received a note requesting them to withhold their visit until afternoon and the nurse refused to allow them to visit the sickroom.

In the meantime Commander Evangeline Booth, the general's sister, and leader of the reform element which is attempting to oust him, had left London hurriedly, and after driving the 110 miles in three hours arrived at Southwold Villa and asked to see her brother.

TESTIMONY GIVEN AT UTILITIES INVESTIGATION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—Testimony that the National Electric Light association had contributed $80,000 between 1924 and 1928 to the General Federation of Women's clubs, while Mrs. John D. Sherman of Estes Park, Colo., was the federation's president, and that it also had paid $600 each for 24 magazine articles written by Mrs. Sherman was presented today to the federal trade commission.

A voluntary witness before today's session of the commission's public power utilities investigation, Mrs. Sherman, however declared that she had been paid for the articles dealing with the federation's "better equipped homes campaign" by the Lord, Thomas and Logan agency which had placed the articles with magazines for publication.

Under questioning by Robert E. Healy, chief counsel for the commission, Mrs. Sherman said that during her four years of the federation presidency the $80,000 contribution from the light association, together with $2,000 from the American Gas association, had been received by her organization.

PLOTTED OVERTHROW OF GOVERNOR OF MANCHURIA

TOKYO, Jan. 11—(AP)—Discovery of a plot to overthrow Chang Hsueh-Liang, present governor of Manchuria, was given in Mukden dispatches today as the cause of the execution of Yang Yu-Ting, who was formerly chief of staff to Chang Tso-Lin, father of the present governor and late dictator of Peking.

The reports also stated that Yang Yu-Ting had misappropriated $20,000,000 Mexican from the arsenal funds at Mukden, that he had opposed the hoisting of the Chinese nationalist flag in Manchuria and that he had placed Chang Hsueh-Liang in an awkward plight regarding negotiations with Japan in connection with administration of the South Manchuria railway.

The reports added that the Chinese nationalist government at Nanking first scented the plot and requested Chang to deal with it appropriately.

ACTUAL FARM LOSSES BY VERMONT FLOOD $2,000,000

MONTPELIER, Vt., Jan. 11—(AP)—Actual farm losses resulting from the Vermont flood of 1927, were approximately $2,000,000, Commissioner Edward H. Jones, of the department of agriculture, said in his annual report today. The commissioner said that the flood was the most severe blow ever dealt the agricultural interests of Vermont.

GEN. BOOTH MAY FIGHT TO THE LAST DITCH

LONDON, Jan. 11—(AP)—A dispatch to the Daily Herald from Southwold tonight said it was understood there on good authority that General Bramwell Booth intends to fight to the last ditch against the high council's efforts to depose him. It is said that if the council decides to dismiss him he is prepared to take the matter to the law courts.

INVESTIGATING MARITAL AFFAIRS OF THE WOODS

DETROIT, Jan. 11—(AP)—Earlier marital affairs of Mrs. Grace M. Wood and Ralph A. Wood, the wealthy estranged husband she is accused of conspiring to have "taken for a ride," occupied police attention today as they planned arraignment of the woman and two men on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

Seven Men Killed In Army Plane Crash

Only One Man Survived Desperate Attempt at Forced Landing at Middletown, Pa.

MIDDLETOWN, Pa., Jan. 11—(AP)—The big army transport plane C-2 carried seven men to death when it was smashed to pieces, in a desperate attempt at a forced landing a few minutes after taking off from the army air depot here today.

Only one man of the eight soldiers from Bolling field, Washington, who started on the return flight to their base, escaped with his life. He is Sergt. Patrick Conroy of New York city, who tonight was unconscious and in a critical condition in a Harrisburg hospital, suffering from a fractured skull.

The dead were:

Lieut. Henry R. Angell, Birmingham, Ala.; Staff Sergt. Henry Cronin, Washington, D. C.; Staff Sergt. Rudolph J. Lehutta, Washington, D. C.; Master Sergt. Joseph B. McCarthy, Washington, D. C.; Priv. Samuel P. Jones, Bell Buckle, Tenn.; Priv. Mike D. Kelly, Minersville, Pa.; Priv. Clarence E. Birch, Chicago.

The great tri-motored Fokker, of the same type as the famous Question Mark, and that used by Comdr. Richard E. Byrd in his flight to the North Pole, was a twisted mass of wreckage on a vacant lot within 50 feet of two Royalton houses which it narrowly missed in its descent. Because it was so completely smashed, Capt. F. F. Christine, acting commander of the local airport, said that the cause of the accident may never be known.

The plane had traveled less than a mile when the few witnesses who saw the disaster saw the plane glide helplessly over a row of houses, crash through a tree and drop, a shattered mass, into the rain-soaked ground.

Five of the passengers were killed instantly, most of them caught beneath the plane or crushed between the engine and the flattened wreckage of the rear of the ship. One man was tossed from the plane but died instantly when hurled against a fence, while Pilot Angell was trapped among the tangled wires and broken mechanism. Residents and staff men from the local depot cut away the wreckage to free him. He died an hour later in the Harrisburg hospital.

Lieutenant Kelly and Sergeant Conroy were taken to the Polyclinic hospital at Harrisburg, but Kelly died soon afterward.

Two other soldiers from Bolling field came here with the plane but did not make the fatal return trip. Capt. H. A. Dinger piloted the ship on its flight here and Sergt. Charles Mayland was a passenger. Both left about noon in another plane.

The Fokker landed here at 10:55 on its training flight and after taking on a quantity of supplies, left at 1:30 this afternoon.

H. H. Lerch, who was working on a car in the rear of his home, said the roar of the ship's three engines was punctuated with breaks which indicated motor trouble. An instant later, he said, the plane began gliding unevenly to the ground. It passed a few feet above a row of houses adjoining a vacant lot and sheared off a small tree.

Lerch said that one wing snapped off the tree and the large plane was thrown violently about, grazing the top of another small tree before it finally flattened itself on the mud.

WILLIAM T. TRUE SLATED TO SUCCEED F. C. WALCOTT

HARTFORD, Jan. 11—(AP)—William A. True, of West Hartford, companion of Gov. Trumbull on many hunting trips in the caribou country of Maine and Nova Scotia, is slated for appointment to the state board of fisheries and game as successor to U. S. Senator-elect Frederic C. Walcott, the Courant will say tomorrow. "He is the man I have in mind for the place," Gov. Trumbull said, when told of the reports. It is not expected the appointment will be made until Gov. Trumbull's return about February 4 from his trip to Florida which he will start tomorrow.

The resignation of Senator Walcott from the commission leaves the presidency of the board vacant. It is expected that ex-State Senator Charles E. Wheeler, of Stratford, will be named president when the board is re-organized. Earl C. Mull, of Suffield, is the third member of the board.

OBITUARY

Timothy Murphy

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—Timothy Murphy, who retired from the stage two years ago after the sudden death of his wife, Dorothy Sherrod Murphy, died today. He was 67 years old.

Mr. Murphy was born at Rutledge, Vt. He came to New York when he was 21 years old and engaged in vaudeville at Tony Pastor's theatre. A few years later he created the role of Maverick Brander in "The Texas Steer," a play in which he starred for a number of years.

He later went on the road in "Old Innocence," and "The Carpet Bagger." On his return to New York, Murphy played with Richard Bennett in "The Stronger Claim." His last New York appearance was in "Five o'Clock."

Three sisters and a brother survive. The body will be taken tomorrow to Memphis, Tenn., for burial Monday.

Lindbergh To Make The Initial Flight

The Colonel Will Open New Mail Route From Miami to the Canal Zone, February 4

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh announced today that he will fly the first plane which will open the Pan-American Airways, Inc., new mail route from Miami to the Panama Canal zone on Feb. 4, putting into effect the United States foreign mail contract recently awarded the company.

At the same time the corporation announced that Colonel Lindbergh had been retained as technical advisor to the Pan-American Airways and its affiliated operating companies and also as consultant to Aviation Corporation of the Americas, the holding company.

Colonel Lindbergh said he expected to leave Miami, Fla., at 6 a. m., eastern standard time, on Feb. 4, flying through British Honduras and Nicaragua to Cristobal, in the Canal Zone, where he is scheduled to land about 4 p. m., Feb. 6. Although the trip will require approximately three days, he said, the actual flying time will be about 19 1-2 hours. A Sikorsky amphibian plane will be used for the flight.

"The trip from the United States to the Canal Zone ordinarily takes five to seven days by boat," Colonel Lindbergh said today. "The plane will, therefore, save two to three days in the transportation of mail to Cristobal. The greatest time saving, however, will be between the United States and countries like Nicaragua, which are not reached by direct steamship route. With such countries the time saving may amount to about two weeks."

After Colonel Lindbergh's flight, the Pan-American Airways, Inc., expects to operate the mail service between Miami and the Panama Canal zone about twice a month. It is expected that passenger service will be added within six months after the establishment of the mail service, and that by that time trips will be made daily.

In his capacity as technical advisor to the company, Colonel Lindbergh will pass on all matters pertaining to routes, airports and equipment and all technical matters relating to Pan-American service.

Colonel Lindbergh also said today that within a few days he plans to fly over the Transcontinental Air Transport route to the Pacific coast. He said he possibly would make the trip with "Casey" Jones, Transcontinental Air Transport pilot, but did not disclose the purpose of the flight.

WOULD TREBLE THE FUND FOR DRY ENFORCEMENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—Without solicitation by the administration the senate appropriations committee today voted to treble the fund for enforcement of prohibition. It approved a proposal to increase the dry law allotment by $25,000,000 which would be added to the $13,500,000 already appropriated.

The increase, if accepted, would provide for prosecution of the dry laws, the highest figure ever made available in the history of the Volstead act.

Before voting on the proposal, however, the senate intends to wait for a report from the prohibition bureau as to just how this money would be spent and several wets in the senate have indicated that they will not oppose the increase, if in their judgment the funds are properly allocated.

Senator Harris, democrat, Georgia, who recently described present enforcement conditions as a 'farce,' advocated the large increase. He offered a motion for the $25,000,000 Boost before the appropriations committee of which he is a member as an addition to the deficiency supply bill. Senator Harris, who is a dry, originally asked for a fund of $50,000,000 to enforce the liquor laws. He attributed lack of enforcement at present to insufficient money.

SEEK TARIFF PROTECTION FOR POTTERY INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—Representatives of manufacturers, wholesalers and labor joined hands today in seeking before the ways and means committee, increased tariffs for the protection of the American pottery industry.

The committee also devoted its attention to other items in the earthenware and glassware schedule, but at the end of the day had so many witnesses remaining to be heard that it was found necessary to call a session for tomorrow, originally set aside as an off day. The important metals schedule will be tackled on Monday.

NEW YORK CHINATOWN APARTMENT RAIDED

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—Police tonight raided a Chinatown apartment, sumptuously furnished in Oriental fashion, and seized 193 tins of alleged opium, said to be worth $50,000.

Wong Bar, a Chinese interior decorator, was arrested on a charge of possession. Police said Bar admitted doing a wholesale business in the narcotic, imported direct from China.

Kings of Living.

Today the average citizen enjoys conveniences and comforts that exceed the most extravagant dreams of even Louis XIV. Things which we regard as absolute necessities would have seemed the most elegant luxuries in the long ago.

Advertising has made possible this widespread distribution of the good things of life. Advertising has made possible large scale production and large scale selling, resulting in prices that take luxuries out of the "for-kings-only" class.

It is well worth your while to read the advertisements. They are largely responsible for the high standard of living enjoyed in this country today. And they are raising it daily, making us kings of comfort—kings for Louis to envy.

Read the advertisements—they help you to enjoy life.

THE FENN REAPORTIONMENT BILL PASSED BY THE HOUSE

Measure Went Through Without Record Vote—The Bill Provides a Method For a Reapportionment of the House Membership in the Event That Congress Should Fail to Do So After the 1930 Census—Last Reapportionment Was Based Upon the 1910 Census.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—After ignoring for almost ten years the constitutional mandate to reapportion its membership, the house late today passed the Fenn bill to prescribe a method by which its seats shall be allotted among the states after the next census in 1930 if congress should fail to act at that time.

The measure was passed after a motion to send it back to committee had failed by a vote of 226 to 134. This ended a struggle which has beaten somewhat similar bills four times in the last six years. On one other occasion the house passed a reapportionment measure, but it failed to gain the approval of the senate.

A storm of debate that held the house for two days preceded its passage. With some exceptions, most of the members taking part in the fight disregarded party lines and favored or opposed the measure largely according to whether their states would gain or lose representation.

The proposal provides that on the first day of the second session of the 71st congress, the secretary of commerce shall transmit to it a statement showing the population of each state and the number of representatives each state would be entitled to under an allotment of the present 435 seats. It also prescribes a mathematical method for arriving at the distribution of seats.

Under the second section of the bill, it is provided that, if congress fails to enact a law apportioning the representatives among the states, the seats shall be distributed in accordance with the allotment made by the secretary of commerce.

Although the measure was sharply contested, the opposition was beaten on every material change proposed.

The chief argument of advocates of the bill was that it would be difficult to obtain the passage of reapportionment legislation at the new congress in the face of census figures which they estimated would take representation from 17 states.

The submitted figures estimate that states would lose members, as follows: Alabama, 1; Indiana, 2; Iowa, 2; Kansas, 1; Kentucky, 2; Louisiana, 1; Maine, 1; Massachusetts, 1; Mississippi, 2; Missouri, 3; Nebraska, 1; New York, 1; North Dakota, 1; Pennsylvania, 1; Tennessee, 1; Vermont, 1; Virginia, 1.

It was estimated states would gain members as follows: Arizona, 1; California, 6; Connecticut, 1; Florida, 1; Michigan, 4; New Jersey, 2; North Carolina, 1; Ohio, 3; Oklahoma, 1; Texas, 2; Washington, 1.

EXCLUSIVE BATHING BEAUTY CONTEST AT PALM BEACH, FLA.

PALM BEACH, Florida, January 11—(AP)—Under a set of rules and regulations especially drafted for the occasion the winter society colony here experienced something new today, a bathing beauty contest so exclusive that even the judges were locked in "chicken coops."

The contest was held behind the high walls and guarded gates of the Ocean Boulevard estate of Mr. and Mrs. George Angus Bobyne of Beverly Farms, Massachusetts, and the entrants were from the leaders of the younger set in the colony.

If the judges selected a "Miss 400" they kept their selection secret from the general public.

Some of those taking part in the program were Mrs. Paul Bonner, representing "Miss Switzerland," Mrs. Arthur Somers Roche, "Miss Arkansas"; Mrs. Howard Major, "Miss Massachusetts"; Mrs. John Emerson, (Anita Loos) as "Miss California"; Mrs. Blaine Webb, "Miss Montana"; Mrs. Frederick Proctor, "Miss England"; Mrs. John Charles Thomas, "Miss Kelsey City"; Mrs. E. Leonard Bear, "Miss New York"; Mrs. Lester Bryon, "Miss Alaska", and Mrs. Hervey Schaffer, "Miss Pennsylvania."

The judges, who viewed the spectacle through the meshes of chicken wire, were Chester Williams, substituting for Major Barclay H. Warburton, Palm Beach; Dr. Wiley R. Reynolds, Arthur Gomers Roche, noted novelist; Dr. Hobart Warren, and Mr. Bobyne.

REPORT KING GEORGE HAD A PERFECT DAY

LONDON, Jan. 11—(AP)—An unusually long consultation among the doctors attending King George, took place this morning. It lasted three hours and was attended by Lord Dawson, of Penn, Sir Hewett and Sir Hugh Rigby. But tonight the first two of this trio issued a bulletin in which they said:

"The king had a restful day. There is no change to report in his majesty's condition."

Sir Edward Elgar, master of the King's music, spoke at a public luncheon today and counselled his hearers to ignore adverse rumors relating to the king. He said:

"We have the satisfaction of knowing that the king is slowly recovering and in a few months, unless there is an accident, we shall have him among us again."

FRENCH CHAMBER VOTED CONFIDENCE IN POINCARE

PARIS, Jan. 11—(AP)—After a long and bitter debate Premier Raymond Poincare triumphed over the opposition to him and his new cabinet tonight by a greater margin than even his friends had expected.

The vote was 317 to 253 for rejection of a vote of non-conofidence majority of 64.

What carried the day for the veteran premier was his appeal for full and undivided support for his government while it was engaged in diplomatic negotiations for general liquidation of French obligations which were the financial aftermath of the war. Such liquidation, he said, would assure universal peace and prosperity.

"One doesn't," the premier argued, "change horses while crossing a stream."

BODY OF MISSING MAN WAS FOUND IN POND

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 11—(AP)—The body of Joseph Wrobel, 20, missing since yesterday morning, was found by the police in Water Shops pond today. It is believed he fell through a hole in the ice while crossing the pond in fog on his way to work in a local machine shop. Police search for him was instituted when he failed to return from work yesterday and the finding of his lunch box near the hole in the ice directed the search to that point.

SUPT. R. I. STATE HOSPITAL WAS SLAIN IN HIS HOME

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 11—(AP)—Dr. Ransom H. Sartwell, superintendent of the State hospital for mental disease, was slain tonight shortly before 11 o'clock, in his home on the grounds of the state institution, on the outskirts of Cranston. The slayer used a double barreled shotgun. All guards of the state prison and police from Cranston, are searching the vicinity in an effort to apprehend the slayer.

HOOVER HEARING ON CABINET SELECTIONS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—President-elect Hoover, nearing the end of his first week of conferences in Washington since election, today heard opposition voiced to some of those mentioned as likely cabinet selections.

A group of senate republican independents appeared to be behind a concerted drive against the reappointment of Andrew W. Mellon as secretary of the treasury and it has been indicated that this selection would meet with determined opposition in the next senate.

Senator Nye of North Dakota added his voice today to that of Senator Brookhart of Iowa and it is to be expected that Senator Couzens of Michigan who has been invited to see Mr. Hoover tomorrow will strongly oppose appointment of Mr. Mellon.

The treasury secretary and Michigan senator have engaged from time to time in bitter controversies over tax matters involving both the administration of the income tax division of the internal revenue bureau and the attempt of the treasury to reasses a large sum against Senator Couzens on the sale of his Ford motor stock years ago.

The reappointment of Mr. Mellon has been regarded in well informed circles as virtually a foregone conclusion.

INVESTIGATING BANKRUPTCY SITUATION IN NEW YORK CITY

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—The embezzlements charged against David Steinhardt, missing bankruptcy lawyer and receiver, started a federal grand jury today on an investigation of the entire federal bankruptcy situation in New York city. Six United States court judges requested the inquiry.

The grand jury indicted Merrill E. Gates, Jr., also an attorney, on a charge of embezzling court funds, that is, money belonging to bankruptcy estates. Steinhardt was indicted yesterday on a similar charge. Gates is accused of being short in the funds of a bankrupt estate for which he was attorney.

Charles H. Tuttle, government attorney, is seeking further information about the $100,000 paid by Steinhardt in checks Max S. Pinner, a federal court messenger. When Pinner, a former tailor, was asked about the checks yesterday he promised to confess, but he attempted suicide instead. His condition was such today that officials were not permitted to seek the confession.

CONFESSED SLAYER OF TWO CHILDREN CONVICTED

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Jan. 11—(AP)—Peter Kudzinowski, 25, of Scranton, Pa., a wandering railroad laborer who confessed he killed two children and man during the past five years today was convicted of murder in the first degree for the slaying of Joseph Storelli, 7 years old, East Side boy of New York.

The verdict makes imposition of the sentence of death in the electric chair mandatory.

The jury of 12 men deliberated one hour and twenty five minutes.

Kudzinowski, who had confessed the slayings to Detroit police who arrested him for drunkenness, stood without an outward sign of emotion as the foreman delivered the verdict. The prisoner was tried for the death of the Storelli boy. The bodies of Harry Quinn of Scranton and six years old Julia Miodianowska of Jersey City, who Kudzinowski said he slew, have not been found.

The defense was insanity.

SENATOR GREEN STRICKEN WITH DIZZINESS IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—Senator Green, of Vermont, was stricken with an attack of dizziness in the senate today, but was revived quickly after he had been carried from the floor to a cloakroom adjoining the chamber.

He fell ill while sitting at his desk next to Senator Curtis, of Kansas. He slumped almost to the floor and lay unconscious for a brief period.

After he had been carried to the cloakroom, Senator Copeland, of New York, a physician, was called and restoratives quickly revived the senator. Later a practicing physician was summoned and Mr. Green's condition was pronounced not serious.

Some years ago Senator Green, while walking down Pennsylvania avenue, was shot in the head in an exchange of shots between bootleggers and prohibition agents. This accident caused him to lose partial use of his right side, but he had otherwise been in good health.

CORONER BILL TO RESUME INQUEST IN LORELLA DEATH

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 11—County Coroner Arthur G. Bill stated today that he would resume his inquest into the death of Mrs. Rosaria Lorella, who was murdered by strangulation at the home of her son-in-law, Thomas Mazzola in the latter's home Thursday morning, next Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock at police headquarters. Mrs. Mazzola is fully expected to have sufficiently recovered from shock at that time to be able to testify before the coroner. There will also be several new witnesses who have been brought into the case as a result of the investigation being conducted by County Detective William E. Jackson and Police Officer Arthur Hurley.

Thomas Mazzola, held as a suspect in the murder, continues to be confined under guard at police headquarters awaiting developments of the coroner's inquest. The investigators have learned upon admission from Mazzola that he, at one time, served a three months jail sentence in Italy for theft. Mazzola has retained Attorneys William A. King and Samuel B. Harvey as counsel and an announcement is momentarily expected from State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford of Putnam of his selection of an assistant in prosecuting the case. Coroner Bill hopes to complete the inquest proceedings Monday.

FUNERAL

Alex Zemel

Alex Zemel, six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Zemel of Leonard Bridge, Columbia, died this morning. The funeral was held this afternoon with burial in the Jewish cemetery at Perkin's Corner. Arrangements were in charge of Kilkenny Bros.

4,225 Telephone Directories

A total of 4,225 copies of the winter issue of the Southern New England Telephone company directory will be delivered to subscribers of the Willimantic exchange, 725 to Stafford Springs and 750 to the Lebanon exchange, Manager John C. Frazier stated that all of the directories should be delivered by Saturday night. Nearly 500 have been mailed at the post office to rural subscribers of the local exchange and William Weeks of South street has the contract to deliver 3,400 of the directories. An increase of nearly 200 is shown in the number of stations of the Willimantic exchange. Stafford and Lebanon show a growth of 25 since the July issue of the directory.

A large silver loving cup, the property of the Connecticut Agricultural college poultry department is on exhibition in the show window of the Smith-Keen jewelry store in connection with the fourth annual Willimantic exposition. The cup is in memory of W. H. Card of Manchester, one of Connecticut's best known poultry men. It was purchased through subscriptions from poultry magazines, clubs and individuals all over the United States and follows a thought by J. Stanley McCray of Rockville who first proposed the purchase of the memorium. The name of Judge Card is engraved on the cup which stands 16 1-2 inches high and is mounted on an eight inch ebony base. Judge Card, who died a few years ago, was the originator of the Red Laced Cornish breed of chickens. The cup is the permanent property of the C. A. C. poultry department.

A pair of solicitors representing a Providence, R. I. concern who came here to secure orders for photographic enlargements were summoned before Police Chief Thomas F. Grady this forenoon for questioning. The salesmen were advised to discontinue their activities until an investigation was conducted into the reliability of the concern they represented. The men secure the enlargement order and collect for the work upon delivery at which time they also attempt to sell frames for the photographs. The police some time ago confiscated a trunk full of photographs that had been secured by salesmen and which had not been returned to owners owing to misunderstandings regarding sales. The chamber of commerce is cooperating with the police in protecting local residents against "blue sky" solicitors.

Engagement Announced

At a banquet given by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh F. Smithy of 1511 Morgantown avenue, Fairmont, W. Va., the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Smith to Alan Clarke Guild of New York city, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank E. Guild of Windham Center was announced. Covers were laid for nearly 50 guests. Mr. Guild is a graduate of Yale university and is associated with Whitney and Oettler, exporters of New York. Miss Smith is a graduate of Wilson college, Chambersburg, Pa., and is a charter member of the Junior League of Fairmont. She is a popular young woman of culture and charm. The wedding date was not made known.

Dr. Philip Wilson of Boston, Mass., gave an interesting treatise on The Modern Treatment of Fractures at the meeting of the Tri-City Medical society held in the Nathan Hale hotel Thursday evening, with members present from New London, Norwich and Willimantic. Dr. E. J. Ottenhelmer, vice-president, was in charge. A discussion of the paper read by Dr. Wilson was conducted by Dr. Paul Swett of Hartford. Dr. Kenneth K. Kinney, secretary was in charge of the arrangements for the meeting which was attended by 45 physicians including Dr. Robert Yergason of Hartford.

Miss Albia Fontaine was tendered a miscellaneous shower at her home, 80 South street, Thursday evening in honor of her approaching marriage. Miss Edith Strong entertained with selections. Present were the Misses Alice Benson, Mildred Dawson, Dora Foley, Grace Service, Frances Kelley, Ruth Strong and Albia Fontaine, Mrs. Mary Pivnik, Mrs. Rose Potter, Mrs. Edith Herrick, Mrs. Dolly Gallup, Mrs. Marceline Fontaine and Mrs. Eva Houle.

The distinction of being on the second honor roll at Bay Path institute, Springfield, Mass., has been received by Miss Elizabeth Stanek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steveo Stanek of Hebron. Miss Stanek is a member of the junior class in the teachers' training department. Second honor rank signifies that a student has maintained a standing of 80 per cent in all subjects, with not less than one-third over 90 per cent, throughout a period of 12 weeks.

Charles L. Moran, who has been room clerk at the Nathan Hale hotel for the past nine months has been promoted to the assistant managership of the Hawthorne hotel in Salem, Mass., one of the American Hotel corporation chain hostelries. He is succeeded by Frederick P. Longmaid of Salem. Mr. Moran leaves with the well wishes of a host of friends which he cultivated during his stay here.

Street Superintendent Edwin O. Sumner, who resumed his duties today after several days illness with a cold, has placed a force of men at work at the city stone crushing plant off Ives street. His plans call for a large supply of crushed stone to be used in an elaborate rogram of road building and repairing during the coming spring and summer months. The stone is being crushed into three sizes, bed rock, filling and screenings. The stone is taken from excavations made in municipal work, principally from diggings for new water mains or sewer lines. One of the contemplated jobs that will require a large quantity of stone is the building of Tingley street from Valley to Prospect streets.

There is considerable interest in the figures of the state department of health which gives the town of Windham a population of 14,599 by next July. That figure represents 26 per cent of the population of the entire Windham county which comprizes 15 towns. This indicates that the town of Windham will show a gain of 798 over the 1920 census figures.

Mrs. Lucille Dinneen has been appointed chairlady of arrangements for the fourteenth annual banquet of the Windham Girls' club to be held in the Nathan Hale hotel in February.

Ozro G. Hanks of Hanks' Hill, Mansfield was reported as being in a critical condition and under the care of two nurses at his home today. He was taken ill during the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Little have returned from New York city where they attended the automobile show.

The Misses Lucy and Jennie Chandler have returned to their duties as teachers at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y.

Johnny Curtis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don H. Curtis is guest of his grandmother, Mrs. Charles H. Johnson in Holyoke, Mass.

Miss May E. Davison is week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Burr in New Britain.

Fred L. Avery attended the Rotary meeting in Danielson Thursday evening.

A carnival and dance for the benefit of the new uniform fund will be staged by the Knights of Columbus Boys' band at the town hall the second week in February. Members of San Jose Council No. 14, which is sponsoring the band will assist in staging the event.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland B. Jordan returned this evening from New York city where they attended the automobile show.

COLCHESTER

STATE GUARD RIFLE CLUB TO PLAN YEAR'S ACTIVITIES

The Colchester State Guard Rifle club is to hold its meeting Thursday next for the purpose of formulating plans of activity for the coming year. The local rifle club, which has 23 members, is a branch of the National Rifle association. A. T. Van Cleve, manager of the club, is making arrangements for rifle shooting contests with several other rifle clubs about the state. Challenges have recently been received from the Coast Guard Rifle club of New London and the Silver City Rifle club of Meriden. The Colchester club has a 600-yard outdoor range near Judd brook, a few miles north of the village, as well as a 50-foot indoor range in the basement of the Van Cleve drug store. Deputy Sheriff George Hoxie of Lebanon, an enthusiastic member of the club, holds the record for target practice, he having hit nine straight bullseyes with a revolver at 50 feet.

Truck Overturned

The rain which fell nearly all day Thursday was preceded by a light fall of snow in the early hours of the morning. Due to the wet, slippery condition of the roads, travel by auto proved dangerous to several motorists who were unacquainted with the curves and hills on the main highway between here and Hartford. A large truck turned over on the Ryan hill, five miles above the village and several other minor accidents were reported.

Frank Foote, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Foote, has returned from a trip to Florida and Bermuda. Mr. Foote is connected with the Eastern Dairy Co. of New Haven.

Two Injured in Accident

Miss Doris Denison, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Justin Denison of West Mystic, was painfully injured Thursday morning while standing at the side of the road waiting for the bus to carry her to her work at the local telephone exchange. Frank Pray of Noank, riding to his work on a motorcycle, did not notice Miss Denison, nor did she see him, and he ran into her, knocking her down. She was taken to Dr. P. T. McGowan's office where she was treated for bruises on her arms and face, and then was removed to her home. Mr. Pray was thrown from his motorcycle and is suffering from a badly bruised arm. The cycle was practically demolished.

Norton C. Wheeler, superintendent and secretary of the Standard Machinery Co., and Joseph Startz have returned from a business trip to New York.

Mrs. Amy Bradley, Mrs. Jennie Wolfe and Dr. Flora M. Webb spent Tuesday in Hartford.

FUNERAL

Calvin Wheeler

Funeral services for Calvin Wheeler, who died at the Lawrence-Memorial hospital, New London, after being taken there from his home in Stonington with a broken leg, were held from local funeral parlors Thursday afternoon. Burial was in the Hillard cemetery, in the Road district.

Anniversary Celebration

The R. O. O. K. celebrated the fifth anniversary of obtaining their charter with a supper in G. A. R. hall, Thursday evening. A large number of members and their friends were present. A five-piece orchestra furnished music for the evening. There was speaking and singing by the members. A very interesting talk was given by a local minister. Following this the supper of roast beef, mashed potato and turnip, cabbage salad, pickles, rolls, cake and coffee was served. Square dancing was enjoyed later. Guests were present from Westerly, Stonington, Noank and Mystic.

William Kennedy of Hope Valley was a caller in Mystic Friday.

Mrs. Jennie L. Bolton, widow of George M. Bolton, who died Thursday evening at her home, 139 Edgewood street, Hartford, was born in Bolton, Sept. 18, 1859, a daughter of Sherman P. and Jane Brown Keeney Sumner. She leaves a son, Leslie S. Bolton, and a sister, Mrs. Clair S. Hutchinson, both of Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Hayes of Manchester, David O. Fuller of Hartford, Mrs. Paul E. Clement and Miss Lavina C. Fries were in Columbia Thursday, attending the funeral of their aunt, Mrs. Kate E. Fuller.

Funeral service for Charles A. Lee of Bolton was held Wednesday afternoon at the Congregational church, Rev. Frederick C. Taylor officiating. Burial was in Bolton cemetery. The bearers were Albert M. and Thomas W. Skinner, Maxwell, Herbert C. and John B. Hutchinson and Christopher Lee.

Bolton grange, No. 47, is to hold its meeting tonight (Saturday), for installation of officers.

If advice could be made an active principle it might accomplish more good.

JEWETT CITY

BOROUGH BOARD'S SALARIES MAY BE INCREASED

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 11—At the recent meeting of the board of warden and burgesses, action was taken relative to a proposed amendment to the borough constitution. These additions are primarily in reference to the remuneration for borough officers, and provide that the warden shall receive $200 annually and each of the four burgesses $100 annually to be paid quarterly. Heretofore the board of borough government has received no pay for their services.

Dance tonight, Pachaug hall, Morey's orchestra. All rights reserved.—adv.

The ice men of the borough, as they saw their second promise melting away, Friday, were wondering if this winter is to be a duplicate of last. During the ice season of 1927 and '28, there were three separate freezes that promised a good crop, each one of which was lost in the making by just such weather as Thursday, high temperature, warm rain and strong south winds.

Engine driver Earl Frink was at the throttle of one of the big 35 hundreds the other day when Major John Coolidge went through the town riding on the firemen's seat. Earl gave his distinguished cab-mate the "high ball" with everything "in the clear" and declared at the end of the run that the young man was the "proper stuff". The borough is interested in Mr. Frink's engine driving skill because a Jewett City girl, Miss Bessie Mott, is his wife.

Finn's Sunday, 7-8.45. The Haunted House, on the Phototone.—adv.

The annual meeting of Jewett City Baptist church was held Wednesday evening. In connection with the election of officers there were very gratifying financial reports which showed the balance Jan. 1, 1929 on the right side of the ledger. Deacon John E. Phillips has been appointed by the trustees to have charge of raising the necessary funds to meet the expense of recent extensive church repairs, which have cost but little under $2,000. The officers elected were: Clerk, John E. Phillips; treasurer, Tylor O. Gilbert; collector, May Blaker; trustee for three years, J. B. Palmer, which makes the board, A. M. Brown, C. T. Armstrong and J. B. Palmer; deaconesses, Mrs. G. H. Prior, Miss Ida I. Foster and Mrs. E. M. Gray; auditor, George H. Prior.

Mrs. F. L. Kanahan entertained the members of the G. L. P. club at her home Wednesday afternoon, the gathering celebrating very pleasantly the birthday of two of the members, Mrs. Walter Marshall and Mrs. B. R. Gardner. The table decorations were in red and green and two handsome birthday cakes with lighted candles marked the places of the honored members. A delicious supper was served consisting of cold meat, stuffed potatoes, salad, celery, rolls, cake, ice cream and coffee. Other members present were Mrs. H. E. Paul, Mrs. S. R. Waters, Mrs. C. D. Wolf and Mrs. William Montgomery.

MEN SERVED THE SUPPER AT O. E. S. INSTALLATION

The officers of Faith chapter, O. E. S. were installed Thursday evening, the installing officers being past matrons of the chapter. Mrs. Isabella Blair was the installing officer, assisted by Mrs. Marie Ballou as marshal, Mrs. Sarah Hinchcliffe, chaplain; Mrs. Annie Cowan, organist; Mrs. Durfey, warden, Miss Sadie Thompson was the soloist who sang so very acceptably. The officers installed were: Worthy matron, Mrs. Louise Holmes; worthy patron, W. J. Robertson; associate matron, Mrs. Bertha Wilcox; secretary, Margery Brewster; treasurer, Mrs. Lillian Crumb; conductress, Mrs. Irene Benjamin; associate conductress, Rose Crumb; chaplain, Mrs. Marian Hill; marshal, Mrs. Della Cornell; organist, Mrs. Emma E. Gilbert; Adah, Mrs. Ellen Paul; Ruth, Mrs. Marie Ballou; Esther, Mrs. Loleta Clement; Martha, Beatrice Cathcart; Electa, Mrs. Helen Babcock; warder, Mrs. Katherine Stewart; sentinel, E. M. Gray. Mrs. Blair was presented a glass candy dish, Mrs. Holmes was given a bouquet of roses, and Mrs. Paul presented her the past matron's jewel. Mr. Robertson was presented the past patron's jewel by Mrs. Hinchcliffe. The supper was served by the men not only served but was prepared by them. A startling menu was posted on the grill-room door, and no female was allowed to enter the sacred precincts. The delectable dishes served proved the men to be proper chefs. They served Fruits from the Tree Under Snow—Broken Green Mountains dressed—Six of the Best Angels in Town—Beauty Cream and Internal lotions. All of the above pain eradicators had been procured from the leading orchards, poultry yards, dairies, paper, grist and saw mills in the town. All water used in the preparation of the above lotions was secured from a "Sarah desert," and found not to contain more than one-half of one hundred per cent. Raymond F. Cheney was chairman of this committee and his chef was William Perry, several other men assisting in the arrangements. There were seventy-five present to enjoy the evening.

The Torch of Truth, which was brought to Jewett City last week from Plainfield was carried by runners to the Norwich Y. M. C. A. Friday evening. Secretary Hill came from Danielson accompanied by Harold Keech, Sheldon Ennis, James and George Ingalls, Arthur Tripp, Jr., ran with the Torch as far as The Bend in Lisbon, automobiles following, carrying the other runners. They were Earl Robinson, Oliver Carter, Chester and Clarence Sweet, Donald Buckingham, Edward and Walter Richardson, Arthur Gray, Carter and Thomas Ford, William Brewster, Arthur Milliard, Lawrence Shackleton and Ray Bugbee.

Mrs. A. M. Brown is in charge of the Backus hospital auxiliary membership drive in this vicinity. She will be assisted by Mrs. E. A. Faust, Miss S. L. Adams and Mrs. E. H. Hiscox.

Health Officer G. H. Jennings has had reported to him twenty-six cases of influenza in the town, most of them mild cases.

Thirty four years ago today, according to the Jewett City news in The Bulletin:

"Your correspondent had the pleasure of spending an hour with Quartermaster Arthur M. Brown of the steam yacht Eleanor. The call was most profitable and interesting and opportunity was given to see all the valuable and unique articles which Mr. Brown had collected from the different foreign ports at which the yacht had called. There were silk hand embroidered handkerchiefs from China and Japan, a sample of pipes from both these nations, together with a collection of native puzzles from the Orient. A photograph taken of the yacht and his crew in the harbor of Yokahama, Japan was of much interest. The exhibition of canes represent the native wood and workmanship of nearly every civilized country on the globe with the exception of Africa and Australia. One visitor was presented a valuable stick of Indian palm, purchased by the donor at Valparaiso, Chile. The item adds: "These curiosities, taken with the valuable stock of information, which with the aid of a eye and a retentive memory, the young man has accumulated, will prove an invaluable acquisition."

STONINGTON

CORONER E. G. McKAY INVESTIGATES FATALITY

Coroner Edward G. McKay of Norwich held a hearing at the town court room in Stonington Wednesday afternoon and took evidence in relation to the death of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel T. IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Three fires were reported in the Bulletin of fifty years ago this week, one doing a damage of approximately $5,000, while another was witnessed by about 1,500 people. A number of organizations, clubs and a fire company either elected or installed their officers for the ensuing year that week. Other interesting extracts taken from the files of that week comprise the following:

Monday, Jan. 6, 1879—At the regular quarterly meeting of the "Norwich Temperance Reform club" on Saturday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing quarter: President, Joseph Mitchell; vice presidents, John L. Denison, W. A. Aiken, L. P. Blackford, C. J. King, George H. Martin, Asabel Tanner, Nathan Standish, R. C. Sherman, Stephen Crane; treasurer, George W. Kies; secretary, James Drummond; ways and means, Hugh Montgomery, Asabel Tanner, W. A. Aiken; chaplain, Rev. L. P. Blackstone.

The Central M. E. church was crowded last night to its capacity for a missionary concert, which was exceedingly interesting. Declamations, dialogues and singing composed the principal part of the evening's exercises.

One of the enterprising ice men has already cut and stored about 3,000 tons of ice and will probably be able to fill his houses before the present crop of ice has disappeared.

Hundreds of sleighs were in circulation in the city Saturday and yesterday and the West Side hill was covered with a multitude of coasters on Saturday afternoon and evening.

Tuesday, Jan. 7, 1879—At a meeting of Uncas lodge, I. O. O. F., the following officers were installed by District Deputy G. M. P. W. Bruce: Hugh King, N. G.; Henry E. Griswold, V. G.; George A. Underwood, secretary; Willis W. Clark, per. secretary; Edwin A. Fitch, treasurer; George Crosbie, warden; E. B. Worthington, conductor; James W. Andrews, R. S. N. G.; Frank E. Greene, L. S. N. G.; William B. Hovey, R. S. V. G.; E. C. Cook, L. S. V. G.; Eli H. Rogers, I. G.; John McNickle, O. G.; George H. Griswold, R. S. S.; Joseph E. Carpenter, L. S. S.; James P. Miner, chaplain; John W. Lewis, organist.

The Sunday school connected with the Long Society Congregational church, Preston, held their annual Christmas and New Year's concert on Sunday evening, Jan. 5th. The subject was "Following the Star."

An alarm of fire struck from Box 16 at about 9 o'clock last evening packed about 1,500 people, three or four hose carriages, a truck carriage and several hacks on post office hill at the conflagration of some silk handkerchiefs in the show window of Charles A. Rathbone's hat store.

The union meeting of the Broadway, Park and Second Congregational churches last evening was at the Second church and was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Bacon. Fervent prayer was offered for the recovery of Deacon B. W. Tompkins.

Wednesday, Jan. 8, 1879—A fire broke out in the second floor of the building at 105 Main street at about 4.30 o'clock yesterday morning. It was first discovered by Officer Grant, who at once sounded the alarm from Box 16. The total damage by fire and water will not exceed $5,000.

Music for the third annual reception of Palmyra, No. 3, I. O. O. F., will be furnished by Tubba's brass and Miller's quadrille bands, and honest Gurdon will prompt.

The sixth entertainment in the Otis library lecture course will be furnished by the Hon. Albert S. Bolles, who will speak this evening on the subject of American History.

Father Coleman, who for a long time has been assistant pastor at St. Mary's church, has removed to New Haven, where he becomes assistant pastor under Father Sheffrey.

Thursday, Jan. 9, 1879—Phillip Phillips, the singer, sang in the Central M. E. church to a large audience last evening. His selections were mostly of the old time sacred church hymns and were rendered with vigor and effect.

At the annual meeting of the Independent Hose company, No. 4, last evening, the following officers were elected: Foreman, John P. Murphy; first assistant, John Donahue; second assistant, James B. Ward; secretary, R. G. Collins; treasurer, M. F. Kane; fire police, Michael Murphy, Timothy Leahy; standing committee, James Connell, P. A. Sheridan and John Backus. Messrs. Murphy and Donahue have been re-elected to their offices six successive terms.

The Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History

—a Six in the price range of the four!

represents 4 years of Development and over a Million miles of Testing

Years ago, the Chevrolet Motor Company designed and built its first experimental six-cylinder motor. This far-sighted step was taken because Chevrolet engineers knew that the six-cylinder motor is inherently the most perfectly balanced motor—the ideal power plant to meet the growing public demand for greater reserve power, faster get-away and, above all—smooth, quiet performance.

During the last four years, over a hundred six-cylinder motors were built by Chevrolet engineers and tested on the General Motors Proving Ground.

Day and night, through winter's cold and summer's heat, the incessant testing went on—until the present motor was developed and finally pronounced correct.

At the same time other Chevrolet engineers were perfecting other parts of the chassis. And another great automotive organization—the Fisher Body Corporation—was devoting its gigantic resources to the creation of the finest, sturdiest and most beautiful bodies ever offered on a low-priced automobile.

As a result, the Outstanding Chevrolet offers an order of well-balanced excellence—a combination of performance, comfort, beauty and handling ease that is truly remarkable—with a fuel-economy of better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

DANIELSON

THREE INJURED WHEN CAR SKIDS ON BROOKLYN ROAD

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 11—A big Cadillac sedan was wrecked and three injured this morning when the machine skidded on the state highway near the county jail property in Brooklyn and crashed into a pole. George Bonner of Attleboro, Mass., was operating it at the time of the accident. It was stated that the car skidded when Bonner applied the brakes to avoid hitting another car that he was under the impression was going to turn into the grounds fronting the jail. The men injured were hurt when the car tried to wrap itself around a pole at the side of the highway as it skidded out of its straight course.

The car is owned by Samuel M. Shepe of Attleboro. Bonner being employed as his chauffeur. Judge Ralph C. Latest, Attleboro, riding on the side of the car that hit the pole, sustained a discolored eye, and Ex-Mayor Harvey E. Clap of Attleboro a dislocated shoulder. While Mr. Clap's injuries were not regarded as serious, Dr. C. H. Sauvein of Dayville who looked the injured men over, advised Mr. Clap to go to the Day Kimball hospital for 24 hours for observation. State Officer James Carmody took statements of the occupants of the car as to how the accident came to happen.

Good Children Here.

A report by Supt. W. E. Parker shows that a goodly number of pupils in the schools of Killingly and Brooklyn never think of playing hookey or resorting to any subterfuge to escape their studies. In evidence of this the information is offered that 228 pupils in the high and graded schools of Killingly and the graded schools of Brooklyn had perfect attendance records for the fall term, ending just before Christmas time. Of this number 172 are students in the junior and senior high school here, 66 are in the graded schools of Killingly and 56 in the schools of Brooklyn.

There is no great exodus from this section to Florida this winter. The region is—for those who have traveled south for years—have long since gone to the land of sunshine and winter warmth, but the inspiration that drew many to the southland three or four years ago is lacking. Various things appeared to have contributed to this. General business is not so good as it was and cash not so plentiful. The land boom bubble has burst, with losses that are partly shared in Danielson and vicinity. A hurricane or two thrown in for good measure, has taken away a great deal of the glamour that the prospect of a Florida seat has had for many eastern Connecticut people a few short years ago. And there is another consideration—the weather has not been so terrible this winter. March 1, is but seven weeks away.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT WESTFIELD CHURCH MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 11—The attendance at evening at the Church Family and annual meeting of the Congregational church was good. A supper was served at 6:30 by the Ladies' Benevolent society and following that there was a social evening preceding the annual business meeting. During the meeting reports were given by the pastor, Rev. Harold W. Gaylord, who reviewed the activities and the accomplishments of the year ago by officers, committees and representatives of church organizations.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Clerk, Miss Marion E. Chedar; treasurer, Robert M. Carter; assessor, Arthur F. Hughes; deacons, A. M. Thompson; deacons, E. Guild, Thomas A. Beckett; Mrs. T. E. Hammett, Miss L. Fellows; standing committees from the church, Judge Sabin S. Chapman, Attorney Harry E. Back, Burton Higgins, Mrs. W. F. Bidwell, Agnes M. Paine, Miss Mary E. Fitzgerald, Charles M. Smith, Miss Louise Gibson, Miss Edith L. Fuller, Mrs. E. Everett, from the congregation, Louis W. Davis, L. Edwin Hill, Mrs. E. Hutchinson, Mrs. A. Putnam, Mrs. T. E. Hammett, George W. Danielson, Alex. S. Jacobs resigned his collectorship after seven years of efficient service in that position to be succeeded by Arthur F. Thomas. E. Beckett elected a member to fill a vacancy caused by the death of George E. Danielson. The annual reports showed the membership to be 374.

Two Hurt Near Town Farm.

Grand Lodge of North street and Danielson Street, were considerably damaged this afternoon when the car they were driving collided with Miss Logee operating the car on the state highway near Danielson place, north of the town farm, the Danielson-Putnam state road. Miss Brayer was attempting to pass a truck. Miss Logee was brought to the office of Dr. F. Todd in Danielson and treated for a number of small cuts. She also sustained a number of bruises and was injured by being thrown against the steering wheel. Mr. Logee was not badly hurt. The car, which is very considerably damaged, was towed to a garage at Dayville Four Corners.

SUGGEST PROTEST TO PUBLIC UTILITIES COM.

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 11—Other means to get relief having failed, the suggestion was heard here today that business business and manufacturing interests protest to the public utilities commission over the almost continual belatedness of the morning boat train, carrying the most important incoming mails of the day for this territory. The boat train today is in effect little more than a freight train. Being an hour late in the morning is not at all unusual and frequently it is even further behind schedule than that. Delays in its arrival here means delay in the delivery of the mails, and those delays in not a few instances are costing business people money losses. Danielson seeks a reasonably punctual service. It feels it is entitled to this. It feels that the New Haven road could give it such dependable service if it would.

Dr. Hugh Campbell of Norwich will be in Danielson Tuesday morning to hold a monthly chest clinic at the health station in the town hall building.

Commencing January 12, our retail store will be open Saturday afternoons. Powdrell and Alexander.—adv.

Chairman W. E. Parker of Danielson chapter of the American Red Cross today received an honor flag from national headquarters in recognition of the local chapter having exceeded its quota in a recent drive.

The U. S. Civil service commission has announced an examination to be held in Danielson to fill four vacancies, at $1200 or $1260 a year, in government offices at Hartford and New Haven. The examinations will be open to men and women between 18 and 50 years of age who are citizens of the United States. Bernard R. Casey, at the Danielson postoffice, has complete information about the examinations.

Miss Lillian E. Bailey, Broad street, as president of the Connecticut department, Woman's Relief corps, has been in Torrington, Waterbury and Guilford this week at installations and other ceremonials of corps.

Members of the Men's club of the Methodist Episcopal church are to go to Moosup Monday evening to be the guests of the men's club of the Moosup Methodist Episcopal church.

Tuesday afternoon members of the Ladies' Prayer league are to meet with Mrs. Frank T. Preston of Broad street.

Many Tax Delinquents.

The appearances are this week end that close to 1,000 citizens of the town of Killingly are going to fail to pay their personal tax assessments on time and that means that each of them will pay $3 instead of $2, for all must pay eventually. This morning there were 1285 persons yet to pay the tax.

A mass meeting for men under the auspices of the Laymen's league is to be held at the Nazerene church Sunday afternoon.

Recently elected officers of Dorcas Rebekah lodge were installed at a meeting in Odd Fellows' hall this evening.

Miss Laura M. Pike, master of Brooklyn grange, and Mrs. Susie G. Williams, secretary of Quinebaug Pomona grange, have been in Bridgeport this week attending sessions of the state grange.

There was attendance today from this section at the quarterly meeting of Windham county dairymen at Grange hall in Hampton.

The Chapman Tech basketball team of New London came here this evening to play the K. H. S. team at the high school gymnasium, as detailed on the sports page this morning.

Over the Rhode Island line at Hopkins Mills, S. A. Winsor has butchered two hogs that weighed a total of 1028 pounds.

A meeting to consider relationship between the South Killingly Congregational church and the Westfield Congregational church of Danielson is scheduled to be held at South Killingly the coming week.

PUTNAM

TWO CASES DISPOSED OF AT SUPERIOR COURT SESSION

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 11—The disposal of two cases and preparing the jury panel for future hearings occupied the greater portion of time allotted to the superior court, criminal session, which convened at Putnam today. Judge Newell Jennings was on the bench and called court to session at 11 o'clock. The first case on the assignment list was that of Andrew H. Lowe of Woodstock, charged with violation of the motor vehicle laws and operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. Lowe pleaded guilty and received a sentence of six months in the county jail at Brooklyn.

John Chraszcz of Oak street, Putnam, was arraigned before Judge Jennings, charged with violation of the motor vehicle laws. He pleaded not guilty to the charge and a lengthy appeal procedure took place between State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford and counsel for the defense, Attorney E. C. Morse of this city, before Chrasszcz was found guilty and a fine of $100 and costs imposed. Attorney Morse held that the defendant was of a good character nature and should be dealt with accordingly. The judge considered Mr. Morse's plea and imposed out the minimum sentence.

Light on Probation.

A pathetic scene came when Kenneth Light of Ring street, was arraigned before court on a charge of theft of an automobile. Light, but seventeen years of age admitted his guilt to the court, but denied he possessed any criminal intentions when he took the vehicle. Light has been of a roving nature for some time, and has always been in quest of adventure of a healthful sort but has never taken a malicious attitude toward anything since he commenced his wanderings, according to a review of his case by Attorney Bradford.

He was arrested in Stratford, Conn., last July, when making his way to New York in an automobile alleged to have been stolen by him in Plainfield. He also pleaded guilty to a charge of taking an automobile from Providence, a few days previous and turning it over to Leonard Wolfenden of Pomfret. This vehicle was later rescued by the state police and returned to its rightful owner.

In presenting his case to the court State's Attorney Bradford told of the wanderings of the boy, which are adjudged to be remarkable for his age. Judge Jennings listened with eagel interest to the exploits of Light, related by the counsel for the state. When told of the manner in which Light's personality and ambitions interested Joseph McCoy of New York city, well known boys leader of the metropolis, and of the way Light had made his way to South America twice, crossed the continent to Oregon, where he obtained employment on a cattle ranch through recommendations furnished him by the New York lover of boys, and then returned to his home in this city, only to fall into the hands of the police, Judge Jennings became amazed and suspended the reformatory sentence required by the state placing him in charge of Mr. McCoy, leader of the Big Brother association of New York. Under the rules of his probation, Light will be in the direct care of Mr. McCoy, for a period of four to six months, and during that time will work on a boy's dairy farm maintained by the association. At the end of this period Light will be given an opportunity to seek employment and reimburse his parents for the expense they encountered because of his activities, according to a decision handed down by Judge Jennings.

Criminal proceedings against Philip Hebert of Plainfield, were began this morning in superior court here, when the state drew from the panel a jury and prepared for the opening of the case on Monday morning at Putnam.

Hebert is charged with violation of the prohibition act. It is alleged by the state that on the 24th day of October 1928 he did sell to Adolor Blanchard of Voluntown a half pint of liquor, besides giving Blanchard evidence of the liquor kept within his establishment. Hebert entered a plea of not guilty. He is represented by Attorney's William A. King of Willimantic, Thomas Shields of Norwich and Harry E. Back of Danielson. Due to the fact that the case will require several hours for the presentation of evidence, and the necessary time was not available today, Judge Jennings ordered that court be adjourned until Monday morning, Jan. 14, at 10 o'clock.

NO TRACE OF INFLUENZA YET SEEN IN THE CITY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 11—City Health Officer Peter A. Gardner stated this morning that investigations of the city health department have as yet failed to disclosed any trace of influenza being present among residents of the city. Many Putnam people are stricken with severe colds and grippe, but as yet have displayed no symptoms of the disease now raging in this country. During the past week several rumors have sprung up, regarding the existence of a case of the dreaded flu. The health department of the city in its effort to prevent outbreaks of this kind checked the stories immediately, but found no cause for, or truth to the rumors.

The health report of this week indicates a decrease in other communicable diseases in the city, which is due to the efficient manner in which Putnam residents are cooperating with the health officials to stamp out diseases of this kind.

Infants' Parents Still Missing.

Officers of the Danielson state police barracks, who under Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart are attempting to locate the parents of the six weeks old male child deserted at the home of E. S. Backus of Thompson Wednesday evening. The state police are somewhat handicapped in their efforts to trace the baby's parents, since, they (the parents) so ably concealed all marks of identification. There is every hope that the state officers will be fruitful in their endeavor to locate the parents of the youngster, since their combined efforts with the local police brought about the identity of the mother of the baby abandoned a few weeks ago at the Gothereau home in this city.

The baby remained at the Day Kimball hospital today in a seemingly satisfied manner. The boy is in good health and partakes of food readily.

Almost Another Air Smash.

Another air tragedy, similar to the fatal flight of Ned Carrington in Union last Saturday evening was narrowly averted Thursday evening when Lieut. Charles L. Wright, U. S. air mail pilot, brought his plane safely to earth at Webster airport after experiencing engine trouble over the hills of Woodstock.

Lieut. Wright was flying a Curtiss plane, designed for mail carrying. Leaving East Boston airport, as did his associate flyer Carrington, he encountered severe sleet and rain storms over Woodstock and Union. Remembering the fate of Carrington Lieut. Wright turned his plane and flew in the direction of Webster. He dropped a giant flare, attached to a minute parachute. The flare impressed hundreds who heard the drone of the engine, that the plane had burst into flames. Lieut. Wright hovered above the town of Webster for several minutes before he could detect the emergency landing field, against the dark earth. After locating the field he made a safe landing. Four sacks of mail were taken from the plane and were placed aboard an automobile and taken to Worcester under the direction of the aviator.

During the hours of Thursday, a vigilance was maintained over Lieut. Wright's plane, until he returned to Webster today to repair the engine trouble and took off for East Boston.

Captain Jarvis of the Putnam police has given notice of the presence of a group of young ladies posing as college students, earning the tuition by profits derived from the sale of magazines. The young ladies came to Putnam from Washington in a large sedan. They circulated among the business houses of the city attempting to sell their magazines, and when merchants refused to recognize them, they left the store passing insulting remarks. Captain Jarvis said this morning that he had checked up complaints and learned that although the girls were bold and brazen and most of all unladylike, they all kept within the law.

The drive of the Putnam police to round up all intoxicated persons about the streets drew another victim into police court this morning. Officer Benoni Durand arrested Joe Perry on Thursday afternoon, following a slight tussle with the intoxicated man, whose reputation is well known to strong men enthusiasts. Perry pleaded guilty to the charge and received a suspended fine and paid $1.00 actual costs. Unlike his predecessors, Perry wished no prolonged sentence in the county jail, but was satisfied with the original sentence of the court.

At a meeting of the Mizpah Rebekah lodge, I. O. O. F., held last evening in Odd Fellows' hall the newly elected officers were installed as follows: Noble grand, Mrs. Daisy P. Chase; vice grand, Mrs. Lillian Andrews; secretary, Mrs. Ardelle Chapman; treasurer, Miss Mildred Torrey; conductor, Mrs. Lillian McGarry; warden, Mrs. Ellen Clemens; R. S. N. G., Mrs. Almira Manson; L. S. N. G., Mrs. Sadie Adams; R. S. V. G., Mrs. Clara Dillis; L. S. V. G., Miss Lillian Janino; chaplain, Miss Ida Whitman; inside guard, Mrs. Florence Larrow; outside guard, Mrs. Sarah Gifford.

The retiring noble grand, Miss Chrystobel Gifford was presented with a jewel by the members of the organization, and the retiring district deputy, Mrs. Lena Smith was given a presentation by the members of the lodge.

J. Herbert Smith of Sunnyside avenue, who for the past few days has been seriously ill at his home with pneumonia, was somewhat improved in his condition today.

William E. Jackson of Willimantic was in this city today on business.

The weatherman repeated his act of Thursday, today, when the mercury attained a mark of 54.

Reports from the rural districts are that automobile travelling is most difficult because of the rutted condition of the roads, due to the recent rains and freezing.

The early ice crop which is anticipated by ice dealers in this vicinity, was threatened today by the sudden warm wave which has prevailed for the past 24 hours. Although the ice on the ponds has reached a thickness of 7 inches in some places, skim coats of water appeared today.

WESTERLY

PAWCATUCK WIFE-BEATER SENTENCED TO JAIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 11—In Stonington town court on Friday morning John Jordan of Stillman avenue, Pawcatuck, found guilty of a breach of the peace in the beating of his wife, Rose Turano, was sentenced to 20 days in the county jail at New London. He pleaded not guilty and sought to secure a bondsman, but was unsuccessful, so was taken to New London. Costs were laid in the sum of $15. He was taken into custody on complaint of his wife Thursday night by Officers Adin R. Sheldon and C. Wilson Brown.

Liquor Case Continued

Before Judge Oliver H. Williams Friday in the Third District court in the case of State, vs. William Geretson and Thomas Bloomer, alleged proprietors of the Sea View Filling station on the Boston Post road, a mile and a third east of Charlestown, raided by Sheriff Mitchell and Deputies Bull, Edwards and Constable Maxwell last Saturday, Attorney Clarence E. Roche appeared for defendants. Claim was made by the attorney for the liquors and vessels and the case was continued two weeks for trial. The return of the warrant showed 334 bottles of near-beer, one quart of hi and dry gin and a bottle partly filled with whiskey seized; 20 gallons of near beer found brewing in the cellar, were poured out.

Other criminal case was State, T. E. Brown, complainant, vs. Herbert B. Tregaskis, continued one month.

In the civil docket the case of William Segar and Co. vs. Raymond Barber of Avondale was heard. The respondent testified to having worked the past several months as a carpenter averaging $44 a week, but as he had other bills to pay he could not carry out the court order of payment of $1.50 weekly. After hearing a new court order was made that he pay $1.50 weekly, beginning April 1st next.

In Keller-Kohn Co. vs. Katherine P. Scott, on proof of claim a decision for $76.13 and costs was given the plaintiff. In the cases of Morris Plan Co. of R. I., vs. Rose Durfee and Frank S. Remington Co., Inc., vs. Albert S. Angel, there being no appearances both were declared defaulted and passed for proof of claim.

Gavitt Furniture Co. vs. Agnes C. and Arthur E. Fraser, continued one week.

JAMES E. DOWD'S FUNERAL LARGELY ATTENDED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Jan. 11—Funeral services Friday morning for James E. Dowd, well known golf pro and instructor at Winnapaug Golf Links were largely attended by relatives and friends. The funeral was held at 8:30 o'clock from his home, 18 Chester avenue. A high mass of requiem was celebrated at 9 o'clock at the Church of the Immaculate Conception by Rev. J. F. Vincent, S. M. During the service E. Charles St. Onge sang "Teach Me to Pray" and Martin H. Spellman sang "Thy Will Be Done." Burial was at St. Michael's new cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Fr. Vincent. The bearers were Edward J. Fenelon, Jr., Geoffrey L. Moore, Edward J. Butler, James W. McCormick, C. Leo Higgins and Frank G. Ahern. The funeral was attended by large delegations from Westerly lodge, No. 678, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, and Narragansett council, No. 21, Knights of Columbus of Westerly. The flag on the pole at Westerly high school was at half mast Friday morning out of respect to the memory of Mr. Dowd, a W. H. S. graduate.

UNION

TRAGEDY OF PLANE CRASH AND AIR MAIL PILOT'S DEATH

The account of the catastrophe here Saturday night, January 5, has been reported to various daily papers with varying degrees of accuracy. These are a few of the events as they appeared to anxious watchers of the Boston to New York mail plane on that eventful night. The plane was observed by inmates of various homes in this community as it passed the beacon light on the southern slope of Lead Mine Hill, as usual on its nightly trip to Hartford. The next beacon on the route is at Tolland. When the plane passed the beacon on Lead Mine Hill, its lights were showing clearly, also the beacon lights were clear and functioning well, as they did all the night. Soon after the plane had passed, it was observed turning back on its course and began to circle, first over the northern part of Ashford in which the beacon is located, and then over the line into the southern part of Union. Soon the lights on the plane grew fainter, till observers could see only one, and then that disappeared. From then on, the plane could be heard circling in the darkness, sometimes over one farm and then over another, and seemingly running very near the earth. At that time there was no fog near the ground. These movements lasted only a few minutes till the plane made a last loop over the north end of Lead Mine Hill, heading northwest, and crashed in the Lawson woods near the base of the north-east side of Bald Hill.

A flare was seen, the crash was heard, and the plane burst into flames almost in the same instant. Naturally the watchers who lived nearest and were good runners were first to arrive to try to help. Stephen Veigaska, Jr., and Michael Sedlak were first to reach the burning plane. Their fathers were soon there, with Michael's brother John and and Philip Hery and his son, Joseph. Others soon arrived, including Everett and John Burrill, sons of Justin Burrill, keeper of the beacon light.

It was Michael Sedlak and the elder Veigaska, who rescued the maimed body of Lieut. Edward Campbell Carrington, 24, from the burning ruins of the plane, where it had been pinned when the plane crashed into the trees. While the men were doing the two-man lift of this task, Michael's brother, John Sedlak, held the jacket of the elder man, (Veigaska) in front of their faces to shield them from the flames. Michael used his own jacket to extinguish the flames on the body of Pilot Carrington. The father of Michael, John Sedlak, worked to save the mail and gold leaf although some of the mail was burned. Philip Hery also helped the police to pack the mail for transportation to Stafford. The Burrill brothers, Everett and John, did all they could to help and returned to the beacon to send a report of the disaster as quickly as possible.

The father of Pilot Carrington was at the office of the Union town clerk Sunday morning. He expressed his gratitude and appreciation to the people of this community for what they did to try to help his son. The body of the pilot was taken Sunday to his home in Stamford.

At Stamford, funeral services for Lieutenant Carrington, were held Tuesday morning at St. John's Episcopal church. Only the family, a few friends and a delegation of air mail pilots were present. A squadron of planes circled above Woodlawn cemetery during the committal service. Lieutenant Carrington's father, Campbell Carrington, New York lawyer and financier, brought the body to Stamford, from Stafford Springs Sunday night.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

MOOSEHEART LEGION

Women of Mooseheart Legion, No. 124, held their regular meeting Thursday evening with Senior Regent Minnie Smith, presiding, at the short business meeting.

After the meeting there was installation of officers. The hall was filled with invited guests.

Past Regent Vera Sterry was grand installing officer and Past Regent Teresa Watters was grand installing guide.

Gladys Cote and Doris Cote, two members of the Mooseheart Junior legion, No. 92, led the degree team which consisted of the following legionnaires: Elsie Caughey, Mrs. Herbert Rich, Mary Hunter, Annabel Emback, Rose Carter and Flora Gilchrist, and the following officers were installed: Past regent, Minnie Smith; senior regent, Emma Beaver; junior regent, Marie LeValle; chaplain, Irene Burns; recorder, Ethel Hoelck; treasurer, Mary Edwards; guide, Teresa Watters; assistant guide, Martha Wunderlich; sentinel, Margaret Comire; argus, Nellie Dorr; pianist, Florence Beresford. Remarks were made by Past Regent Mary Geer, Senior Regent Gertrude Finnegan, Junior Regent Elizabeth Nicholas of New London chapter. Dictator Bernard Wunderlich and Past Regent Alida Boyens and all were unanimous in their praise of the two Junior legion members who put the degree work on so efficiently. The entire assembly gave them a rising vote of thanks. They certainly are a credit to Norwich chapter and lodge.

There were remarks also from the newly installed senior regent who asked the co-operation of the brothers. She also asked the members to help each other now, and to give the flowers and kind words now when we can appreciate them and not after we are dead.

The installing officers and the new officers wore all white. The Mooseheart Junior legion members wore white satin dresses with red satin capes and bad belts and ties. The legionnaires in the degree team wore white satin skirts, red satin coats and every one taking part wore white shoes and stockings.

After the installation, the members of Mooseheart Junior legion went to a restaurant where covers were laid for thirty-three and where a very excellent turkey supper with all the fixings was served.

MOOSE

At the regular meeting of Norwich lodge in Moose home Friday evening a committee was appointed by the dictator to raise funds for putting on an addition to the home, this to include a cloak room and kitchen, also two large rooms downstairs. The committee is Walter Blair, chairman, Joe Tomaino, Herbert Coombs, Cash Quinley, and John Vacher. The committee has engaged some novelty stunts from Newtonville to appear before the public and it is hoped a good sum will be realized in this way.

ODD FELLOWS

The largest attendance of the season witnessed the installation of officers of Shetucket lodge, No. 27, at their meeting in Odd Fellows hall on Tuesday evening. District Deputy Grand Master Irving M. Thornton of Jewett City and his accompanying staff officiated in a most impressive manner. The officers installed are:

Noble grand, James E. Wood; vice grand, Charles R. Browning; recording secretary, S. Howard Bishop; financial secretary, Luther G. Andrews; treasurer, Edward F. Kinney; warden, Charles Rogers; conductor, Alvin D. Lewis; right supporter noble grand, Louis F. Waters; left supporter noble grand, Edward H. Smith; right supporter vice grand, A. A. Guile; left supporter vice grand, Brother Staubley; right scene supporter, James Blair; left scene supporter, F. Q. Smith; chaplain, Henry Tubbs; inside guardian, Alex Finlayson; outside guardian, Robert Donohue; acting past grand, Lewis Aldrich.

Previous to the meeting a delicious supper was served by the entertainment committee under Brother Charles Browning, Mrs. D. E. Smith and Mrs. William Walker.

Those on the district deputy's staff were: District Deputy Grand Warden Walter A. Hyde, District Deputy Recording Secretary and Financial Secretary Adelbert A. Babcock, District Deputy Treasurer Luther G. Andrews, District Deputy Marshal Frank A. Mell and District Deputy Inside Guardian William J. Robertson, Jr.

The officers of Palmyra Encampment, No. 3, were installed Thursday evening at Odd Fellows hall, by District Deputy Grand Patriarch Edward F. Welch and suite of New London.

Grand Junior Warden August H. Simonson of South Manchester, together with Grand Outside Sentinel Bertis H. Dunbar of New London, paid an official visit to this meeting, and there were also present many brethren from Hartford, South Manchester, New London and Willimantic.

The officers installed are: Chief Patriarch, William H. Hopkins; senior warden, Gene Wood; high priest, E. H. Smith; recording scribe, John F. Amburn; financial scribe, James H. Smith; treasurer, E. F. Kinney; junior warden, Clarence DeWolfe; guide, John F. McNeely; first watch, Fred V. Amburn; second watch, Paul Brumme; third watch, D. E. Smith; fourth watch, Louis F. Waters; inside sentinel, L. G. Andrews; outside sentinel, F. Q. Smith.

After the installation interesting talks were made by grand officers regarding the Encampment branch of the order. Remarks were also made by many of the visiting brothers.

A delightful menu was served previous to the meeting by the entertainment committee assisted by Mrs. Herbert Dow, Mrs. William Walker, Mrs. D. E. Smith and Mrs. Charles Browning.

Those assisting the district deputy grand patriarch were, Deputy Grand High Priest Dick Woodworth, Deputy Grand Senior Warden Harris Dunbar, Deputy Grand Junior Warden Andrew Morris, Deputy Grand Recording Scribe Frank Smith, Deputy Grand Financial Scribe Albert Beckwith, Deputy Grand Treasurer Raymond Darrow and Deputy Grand Inside Sentinel Rufus Church.

EASTERN STAR.

Past matrons of Sachem chapter, No. 57, O. E. S., entertained 50 members of the Past Matrons' association at the Masonic temple Wednesday afternoon. At one o'clock a dinner was served under the direction of a committee headed by Past Matron D. Louisa Atterbury. The menu was as follows: Tomato bisque, roast pork, mashed potatoes, mashed turnips, cabbage salad, apple sauce, rolls, apple pie, coffee.

The business session followed and was presided over by Mrs. Charlotte Josph of Ruth chapter, No. 44, Stonington. Reports of the various officers were heard. Eight past matrons were initiated into the association and a brief talk was given by Mrs. Frances A. Geer, who spoke of the grand chapter convention at Denver last July. Bridge followed the business session.

The next meeting will be held in New London in March. Mrs. Lila Saunders, past matron of Sachem chapter, was a chairman of the committee in charge of the arrangements for the local meeting.

I. O. B. B. AUXILIARY.

Rose of New England auxiliary, No. 40, Independent Order, B'nai Brith, held a regular business meeting Thursday evening at their rooms on Shetucket street. Usual proceedures were followed by elaborate plans for the installation and banquet on the 27th of this month, at which there will be present several prominent speakers. Special committees were formed for active work planned for the coming year. There will be held a Colonial tea and d

THE FENN BILL.

It has taken a long time to get the house of representatives in congress to do its duty. Throughout this decade it has been unwilling to agree upon a reapportionment of the house membership in accordance with the last census. The fact that the Constitution requires it has made no difference. There has been defiance of that provision because certain states, which would experience a loss of representation because of the population changes have stood in the way of action.

Pushed on to its duty, the house has finally accepted the bill that bears the name of Congressman Fenn of this state and which, while it makes no changes under the last census, is a declaration of the method that shall be followed following the disclosure of the result of the 1930 census.

The house has grown to such a size that it is desired to restrict the membership to 435. Acceptance of that plan has not been easy to obtain. Some states it is estimated will lose from one to three members. Others will gain from one to six. Connecticut is included amongst those adding one, but with the approval by the senate there will be overcome the disgraceful spectacle of a branch of the United States congress refusing to comply with a constitutional provision. It doesn't, of course, overcome the fact that previous congresses have failed to act but it means that the 70th congress cannot be charged with having failed to do its duty.

Set aside from fixing the plan to be followed next time, the bill has taken into consideration the possibility of such refusals in the future and provided that in case congress fails to make reapportionments as it should the duty will fall upon the secretary of commerce. Had that provision existed early in this decade there would have been no such delay as has been experienced, and the idea of anticipating and guarding against any repetition in the future is a wise one.

With the house giving its sanction to a change which affects itself, and a reasonable measure being produced, the approval of the senate ought not to be withheld.

ROCKEFELLER VS. STEWART.

Some months ago when the oil scandals were under investigation and H. F. Stewart, chairman of the Standard Oil company of Indiana was under fire in connection with them, developments reached the point where John D. Rockefeller, as a minority stockholder in that company expressed his opposition to the Stewart tactics, obtained the latter's agreement to resign from the chairmanship if he wished it and later made such a request.

Mr. Stewart did not resign. Although Mr. Stewart was found not guilty in a suit growing out of the oil dealings there has been a demand that he retire from the oil company. Mr. Rockefeller has felt that he could not tolerate one engaged in such activities as the hearings disclosed, and he has resented the refusal of Mr. Stewart to comply with his promise.

That there is now staged a fight to see who will be victorious, Mr. Rockefeller in obtaining the support of a sufficient number of stockholders to prevent the chairman's reelection, or Mr. Stewart in his efforts to succeed himself as chairman of the board of directors of the big oil company.

Sympathy is sought because it is believed that the policy sanctioned by Mr. Stewart reflects upon the company. When it was disclosed, there was an immediate inquiry as to what Mr. Rockefeller's attitude was going to be. As soon as he had acquainted himself with the facts he was not long in acting, but it was apparent that his holdings were so small that he could do nothing singlehanded. That he would be able to influence much support was expected. Even now it is a case of swinging a majority vote with the belief held that Mr. Rockefeller could not persist if he did not feel certain that he would be successful. Whether he is or not, there will be a test of the sentiment of the stockholders of the company which will indicate the Rockefeller attitude as well as the sentiment of the others. One thing has been made plain and that is that the oil company was not subject to the Rockefeller influences because of that family's holdings.

LOOKING AHEAD.

The democrats of the house of representatives at Washington have created a new leader. He is Congressman Rayburn of Texas and apparently he takes his new office seriously for he has written to Governor Roosevelt of New York congratulating him upon his election and expressing his views as to what the party should do in order to recover from its ills.

He wrote to Governor Roosevelt as he might write to anyone else, but possibly with the idea that he should take hold of the reins of the party inasmuch as he was the one who nominated Alfred E. Smith, the one who took off his coat to aid him and the one who got himself into an important office by so doing.

The inference is that the congressman looks upon the governor as the party leader of the future and calls for a housecleaning to the extent of removing from the organization those forces which nominated Mr. Smith and directed his campaign. He insists that if they continue to dominate "Texas and the south will cease to be democratic, the east will not be controlled and the west will be permanently estranged and the party will break up."

Possibly the governor of New York has enough to occupy his mind at the present time without giving his attention to the purging of the democratic party. It was a communication which could hardly have been happily received. It was criticism which doubtless represents the sentiment of more than the writer but that doesn't necessarily make it the attitude of the party.

There is an opportunity now for the southern states to be heard as they have never been heard before. They have demonstrated that there are limits to which they cannot be driven and it is apparently the purpose of the democratic whip in the house to restore harmonious conditions as quickly as possible. Whether that can be accomplished by such a method as he proposes is open to question. If we can judge by the last campaign it might only be like adding fuel to the flames. Some method less dramatic than he suggests would probably be more expedient.

THE VISITING TEACHERS.

The decision of the town school board to add a visiting teacher to the Norwich schools must be regarded as a response to a need which exists. That snap judgment has not been employed is indicated from the fact that such a move has been under consideration for the past two years. Now that the board is able to see its way to meet this additional expense of $1200 to $1800 a year it has decided to act and try out this method of dealing with those children who are looked upon as individual problems.

This new teacher means the employment of a social worker to act among school children. Wrong tendencies, school failures and bad behavior are believed to be due to conditions which ought to be removed. Such problem children it is believed are in need of the full benefit of education and that sound training for useful citizenship and right living can be accomplished by getting in touch with those influences which are drawing the child in the wrong direction and removing them.

The visiting teacher is expected to make this contact, to take up these problem children, study their environment, their home conditions and the various influences with evil tendencies and through the knowledge of his home and neighborhood life apply such instructions as will educate the child from other standpoints as well as just mentally.

While such a worker is new to Norwich, the idea has been tried out with good results elsewhere. With sufficient cases demanding the service, service which is outside the work of the classroom teacher, the school board considers there is sufficient merit in it to make the test. It is undoubtedly worth the trial.

AVIATION PROGRESS

In various ways aviation is giving conspicuous demonstrations of its advancement. Better engines are being built, better machines are being constructed, longer flying is possible and greater safety is being shown. More and more are developing an interest in flying and steady increases are being made in the commercial use to which it is being put.

Figures from the air mail service tell the story. During the month of December of the year just closed the air mail service carried 537,113 pounds of air mail. That included the Christmas period, but it represented nearly 400,000 pounds more than were carried the same month a year previous. The gain of December over November was nearly 143,000 pounds and this represents a use of airplanes which is steadily increasing. We are not only sending more and more mail over established lines but we are adding new air mail lines both within and outside the country.

Aviation has made great strides but it is destined to experience a much greater development. The possibilities are such that it is impossible to anticipate what will be accomplished. Like the railroads, the steamships and the automobiles it will mean steady progress. What has been done and what is being done are all necessary steps in the early stages of a new and swift means of transportation.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It is strange before the gab marathon was arranged that it wasn't tried on the 70th congress.

The man on the corner says: All the fans are raising pennants over their favorite teams this early.

Business cannot be expected to boom in sleds, snow shovels and rubber boots when it rains all winter.

There seems to be plenty of confidence that the Kellogg treaty will win but it is requiring a lot of time getting to a vote.

The new police commissioner in New York is going to raid all the speak easies where they sell poison liquor. How does he make the distinction?

When President Portes Gil promises to pacify Mexico in two months either the job isn't a very big one or else he plans an unusually strenuous campaign.

Information that federal income tax blanks are being sent out furnishes no cause for cheer except possibly that by the time they are filed winter will be on its last legs.

It needn't be expected that all the general assembly will be asked to do is contained in the governor's recommendations. But those things should get a conspicuous place on the calendar.
